CURRENT COMMENT.

It is said that England has investments in the United States amounting to $3,193,500,000.

PETITIONS are being circulated among G. A. R. men and other veterans of the country advocating Gen. O. O. Howard for president in 1895.

C. I. SMITH, one of the largest stockmen in Lincoln county, Wash., telegraphed President Cleveland that he would furnish the government 5,000 cavalry horses free of charge in case of war with England.

HENRY MENIER jumped from the Washburn street bridge at St. Paul, Minn., into the Mississippi river and coolly swam ashore uninjured. The height of the bridge is 125 feet. When Menier reached the bank he was arrested.

Two women fought a pistol duel at ten feet, at Louisville, Ky., recently over a common lover. Neither was injured, but a third woman, who attempted to act as peacemaker, received a bullet in the stomach and will die.

THE dispensary system of South Carolina is making money hand over fist, and all classes are becoming reconciled to it, owing to the fact that the profits go to the school fund. The idea was taken from the Norway plan.

THE immigration of foreigners into the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1895, is shown by the reports to have reached the lowest point in numbers since 1879, but since then the influx of foreigners has been steadily increasing.

RECENT statistics show that the increase of divorces exceeds in percentage the increase of population in nearly all the states. The causes are such as indicate a growing disposition to regard marriage as a mere contract instead of a sacred union.

THE latest official statistics of the internal revenue department reveal that in the prohibition state of Iowa there are 365 more people engaged in the sale of liquor than are engaged in both the manufacture and sale of liquors in the state of Kentucky.

OFFICIALS of the war and navy departments at Washington talked recently as if they had positive information that there was a secret agreement between the United States and Russia, which would be operative if hostilities came about through the Venezuelan affair.

THE New York Tribune says: "No one in his sober senses wants war. But of all wars with Great Britain, that one of the best ways of preventing it is to be prepared for it. The present excitement will call attention to an unprepared condition, and thus serve a useful purpose."

THE new constitution of Utah has been examined by President Cleveland and Attorney-General Harmon and found to be in all respects in accordance with the terms prescribed in the enabling act. Therefore the president will issue his proclamation January 4 next declaring Utah a state of the union.

It was said at Washington that the president and Secretary of War Lamont were seriously considering the advisability of silencing Gen. Miles. His recent talk of the weakness of this country's coast defenses and the general inability to go to war with assurances of success has been termed indiscreet and his latest speech in Philadelphia has aroused some feeling, it was said, in the executive department, which may occasion a rebuke.

RICHARD W. HART, bishop of the Mormon church at Salt Lake City, member of the territorial legislature and a practicing lawyer of some note in his region, recently expressed some opinions to a reporter which will be received with astonishment by people who had supposed the Mormon church had permanently abandoned polygamy. According to Mr. Hart's view of the situation, the church will at once take up the practice when Utah has been admitted as a state.

THE Militant church, of Chicago, of which Rev. Dr. Rusk is pastor, is preparing for war with Great Britain. Recently, after divine service was concluded, attention was turned to affairs military, and the National Torpedo Defense association was formed. Mr. E. H. Lynn, who in 1882 was identified with the torpedo service of Great Britain, is at the head of the movement. It is designed to call soon a national convention of representatives from the cities exposed to coast attack and arrangements will be made for the instruction of recruits in torpedo work.

THOMAS A. EDISON thinks that American inventors could devise engines of destruction sufficient to destroy any hostile British fleet that came over here. He said that an aerial dynamite torpedo that could be steered might be constructed. It would not be necessary to strike the ship when dropped. The very force of the concussion within two miles of the ship could shiver her. A handful of men could sweep away an army, the destructive power being found in electricity. American inventive genius would soon supply what the army and navy of the country lacked.

THE Railway Age for December 27 says that railway building in the United States reached this year a lower point than in any of the last 20 years, and in only two years since 1865 has so small a mileage been built. Only 1,782 miles of track were laid in 1895. In the eight years since that time the decrease in construction has been great and continuous, and this year the total built was only about 100 miles more than in 1855—10 years ago. The greatest amount of track laid was in Texas, where 224 miles were put down. The railways of the United States aggregate a little over 181,000 miles.

BALTIMORE'S HORROR.

The Dreadful Theater Disaster of Friday Night.

WHICH COST OVER A SCORE OF LIVES.

Horrible Scenes in the Stairways Leading From the Galleries, When to Stumble or Lose One's Footing Meant Certain Death.

The Old Front Street Theater Horror.
BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 28.—Not since the awful Tivoli disaster in 1883 has Baltimore been so horrified as it was Friday night when a tragedy was enacted at Old Front Street theater, which has resulted in the death of 23 men, women and children, while probably 100 are more or less injured. To some person unknown—and it may be well for him if his identity be forever concealed—due this deadly destruction of human life. The venerable Thespian temple was PACKED FROM DOOR TO ORCHESTRA RAIL. The occasion was a Hebrew operatic performance and more than 2,500 persons of the Hebrew faith, of both sexes and all ages, were present. As the orchestra finished the overture and the curtain was being rung up there rang through the theater a loud cry of "Fire." All eyes were transfixed by a tongue of flame which suddenly burst forth from a leaking gas pipe in the second gallery near the boxes on the left-hand side.

A MOMENT OF PARALYSIS. For a moment paralysis seemed to seize every limb as the dreadful cry of fire struck terror to every heart. The next instant the scene was one of wild excitement, every man on his or her feet, men yelled, women wailed, children screamed. It was pandemonium unloosed.

With one accord, the surging, seething tide turned toward the exits. The rush and jam was appalling. Men and women alike were for the time being bereft of their senses. The cries of the feeble, of the children and of the women—the pleadings of the aged—were heartrending.

HUNDREDS WERE THROWN TO THE FLOOR, while those behind pressed on and over them, little heeding the fate of those underneath their feet, and only possessed of the fear that their turn might come next. The theater attendants and actors on the stage did all in their power to check the panic and stem the human tide which was sweeping along so furiously, but their outcries were unavailing; the crowd was deaf to reason.

TWO GREAT MISTAKES. The cry of fire was a great mistake—the turning off of the gas by the stage director was greater. Instead of allaying the excitement it added vastly thereto. The frantic Russian and Polish Jews, naturally of a very nervous and excitable temperament, redoubled their efforts to leave the building. The occupants of the galleries swarmed to the stairways. Here it was that the most deadly effects of the stampede manifested themselves. In a few minutes the hundreds who composed this part of the audience were JAMMED TOGETHER LIKE SARDINES in the lowermost stair. Men, women and children went down in the rush and were almost instantly crushed lifeless.

Each of the stair-cases has but one turn, and that is a sharp angle. In these angles many persons went down to their death. Children were torn from their mothers' arms and carried for awhile on the top of the surging mob, brushed here and there when they got to the way of

THE DESPAIRING CREATURES, who were fighting to get away from the way they knew not what, and finally going down under foot never to see the light again.

The man or woman or child whose footing was lost was doomed. But few who stumbled came out of the crush alive.

The fresh air and the light of the street restored to the people some part of the reason they had lost. Out in the air and safe they realized

THE ORDEAL THROUGH WHICH THEY HAD PASSED and what their struggles had cost. It was then that many who had gone into the building with wives or daughters or sons or sweethearts missed them. Some tried to fight their way back into the building, calling aloud the names of the missing ones. Others ran about the street peering into the faces of everyone they met, and beseeching those whom they knew to tell them something about those who were lost. Women ran here and there, calling the names of their children.

RENDING THEIR GARMENTS AND BEATING THEIR BREASTS and calling out that the curse of God was upon them. The confusion on the outside of the building was as bad as that on the inside, only it was not so terrible. It was light on the outside, several electric lights making the place almost as light as day. Inside there were dim lights, being just bright enough to show how hideous the catastrophe had been. An alarm of fire had been turned in. The police and firemen worked with difficulty, and finally

HAD TO TURN SEVERAL STREAMS OF WATER ON the crowd to get it sufficiently dispersed to enable them to bring out the injured and the dead. As each body was brought out the crowd would push up around it and almost tear it away from the police and firemen in the effort to see if it was that of a person known to those about.

Fourteen of those taken out dead were removed to the city hospital. The distressing scenes attending identification continued until after midnight, when the bodies were removed to the morgue. Night bodies were taken di-

THE STATE OF TRADE
As Indicated by Bradstreet's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Bradstreet's weekly review says: As the rule in Christmas week, wholesale trade has been quiet. The holidays, the close of the year and the fact that the business slow and promise only a slight trade in January. At various cities, notably New York, Boston, Baltimore and Chicago, anticipations as to the character of trade in the coming year are not out. It remains to be seen whether the forward movement of demand and prices, and the delay in putting the currency on a sound basis, all of which have begun to show themselves in trade conditions, will permit of a early and marked gain in staple lines of trade. In 1894 has been decidedly active.

Business failures in the country for a completed year number 1,003, an increase of more than two percent, notwithstanding this is the second year following the panic in which, as shown by the record, it is usual for the number of failures to decline. The increase of two percent, in number is accompanied by a gain of six percent in the value of those failures, and the number of failures, which averaged 123 in every 100 engaged in business during five years from 1890 to 1894, inclusive, and ranged as high as 150 in the past year, has decreased to 114 in the year ending December 31, 1895. The percentage of failures has risen from 5.8 per cent. one year ago to nearly 50 per cent. as contrasted with 1894. The number of failures in 1895 (four included as wheat) from both ends of the United States this week amount to 3,400,000 bushels, against 5,050,000 bushels in 1894. In the corresponding week one year ago, 2,000,000 bushels, or 2,000,000 bushels, three years ago, and at contrasted with 2,100,000 in Christmas week 1891. This week's foreign shipments of wheat (100,000 bushels) are the largest since the third week of January '94.

THE DEFENDER'S CASE.

The Hearing Continued Before the New York Yacht Club Commission.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The hearing of the charges brought by Lord Dunraven against the people in charge of the Defender was resumed before the special commission at the New York Yacht club.

The hearing began with the resumption of the evidence on behalf of the Defender's side of the case which was commenced shortly before the judgment Friday night with Nat G. Herreshoff, who built the American yacht, on the witness stand.

The discussion ensued between counsel on either side as to the admission of certain evidence. The passage-at-arms between Mr. Choate and Mr. Asquith, the London lawyer, was decidedly interesting.

At 1:15 o'clock Lord Dunraven left the Harrington and entered a carriage with H. M. Kersey. They were driven to the Cunard Steamship Co.'s dock, where Lord Dunraven boarded the steamship Umbria, which sailed at 2 o'clock.

Neither Mr. Asquith nor Mr. Hamilton went with his lordship.

Mr. Glenn left the clubhouse at 12:30, and probably went on board the Umbria with Dunraven's baggage.

TURKISH ATROCITIES.

The Worst Scenes of the Saracenic Invasion Repeated Over and Over.

BOSTON, Dec. 28.—The following letter has been received in Boston from Constantinople from an American resident in that city.

"The details of the atrocities in Asia Minor are perfectly appalling. Some 2,000 were killed and wounded in Arabkir, and almost the entire Christian quarter was burned. Out of about 2,000 Christian homes only 150 remain, and into those are huddled several thousand survivors who are living on the refuse grain rescued from their burned houses."

"The scenes of the worst periods of Saracenic invasion in the seventh century were repeated over and over. Thousands of Armenian Christians have been forced to except Mohammedanism at the point of the sword. Christian women without number have been carried off to the harems of Kurds and Turks."

THERE IS NO TRUTH

In the Report That the President Will Sign the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—There is no truth in the report that Speaker Reed and Mr. Dingley received assurances from President Cleveland that he would sign the tariff bill if it should successfully run the gauntlet of the senate.

There is no expectation on the part of leading republicans in the house that President Cleveland will approve the tariff bill should it reach him. On the contrary, there is every indication that he would veto it.

There is a well-authenticated rumor in circulation at the capital that the treasury department is now preparing a contract, presumably with the Moroccan-Drexel syndicate, for the sale of a 30-year four-percent gold bond. It is believed that the contract will be signed within the next few days.

Mrs. Dempsey's Benefit.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—The widow of Jack Dempsey, the "Nonpareil," will receive something in the neighborhood of $2,000 from the benefit tendered Friday evening. The People's Palace, where the entertainment was held, was packed to the doors, and all the seats were sold on a cash basis.

Death of an Abominably Heavy Child.

A NICE LITTLE GAME.

The St. James Gazette Tells About England's Scheme to Establish a Colony Upon Territory Title to Which is Disputed.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—The St. James Gazette, which was the first newspaper to print the ultimatum of Great Britain to Venezuela, on October 17, publishes a statement that initial steps have been taken in British Guiana to form a chartered company, whose operations shall lie between the Essequibo and the Schomburgk line. The Gazette proceeds to say that the origin of this important political development is to be found in a dispatch which Mr. Chamberlain, colonial secretary, wrote in September sketching the new policy of the imperial government as regarded interior affairs and inquiring if local capitalists were prepared to take up a large concession in the northwest and develop its mineral and other resources, at the same time hinting that if not there were people in the United Kingdom who were willing to do so.

The Gazette goes on to print a report of a meeting held in British Guiana for the purpose of forming a chartered company to take up Mr. Chamberlain's offer. The paper, which claims to know the policy of the colonial office, says it is certain that Great Britain will not consent to leave to arbitration the entire territory claimed by Venezuela; hence, if the bona fide official guarantees of local applicants are satisfactory there is no reason why Great Britain should stay her hand by not granting a charter, despite the tension between England and the United States.

VICTORIA AVERSE TO WAR,
And is All Worked Up Over Salisbury's Refusal to Arbitrate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The queen has concerned herself in the Venezuelan boundary matter. Behind the very pacific message sent by the prince of Wales to this country a few days ago, as now appears, was the influence of a private letter from England was tendered for publication. It was not in paragraphs but in a single sentence, and its relation to the present case is that of their deliver of the latter consent to arbitration. The tone is somewhat irreverent, but the information conveyed is very interesting.

"The old lady is all worked up about the boundary dispute and has pulled out large handfuls of Salisbury's hair. She does not think the attitude of Great Britain in this matter is consistent with a Christian nation, and that the refusal to arbitrate a matter of such comparative insignificance is not setting a good example to less civilized nations of the world. I have it straight that she expressed her displeasure because Salisbury did not consult her before forwarding his reply, but she lays it upon Chamberlain, who, as minister for the colonies, is supposed to keep her majesty informed of matters that pertain to them. As the queen grows older and approaches her end she becomes more conservative, and has such a violent horror of war that I am sure we will never see Great Britain engaged in active hostilities until she is buried."

"Her majesty has been very assiduous in cultivating the peace societies and encouraging the adoption of arbitration in all international disputes. She takes great pride in the result of the recent Paris tribunal over the Behring sea troubles, and considers the result a full justification of the British pacific policy. You may be sure that the United States will never be involved in war with England over the Monroe doctrine or any other question as long as the queen survives."

England Said to be Now Willing to Arbitrate with Venezuela.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Dec. 28.—It is now rumored that England, believing that the United States is determined to fight, is now willing to arbitrate with Venezuela, and wishes to resume diplomatic relations for that reason. The Venezuelan government, while declining to speak officially regarding this rumor, says that Venezuela can not now renew negotiations or receive any communication except through the United States.

Two of the Mission Street Highwaymen Captured in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—Two of the highwaymen who held up a Mission street car Wednesday night and robbed Robert Clarke, an English race track employee, of $1,000, have been arrested. The discovery of a pouch containing $800, which was buried in the sand near the Cliff house, led to the capture. The police buried the sack where it was found and then lay in wait with Winchester for the bandits. After dark John Middlemass and Harry Gardner approached the spot and were about to unearth the treasure when they were arrested. Patrick Welch, who is believed to be one of the robbers, was also arrested.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—Inquiries made by the representative of the United Press among prominent members of the stock exchange have elicited confirmation of the statement of an eminent London financial authority that bonds of a new American loan would be readily taken here. It is also learned that negotiations are now pending with several London banking firms regarding their taking bonds of such a loan, and the impression prevails that these negotiations will be successful. The bonds, however, must bear 4 per cent. interest and be issued at par.

THE CHRONICLE

C. C. DuBOISE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, JAN. 2, 1896.

The average wealth throughout the world, taking its population at 1,500 millions, is about $325 per head, according to recent calculations. Russia, in spite of her great natural resources, appears to be the poorest civilized nation on the face of the globe.

Public sentiment as expressed by the statesmen who have been interviewed by the newspapers of the country is evidently strongly in favor of maintaining the position of the president in declaring that the Monroe doctrine does apply to the situation in South America and that England must keep hands off all American territory not hers by right. There is also a general belief that there will be no war, and this feeling is based upon the belief that England has too much opposition republics.

STINGHOUSE, the electrician, is interviewed by saying that electrical power can be produced at one-sixth present cost. He expects to show in a few months that this is entirely feasible. If so, then steam is doomed to go sooner than was looked for. Electricity can be distributed anywhere from the largest factory to the plain farmhouse, to become a servant and do his work. It is most certain that the electric motor of a street car can be successfully controlled by the intervention of either a wire or underground conductor. The street car of the future is to be filled thus.

Reason kissing is so pleasant, an oscillatory expert of scientific species, is because the teeth, jaw and lips are full of nerves, and the lips of persons meet an electric current is generated, and, chips of centemporary, you don't have a dynamo machine, nor a battery in the house, nor a call button to touch to ring up the office, and there is no patent and the poorest person in the land can enjoy the electric current than the millionaire, and it is out of order. If Edison had a kissing it would cost $100 a minute the telephone, and then a man would be charged up if you didn't pay for it they would out your kissaphone and you from the central office.

SOUND ADVICE.

W. Bok, editor of the Latent Journal, continues to solve the "young men." The advertisement is always candid, wise, and to the point. The number of his excellent quotes the following, which a young man has then proceeds to answer words of advice which all young men would do well to heed. The questions are:

What's the use of leading a straight life? Nobody gives you credit for it. Society expects a more or less diverting life from a young fellow; it so expects him. Practically it calls him a "ninny" if he lives otherwise. It only asks of him that he shall not be caught. Isn't this so?"

Here is Mr. Bok's reply: "I can scarcely imagine a view of life so entirely wrong in its personal application. The real 'use' of leading 'a straight life' is apparently absolutely overlooked by this young man, who seems to think that his life is lived for others rather than for himself. The 'use' of leading an honorable life is to his own conscience, to his heart. Of what possible satisfaction is to get credit from others for what is best for one's self? Men do not lead honorable lives for the sake of getting credit for it—to win the hand of applause. They do it for themselves, for their own inner satisfaction—that they may be true to themselves and to the best that is within them.

Aside from this paramount fact, however, people do give a young man credit for the life that he leads, and are far more often aware of his doings than the young man supposes. But it depends upon the people whose favor the young man values. If he seeks the recognition of what is so wrongly called and known as "society," a right-eous life, an upright life, an honorable life—may not count for so much. But the aimless men and silly women who constitute that body called "society" figure for nothing in the life of an earnest young man. If, however, he associates with men who in his development days may mean much to him, and whose acquaintance in later years will be a pride and a joy to him, if he finds pleasure in the society of women who arose his best thoughts he will find that his life, free from blemish, is appreciated, is understood, is recognized and is known. There is an indelible chord which always draws the right men to the young man of pure life. They are the men who give credit to a young fellow who tries to live rightly, and they are the only men worth his knowing. These men may not openly applaud him, but they will give him their confidence, their good will, their friendship. And in later years he will more fully understand what these elements mean to him. Such men do not call a young man "ninny" because he leads an upright life; they call him a manly fellow, and they take him into their hearts and into their homes. An adherence to high principles and right living counts for a great deal as example and inspiration to others as well as training and advancement for one's self. It gives a young man a certain indefinable strength in himself and a position in the eyes of others which nothing else can bring him.

THE TOLERATED TOUGH.

From the Chattanooga Times.

The fellow Daughdrill, who shot down a Mr. Bates, at Gadsden, Ala., is a specimen of the tolerated tough of good family, to be found in every community. He had, after the manner of his kind, "killed his man" before he shot Bates, and was "out on bail." No wonder the South has lynchings when her courts and peace officers deal with assassins of social standing, or other sort of pull, as if they had only committed a petty misdemeanor. When a fellow is hanged, the same hanging is done there and unless the displacement of civil government is more than one vigilante committee. New Orleans has been on the verge of passing into the hands of the populace, more than once in the last few years, and all because the tolerated toughs were not only tolerated, but allowed to override and trample on the law at their pleasure. If they murdered, they were "admitted to bail," in sums like those required of burglars or hall thieves. Being "out on bail," they were free to add more scalps, as it were, to the one or two dangling from their belts.

There is no phase of our criminal administration that more loudly calls for reform, than this easy tolerance by the peace officers, the courts and society, of the sort of hoodlum we are alluding to. He is invariably a dissipated fellow; drunk or sober, he habitually goes armed, and everybody knows it. When in his cups, he is as dangerous as a frantic bullock baited into a wild fury, and one is as apt as the other to kill or wound the unoffending and helpless. The license allowed such men is very demoralizing in its influence on young men or better instincts; and especially does it tend to the ruin of immature young fellows of high and not regulated spirits.

In a few of our cities, notably in New York, the police powers and the courts have learned how to deal with the tough element, that wears good clothes, drinks good wine and high-flavored brandy, and depends on family or political influence to help them out of any scrape they may get into. Some quarter century or so ago, when the car hack murderer said "hanging for murder has played out in New York," he was about right, but his remark probably sealed his doom. He had a great pull; but even the corrupt Judge Cardozo, of the Tweed gang, dared not let him off, and the gentlemanly rough was hanged. Soon after came the explosion that blew Tammany out, and ever since then a New York city murderer's money is of no good except for mere delay.

And it's high time the example of the metropolis, in this case, were followed in all the cities of the country. We should, whatever else we may do in the way of being lenient with venial offenders, not allow a class of murderous assassins to become fixed in our cities. The existence of these human nuisances, is the great reason why so many respectable, responsible and peaceable citizens go armed when they travel, and too often use their arms hastily to repent of the act all their lives. The prevalence of the tolerated rowdy and ready shooter, should either be abolished, wiped out, or the laws in all these states making arms-carrying a crime should be repealed. So long as the police, the courts and society tacitly license pistol carrying by such fellows as we describe, it is outrageous to interdict the use of arms to peaceable people.

THAT REVENUE EMERGENCY BILL.

From the Chattanooga Times.

The rules committee of the house, The majority gagged, and tamely submitted to be that the what was the measure on the floor speaker and his servant discussed, thought should not hearing, must should not be allowed a per whip and be rushed through and increase the spur? It is a measure to legislate, by the revenues, says Mr. Dine, for nearly sum of $40,000,000 a year, says Mr. three years. It consists of the duties levied, of an increase of the existing levied in schedule "K" or increases, tariff, and sundry other things, raising We are now, says Mr. Dixon, and $150,000,000 by internal duties, since that is enough of direct, the government is the fixed policy of part of the ment to raise the major taxes. Then revenue from customs is imports to he wanted more taxes of his tend to discourage them, and in the computation the balance of trade in his country's favor, the only way to gold, that ion, to stop the outflow of gold.

And this is about the design to explanation Mr. Dingle American make, of a bill to tax the Not a syl-people $40,000,000 a year, affect com-able as to how this will do. Not a merce in the taxed matter and collect-ward as to how the laying the classes ing these taxes will affect people as directly concerned, and that these are a whole. In addition to be measure rangements for rushing wed to be of no amendments were also reasonably fered by anybody. It is the mem-ber certain that not a score sure under-ers who voted for this measure. Are we at the edged money? No. Does the treasury have surplus of So far from it that it has available for $175,452,183 in the vaults, a had that paying current expenses; he roll was much at the very moment $40,000,000 calling for the vote to add to to blot a year—not to pay bills, but the the treasury reserve! Minister had much as hinted at a need of more revenue, much less asked ongress to provide more; both had declared, specifically, that more revenue is not now the need of the country; that the people desired and should be given a rest from changes in the present laws for the raising of money.

This is the sort of bill that put through the sort of branch and these are the conditions and circumstances that surrounded this most extraordinary performance. Emergency? Yes, Mr. Reed's presidential boom was in need of help and this is one of the means for helping it. The republican machine needed fat for 1896, where-with to grease its bearings, all its pin-joints and lubricate its joints and the majority of the house would of course, do what it might, to lay fit on the ribs of this and that favorite trust or industry, for the engineers to fry out when wanted.

There never was a grosser exhibition of cant and humbug in American politics, than the lashing of an emergency revenue bill through congress, under a gag rule, with the information on every member's desk that the treasury, at that hour, held nearly $200,000,000 of cash available for the meeting of all demands, and with the words of the head of the treasury fresh in every memory, that "more money" was not wanted, unless congress determined to retain the uncovered notes in use, and then only gold would be needed, and that gold could not be gotten by process of taxation, under existing conditions!

The unreason and dishonesty of this game, as far as the house has played it, would be hard to match.

A PICTURESCUE PERSONALITY.

A Populite Paper on a Populite Leader.

From the Greenville Living Truth.

"The greatest man today in the world (in his own estimation) is J. C. Manning, of Alabama, president of the Southern Reform League. Pyrotechnic dispenser of vivid interviews, with newspaper reporters, who run him down and force out opinions by the mile and take his pictures at all stages of the progress. People who offer the original remark that "money talks" don't know Manning, and have never seen his wonderful office, out of which the "interviews" are supposed to proceed. It is his mouth that conquers. There is no other mouth like his in all the world. It is all things to all men, and nothing long—a monolith, built for perpetual motion, with metaphor, hyperbole and vivid imagination. It is automatic, and seems to furnish its own motive power. It looks like a bath tub built of cast iron, lined with brass and trimmed with babbit metal. Manning is ubiquitous, one day you hear him in Cleveland, Ohio, and the next day he is in Boston, Philadelphia and Washington City, and the papers are full of him and his pictures—pictures sitting, standing, speaking, gestulating and spreading himself promiscuously. But it is every inch Manning—in the lines and between the lines—in the style and in the pose—as well as in the prose—Manning in capital letters stands out in bold relief on every hand. He set out in life to capture fame and has covered himself all over with success. Here is the last full-ation from his luminous person-

WILL MEET HER OBLIGATIONS.

Treasurer Smith Talks About the Condition of the Treasury and Its Causes.

From the Montgomery Advertiser.

"The state will be prepared to meet all obligations promptly on the first of January," said Treasurer Smith yesterday. "Arrangements were made several months ago for the payment of all the interest to become due on bonds in January, and the matter disposed of, the state will have no trouble in meeting all other bills promptly as they are presented. In order that you may see for yourself the condition of the treasury, the balance at the close of business this afternoon is $104,672.26.

"It is true that the state has been borrowing money to meet her debts, but that is not unusual, and does not result from any mismanagement or short coming on the part of any public official. The fact is, the tax rate was reduced at an unfortunate time, when values decreased and business fell off unexpectedly. I do not think there is any real cause for alarm over the present financial conditions of the state, for I am sure all trouble can be averted and every arrangement promptly made to meet every obligation that may be incurred. In the mean time, the increased tax rate and the probable advance in the values last year will do much to relieve the treasury. The law passed by the general assembly at its last session providing for the payment of interest on all delinquent taxes due the state has had the effect desired, and moneys have been paid into the treasury last month and this which have not heretofore been received before March or April. The large tax payers are coming forward with their taxes, and the state is getting the use of the money at a time when it is most needed. The January payments will probably be the largest in the history of the treasury."

POPULIST HOWARD'S SLIP.

He Follows the President's Lead Right Off.

From the Coosa River News.

Congressman M. W. Howard, of the "skillet" district, voted for $100,000 appropriation out of the "people's money" to meet recommendations made by President Cleveland in his message.

What are the "dear people" going to do about it?

Before Mr. Howard went to congress he told the "very dear people" that his first step would be to institute impeachment proceedings against the president, and now he does exactly as President Cleveland says he should.

It would now be in order for the pops to hold a mass meeting and whereas, resolve, and indignate at once. We have a lot of orators in Cherokee who could shake the woods and make the acorns fall. The swine in some sections are getting a little thin, and nothing short of a cyclone or a meeting of this kind could bring down the—

Ice From the Upper Air.

From the South American Journal.

A Yankee farmer in Brazil who longed for the cooling liquids of his native land and was unable to obtain them in that tropical country, has utilized a kite for the purpose of obtaining ice. He fills a tin can with water and sends it to the height of three miles, where it is promptly frozen. After a sufficient interval the kite is rapidly hauled in and the cake of ice is secured. The inventor is so pleased with his toy that he now proposes to send up a kite one hundred and fifty feet long by a steel wire cable. Under the kite will be suspended a pulley over which runs an endless chain bearing cans attached to hooks. The cans will be filled with water, and the speed of the belt upon which they run will be regulated so that the topmost cans will be converted into ice sufficiently hard to stand the downward journey. This is certainly the most original ice machine of which we have ever heard.

Rev. H. M. Milstead spent Sunday in Wilsonville with his son's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuqua, of Talladega, Texas, are on a visit to relatives here.

W. A. Walburn and wife of Saginaw, spent Saturday and Sunday here.

J. T. Leeper spent last week with relatives in Anniston and Birmingham.

Miss Nellie Parker made a visit to Montevallo friends during Christmas week.

Ed. C. Parker, a student at Howard College, spent the holidays with home folks.

Rev. Mr. Walker, of Jacksonville, is a guest of his daughter Mrs. T. J. Weaver.

Miss Lucy Vest, of Montevallo, was a guest of Miss Nellie Parker two days last week.

Miss Lena Hendrix, of Renfro, spent a happy week here during Christmas.

Miss Myrtle Swain, of the Alabama Normal college, was at home to spend Christmas.

Geo. Mason, who is attending college at Auburn, was at home during the holidays.

Ned Anchors, better known as "Buck," was one of our jolliest visitors last week.

Miss Pearl Hubbard, of Weavers Station, was the guest of relatives here last week.

Mrs. C. J. Christian, of Bessemer, spent Christmas with her father's family in our city.

T. H. Waterworth, of Bransville, spent Christmas week with the family of J. T. Cromwell.

James Evans, having purchased the Judge Horton dwelling, moved his family into it Tuesday.

Will Seale and wife, of Childersburg, arrived yesterday noon on a visit to the family of T. L. Seale.

A. B. Milner passed a creditable examination last week, and will soon have a position as mail agent.

John Milner, of the University of Alabama, spent a happy Christmas here with friends and relatives.

Miss Sadie Williams, a student at the college at Bailey Springs, came home to spend the Christmas vacation.

Augustus Lawrence, of Texas, was a visitor in town last week.

Mr. Sullivan, daughter and son, of Texas, are visiting the family of J. H. Hammond of our city.

Misses Pearle and Linnie Seale are spending the week with their grandfather near Shelby Springs.

Tom Evans, an old Shelby county boy, now of Whitehall, Tex., is among his old friends here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Calahan returned Sunday from an extended visit to Atlanta, Washington and points in Virginia.

Clem Greek, formerly one of our boys, but now holding a good position in Anniston, was down last week to see his parents.

The festive candidate will soon be around shaking the "fist" of the "horry-handed sons of toil," but he "toils not neither does he spin."

Joe Harris, of Ringold, Tex., is on a visit to his mother near here. Mr. Harris has many relatives and friends here who always welcome his return to his old home.

Our young people enjoyed a happy evening last week at the pleasant home of A. M. Elliott. His amiable wife knows just how to make her young friends enjoy themselves.

Thomas Ellis, who has been in charge of the Southern depot in the absence of Agent Calahan, left Monday for Talladega, where he has secured a permanent position with the same company.

The Christmas tree was a success, and was the source of a world of happiness for the little folks, all of whom were remembered and went home laden with gifts that carry joy to the heart of a child.

We have just printed a large supply of warranty deeds, quit claim deeds, mortgages, croupieins, wave notes, etc., and can supply our customers as promptly and at as close prices as any firm in Alabama. Give us a call.

J. B. Green and family have moved from Childersburg to this place and occupy one of the Verchot dwellings. He was attracted here by our excellent school. A hearty welcome is extended him and his interesting family.

The probate judge informs us that he has received blank applications for pensions for confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows, and that parties desiring to make application can do so between the 18th of January and the 18th of June.

Messrs. A. H. and J. F. Avery, two of Shelby's cleverest merchants made us a pleasant visit yesterday. Each of them favored us with a liberal order for stationery, showing that they are up to date business men, and know where to get the best articles.

The masquerade party last Thursday evening at the Colonial was a brilliant and most enjoyable affair. The girls were sweet, jolly, and looked very cute. The boys were simply "out of sight," and this was true in more ways than one. A happier crowd we have never seen, nor do we expect to see again right soon.

One of the most popular and substantial institutions that has sprung up in our county for many years is the bank of Columbiana. Gordon DuBoise, its owner and proprietor, has grown in public confidence and today no safer nor more accommodating bank can be found. His efforts deserve the success he is having.—Montevallo News.

H. Fox, who has been merchandising for some time in Montevallo, was in town yesterday. He concluded to move his stock of goods to this place, and has rented the store room now occupied by B. L. Moore, and will open up Monday for business. He is a live merchant, we are told, and proposes to use the papers here liberally to tell the people of the wares he handles. That he will succeed is a foregone conclusion.

Hon. E. S. Lyman and Captain H. C. Reynolds came up from Montevallo yesterday to get the first installment of $2500 appropriated by the commissioners court for the Girl's Industrial School. They informed us that the remainder of the $9,000 required of them was on hand, and ready to be paid to the proper authorities. They are sanguine and enthusiastic, and well they may be for they have a prize that we feel sure will fully compensate them for their arduous labor in obtaining it.

Our clever, genial young friend, Frank Spears, of Shelby, is in trouble again, and we hasten to assure him of our deep sympathy. Knowing his horse would not stand hitched in any portion of Columbiana, except in the immediate vicinity of Judge McMillan's residence, and knowing further that the boys here were "on" to this fact, he has been spending all the spare time lately at his command in concocting a scheme to keep said boys off his trail. Last week he concluded to try a new plan. He "hooked" a friend's horse, and upon arriving here hitched him in a remote part of town. Frank thought he had the boys this time, and proceeded to congratulate himself on his good fortune. But, alas, how deceptive things are in this "vain and fleeting world." The horse he "hooked" it seems was the property of George Avery, and not having been hitched at his usual place on Depot street, he broke loose and went home, leaving our young friend to paddle home on foot through the mud. Frank, my boy, be careful whose horse you ride in future, and be certain before leaving Shelby to get instructions where he is to be hitched.

Tax Assessor Hammond requested us to call the attention of merchants, business men and corporations to the fact that under the present law as amended by the last legislature they are required between the 1st and 10th of January of each year to make a full and complete invoice of their stocks of merchandise and wares with the value thereof, and in listing the taxes thereon they shall present the same to the tax assessor. The act above referred to can be found in the Acts of Alabama 1894-5, on pages 1162 and 1163, and should be carefully read and followed by all parties to whom it applies. It might be well to remember that ignorance of the law is no excuse for those who fail to comply with its provisions.

A "sixteenth century party" was given Tuesday evening at the residence of Rev. W. I. Sinnott. The program as planned was not fully understood, and not a few failed to "rig up," only two boys complying, Messrs. Joe Spencer and H. C. DuBoise, who wore knee pants, long stockings, slippers with buckles, full dress coat and vest, ruffled collars and cuffs, and hats of approved styles in days long gone by. The girls looked too sweet for anything in varied costumes as follows: Nellie Parker, represented spirits of wine; Anna Milner, queen of hearts; Elva Greek, Grecian goddess; Ethel Greek, Gypsy; Louie Longshore, queen of the ocean; Pearl Norris, shepherd girl; Georgia Cromwell, Indian; Kate Huett, night; Guelma Green, morning; Tommie Alexander, sister of charity; Mary Wagner, a rose; Grace Walker, Italian singer; Vivian McLean, bride; Belle Cromwell, Red Ridinghood; Mrs. Emma Calahan, fairy; Birdie Morrison, a tacky. The variety of the costumes lent charm to the entertainment, and mirth and merriment reigned supreme.

Wilsonville Warblings.

What became of the serenaders Saturday night?

Christmas has passed with its joys and sorrows.

Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Holmes, of Anniston, are visiting at Geo. McGowens.

You should have seen the Christmas tree last Tuesday night. It was just "lovely."

Oh! what a merry time the young folks of Wilsonville have had during the holidays.

Quite a crowd of young people enjoyed the party at Jas. Ray's last Monday night.

The sociable at Wm. Tinney's was enjoyed by all who attended last Wednesday evening.

Our telegraph operator, E. Williamson, is visiting his home in Brewerville, Sumter Co.

All are cordially invited to attend the literary society at J. F. Pope's next Friday night.

Messrs. W. H. Pope and M. P. Jackson, after a pleasant visit to their relatives here, left Sunday.

One of our most popular young men, W. J. Tinney, has found work in Anniston. We wish him success.

We are very sorry to give up one of our most popular young men, Chas. Arnold, who left us last Friday.

Frank Pope is carrying on a thriving business in his new store. Wilsonville is getting to look quite "civilized."

John Weldon and his sister Mattie, of Howard college, are spending their Christmas vacation with home folks.

Miss Emma Montgomery, of Coosa Station, who has been visiting Miss Mattie Weldon, returned home Tuesday.

A merry crowd of young men and young ladies enjoyed the Christmas dinner at Mr. Bolin's last Thursday evening.

Misses Ethel Kidd and Rosa Lyde, of Vincent, who have been visiting Miss Purnie Pope, returned home Thursday.

Miss Willie Taylor, of Talladega, has been spending Christmas week with her friends, Misses Blossom Denler and Juddie Kilpatrick.

A sociable was given to the young people, last Thursday night, at Henry Jackson's, in honor of his brother, Pierce, and was greatly enjoyed by all.

Our school opened Monday morning with a full house. All the old pupils returned and also many new ones. The school is on a regular "boom."

Oh! how that hay ride was enjoyed by the young people last Friday night, as well as the party at Jesse Taylor's, if we did have to come home in the sleet and rain.

"NELLIE BLY."

Harpersville Echoes.

New Year's gift.

Christmas has come and gone.

Our supreme judge is visiting Pratt City.

How about that war with Great Britain?

Prof. Florey spent Christmas with his best girl at Wonack Hill.

Mrs. W. L. Davis and children, of Columbiana, are visiting here this week.

There are some few cases of sickness in our community, and look out for more later on.

Miss Sallie Martin came over from East Lake and spent Christmas with her father's family.

Rev. James Self came up from the University and spent Christmas with his father and mother.

Frank Gorman came over from the Howard and spent all of last week with the Harpersville boys.

Miss Nattie Lee Walthal and her brother Henry, of Irondale, are visiting W. W. Wallace's family.

There was quite a large crowd of our young people attended the oyster supper at the Elliott hotel in Vincent last Tuesday night.

Now that Christmas is over with, we wonder if some of our churches won't have to see some of their members for dancing and getting drunk.

Harpersville was not infested with the Birmingham dudes this Christmas. To make a professional dude now is to wear specks and carry a cane.

Mr. J. H. Martin, formerly of this place but now at Kelley's Creek, who has been very sick for the past three weeks, is, we are glad to state, much better and we wish for him a speedy recovery.

The new year has found a great many of our farmers in better circumstances than the old year which has just gone. Most of them have enough corn and meat to do them, and their old debts are much smaller, and with good luck and energy they will come out all right yet.

The old year, 1895, is now numbered with the things that were and cannot be recalled, and we have now entered upon the new one. The old one, to some, brought joy, happiness and prosperity, while to others it brought sorrow, trouble and misery. The farmer made good crops and got a very good price for his produce. The merchant made good collections. The churches did extremely well and the heathen were not forgotten. The doctor, the mechanic and blacksmiths all came in for their share, and were amply rewarded for their labors, and even the newspaper men were made to smile by the dollars sent them. So much for the year 1895, and ought not all of us to be thankful. Good bye old year, good bye—welcome new. "JAKE."

Shelby.

A telegram on December 26th announced the birth of a son to Mr. J. William, and Mrs. Susan E. Warner, and grandson to Rev. A. T. Clarke.

A special John and Charles Wesley service will be held in the M. E. church on the second Sunday night in January.

The week of prayer will be observed by union services as follows: Monday night and Tuesday night, at the Baptist church; Wednesday night and Thursday night, at the Congregational church (Covenant); Friday night and Saturday night, at the Methodist church.

In Memoriam.

Adelaide H. Mardis was born in Montgomery, Ala., May 22, 1831, died in Columbiana, Ala., December 22, 1895. When fate would have her marry, flushed with maidenhood hopes, she plighted faith with N. B. Mardis, (later probate judge of Shelby county.) With an attachment seldom surpassed their domestic joys ran smoothly until October 13, 1892, when Judge Mardis was called to his eternal rest. In the bloom of girlhood she gave her heart to Christ, and joined the Methodist church at Wetumpka, then moved to Selma, and then to Columbiana, where she died. Her religion was not of a gloomy type, though having much to do with sorrow, having passed through great trials, she was not sored, the brightness of a happy nature came out the brighter for having passed under clouds. Her last illness was short and severe, but perhaps it was best that she should be taken thus. With the trials that meet struggling human kind on every side, with the sorrows that line the pathway of life, who can contemplate the passing of our innocent soul into the beautiful beyond without feeling that our loss is their great gain. In death she seemed to have fallen asleep; the crucifixion agony had gone, and the same gentle, kindly smile hovered over her face, so often seen in life. No doubt but that her glorified soul is now with her departed husband and other kindred spirits in our Father's house, for she left a dying testimony of the comfort of her faith in Christ. Sunday morning she said: "If this is death it is sweet to die; soon I'll cross the river where I'll have eternal rest." May God's grace sustain her lonely sister in her deep grief. We would bid her lean, by faith, upon the bosom of a dear Saviour, pillowed with so many precious promises to the sorrowing. Your death shall live again. Like as the flowers that at the voice of spring burst forth from the cold, dark ground, so shall the loved and beautiful awake from the tomb at the voice Omnipotent to live forever, for she is only asleep.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep. From which none ever wake to weep; ☐ A calm and undisturbed repose, Unbroken by the last of foes."

THE JOHN A. BAIZER SEED CO. have recently purchased the catalogue seed business of the Northrup, Hraslan, Goodwin Co. of Minneapolis and Chicago and have added to their already large business. This gives to this wide-awake firm the largest catalogue trade in America. The firm is in magnificent shape to take care of all seed orders as they are large growers of farm and vegetable seeds, own their own lands and have recently added a large and commodious seed store to their already mammoth building at La Crosse, Wis. If you are in want of choice seeds, this is the firm to write to. They mail their new catalogue upon receipt of but 5c postage.

In the year 1894, the De Kalb Fence Co., of De Kalb, Ill., doubled the capacity for producing their fences over 1893 which gave them an output of 20 miles per day. The demand for their goods has been so great the past season, that in order to be able to supply their trade, they have been compelled this year to double the capacity of 1894, which now gives them an output of 40 miles per day.

This itself speaks well for their product and merits the attention and inspection of readers and all that are in need of smooth wire fencing of any kind. It will be to your interest to write for their catalogue, which describes in detail their goods, comprising the largest and most complete lines of smooth wire fencing now produced by any one plant in the country.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of Roxbury, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both of them humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squishy feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

Christmas As It Is and As It "Use To Be"

Way Down There in "God's Own Country," A Reckless Christmas Drive "Whist Blev Scroggins Heat the Line." Your Uncle Hiram Makes Some Christmas Verses.

(Copyright, 1894.)

Once a year, as regular as the time rolls around, I can catch my foot self feeling like I would love to make a cross mark and spit in it, and turn back and be a boy again for a few days anyhow—and that is in the Christmas. To be certainly of course it don't pay nobody to be forever looking in back, weepin and wallin over something they can't help. You can't feed your pigs on the milk that is spilt. The past is most in generally always past. There is life for the livin and death for the dead.

Christmas Now and Then.

But in durin of the Christmas—in that when I take the back track in my mind and go nosin around promiscuous into the long ago. Right then if I could but only have my way about it I would spit out and start over, and go back and come again, and live over the harum scarum scenes of my boyhood days, and have one more rare, genuine, old-fashion Christmas.

Tonight I can shet my eyes and look back down the long and dusty road which my wanderin feet have trod, and once more I can see the old home place, where I was born and bred and buttered and brung up—where we had Christmas that was Christmas every year. I can see that same old brown house loomin up in the moonlight, with shed rooms for us boys, and a wide open pass way where we use to hang up the saddles, whilst the dogs slept on the blankets.

But somehow or somehow else Christmas nowadays is a right smart like the old song you hear—it ain't like it use to be by a whole tremendous bight. It comes and goes too blame quick and sudden like. I don't have to wait and wait, and wish and wish, and count the days till Christmas comes. By the time I do about a little and stir round some and git the cotton out and the corn in and haul up some wood, by gracious Christmas is here.

It maybe mought be all on account of the man in this case, but I don't see no high-heel times and general Christmas confusion goin on now like we use to have back down there in the old settlement. The fiddles don't turn out such loud and stirrin music, and the boys and girls they don't dance as fast and furious nowadays. The fires ain't so roarin bright and hot, and the dinners ain't near as plentiful and good, and the egg nog ain't as strong, and the fire-crackers don't give out such tremendous loud reports as they did in them old days which I am tellin you about. By gatlins, Christmas is powerful bad swunk up it seems to me when I see what it is now, and then look back and bring to mind what it use to be.

Christmas As Was Christmas.

At the regular time once a year Christmas always did come at our house. But I recollect one Christmas which still stands out in my remembrance more brighter and happier than the common run, and poor as I am I would give the finest calf on the place if I could only turn everything backward in their flight and live that Christmas over once more before the last final shower comes and I have to go in.

The Lucas-Uncle Hiram and all of his folks—come over that time and spent Christmas with us, which it also come to pass in them days that me and Andy went nothin more than a rough and tumble team of yearlin boys. On Christmas Eve all the men folks and boys went to town to lay in the general necessities for a good time. Now Uncle Hiram he was yonder the most out-doinest man for runnin with the boys you ever read about, and he took me and Andy around town and fixed us up right. He pitched in and bought us a whole passle of stuff for fancy eatin, and freerackers and torpedoes and raw powder and the like of that till we had materials enough to keep up a steady line of firing and alarm the settlement for three days.

Then we went on home, the most happiest pair of boys that ever left a track in all them regions perhaps. And of all the shootin in the history of Panther Creek we had it right then and there that night. We went out in the back yard and built up a big fire and turned loose and shook the earth and painted the sky red. Presently Joe Nick Stringer and Will Tom Pickens and John Andrew Milligan they heard the monstrous fuss and confusion and come over to jine in with us. By-and-by when the fire-crackers and things played out we took and bored a hole in a big oak tree so we could fill it full of powder and stop her up and tech her out and let her go with a mighty roar. We kept up the fun and didn't cease firin till about midnight, and there ain't no tellin for certain when we would of look out and quit if Joe Nick hadn't backed himself into a right bad scrape. When it come to his time to fire off the tree gun he didn't move his washin quick enough, and consequently the stopper blowed out and bit him on his left hand and knocked three of his fingers out of whack. We then adjourned the meetin for that night.

The next day all the boys got together and throwed in dogs till we had thirteen in the pack, and we went rabbit huntin till dinner. After dinner we didn't do nothin much but loll around the house and bang out by the fire and wait for the dinner to settle. White people, when I got through with the Christmas dinner, and put all the fancy trimmings on it, I didn't see how I could git hungry any more inside of twelve months.

Well, that night us boys went possum huntin and bird thrashin. Didn't you never go bird thrashin? If you never did come down to Rocky Creek some time before we burn the brush heaps off of the new-ground and we will go. The birds they roost in the brush heaps, you understand, and when the crowd close in with their torches and shake the brush the birds fly out and you can thrash 'em down with a stick.

The next night me and Andy went to a big candy pullin—which they soon run it into a break down dance—over at the Pickens place. It was a long time before me and Andy could squeeze ourselves up to a pint where we could face the music and go in the house and git mixed up with a girl. In the main time we hung out around the door and peeped through the window like a pair of young idiots, which we were. But man sir, when we did break in and git started there just want no headin of us, and we soon turned out to be the biggest men on the ground.

"At sligh schools and spellin bees, That's where we use to sh; n; We couldn't sing a little bit, Nor spell no mighty fine. But when it come to courtin gals An' such a sort of hard study had left me In a wretched condition. Rightly, fingerin' heads found me a ready victim, and at times I was so drowsy that the dropping of a pin would cause me to give a violent start, and then I would be seized with a fit of tremblin that was, to put it mildly, ex-resistance to the person who I began to doctor myself. Now I flatter myself that I know something of medicine; but with all my knowledge, I could find nothing that could cure this terrible headache or put an end to my nervousness. When I picked up a bottle my hand would shake as I thieved the pills, and if it was a powder that I was handling I stood a good chance of sprinkling it all over these black trousers. Things went from bad to worse, and I soon realized that I was in my physical condition had better not attempt to mix medicine.

"Try a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," said Dr. Burkhart one day, and I began following. I got the Pink Pills and began to take them. A dinnin's lamp never performed the wonders of this Pink Pills. I would you believe it! Before I had taken the contents of one box my headache began to give me a day off occasionally, and soon it left me another fellow. I don't know how it was, but the pills put an end to that with almost startling abruptness. You see I knew enough about the business to appreciate the physician's directions, and by paying strict attention to those given by Dr. Williams with each box of his Pink Pills, I was soon another fellow. CURRENT COMMENT.

Forty-five accidents in twenty-five days was the trolley record for December in Chicago.

The number of business failures in the United States during 1895 was 13,197, as against 12,885 in 1894.

A French paper says that the United States is commercially a great and powerful rival for all Europe combined.

Tennessee is having trouble with its convict labor leasing system, being unable to secure bidders for the short time prison leases.

The Cuban revolution was started in April last by less than 100 men. The insurgents now number over 50,000, while Campos has used up 110,000 Spanish troops and is calling for more.

The persons of African descent in the United States are classified according to the degrees of colored blood into 6,337,980 blacks, 956,980 mulattoes, 105,135 quadroons and 69,930 octoroons.

The story about Russia offering to loan Uncle Sam $100,000,000 in gold was declared by the Philadelphia Press to be rather fishy, Russia's total stock of gold amounting to only a little over $160,000,000.

Conservative sugar dealers at Chicago predict an advance in the price of that commodity on account of the insurgents burning up the cane fields in Cuba, the best information from the island estimating that there was remaining only 15 per cent of the crop.

The receipts of the American Bible society last year were over $228,000, much less than was needed for its purposes. It prints the Bible in 93 different languages and dialects. Since 1804, there has been an aggregate of 250,000,000 Bibles printed in the world.

Chicago newspapers are inveighing against the facts that have attached themselves to the public school system there. It is asserted that pupils are surfeited with fancy frills under the name of public instruction and leave school unable to spell, read or cipher properly.

A large meeting of representative colored men of the south was held at Memphis, Tenn., recently with a view to adding a national day of celebration of the emancipation proclamation. Resolutions were unanimously adopted making January 1 the day in the future for celebrating the negroes' "gift of freedom."

The public will not be surprised to learn that work on the Grant mausoleum on Riverside drive in New York has been suspended until the middle of March. This will defeat the plan for dedicating the monument April 21, which is the anniversary of the great commander's birthday. It is now probable that the dedication will not take place until 1897.

Modern banking facilities were illustrated in the recent transaction in the Bank of England by which China paid to Japan an indemnity of $21,500,000 in gold. The coin would have loaded 35 wagons with a ton each, but the handling of one piece of paper sufficed to transfer the money from China's account to the credit of Japan, the whole proceeding occupying but a few minutes.

For the first time in the history of Colorado the gold output for the year 1895 exceeded in value that of silver. A careful computation of the mineral output for the year from the statistics attainable shows the following: Gold, $1,340,495; silver, $14,250,000; lead, $2,955,114; copper, $877,493; total, $35,422,150. The increase in gold production is almost wholly from the Cripple Creek district.

The Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer thinks that judges should take their share of newspaper criticism like other men. If they are unjustly assailed public opinion will be on their side, and if they deserve the censure of the press they should bear it as other officials do. It wants the legislature to pass a law providing that no judge shall punish for contempt except when it is committed in his presence while court is in session.

The beer war which has raged for more than a year in Chicago has been settled. All the brewing companies doing business in that city have signed a mutual agreement by which the price of beer will be advanced January 1 to $5 a barrel, the present price being $4 or less. It is estimated that this will result in the closing of 2,000 saloons in Chicago during the first three months of 1896. When the old brewers' association disbanded beer was selling at $3 a barrel.

The total length of the common roads in the United States, good, bad and indifferent, is estimated by Gen. Stone, of the road bureau of the department of agriculture, at something over 1,300,000 miles. The majority of these roads have been opened by common laborers, hired by local supervisors, and no engineering principles have been observed in their construction. As a result it costs more to keep them in repair than if they were as many finely macadamized roads.

TRANSVAAL TROUBLE.

Late News Received by Way of Cape Town.

NO REPORT OF JAMIESON'S EXECUTION.

Seventy Were Killed, Thirty Wounded and Five Hundred Taken Prisoners in the Battle With the Boers—The Cables Muzzled.

Late News by Way of Cape Colony.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, received at 5:20 a. m. a cablegram from Sir N. G. R. Robinson, governor and commander-in-chief of Cape Colony, saying:

"I received the following from Sir Jacobus A. De Wet, British agent at Pretoria, at 6 o'clock last evening: 'Everything is quiet now. Further serious disturbances will not occur. A deputation from the Johannesburg reform committee came last evening, giving guarantee of peace. I informed President Kruger of that guarantee, and he assured me, pending Gov. Robinson's arrival, that if the Johannesburg people were quiet and did not commit any hostile acts that Johannesburg would not be molested or surrounded by the Boer forces. The deputation was highly pleased at this assurance, and gave a pledge that the reform committee would preserve order. Agent De Wet proceeds to say:

"I testify in the strongest manner to the great moderation and forbearance of the government of the Transvaal under exceptional and trying circumstances. The prisoners have just arrived. Their casualties are stated to have been severe. Those of the Boers were slight."

Gov. Robinson of Cape Colony has telegraphed to Mr. Chamberlain that, of the force led into the Transvaal by Dr. Jamieson, 70 were killed, 30 wounded and 500 taken prisoners. He also telegraphs that it is said in the Cape Town papers that Jamieson, White and Willoughby are lodged in the Pretoria jail. Gray and twenty of the British South Africa Co. are among the wounded.

British News Censorship—Jamieson Not Wounded.
LONDON, Jan. 4.—It is understood that the scarcity of news from the Transvaal is due to the fact that the British government is exercising a vigorous censorship over all, and especially press and private messages. Occasionally a private message filters through. One received says that President Kruger of the South African republic has declared his willingness to make a satisfactory concession to the demands of the Uitlanders.

Another dispatch gives credit to the Cape Times, published in Cape Town, for the assertion that in the battle between the Boers and the force headed by Dr. Jamieson the former were a great deal more numerous than the latter. Jamieson and 530 of his followers, the paper says, were taken prisoners and conducted to Johannesburg. Dr. Jamieson was not wounded. The latest reports say that 80 of Jamieson's followers were killed. The excitement in Johannesburg is subsiding and the citizens are disarming.

The British Jingoism Waked Up Again.
LONDON, Jan. 4.—The St. James Gazette says that the German emperor's gratuitous insult to England in the message of congratulations sent by him to President Kruger, furnishes another argument in favor of Great Britain's pushing on the work of increasing and strengthening her armaments.

The Globe says: "It is a profound mistake to imagine that England will not fight whatever insults may be offered to her. British passion is steadily rising, and the solicitude of the ministers is to prevent a premature outbreak."

Jamieson was Attacked Front and Flank.
LONDON, Jan. 4.—The government has received the following dispatch from Capetown, dated the 4th, noon: "Jamieson surrendered at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the 3d. The actual fighting lasted from three o'clock in the afternoon of the 1st until 11 at night. Jamieson made three attacks. The men behaved in the most gallant manner. The Boers attacked the angle of Jamieson's force, and had a fire on his front and flank."

Will Not Accept Code Telegrams.
NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The cable companies have received the following from London:

The Transvaal government gives notice that they will not accept code telegrams from the public for South Africa."

BIG DEFALCATION.
Columbian Customs Officials Charged With Crookedness.

PANAMA, Jan. 4.—A report has been received here from Cartagena of a defalcation of $200,000 in the custom-house at that port. Several prominent officials are said to be implicated in the fraud.

Committed by Kurds.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 4.—It is believed here that the massacre at Birkid was committed by the Kurds of the Hamadid cavalry.

The recent massacre at Orfah was a terrible affair. The porte admits that 900 persons were killed there, but other accounts say that 2,000 were slaughtered.

Suit Against A. Rush Ritter.
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—Alexander F. Matthews has brought suit in the common pleas court against J. Rush Ritter to recover $34,000 with interest from November 7 last. Ritter is the real estate officer of the Solicitor's Loan and Trust Co., whose unauthorized speculations caused the assignment of that company.

OTHERWISE UNNOTICED.

Chili has decided to change her minister at Washington.
The Spaniards have declared martial law in Havana, and Pinar del Rio provinces.

The coroner's jury at St. Louis found that Annie Bradshaw's death was due to an erroneous diagnosis by the physicians, and that she contributed to the error by concealing her real condition.

Frederick Meyer, a laborer, while leaning out of a window of the fifth floor of Meyer & Bros., 221 Locust street, St. Louis, Friday afternoon, lost his balance and fell to the ground. He was killed instantly.

A NEW DISCREPANCY
Found in Ex-City Treasurer Boln's Accounts at Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 4.—Several months ago City Treasurer Boln was forced to turn the office over to his bondsmen, when a defalcation of $25,000 was found. A committee, appointed by the city council, commenced an investigation, and has delayed its report from month to month. A report was to have been made Friday night. At the last moment the committee notified the council that the report must be again postponed, and in explanation said that a new and unexpected discrepancy had been found. The figures indicate an additional shortage in the city treasury, which, unless counterbalance items are found, will reach over $77,000 alone.

BRIBERY AND FRAUD
Charged in Connection With School-Book Contracts in Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4.—The Mississippi legislature, which meets next week, will be treated to a genuine sensation about the school book publishing firms and their representatives, who made contracts this fall with members of the school book board. Members of the defeated firms have gone to work systematically and methodically to produce evidence of bribery and fraud, and they claim to have it in the greatest abundance.

AUDIENCE WITH THE CZAR.
A Turkish Mission Confers With the Czar on the Situation in Asia Minor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 4.—The czar gave a special audience Friday to the particular Turkish mission which was sent to Russia by the sultan to confer with his majesty in regard to the present situation in Asia Minor. The conference took place at Tsarskoe-Selo, the summer residence of the emperor, and the commissioners were headed by Husny Arif Pasha, the Turkish ambassador to Russia.

Ex-Priest Wagner Will Publish a Book.
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 4.—Ex-Priest Dominick Wagner, who created a sensation here by spiriting away Miss Maude Steidel, whom he afterward married, has just completed a book, which he will place in the hands of the publishers. The work will give an outline of the trouble in which he was involved, and promises some sensational statements.

Conference Postponed.
CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—The Textile Manufacturers' association has postponed its conference, called to meet here on the 14th inst., to Tuesday, January 21, the date set for the annual meeting of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers.

The Yacht Tailman Safe.
WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 4.—The yacht Tailman arrived here for coal and supplies. All well. This effectively dispels the unfounded rumor circulated as to the loss of the vessel off Hatteras.

ALL SORTS OF RUMORS.

Afloat Concerning the Detention of Admiral Buncce's Squadron.

THE ONE THAT FINDS THE MOST FAVOR.

Is That the Squadron's Destination Will be the Bosphorus or Gibraltar, Instead of the West Indies, Carrying Sailed Orders.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The detention of Admiral Buncce's squadron at Hampton roads for the last two weeks, although it was ready to begin its cruise promptly on December 21, according to the programme laid down by Secretary Herbert, was at first generally supposed to be due to a reluctance on the part of the American government to permit even the implied menace of its presence in the West Indies during the excitement following the president's Venezuelan message to congress of December 17. The explanation was plausible enough to satisfy everyone for several days. Now even the commanding officers of the ships forming the fleet are beginning to be mystified by the prolonged delay. Such absence of information about a squadron's movements is said to be unprecedented in times of peace, especially when its daily itinerary for the ensuing five months had been published, and as the wives and other relatives of many of the officers had made engagements to meet the vessels at several ports where they would rendezvous for several days, there is considerable concern lest these meetings will be rendered altogether impossible.

Driven to speculation all sorts of rumors are in circulation among the ships, according to letters received here, and the latest of these, which is not wholly without believers, even in the navy department, proceeds on the assumption that Admiral Buncce has sealed orders which may at any moment send him with his entire force to the Bosphorus. Even the more conservative officers are disposed to attach some credence to the idea, considering it, however, the opinion that Gibraltar or the Azores may be the first stopping place of the squadron after leaving the Chesapeake, instead of St. Thomas, West Indies. There are a number of significant facts which, grouped together, seem to give probability to the rumor.

Admiral Selfridge and Minister Terrell have been sending a good many cablegrams to Washington in the last three weeks, and the late navy department has been spending no small sum of money in cable bills since early in December. On December 21 it was announced that a dispatch of general instructions had been sent to Admiral Selfridge to furnish all protection and comfort to such missionaries as might apply, and almost simultaneously came the press dispatch from Turkey that Admiral Selfridge had cabled the navy department that he was unable to carry out his instructions, whatever they were, because of insufficient force.

The following day Admiral Buncce came to Washington and had a long interview with Secretary Herbert, after which the secretary said that the time of the fleet's departure was indefinite. Some of Admiral Buncce's subordinates now think that Secretary Herbert gave the admiral sealed instructions at that last interview which were only to be opened at sea under agreed conditions. These conditions, if this be so, would, of course, depend upon further advice from Minister Terrell.

UP IN ARMS.
The Province of Havana Rising and the Spaniards Fleeing Back.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—A special to the Herald from Key West, Fla., says: Startling advice has been received here from the city of Havana to the effect that the whole province of Havana is up in arms against the government. While no details are given of the actual crisis, the reports say that the government troops are falling back everywhere in the disaffected western regions before the triumphant rebel army. To allay as much as possible the panic excited by this condition of affairs the chief officials in the capital are sending out in every direction false dispatches about the situation. That these attempts at stifling the facts are far from successful is shown by the wide currency which has been given to the rumor that the actual crisis in the revolution has arrived, and that far from holding the insurgents in check the Spanish military authorities have been outgeneraled, have allowed their foes to turn the flank of their main position, and have thus found themselves in a military dilemma of the most humiliating as well as serious character.

WILL CENSURE THE EARL.
Forecast of the Report of the Defender Investigation Committee.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Press publishes the following: The Press is able to state upon the best of authority the gist of the report now in preparation for presentation to the New York Yacht club of the special committee appointed by the club to investigate the charges made by Lord Dunsen regarding the recent international yacht club races. It will appear from the testimony that the earl has begged the real question at issue. The report of the committee will present the testimony in a purely judicial manner and will censure the earl.

McKREPPOT, Pa., Jan. 4.—The National Tube Works Co. will resume operations in full Monday, January 6, after an idleness of nearly a month. The resumption will give employment to nearly 3,000 men.

The National Rolling Mill also starts at the same time, giving work to about 2,000 men.

Norfolk & Western General Office Building Burned.

ROANOKE, Va., Jan. 4.—Fire started in the general office building of the Norfolk & Western railroad at 11 a. m., and soon enveloped the entire structure. Most of the records and furniture were saved, but the building is in ruins. The loss is about $75,000.

Fire at Vandalia.

VANDALIA, Ill., Jan. 4.—Fire at 6:20 Friday evening destroyed the Illinois Central engine house at this place. The Illinois Central engine No. 119, that pulls the Diamond special to Chicago, was in the fire, and it is thought it is totally ruined.

Found Murdered.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 4.—On Monday street, in the western part of the city, the body of Wm. B. George, a young white man, was found with a head almost severed from the body. George had evidently been murdered.

Died in an Insane Retreat.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 4.—Capt. J. H. Tebbets, a well-known railroad man, for years traveling passenger agent of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, died at the asylum for the insane at Pueblo, where he was lately committed.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

As Indicated by Bradstreet's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

The week which ended 1895 and ushered in 1896 has been very dull in mercantile circles, as is usual at this period. The volume of business has fallen away sharply, owing to the New Year's holiday and to quiet in trade circles at a time when stock taking and preparing samples for commercial travelers are taking the attention of jobbers and commission houses.

A slackening of activity in some of the important manufacturing lines is likewise noticeable, and it is significant that telegrams from so many centers report mercantile collections slow or unsatisfactory, the exceptions being at a few points in the southern states. Jobbers in leading lines at many centers are confident as to the outlook for trade in the near future, although in instances where exports of an unfavorable effect, due to inability to secure necessary legislation on financial questions.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week amount to 3,065,721 bushels, compared with 3,142,000 in the corresponding week last year, 3,196,000 in the week two years ago, 3,038,000 three years ago, and as contrasted with 5,221,000 in the week four years ago. One week ago the total exports amounted to 3,457,001 bushels. Foreign shipments of wheat this week, therefore, are larger than those for any previous week since that ending September 10, 1893. Exports of Indian corn this week, which amount to 3,227,000 bushels, are exceptionally heavy, being larger than those for any previous week since that ending February 21, 1892.

As is usual at this season, there is a considerable increase in the number of business failures in the United States, the total reported being 403 this week, against 316 last week, 373 in the week one year ago, 480 two years ago, and as compared with 313 in the week three years ago.

WHO DOES THIS HIT?
An Old, but Unrepealed, Statute That Might Hurt Someone.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—State department officials, without comment, call attention, in connection with recent sensational telegrams addressed to the prince of Wales and others, to a provision of the Revised Statutes, taken from a law passed as long ago as January 30, 1790, and still in full force and unrepealed. The section (5335) declares that "every citizen of the United States, whether actually a resident or abiding within the same, or in any foreign country, who, without the permission or authority of the government, directly or indirectly, communicates or carries on any verbal correspondence or intercourse with any foreign government or any officer or agent thereof, with an intent to influence the measures or conduct of any foreign government, or of any officer or agent thereof, in relation to any disputes or controversies with the United States, or to defeat the measures of the government of the United States, and every person, being a citizen of the United States, or resident within the United States, and not duly authorized, who counsels, advises or assists in such correspondence, with such intent, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000, and by imprisonment during a term not less than six months nor more than three years."

VENUEZUELA COMMISSION.
The First Meeting—Justice Brewer Chosen President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Venezuelan commission met at 11 a. m. in the diplomatic room of the department of state. Messrs. Coudert, Brewer, Alvey and Gilman were in attendance. Mr. White was absent, and is not expected to join the commission until next week.

Upon assembling in the diplomatic room, the commissioners immediately proceeded to the selection of a presiding officer, who will hereafter be designated as president. As was expected Justice Brewer was chosen unanimously. He proceeded to administer the oath of office to the other commissioners, and then Commissioner Alvey acted in a like capacity for the president.

A motion to designate a clerk to act for the present temporary session of the commission was adopted, and Mr. J. Walter Blanford, private secretary of the secretary of state, was accordingly designated.

The commission will exercise great care in the selection of a permanent clerk, as this matter is deemed to be of some importance. It is understood that a person who speaks and writes the Dutch, Spanish and English languages is desired.

AN EGREGIOUS BLUNDER
Committed by Lord Dunsen in Making Charges Against Defender.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Yachtsman, commenting on the inquiry by the New York Yacht club into the charges made by Lord Dunsen against the Defender syndicate in general and Mr. C. Oliver Ikelin in particular, says that Lord Dunsen has signally failed to substantiate his charges, and that it becomes more and more apparent that an egregious blunder was committed in making the charges. The paper adds that the committee of inquiry has been actuated throughout by an impartial spirit.

The Limit of the Law.
LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 4.—George Washington Davis, the negro convicted of wrecking a Rock Island passenger train near here August 9, 1894, in which eleven persons were killed, was sentenced by Judge Holmes, Friday, to life imprisonment, the limit of the law.

Seventeen Horses Cremated.
ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—A large frame stable in the rear of 1218 and 1220 North Ninth street, owned by John Mosconi, a coal dealer, was burned at 1:30 a. m. Seventeen horses were cremated. Twelve wagons, 17 sets of harness and a car-load of corn were also consumed.

Sanguinary Battle With Moonshiners.
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 4.—Reports reached the United States revenue collector's office Friday that in a battle between a posse of officers and moonshiners in North Carolina, near the Tennessee line, seven men were killed and several others wounded.

Richard Croker in Kentucky.
LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 4.—Richard Croker, ex-Tammany chief, stopped in the city Friday night on his way to Belle Mead farm, Nashville, Tenn. He owns a half interest in the thoroughbreds at the establishment. He declined to talk politics.

Fire in the Fort Worth Gazette Office.
FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 4.—A fire broke out Friday morning in the composing room of the Gazette and destroyed some of the furniture, the belting and shafting, and greatly damaged one of the Mergenthaler machines.

NUMBER FORTY-FIVE.

Utah Has Been Added to the Sisterhood of States

BY PROCLAMATION OF THE PRESIDENT.

The Pen With Which the Document Was Signed Presented to Gov. West—Delegate Cannon Steps Down and May Step Up Higher.

We Have a New Slater.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Utah was added to the sisterhood of states at 10:30 a. m. when President Cleveland signed a proclamation to that effect. There was no ceremony about the matter. Mr. Cleveland and Private Secretary Thurber were alone in the president's office at the time, and the signing was done with a steel stub pen point affixed to a wooden penholder.

The pen and penholder were presented to Gov. West of Utah, who came to the White House about the time the proclamation was signed.

The proclamation is couched in the usual formal language of such documents, and, in view of its verbiage, merely certifies to the legality of the constitutional convention and its acts under authority of the act of congress of July 16, 1894, and declares that the terms and conditions prescribed by congress having been complied with, the creation of the state and its admission into the Union on an equal footing with the original states is now accomplished.

Delegate Cannon Steps Down and May Step Up Higher.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Delegate Cannon, of Utah, severs his connection with the house of representatives, after holding his seat since the organization of the present congress a month ago. He goes by virtue of the fact that on Monday Utah becomes a state.

Mr. Cannon's successor is already in the city. He is Clarence E. Allen, who was elected a representative last fall, and will be the first to cast a vote in congress from Utah. The legislature meets on Monday and must cast its first vote under the general law not later than the second Tuesday after its assembling. It is generally expected that Mr. Cannon will be one of the senators to which the new state is entitled.

VENUEZUELA COMMISSION.
The First Meeting—Justice Brewer Chosen President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The Venezuelan commission met at 11 a. m. in the diplomatic room of the department of state. Messrs. Coudert, Brewer, Alvey and Gilman were in attendance. Mr. White was absent, and is not expected to join the commission until next week.

Upon assembling in the diplomatic room, the commissioners immediately proceeded to the selection of a presiding officer, who will hereafter be designated as president. As was expected Justice Brewer was chosen unanimously. He proceeded to administer the oath of office to the other commissioners, and then Commissioner Alvey acted in a like capacity for the president.

A motion to designate a clerk to act for the present temporary session of the commission was adopted, and Mr. J. Walter Blanford, private secretary of the secretary of state, was accordingly designated.

The commission will exercise great care in the selection of a permanent clerk, as this matter is deemed to be of some importance. It is understood that a person who speaks and writes the Dutch, Spanish and English languages is desired.

AN EGREGIOUS BLUNDER
Committed by Lord Dunsen in Making Charges Against Defender.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Yachtsman, commenting on the inquiry by the New York Yacht club into the charges made by Lord Dunsen against the Defender syndicate in general and Mr. C. Oliver Ikelin in particular, says that Lord Dunsen has signally failed to substantiate his charges, and that it becomes more and more apparent that an egregious blunder was committed in making the charges. The paper adds that the committee of inquiry has been actuated throughout by an impartial spirit.

The Limit of the Law.
LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 4.—George Washington Davis, the negro convicted of wrecking a Rock Island passenger train near here August 9, 1894, in which eleven persons were killed, was sentenced by Judge Holmes, Friday, to life imprisonment, the limit of the law.

Seventeen Horses Cremated.
ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—A large frame stable in the rear of 1218 and 1220 North Ninth street, owned by John Mosconi, a coal dealer, was burned at 1:30 a. m. Seventeen horses were cremated. Twelve wagons, 17 sets of harness and a car-load of corn were also consumed.

Sanguinary Battle With Moonshiners.
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 4.—Reports reached the United States revenue collector's office Friday that in a battle between a posse of officers and moonshiners in North Carolina, near the Tennessee line, seven men were killed and several others wounded.

THE * CHRONICLE *

C. C. DuBOSE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, JAN. 9, 1896.

The discovery of an ossified man in Kansas, leads the Jacksonville Times-Union to conclude that this is one of the natural results of populism.

A call for bids for one hundred million dollars of United States bonds was issued by Secretary Carlisle on Monday. The bonds are to be payable in coin thirty years after date, and bear four per cent interest from date.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat calls attention to the fact that when the civil war opened, the wealth of this country was estimated at $16,000,000,000. In 1890 it had reached $65,000,000,000. The most remarkable fact connected with these figures is that the United States accumulated three times as much wealth during the thirty years ending with 1890 as in the 250 years preceding 1860.

The management of the Atlanta exposition has given out some interesting figures. It has been ascertained that 1,280,683 people were admitted to the exposition grounds. Of this number 817,928 were paid admissions, including adults and children. The Exposition company realized from gate receipts $364,072.95; and from concessions $115,654.32. These are phenomenal figures and but emphasize the magnitude of the great enterprise which Atlanta carried through so successfully.

REV. E. B. TEAGUE, writing to the Alabama Baptist of last week, pays the following high tribute to Judge George E. Brewer: "Judge Geo. E. Brewer, made of stuff very much like his namesake, our good elder, I know not if they be kin—has just held a called term of the circuit court here at Columbiana, holding even night sessions for two weeks to clear the docket, a thing scarcely accomplished within the memory of the oldest citizens. He constantly limited the harangues of the lawyers by the watch. He is quite a young man, and any of us who survive will delight to honor and promote him in the future."

AN editor, who was also the "devil," was in a hurry in making up the "forms," and got two stories mixed. One was the obituary of a greedy old miser, the other, an account of a fire. It came out published thus: "The pall-bearers lowered the body into the grave, but cries of 'water' were heard though all was given up to the flames. There were few, if any regrets, for the old wreck had been an eyesore to the town for years. Of course there was individual loss, but that was covered by insurance." The widow thinks the editor wrote the obituary that way because the lamented partner of her joys and sorrows owes him five years' subscription.

MEDICAL writers are so fond of pointing out the dangers that lurk in nearly everything that is agreeable, that one who takes the other track deserves a special welcome. Such a one is Dr. Talcott, a prominent alienist of the state of New York, who declares that early rising promotes insanity. It has often been a source of wonder why farmers and their families, who are exempt from much of the mental and physical strain that disturbs men's minds, furnish so large a proportion of the inmates of the insane asylums. Dr. Talcott says it is because of their pernicious habit of getting up at unearthly hours, whereby tired nature's sweet restorer is subjected to an "artificial cut-off" that proves destructive to the brain. This is quite the most comforting doctrine that has been suggested by any specialist in a very long time, and it has the great advantage over most medical warnings that it would be no trouble at all to live up to it.

The populists have determined to hold their national convention after the other parties get through, and it is noticeable that no great city is rushing forward with a cash offer or any other kind of inducement to secure the assembly. But the populists are to have a convention. Very true, the situation is not encouraging. Kansas is no more, and Alabama has repudiated the free silver cause. Nebraska has returned to its original fold, and Colorado has dropped from the fence. The Dakotas have no use for the chill green wave, and the cause is no cause at all in other states where it once flourished. But there is to be a convention, as Uncle Joe Sibley issues the call, and, as Sibley is a candidate, there will be delegates. It is Sibley's only chance to be on earth this year. —Philadelphia Times.

CARMACK ON MARION BUTLER.

Carmack, of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, has placed on paper his thoughts and opinions concerning Marion Butler, the young populist senator from North Carolina, which are as follows:

"Marion Butler, of North Carolina, turned loose in the senate yesterday. We venture the assertion that no man that ever sat in that body has so firm a grip on fame as Marion Butler. Butler reminds you of Daniel Webster—he is so different. We seriously doubt whether there is any living thing, from a man to a bacillus, that has as little sense as Marion Butler, of North Carolina. This is why he will be so famous. Peffer, of Kansas, got mighty short weight when he laid in his brain supply, but Peffer is to Marion Butler as Jove is to a worm. Yet this thing can open its mouth and talk for hours on a stretch, and at a distance of a hundred yards looks almost human. The way North Carolina happened to send this freak of nature to the senate was this: A motion was pending to send him to a dime museum; somebody in a spirit of fun moved to strike out 'dime museum' and insert 'United States senate,' and the legislature, being drunk, and populite, to boot, adopted the amendment, tabled a motion to reconsider, and let it go at that. Butler will do much to promote the gayety of nations while he is there. He is a fountain of folly that is never at rest and never goes dry. He is a spouting geyser of hot mud that will attract visitors from the uttermost parts of the earth. Men whose rich bachelor uncles had died and willed their property to an orphan asylum; men whose mothers-in-law have come to spend the summer with them, henpecked husbands, undertakers, Englishmen and all kinds of solemn and sunless nations have been known to look on Marion Butler and laugh joyously. North Carolina has been noted for its humor, but the broadest joke it ever sprung on the broad and hilarious earth is its freak senator, the thing with the form of a man, the voice of an ass and the brain of a bird."

WHAT THE SILVER CRAZE IS COSTING.

From the Savannah News.

"The people will begin to wake up to the fact after awhile that the silver craze is costing them a great deal of money. The silverites are trying to force the country to a silver basis without converting the people to silver monometallism. Their tactics are dishonest. Notice for a moment what is being done in congress. At the same time, it should be kept in mind that neither of the great political parties has declared for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and that the majority of congress is against silver."

The last congress refused to authorize an issue of gold bonds to restore the gold reserve of the treasury. What was the result? "Coin" bonds were issued at a loss to the people of $16,000,000. Now the gold reserve is again far below the point of safety, and bonds will again have to be issued for gold. The president has asked congress—a republican congress—to authorize him to issue gold bonds, and it has refused. Bonds will have to be issued, and "coin" bonds will not command anywhere near as much as gold bonds would. Again the country will be the loser of from $16,000,000 to $20,000,000; and for what reason? Simply because the silver men in congress would rather increase the public debt many millions of dollars than recognize a simple business proposition. Do they gain anything for silver by thus increasing the burdens of the people? Not a thing. They disgust the people with silver, rather than make converts to it, and they play in to the hands of Wall street by refusing to allow the greenbacks to be retired. Wall street wants nothing better than the greenbacks, which enable it to force bond issues by drawing the gold out of the treasury.

And who are the men who are largely responsible for this folly of congress? They are senators of the new states of the far West. Eight of these states haven't a third of the voting population or wealth of New York, and yet they have sixteen senators, all howling for free silver coinage. They have eight times the power in the senate that New York has. The injustice of such representation is too apparent to need comment.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 60¢ for large bottle. MR. CLARKE ANNOUNCES

His Candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial Nomination.

To the Democrats of Alabama.

I am a candidate for your nomination to be governor of Alabama. It has been for some time known that I have had under consideration the question whether my name should be presented to you, but I have not for one moment been held back by my candidacy for a senatorial place. I believe that, when the occasion demands it, personal preferences and ambitions must be subordinated to duty, and that if I should fail to recognize that obligation I should not deserve public confidence or favor.

I feel that there should be some one in the field who represents what I believe to be the strong and ever-increasing conviction of a majority of the democrats of our state, that the administration of Mr. Cleveland has stood strong and brave for the great foundation principles of our party, that it has been honest, wise and true.

It has been fearless to put down anarchy at home and to resist foreign aggression upon established American faith and policy. It has been the steadfast opponent of unequal and unjust taxation. It has been honest and economical in its expenditures of public moneys.

It has saved the country from a fluctuating and depreciated currency, always a curse to laboring and business men and the rich opportunity of the speculator.

It has been surrounded by trying and distressing conditions, and has been faced by perils from its outset. It came into office with a financial panic already developed and soon culminating—one that had been gathering for more than two years, which had been brought about by causes long existing, and would have occurred had the republican party remained in power, a panic of a character which always requires several years to run its course, and from which we are still suffering.

It is greatly to be regretted that repeated bond issues have been necessary to sustain the credit of the country, but it will be borne in mind that has been largely due to the refusal by a democratic congress to make the same wise provision as to the terms of bonds as was lately made by the democratic legislature of Alabama, and to take other plain measures to secure permanent relief and financial stability.

I assert confidently that a prime cause of the defeat of our party is to be found in the fact that many democratic leaders have devoted themselves to assailing the democratic administration with a bitterness and activity surpassing the natural warfare of the republican party upon it, and as unjustifiable as it has been ruinous.

I do not believe that Alabama democrats desire to indorse such a course in their nomination for the highest office within the gift of the people of the state.

It cannot be doubted that the platform and candidates of our party for the national election now at hand will be an approval of Mr. Cleveland's administration. The state campaign will cover a part of the same time as the national, and will necessarily involve to some extent the same issues, since for more than two years such issues have been injected into state politics and steadily kept in the front by the assailants of the administration.

It is certainly to be desired that we shall be in harmony with the great body of the democrats of the country. I most earnestly desire harmony in the party in Alabama, but that is only to be had by a ready and cheerful acquiescence in the declared principles and policy of a majority of the democrats of Alabama, and it is to obtain that expression I take the field.

I shall make as vigorous a campaign as other duties will permit of, but it will be conducted on my part in a spirit and manner to wound no man; to give none personal grievance, while I shall maintain to the utmost of my strength and ability principles which I regard as eternally right, and a policy which I believe to be fundamentally wise.

RICHARD H. CLARKE.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 2, 1896.

Good Joke on Himself.

The Evergreen Record prints the following on Rev. J. W. Stewart, who recently preached at Parker Memorial:

Rev. J. W. Stewart, secretary of the Baptist church of this place, tells a very good joke on himself. When in Mobile recently, he was invited on Sunday afternoon to preach at the Seamen's Bethel, a chapel and reading room supported by New York philanthropists. It was understood that the chairman was called away to fill another appointment. The invitation was in such perfect harmony with a long felt desire on the part of Mr. Stewart to preach to sailors, that he readily consented. At the hour appointed, he wended his way to the little chapel, and was surprised to find only the organist present. After waiting for a short time, three men filed leisurely in, taking their seats near the front. Mr. Stewart then began his sermon, finding the marked attention of his three auditors inspiring. His discourse was frequently marked with nods of earnest approval from them. The sermon over, the preacher then descended from the pulpit to greet the three men, intending to thank them for their attention, when, to his great surprise and chagrin, he found that not one of them could speak a word of English.

Willing Only to Play Politics.

From the Philadelphia Record.

If the republican congress sincerely desired to increase the revenues without embarrassing business, they could make the sugar duties specific, or they could tax tea, coffee or beer. But they have no notion of increasing the revenues, nor of retiring the greenbacks, nor of doing anything except to play politics for whatever they think they can make out of the game. So much has already been made apparent.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Oh how cold it is!

J. F. Pope made a business trip to Anniston Sunday.

Mrs. John Hall, of Calera, is visiting J. H. Weldon and family.

Mrs. Coleman, of Texas, is visiting her father, Mr. T. Houston.

The young people indulged in horse back riding Friday evening.

Prof. J. H. Hammond paid a visit to this town last week on business.

Miss Edna Waters, of Fayetteville, has been visiting relatives here.

Watson Self, who has been visiting his mothers, returned home Monday.

Miss Georgia Pope left a few days ago for Covington, Ga., to visit relatives.

Edwin Williamson, who has been visiting relatives at Coatopa, returned a few days ago.

Prof. J. B. Kilpatrick, Bud Edwards and Embrue Weldon paid Columbiana a visit Saturday.

Prof. J. B. Kilpatrick and wife have been on the sick list, but are able to be at work again.

John Weldon and sister Mattie have returned to college again. We regret their departure very much.

We regret very much to hear of the illness of Mrs. Lula Millstead, but are glad to hear she is convalescent.

Our literary society met last Friday night at the residence of J. F. Pope. Quite an interesting program was rendered.

Miss Mary Mason, one of Wilsonville's most popular young belles, was married yesterday. We wish her great happiness.

Miss Willie Taylor, of Talladega, who has been visiting friends here, returned home Monday much to the regret of the young people.

At last they have begun to build a wing to our school room. You who have been staying away for fear of not enough room prepare to come back.

Quite a crowd of young people took a ride Sunday eve. It was enjoyed by all, especially Embrue Weldon and Miss Maude Williamson who were riding on horses.

Jeff Liles, of Columbiana, visited relatives here Sunday.

J. L. Ray has purchased Mr. Brown's coal at Bolin's switch.

E. B. Teague, Jr., boarded the train here Sunday for Columbiana.

Messrs. Oscar and John Tinney visited relatives in Columbiana Sunday.

We had no services at the Methodist church Sunday on account of the preacher's failure to come.

Messrs. Will Smith and E. Williamson engaged a hack Sunday afternoon and filled it up with pretty girls and enjoyed a nice drive.

L. D. Pirchett, who filled the position at the depot during Mr. Williamson's absence, has returned to his home in Meridian, Miss.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Seale killed Amos Roberson and hope he will have no further trouble.

Jack Taylor and Miss Sillie Bolin indulged in a nice horseback ride Sunday afternoon, at least Jack was mule back and Miss Sillie was the one to be so fortunate as to get to ride Jack's fine horse.

Someone should go out to Ray's coaling and see about those children; it is reported that there are five of them and their mother being dead their father deserted them leaving them without anything to eat, no clothes to wear and no beds or bed clothing. Their ages range from three to eleven years and one of them is a girl. This is too bad, and if the people of Wilsonville don't take the matter up it will certainly reflect upon them.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know

that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.
John Wilson, of Brierfield, spent Tuesday in town.
C. N. Pritchard, of Aldrich, spent Saturday in town.
J. R. Beavers spent Sunday with his mother, in Vincent.
Hon. W. B. Browne is in Montgomery on legal business.
Rev. H. M. Millstead was very sick last week, but is now at his post again.
Dr. and Mrs. T. G. Nelson, of Harpersville, visited relatives here this week.
James Seale, of Childersburg, visited friends and relatives here Monday and Tuesday.
Henry Fallon, recently of New Orleans, La., but now of Birmingham, is a visitor in town.
Miss Emma Millstead is a guest of her brother, John Millstead, in Wilsonville this week.
James Nabors and wife, of Longview, were guests of the family of I. D. Mason Tuesday and Wednesday.
Rev. Thomas McClusky, of Helena, visited friends here this week, and preached Monday night at the Presbyterian church.
The commissioners' court has had a busy session this week, there having been more business than usual to dispose of this time.
The friends of Mrs. Lizzie Bell will regret to hear that she has moved to Atlanta, Mr. Bell having gone into business in that city.
H. Fox, of Montevallo, has arrived with his stock of goods, and is busy arranging his merchandise on the shelves preparatory for business.
For SALE OR RENT.—The very desirable residence property of Mrs. D. B. McMath can be bought on easy terms. For full information apply at this office.
Col. J. K. Milner, who still draws his salary at regular, and more frequently irregular intervals, from a popular Anniston house, was "doing" our town yesterday.
Dr. T. G. Nelson, having recently been elected county health officer, physicians throughout the county are urged to send him their reports to Harpersville, as the law requires.
Will J. O'Hara, who is making a record at Howard college that all his friends are proud of, was at home a few hours Sunday. Will has been on the honor roll every month since he entered college.

And Killed While Attempting to Escape from Jail Saturday Morning.
Jailer Seale Cuts His Career Short by a Well-Directed Bullet.

Such in brief is the history of an exciting but futile attempt to escape from the grasp of the law made by Amos Robinson, who was confined in jail on the charge of grand larceny. He and another white man, M. V. Lowery, charged with embezzlement, had planned to make a bold dash for liberty the first time an opportunity offered. The chance came Saturday morning. Jailer Seale entered the jail about 7 o'clock in the morning to give the prisoners their breakfast. He opened the door to their cage, and while in the act of handing in the food, was rushed upon by Amos Robinson, a man of wonderful strength, and shoved violently against the wall. Before Jailer Seale could recover his position on his feet, Robinson and Lowery had made their way rapidly out of the jail, and when Mr. Seale rushed out after them they were running down the road towards Shelby, Lowery considerably in the lead. Mr. Seale called to Robinson three or four times, telling him to stop or he would shoot him. Robinson replied, "shoot, for I will never go back to jail alive." This left Mr. Seale no alternative but to stop his prisoner with a bullet. He fired only one shot, but it did its work only too well. It struck the flying prisoner almost centrally in the back, just to the left of the spinal column, went through his body and was afterwards found protruding from the skin in his abdomen. He staggered a few steps, fell to the ground, and in thirty minutes was a corpse. Lowery, seeing the fate of his comrade, concluded to take no further chances, and was led back to jail by A. M. Elliott, who went to the assistance of the jailer.
Mr. Seale was shocked and completely overcome with grief when he found that he had killed Robinson, but no possible blame can be laid at his door. He tried to persuade the prisoner to give up, but the only reply each time was "shoot."
Soon after the unfortunate occurrence a coroner's jury was empaneled composed of Rev. C. W. O'Hara, J. W. Johnston, Val McClinton, E. T. Hunter, E. W. Chapman, Evander Morrison and J. W. Mason. The following is the verdict, after a thorough investigation:
CORONER'S VERDICT.
We, the jury summoned and sworn to hold an inquest over the dead body of Amos Robinson, find that deceased was in jail under an indictment for grand larceny, and that while attempting to escape from said jail he came to his death by being shot with a pistol by T. L. Seale, deputy sheriff and jailer. We further find that said shooting was necessary to prevent his escape, and that therefore said Seale was justifiable in killing him.
C. W. O'HARA, Coroner.

While THE CHRONICLE deeply deploras the unfortunate occurrence, we commend Jailer Seale for the unflinching and courageous manner in which he performed a stern duty. Left to preference, he would have pursued a very different course, but he had the manhood and moral courage to do what he knew to be his duty regardless of his own personal feelings. Would that we had more officers of his metal.

APPLES AS MEDICINE.
From the Philadelphia Record.
The apple is such a common fruit that very few persons are familiar with its remarkable efficacious medicinal properties. Everybody ought to know that the very best thing they can do is to eat apples just before retiring for the night. Persons uninitiated in the mysteries of the fruit are liable to throw up their hands in horror at the visions of dyspepsia which such a suggestion may summon up, but no harm can come to even a delicate system by the eating of ripe and juicy apples just before going to bed. The apple is an excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other vegetable known. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep, and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. This is not all. The apple agglutinates the surplus acids of the stomach, helps the kidney secretions and prevents calculus growths, while it obviates indigestion, and is one of the best preventives known for diseases of the throat. Everybody should be familiar with such knowledge. In addition, next to the orange and the lemon, it is the best antidote for the thirst and craving of the person addicted to the alcohol or opium habit.

Two Lives Saved.
Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.
The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Parker & Armstrong.

Tells a Charming Story From Backwoods Life.

Sad News From Panther Creek—"Over to Old Aunt Liza's"—The Greatest Place for Boys—A Terrible Eating Scrape. "Roses Here and Snow Banks Night Out Yonder."

As for me, I never was a man to borrow trouble and grumble at the good old world we live in. But in the common run of everyday life we are naturally bound to put up with a general mixtry of ups and downs and overs and unders—of storms and sunshine, of trials, triumphs and tribulations—the good as well as the bad, the daylight and the dark. We are glad yesterday and sad today, and tomorrow there ain't no tellin' which. We know what has come and what has gone, but only the good Lord knows what is comin' next. And it's all right and proper, I reckon, that He won't tell us nothin' concernin' the things that are yet to be.

Beyond the gold of evenin' we must meet the dusk of night. There are roses here and snow banks right out yonder. You jest simply can't sometimes always tell where the mixtry will hit you the next time. You maybe mought play the tray for low whilst the other man holds the two-spot. But at any rates, takin' the years together as they come and go they bring forth nothin' but what is right and best—best for you and best for me and best for everybody else. Naturally of course there be some things that don't look right and don't feel right on the first blush, but they will work out that way sometime and somewheres down the line.

Aunt Liza She Is Dead.
Right in the middle of the Christmas and New Year jubulations we heard some sad and terrible news from down in the old Panther Creek Settlement. Aunt Liza Raiborn she is dead and gone. She died about 22 o'clock on the night before New Year. It would seem like as if there was a general closin' out over to Aunt Liza's house that night—the close of the day, the close of the month, the close of the year, and the close of a long and useful and busy and beautiful life. For a common thing it takes a heap to make me solemnly and put me on the mourner's bench. Mother maintains that I wouldn't look serious if I was tarred and feathered and set on fire a mile from water. But I have been creepin' around and mope and droopin' a right sharp little bit ever since we got the bad news from down in the old settlement. Not to say that I am the least ways in trouble as to where Aunt Liza went, or how she is comin' on these days, but mostly on account of how they'll miss her around in the settlement. So far as I know she didn't have nothin' in particular to make her want to linger any longer around down here below. All of her own folks had went on ahead years and years ago, and for a long time she had just simply been "foolin' along and piddlin' about," as she were won't to put it, and "waitin' for the cat to die." And yet at the same time Aunt Liza had her place in this world—not a big place or a high place to be certainly, but a bright place and her right place—and she filled it clean out to the edges.

So whilst the fiddlin' and feasting, and frolicin' and dancin' and wedding and quilting, and house raisins and log-rollins, and shindiggin' and footslingins went on as usual, if not more so, I have been layin' around home considerable and keepin' up a tremendous big pile of thinkin'.

I reckon Aunt Liza Raiborn must of been knockin' along tolerable close to a hundred years old before she was gathered up to her fathers. I am no spring chicken myself, and there ain't no colic's teeth in my mouth to speak of, but it has been "old Aunt Liza" from way back yonder as far as my remembrance runs. So far as we can hear tell of there want anything particular the matter with Aunt Liza when she died. From the general appearances, and from what the neighbors say, it looks like as if she had jest simply lived her life out and then fell to sleep—sorter dried up on the stem and blowed away, as it were.

When I first come to know Aunt Liza ralo well she was livin' there on the old place and runnin' it as best she could, single-handed and alone. The neighbors would call by and drop in now and then, first one and then another, to see that she didn't git sick and lonesome, and there want a day or night that come but what somebody was there to pass the time with her.

The Greatest Place for Boys.
To me it looks plum natural and right for Aunt Liza to of passed away from amongst the shiftn scenes of this vain and fleetin' world without any pain and sufferin', and without havin' any thing in particular the matter with her. She was most in generally always well both in mind and body—in good health and spirits—and she made everybody around her feel the same sort of blessings.

The greatest place for boys anywhere in the Panther Creek country was "over to old Aunt Liza's," as we youngsters use to say. She was livin' then where she always lived and where she died, at the old Raiborn place on the Jackson Trail road over on the other side of Panther Creek. Aunt Liza never did have any folks that I can remember of, but I have heard my grandfather say that once upon a time there was a big family of the Raiborns in the old settlement. From time to time I found out from Aunt Liza that her father and mother had both died when she want nothin' but a spring pullet, whilst her brothers had all got killed off in a big war with the Indians. I also learnt from some of the old heads in the settlement that the first, last and only sweethearth she ever had got shut out of the game in the same way.

Aunt Liza was a powerful hand to pick up all the orphan boys that got left in them regions. She was what you mought call an orphan her own self, and she showed a kind fellow feelin' for all them that got left, or strayed and straggled off and lost from their folks like she did. There was Billy Johnson and Tom Milligan and Ned Vickery ("Windy Ned," as we boys use to call him) and Tobe Holliday and Jack Peavy and Rans Timmons, and some others I can't now remember—all of them were left poor orphan boys and got picked up by Aunt Liza. And of them that are now livin' all will tell you that they had as good a home as any boys in them regions, and a heap sifter better than some.

Aunt Liza would take a tangly-headed, bare-footed scrap of a boy and raise him up as careful and tender as if he was her own dear child. Soon as he got big and strong enough he would have to work some, mornins and evenins and in crop time, but he were plenty of clothes—them that was nice and clean, too—and went to school two or three months every year, poked his feet under a good table three times a day—three hundred and sixty-five days in the year—and got all the fun and comforts that any other boy could get out of a good old country home. And then when he got big enough to stand his ground and fight his own way through the world she would give him new clothes enough to last him a year and turn him out to run with the dry cattle.

In that way, you understand, she managed so as to always have room at her house for one more orphan boy if in case he happened along poor and helpless and out of a home.

She Had the Boys Down Fine.
"Over to old Aunt Liza's," if it only a boy went there once, was a place he never could forget. There was a big old dingy-lookin' brown house, without any lightnin' rods or bay windows or fancy trimmings on it. There was big oak trees out in the yard, which made the coolest and most bulliest place in the world for boys to hang swings and build frog houses and play marbles. It was always cool and shady-like and pleasant there. Out in the garden there was a plum wilderness of flowers, and down back of the garden you would find the best and biggest orchard for miles and miles around.

But the mainest thing that made it such a fine old place for boys was nothin' but Aunt Liza. She knowed a boy, with all of his fanits and failins, better than most any grown-up woman I have ever had acquaintance with. She always would give us plenty of elbow room and a little slack in the rope to play with. She rather liked young company and she didn't mind the fuss. She never got hot and flew off at the handle if we boys went wrong and somethin' got broke. She wouldn't fuss with nobody about nothin'. When she went singin' and laughin' and talkin' she would be hummin' soft and lively and pattin' with her foot. She always talked with the same voice—low and kind and gentle like—but yet she was plain and blunt and prompt and straight as a shingle in her business. She had as much sense about runnin' a farm and keepin' the place up as any man in the settlement, and a blame sight more than a whole lot of them. Of course Aunt Liza couldn't take hold with her own hands and lay a fence nor drive a six-mule team, but she could beat the whole discovered world standin' in the back door and havin' it done.

The general crops that grewed on the old Raiborn place couldn't be beat nowhere on Panther Creek, and there was corn in the crib, and meat in the smokehouse, and meal in the tub and hard in the gourd from one year into the other. Aunt Liza must of been some kind to me to the general extent that she always did believe in feedin', and she foreever had plenty around her, and that which was good.

But more than all of that, Aunt Liza could beat the created world fixin' up things to please a boy and meet the common wants of his appetite. She could make the best and biggest biscuits, and bake the best custards, and pies, and puddins, and dumplings, and tarts, and fritters, and flapjacks, and the most of them, of any old lady I ever yet have saw. You couldn't pass along by her pantry no time—summer nor winter—without smellin' the great raft of good things she had cooked up and put away, and if it come to pass that you was a little boy you wouldn't have to wait so very long before you could climb up on the outside of your share.

One Terrible Eatin' Scrape.
I will recollect to my dyin' day how I got into a terrible eatin' scrape over to old Aunt Liza's one time when I was a boy. Hit was in the dead of winter, and the weather was tremendus cold, and maybe you mought know what that means in regards to a yearlin' boy's appetite. When dinner got ready that day there was good old country sausage and chittlins and sauce, and backbone and spareribs, and cracklin' bread with the cracklins in it; then sweet things from the big house to the kitchen and fresh sweet milk to wash it all down with. So consequentially I lit in, I did, and stook my knife and fork and spoon into every dish that come around. I was like a fool drinkin' good whisky—couldn't tell when I got enough—and along about midway of the evenin' I was about the sickest white boy you ever heard tell of perhaps. It looked to me like the world was turnin' bottom side upwards, whilst I was turnin' wrong side outwards. Man, sir, I was mighty nigh past thinkin', but the first thing that popped into my mind was the kind and gentle and patient face of old Aunt Liza. I loved to myself if there was anybody in this wide and wicked world which could pull a boy through such a scrape as that alive, Aunt Liza was that body. So I worried along till I got myself back to the house, though I was monstrous tired totin' what I had ot, and laid down two or three times on the way, hopin' maybe somebody mought come along presently with a wagon and haul it back for me.

When I got back to the house and Aunt Liza found out what was the matter with me, she sailed out and flew around a few minnits and come in the house with somethin' which she said would make me git well. I have now forgot exactly what sort of a name she had for the dost she give me, but that is neither here nor there. It would of done as well without any name at all, as for that. I got there all the same, and inside of fifteen minnits it had fetched up everything but my dirty socks and had them sittin' mighty lo-se. Aunt Liza could beat the livin' world when it come to leadin' a boy up with good things to eat, and then if he was necessary compelled to unload she could draw the waddin' as slick and quick as the next one.

"Jest to Keep the Buggers Off."
When people used to sometimes ask Aunt Liza what in the round world she waited with so many boys around the place, she would always say, "Jest to keep the buggers off and tend to the stock." Then she would most in generally run on to say:

"Somehow or somehow else, I ruther like the boys—particular them that has been left without a mother and without a home. They are so much company to a body, and there is room enough right here on this place for every boy in the settlement. Tell the boys to drop in and see a body—come when they feel like it, and stay as long as they please."

I know full well if the youngsters around in the Panther Creek country could of but only had their way, Aunt Liza Raiborn would of lived on forever and a few days over. In her day and generation there was one place where the boys could always hang up their hats and make themselves at home. And if they took up a notion to have a Christmas tree or a canly pullin', or go out and hire a fiddler and fetch the girls and jump some jigs and run off a few reels, it was perfectly all right "over to old Aunt Liza's." She was considerably of a church woman at that, but she never had went crazy in regards to religion, and nothin' in the world would do her more good, it seems like, than jest to "let the young folks have their way once in a while," as she used to put it.

Now I reckon some folks would wonder how it come to pass that Aunt Liza never did trade herself off as the wife of some sorry white man, but, exceptin' my Aunt Nancy Newton, she was the one oldest old maid I oversaw without feelin' sorry she didn't git married. I reckon it was best for her—and I know it was best for a whole passle of boys—that the right man never did come along at the right time. She was a mother to the motherless and a help to the helpers and a hope to the hopeless, and her home was a home to the homeless.

People that ought to know tell me that when Aunt Liza was sinkin' and droopin' into the last long sleep she was talkin' out of her head, and carryin' on with herself constant about her orphan boys. "Tell the boys to come over and drop in and see a body now and then," says she.

And when the evenin' bells was ringin' in the glad New Year there was a funeral goin' on "over to old Aunt Liza's."

NOTES OF VENEZUELA.

Liberty of worship is guaranteed by law. The standing army consists of a little over 3,000 men. The republic claims an area of 622,807 square miles. The constitution is modeled on that of the United States. The emancipation of slaves took place on March 24, 1854. The national militia consists of all males between the ages of 18 and 45. From 1550 until early in this century the country was under Spanish dominion. The coast of Venezuela was the first part of the American mainland sighted by Columbus. The monetary system of Venezuela is that of the Latin convention, the franc being represented by the bolivar. Don Guzman Blanco was dictator from 1870 until February 20, 1873, when he was elected constitutional president. It was not until 1845 that the independence of the republic was recognized by Spain in the treaty of Madrid. In 1810 Venezuela rose against the Spanish yoke, and in the following year the independence of the territory was proclaimed. The pure white population is less than three per cent. The vast majority of the people are negroes, Indians, mulattoes and sambos. Elementary education is well provided for under the law. There are two universities, 19 federal colleges and various other public and private institutions for higher education.

If he accomplishes this result he says he will get $2,000.

The Brooklyn Eagle recently printed an interview with Senator Pratt in which he said it would be a good thing if the women were sent away from Washington and the legislators left to attend to the business of the country, for they were sent to that city. The New York senator attributed many foolish blunders made by public men to too much society and not enough attention to public affairs.

The London Daily Chronicle reflects the consensus of English opinion when it says: "If Lord Salisbury can find a way to make the slightest advance toward recognition of the American attitude, he will be received with wide-open arms." The people of England are opposed to war with the United States and the peace sentiment there is growing with marvelous rapidity.

THERE are in New York no big grass plots around the schoolhouses over which the children can romp at recess, so the board of education has designed a building with a playground on the roof. HENRY CAVLING, a Copenhagen journalist visiting this country, said to a Boston reporter recently: "Journalism in Denmark is decidedly different from the American. For instance, we have on our paper about 40 editorial no need for more reporters. We have no need for more reporters, because nothing ever happens. Why, we do not have a murder once in ten years. So, of course, the papers there are more devoted to literary articles than to news."

The campaign in Cuba is being closely observed by the administration. In the event that the insurgents attack the capital of the island in force, it is possible that the North Atlantic squadron may be ordered to Havana to be in position to guard American interests during the disturbed conditions that may be expected to accompany a siege. It is not probable that exception could be taken to the presence of our vessels in such a case by Spain, as it is customary for powers having large interests and many citizens in a city so beset to have some force present for their protection.

"The invention of a successful air ship," says Lieut. Cree, in the North American Review, "will cause an entire revolution in the art of war more stupendous than that caused by any invention since that of gunpowder, and even surpassing that, since it only increased the distance between the lines of the combatants, while the principles of attack and defense, strategy and supply, were only slowly modified. A flying machine will nullify strategy, make vital changes in the principles of attack and defense, and diminish the importance of navies and sea coast fortifications."

DEPEW'S TORMENTOR.

A Wag or Knave Who Causes Chauncey Much Trouble.

THE FELLOW HAS MONEY TO INCINERATE.

And Paints the Localities He Visits a Lurid Vermilion, and If Hauled Up Claims Relationship with Depew and Gets Off.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—There is some one who is causing a great deal of trouble for Chauncey M. Depew and the members of the Vanderbilt family. It may be more than one individual, as Mr. Depew has never seen his tormentor, but the various experiences of this interesting person tally so closely that Mr. Depew is inclined to think that this man, who claims relationship with him, is concerned in all of the escapades.

The latest story comes from Bangor, Me., and when seen Mr. Depew was reading an account of it with great interest. He said: "Here is a nice story. Last Friday morning a train rolled into the station at Bangor. Attached to it was a private Pullman car in which was a man who has since made it interesting in that neighborhood. He had a friend with him. They went to the best hotel, hired the best suites of rooms and proposed that a private room be set aside for them during their stay. The first thing they did was to deposit $3,000 in the safe of the hotel. They then drove to the bank and hauled out bills in wads until $2,000 more was to their credit. This fellow told the bank officials that he was a brother-in-law of Cornelius and W. K. Vanderbilt and was down east on a pleasure trip. At the hotel he had 12 dozen bottles of champagne put on ice for the use of himself and friend. He did many other interesting things before he chartered a car and left the city in a blaze of splendor. He said that he had wired me of his movements."

"I have received no such notice. There is a fellow in this country somewhere, however, who makes capital out of my name. Every time he gets into trouble he poses as either my son or my nephew. This fellow paints various neighborhoods and then, having hauled up, calmly says he is a relative of mine and is usually allowed to go. What strikes me as odd is that business men, who are sound in every other way, will be victimized in this fashion. They never wire me until it is all over. I judge that there is not a month in the year that I don't get one or more letters or telegrams asking me about some fellow who has been having a high old time somewhere. This fellow is not a relative of the Vanderbilts, and so far as I know, is not connected with any member of my family. I suppose those people up there are now trying to find out whether those bills are counterfeit or not."

IN FAVOR OF THE ELEVATORS.

Commissioners Having No Authority to Grant Licenses Could Not Revoke Them.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—In the circuit court this morning Judge Tuthill rendered a decision in the grain elevator case which was argued several weeks ago. The question was on the authority of the Railroad and Warehouse commission to pass on the right of elevators to buy and sell grain stored in their warehouses, and is the outgrowth of a long controversy between the Chicago elevator proprietors and the board of trade. The decision was favorable to the elevators, the court holding that as the commissioners had no authority to grant licenses—that right existing in the courts alone—it followed that they had no right to revoke them.

THE BRITISH BLUE BOOK.

On the Venezuelan Matter Will Not Be Ready When Parliament Meets.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The representative of the United Press learns that the blue book on the Venezuelan matter can not be tabled in parliament when the session resumes, as it will not then be ready. The blue book will embody the results of fresh researches into the British, Dutch, Spanish and even the Portuguese archives, and will include a copy of the original Schomburgk map, now in possession of the colonial office, which differs in some respects from the published maps heretofore accepted as the genuine Schomburgk.

If pressure should be put on the government it is possible copies of the blue book would be informally supplied to the American Venezuelan commission. There is no reason why government should abide by etiquette and first present it to parliament. The book will virtually contain the whole case for Great Britain with a fullness that has not yet been given.

HENRY OF BATTENBERG.

Suffering From Fever with the Ashantee Expedition.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Advices from the British Ashantee expedition say that Prince Henry of Battenberg, who accompanied the expedition, is suffering from a slight attack of fever and has returned from the front to the headquarters of the expedition in charge of a surgeon. Spies report that Commaise, the Ashantee capital, is quiet and that there are no soldiers there.

DISCREDITING A GOOD CAUSE.

HAVANA, Jan. 11.—The insurgent bandit leader Perico Delgado and his followers united with a band of rebels and entered the village of Cayajabos, Friday, where they burned a church and committed a number of outrages. Their act has created a strong feeling of indignation among the villagers and others who have hitherto been friendly to the Cuban cause.

A NEWSPAPER AMONG THEM.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 10.—(Friday)—Mr. J. H. Hammond, an American mining engineer, is among the members of the reform committee, who were arrested here to-day and taken to Pretoria charged with high treason.

THE TURKISH BUTCHERS STILL SLAUGHTERING.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The United Press representative in Constantinople telegraphs under Friday's date that fresh massacres have occurred at Rum Kaleh and Djelbne, in the district of Ortha. No details of the outrages are given.

THIS WAS A BATTLE.

Capture of the City of Guira b, the Cuban Insurgents.

AFTER A DESPERATE AND BLOODY FIGHT.

Col. Gutierrez and His Force of Twelve Hundred Spaniards Defeated, Losing 600 Men—The Cubans, Under Collazo, Lost 400.

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 11.—News reached here Friday night of a desperate engagement in Cuba in which 1,000 men were killed or wounded. The insurgents triumphed in the end and captured Guira, a city of 8,000 inhabitants, and the third in importance in the province of Havana. On the afternoon of January 8, Col. Enrique Collazo, leading the vanguard of Gomez's army, appeared before Guira and demanded its surrender.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session.)

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The house resumed consideration of changes in the code of rules proposed by the committee.

At the suggestion of Mr. Henderson (rep., Ia.), the paragraph regulating the counting of a quorum when one fails to vote on any question was temporarily passed.

Mr. Wheeler (dem., Ala.) moved to strike out the paragraph providing that "on demand of any member, or at the suggestion of the speaker, the names of members sufficient to make a quorum in the hall of the house who do not vote, shall be noted by the clerk and recorded in the journal and reported to the speaker with names of the members voting, and be counted and announced in determining the presence of a quorum to do business."

Mr. Wheeler's amendment was lost. Several committee amendments were agreed to, and a proposed amendment in regard to the memorial services of deceased members led to a lively discussion, but nothing important resulted.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

About Ex-President Harrison's Alleged Flance.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The reports about the engagement of ex-President Harrison to Mrs. Dimmock have led to some pertinent remarks concerning Mrs. Dimmock's relations with the rest of the generally family. Mrs. Dimmock is a niece of the ex-president's late wife. Her husband died shortly before Mr. Harrison was elected president, and Mrs. Harrison insisted upon Mrs. Dimmock living with her at the executive mansion.

Reports in the papers recently to the effect that Mrs. Dimmock had dined with the members of the Harrison family at the Imperial were denied with some warmth by the relatives of the ex-president. It has been said that the influence of the family has been brought to bear to keep Gen. Harrison from marrying again, not on account of any personal feeling toward Mrs. Dimmock, but because the children felt that no one could or should take their mother's place.

DEPORTED HAWAIIANS.

Seeking Indemnity From the Canadian-Australian Steamship Co.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 11.—The suits for damages brought by Mueller, Cranston and Johnston, the Hawaiian exiles, against the Canadian-Australian Steamship Co., were commenced Friday before Mr. Justice Drake and a jury.

The case of Cranston was taken up first. The plaintiff was under examination all day relating the story of his arrest and deportation. Mr. Ashford, who was attorney-general under ex-Queen Liliuokalani, and who was himself deported, is here watching the case and will, it is said, give evidence on behalf of the plaintiffs.

Friday the Cuban army entered the city of Alquizar, province of Havana, which is beyond Guira, and nearer Havana. Alquizar was garrisoned by 500 Spanish troops, and, after a brief skirmish, in which 30 were killed, they laid down their arms. The Spaniards had a great quantity of munitions stored in Alquizar, and these Gomez seized.

THE FATE OF ENGLAND.

May Hang in the Balance as the Result of Present Complications.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Events in Europe are approaching a phase that is big with the fate of England. No explanation of Emperor William's message to President Kruger, or the hostile language of the German official press, or of the interviews of the Boers' representatives have been vouchsafed to Lord Salisbury. There is reason to believe that he has demanded such explanations, and that orders to prepare the navy for war were issued after he had duly advised Count Von Hatzfeldt, the German ambassador here, that the German government ought to give the explanations requested.

LORD SALISBURY'S BLUFF.

He Had to Make it as a Part of the Hand He is Playing.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Lord Salisbury has clinched the position at Delagoa bay by notifying the government at Lisbon that the landing of any foreign troops there will immediately be followed by the occupation of the place by the British. By Wednesday five British cruisers will be stationed at Delagoa bay. This procedure rather savors of a bluff, as no power threatens to land troops there, but it is part of the strong hand that the British government is compelled to play.

DAVIS, THE IOWA BANK LOOTER.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 11.—Detective Salsbury, of Denver, has brought to Des Moines C. O. Davis, the Peru (Ia.) bank robber, who, as president, took $20,000 of depositors' money with him last October. Davis went from Peru to Duluth, thence by steamer to Buffalo and Shortville, N. Y., where he was captured.

CLARA BARTON WILL START FOR TURKEY WITHIN TWO WEEKS.

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—It is learned, through Mr. Hagob Bogigian, who is prominently connected with the Armenian relief movement, that Miss Clara Barton, president of the Red Cross society, will start for Turkey on her mission of relief to the suffering Armenians within two weeks.

ALLEGED WOULD-BE TRAIN WRECKERS.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 11.—Jim Kelley and Will Roach, two young men living near Cleveland, Tenn., were arrested Friday at Ringgold, Ga., charged with attempting to wreck the Washington vestibule passenger train on the Southern Railway recently.

MR. WILSON IS DEAD.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 11.—Representative Isaac Wilson, democrat, of Nelson county, died this morning, thus breaking the tie in the legislature.

BLACKBURN'S FRIENDS SAY THERE SHALL BE NO ELECTION OF SENATOR TILL WILSON'S SUCCESSOR IS ELECTED.

THE TURKISH BUTCHERS STILL SLAUGHTERING.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The United Press representative in Constantinople telegraphs under Friday's date that fresh massacres have occurred at Rum Kaleh and Djelbne, in the district of Ortha. No details of the outrages are given.

FIRE AT SPRING HILL, KAN.

OLATHE, Kas., Jan. 11.—Ten of the principal business blocks in Spring Hill, ten miles south of this city, were totally destroyed by fire Friday, causing a loss of $7,000. Business houses on opposite sides of the street were damaged several hundred dollars.

HIS INSPIRATION IS FAULTY.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Alfred Austin, the newly-appointed poet laureate, has a poem in the Times which may be said to be his first work in connection with his office, and which is laudatory of Dr. Jamieson's ride into the Transvaal.

FOUND WITH HIS THROAT CUT.

PONT SCOTT, Kan., Jan. 11.—Friday afternoon the body of Chas. Berger, a colored man, was found in a cave in a field on Judge Scortille's land on West Second street, with his throat cut from ear to ear.

NATIONAL RED CROSS.

CLARA BARTON AND STAFF WILL LEAVE ABOUT JANUARY 22.

FOR FIELD WORK AMONG THE ARMENIANS.

THERE WILL BE A PRELIMINARY GUARANTEE FUND OF $50,000 TO START WITH, AND MORE IS EXPECTED TO SOON FOLLOW.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—An enthusiastic meeting was held here Friday night at which sympathy was expressed with the Armenian sufferers. Miss Clara Barton made the important announcement at a meeting held in New York Friday that such satisfactory guarantee fund had been received that in about two weeks she would be prepared to sail for Armenia.

The staff of the American National Red Cross which will leave New York for Constantinople, probably on Wednesday, January 22, will consist of Miss Clara Barton, president; George E. Pullman, financial secretary; Dr. Julian B. Habbell, physician and for over twenty years the general field agent of the association; Ernest Mason, linguist and assistant secretary, and Miss Lucy Graves, stenographer, all attached to the general headquarters in Washington.

From the New York Red Cross hospital will be taken the surgeon-in-chief, Dr. A. Monae Lesser; the sister superintendent, Bettina Hoffker; Dr. Gottlieb Steger, assistant surgeon, and Stephen E. Barton, second vice-president of the national organization and Miss Barton's nephew; and from Philadelphia, E. M. Wistar, of the Society of Friends, who was on Miss Barton's staff in South Carolina, and will be a district official in Armenia. The other members of the general staff, which will number about 20 persons, will be announced in a day or two.

Miss Barton's determination to wait no longer for the accumulation of funds which will be required to feed and clothe the starving and freezing Armenians is the result of a conference held in New York with representatives of the various relief committees at work throughout the country when she pointed out how precious was every day gained, and consented to embark the moment a preliminary guarantee fund of $50,000 was raised. This amount will be promptly forthcoming, and it is expected that before she reaches Turkey, through the generosity of American sympathizers, the committee will have collected $50,000 additional, to be immediately devoted to relief work in the field. Within a few weeks it is believed that grain and clothing will also be contributed in sufficient quantity to enable the committee to charter a steamer and send supplies directly to Constantinople.

STOLE A MARCH.

Mrs. Alva E. Vanderbilt and Oliver H. P. Belmont Secretly Married.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The Evening Telegram says Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt, the divorced wife of Wm. Vanderbilt, was married to Oliver Hazard Perry Belmont, by Mayor Strong this morning.

The ceremony was performed at No. 24 East Seventy-second street, the residence of the bride.

The ceremony was performed at ten o'clock, and only Miss Smith, Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister, and a very few personal friends were present.

Almost immediately after the couple had been wedded they left the house, and it is understood started for Marble house, at Newport.

R. LYNN MINTON.

Editor of the Anna Tark, Died From Injuries Inflicted by His Footman.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 11.—During an altercation in the office of the Anna Tark, on the night of December 20, R. Lynn Minton, editor of that paper, was struck on the head with a chair by his foreman, James T. Moreland. Minton lingered until this morning, when he died. Moreland has been arrested.

Mr. Minton was well known among the newspaper fraternity of southern Illinois, being at one time president of the Southern Illinois Press association.

DEATH OF GEN. FRANCIS C. BARLOW.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Gen. Francis Barlow, the former attorney-general of this state and widely-known lawyer, died at his home here to-day in his sixty-first year. His death was attributed to the effects of grip contracted a year ago.

AN OLD WHEELMAN DEAD.

OWINGSVILLE, Ky., Jan. 11.—A. D. Ruff, the oldest wheelman, and probably the best-known member of the National League of American wheelmen, who recently made a trip to Yellowstone park on his bicycle, is dead, aged 69 years.

PROBABLY FATAL FALL.

KOROMO, Ind., Jan. 11.—Five men fell from the tower of the new Methodist church building Friday. William Spurgeon, Joseph McGowan and Earl Chase were badly crushed. It is feared McGowan and Spurgeon will die.

A VICTIM OF CONSUMPTION.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 11.—Miss Lucy Barnes, daughter of Mr. Franklin Barnes, a young lady who was quite prominent in society circles, died Friday from consumption, aged 18.

PULLED THE TRIGGER WITH HIS TIE.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 11.—Jacob Ruff, aged 18, committed suicide Friday at his father's residence in West Charleston. He shot himself with a shotgun by pulling the trigger with his tie.

WIFE-KILLER HANGED.

MONROEVILLE, Ala., Jan. 11.—Freeman Collins, a colored man, was hanged at Tuskegee, Ala., at noon Friday, for the murder of his wife last year. He died game, confessing his guilt.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

As Indicated by Bradstreet's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

General trade has not improved appreciably. Some wholesale houses are sending out travelers, while others are not completing orders. A moderate amount of stock. Mild weather at western points has interfered with business in some instances, and trade continues to present a character of uncertainty. The impression is general that uncertainty as to financial action by congress and disturbing political conditions have an unfavorable influence on the prospects for new enterprises. Mercantile transactions east, west and northwest are complained of but at the south the comparative ease with which they are consummated is conspicuous. Demand for funds at various western centers is the most active for the year. Stocks of wholesalers at many of the larger interior distributing points are low. Prices of salesmen on the road are of moderate demand for goods, improvements showing itself first in dry goods, shoes and clothing.

Exports of wheat, including as wheat from both coasts of the United States this week amount to 3,471,000 bushels, as compared with 3,865,000 last week, 2,587,000 in the week one year ago, 2,400,000 two years ago, and 3,306,0

THE * CHRONICLE *

C. C. DuBOISE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, JAN. 16, 1896.

THE democratic state executive committee will meet in Montgomery next Tuesday. Then the boys can begin to whop 'em up in earnest.

THE Chicago Dry Goods Reporter says that it is important to note that many of the most acute financiers of the country are lacking with investments their opinion that we are about to enter upon a period of pronounced and general prosperity.

GOVERNOR OATES and the board of convict commissioners have completed arrangements for the construction within the next six months of a 5000-spindle cotton factory on the state convict farm at Speigner's. The intention is to provide proper and profitable employment for the female and youthful convicts. The machinery has been ordered and the plan of the building has been selected. The brick for its construction will be made by the convicts on the ground, and almost all of the work on its construction will be done by the convicts.

PRESIDENTIAL candidates are remarkable for their reticence of speech. Mr. Reed is muzzled on the silver question. In his message, Gov. McKinley is careful to confine himself to state issues, and Governor Morton is especially guarded in the same way. All this is creditable to the discretion of the candidates, but not particularly so as to their candor or courage. When the times called for an expression of opinion, Mr. Cleveland, whether candidate or not, never hesitated. He has more backbone in his little finger than the three aspirants named here in their whole composition. —Pittsburg Post.

THE Baltimore Manufacturers Record thinks that during the decade ending with 1900 the total output by agriculture, manufacturers and mining in the South will aggregate about $10,000,000 more than for the decade ending with 1890, or, in other words, this decade will show an average increase in the total value of all southern products of about $1,000,000,000 over the preceding decade. This looks like an enormous gain, remarks the Record, and so it is but when we contrast the vast increase in mining, manufacturing and agriculture in the South since 1880 we can see that it is by no means an overestimate.

As between the two gubernatorial candidates now before the people, THE CHRONICLE is for Clarke, and our preference for him over Johnson is very decided. The editor of this paper holds no postoffice job, and has never made application for a government position, but we are in hearty sympathy with President Cleveland and his administration, and we are a "gold bug" of the most approved pattern. Mr. Clarke is built on this pattern, and we are for him. On the other hand "tadpoles will cease turning to frogs and gophers will be worth $1,000 a piece," when we support Johnson on his present platform. There, now, we have said our piece.

HERE is a bit of advice taken from a Montana paper, that if taken would prove profitable to quite a number of our patrons: "Don't get mad if your visitor's name does not appear in the personal column. Perhaps you did not tell the editor; he's no mind reader. Don't get mad if your neighbor's doings are referred to more frequently than your own. Your neighbor uses his mouth. Your modesty may be keeping you in obscurity. That's no dream. A country newspaper man can't spend all his time on the street, and make three meals a day. If you know an item of news, hold us up and give it out of your system. Sixteen to one if we get it second-handed there will be a blunder in it."

APLAN FOR HARMONY.

W. H. Lawson, member of the state democratic executive committee from the second congressional district, in order to try to dispose of the financial question, which is now the disturbing element in the democratic party, proposes to offer the following resolution and urge its adoption at the meeting of the committee at Montgomery on the 21st instant:

"Inasmuch as the democrats of Alabama hold contrary views upon the question of finance, and to the end that the democrats of Alabama may unite in the election; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we, the democratic state executive committee, do earnestly recommend to the county conventions, county primaries and mass meetings (called for the purpose of selecting delegates to the democratic state convention) to instruct their delegates to favor the proposition to refer the financial question to the national democratic convention. That said delegates to the democratic state convention be further instructed to favor an equal division of the delegation from Alabama to the national democratic convention between the two factions of the party known as the sound money and silver factions."

"It is the opinion of the committee that the government of Alabama in the hands of those who love Alabama, her people and institutions, is of far greater importance to our peace and prosperity than the question of gold, silver or bonds."

This is similar to the action taken by the democrats of Louisiana, and Mr. Lawson thinks that it will be favorably considered and will avert a possible rupture, or to say the least, a bitter fight in the party of the state. The plan meets with our hearty approval, and in our humble judgment would tend to allay strife and put a check to a deal of needless friction. It was a great blunder to make this an issue in state politics, and we predict that the men who forced the issue will be overwhelmed with the wave of popular condemnation that will follow "when the clouds have rolled away."

GOVERNOR OATES has been doing some paophysing, and here is his idea of what the future has in store for us: "I am not a prophet nor the son of a prophet," and my predictions as to what may occur within the next century I presume will be worthless. We can but judge the future by the past, and by this test the development of new industries, scientific discoveries and human progress is beyond the bounds of certainty and but a speculation. The greatest progress that has been made within the last ten centuries has been mainly within the field of mechanics. Man with his machine has developed nearly all the progress. Within the early part of the next century the immense carrying trade upon our railroads will be done by electricity. The water powers, which are now extensively used for manufacturing purposes, will be used mainly to drive motors for the generation of electricity by which the machinery of the factories, the locomotives, etc., will be driven, and the flying machine will be perfected for navigation of the air. At first it will be used only by the venturesome, but will gradually be perfected, and its safety improved, until about the middle of the century a large part of the travel will probably be done in the aerial car. As to what improvements and progress may be made in the latter half of the century, that is too remote for finite beings to speculate upon. I think the progress of the next century will be quite great, even greater than it has been during the present century."

SOME of the small fry silvermoon "democrats" are likely to burst with merriment when they contemplate the fact that the free silver folly will pass the repop senate. These little fellows would be less easily amused if they had sense enough to realize that the "cause of silver" can gain nothing by the mere passage of this bill through one house. If they knew anything of recent political history they would reflect that a far more radical free coinage bill passed the senate five years ago and would have passed the house had not the thing been by direction of Speaker Reed locked up by the clerk of the ways and means committee; this five years ago, whereas now a free coinage bill, pure and simple would be beaten in the house by two to one. If the little silvermoths see a gain for the "cause" they imagine they champion, in the present condition as compared to the status of 1890, they can see more than the wisest among us have ever thought they could discern. The truth is that the "cause of silver" has distinctly lost ground for many months. It's now growing down—like the cow's tail—at a fast rate. It will be as dead as the greenback craze by the end of this congress.—Chattanooga Times.

THE Kentucky legislature is a tie and in order to meet the emergency and gain a United States senator the republicans of the house propose to unseat enough democrats on trumped-up contests to cover their point. This is dangerous business. The democrats hold a majority in the senate and promptly announce that for every democratic representative deprived of his seat a republican senator will be removed by the same process, to continue as long as senators last. This may probably maintain the official count as it now stands, but it will tie up the legislature in a manner that means serious injury to the state. In any event the situation is one entirely new and exceptional even in Kentucky politics, and the Kentucky style of dealing with it will be watched with great interest.

THE ABLEST MAN.

A Fine Tribute to Mr. Clarke from a Paper Outside the State.

From the Chattanooga Times.
We are made glad by the news that Hon. Richard H. Clarke, of the Mobile district, will be a candidate for democratic gubernatorial nomination in Alabama this year. Clarke has made a national reputation as a debater and business legislator in his eight years in congress. He is easily the ablest man of his state, in either house. He is a powerful orator, a logician of irresistible force, and an eloquent allround talker. Clarke is for sound money, sound sense, sound democracy. He would give Alabama an administration the state and the South might be proud of. If he goes for the nomination he will get there, we earnestly hope. If he loses and the free silver crank, Johnston, of Birmingham, is named, the democrats will stand a chance of losing Alabama; and while the politicians would deserve the defeat, the fact remains that it would be bad for the people, the state, the South. Neither the populists nor republicans of Alabama are fit to be trusted with even a little power.

DECATUR'S SCANDAL.

From the Morgan County Herald.

The Herald is not in the habit of even hinting at scandal, but there are occasions when for a newspaper to remain silent with respect to certain things is to seem to sanction an evil as well as do injustice to the paper itself.

We can name no less than eight prominent business men in the Decatur, married men, men who occupy a high social position, each of whom habitually carries in his pocket the picture of an attractive young woman not his wife. While we shall not name these men, at least not at present, we have determined to give the name of the young woman in question—Miss Anna Willis-Williams, of Philadelphia—whose picture ornaments the lovely silver dollar. We have been trying to get hold of these pictures, and have offered large quantities of advertising space to induce the said business men to surrender possession of at least some of them, but have been only partially successful. In the interest of this growing town, and in behalf of the best country paper on the face of the earth, in the name of common decency and fair play, we respectfully ask these gentlemen to get a move on themselves and save the editor from starvation and the town from complete moral and commercial ossification.

A NUISANCE.

The Memphis-Commercial Appeal has this to say of Senator Morgan's recent performance:

Mr. Morgan, of Alabama, has introduced a foolish and mischievous resolution in the senate congratulating the Bers of the Transvaal on their stand for liberty and directing the president to transmit an expression of this country's cordial sympathy. What have we to do with quarrels in South Africa? Have we so little business of our own to attend to that we must needs go to Africa to find employment for our energies? The trouble with Mr. Morgan is, that he is very much of a jingo and he wants to have this government do something that would be offensive to England and make a peaceful settlement of the pending controversy as difficult as possible. It is to be regretted that he could think of nothing more original than copying the performance of the German emperor. Whatever may be the merits of any quarrel in the Transvaal, it is not our quarrel, and it is none of our business.

Commenting on the above paragraph, the Chattanooga Times expresses its opinion quite freely, as follows:

As to Morgan and his unreasoning, blind, dull, brutal hatred of Great Britain, and his other fads and follies and inconsistencies and general cussedness—his become a senatorial aspirant in public nuisance. He cannot discuss a subject reasonably, but he's of small account; let him go.

We have a human interest in seeing fair play, everywhere on earth. We should have a friendly, courteous word to say to both sides in South Africa. The more so since some thousands of Americans are involved, some of whom are men of wealth, and all of whom are our fellow countrymen.

But we have no right to complicate the trouble between the German and British empires. To make the situation worse, do what we could to bring on a war would be criminal; and this is precisely what the Alabama senator is up to, if he really knows what he is at. He is in that kind of work as the first democratic member of the foreign relations committee of the senate, of which he was, until just now, the chairman. His crime is both un-Christian and immoral; it is a public crime; and we are glad the Commercial-Appeal has taken proper notice of the senator's misbehavior.

The law makers of Alabama will never do full justice to the people until they enact a law requiring insurance companies doing business in the state to pay the full amount of their policies in case of loss by fire. Some insurance companies will go on for years collecting the premiums on a policy, and if the property which is insured for a reasonable sum should be destroyed by fire the first movement made is to hatch up some scheme to beat the policy holder out of a part of the money he is entitled to. The laws of the state should be such that whenever an insurance company insures a piece of property for a thousand dollars and collects its premiums on that amount it should be required to pay the full amount in case of loss. Such a law would be plain justice and honesty, and nothing short of it will be.—Talladega Mountain Home.

THE POPULIST REVOLUTIONARY PLOT.

Grattan B. Crowe, Captain Kolb's adjutant general, has been criticised by the Greenville Living Truth of trying to antagonize the populist movement, of which Crowe is regarded as one of the leaders. The accused replies in a column article, addressed to the Birmingham Tribune, in which he makes some curious disclosures. He says in so many words that he was appointed revolutionary leader by Kolb, and did organize a revolution in Alabama in 1894, but twice failed of Kolb's support at the critical moments, namely, at the time of Governor Oates' inauguration, and at the time of the adjournment of the last general assembly.

It was at the Kolb convention in Montgomery, on November 12, that Dr. Crowe made his speech urging a resort to force in the seating of Capt. Kolb. The convention, however, counseled the employment of peaceful methods. Notwithstanding this, a week later Captain Kolb issued a proclamation, calling upon "all lovers of liberty" to meet him in Montgomery on the first of December, as he intended at that time to be sworn in as governor of Alabama. Dr. Crowe says that he set to work organizing his forces; and on the appointed day had several hundred men at the capitol, ready to meet force with force; "but, owing to the timidity of the leaders, no action was taken." From this we learn that had Captain Kolb lifted his hand on that bright winter's morning, the joyous gathering of brave men and beautiful women assembled there to witness the inauguration of the lawfully elected governor of Alabama would have been the victims of an assault with deadly weapons, and the people's blood would have coursed down the slopes of Capitol Hill. Fortunately, Captain Kolb saw the guns of the state troops and their bayonets glittering in the sunlight and he postponed action, contenting himself with uttering a bombastic protest at a safe distance from the scene of the inauguration. It was not Crowe's fault nor the fault of his followers, however, that Alabama was not plunged in mourning on that day.

The work of organizing the revolution was subsequently continued, upon Captain Kolb's announcement that should the assembly, then in session, fail to pass a contest law by which the right of a contestant for a state office could be adjudicated, he, Kolb, would give Crowe orders to take charge of Montgomery, or some other county seat in Alabama, and there establish a dual government. Dr. Crowe says he had his men ready to seize upon the state government, but the populist executive committee refused to countenance his demonstration, possibly because the assembly did pass a contest law, although Dr. Crowe, in his article to the Tribune, tells his deluded associates that the assembly failed to pass such a law. The act was approved February 18, 1895.

The point deserving attention is that Dr. Crowe was thoroughly in earnest, as were, doubtless, the two or three hundred populists who were at his back. Had they had a determined leader in Kolb there would have been bloodshed on the occasion of the inauguration. This spirit of revolution has grown with the lapse of time. It found expression in a speech made in Birmingham this summer by the late Colonel Troy, of Montgomery, and now that Kolb is virtually deposed from leadership, the restraint formerly exercised is removed. Dr. Crowe declares that the issue will be made again in the next campaign. "The sooner we get together and perfect an organization under the leadership of men who will do or die," he says, "the better it will be for the cause of freedom in Alabama."

Dr. Crowe and his men are those who are to be permitted to come into the democratic primaries and control them. The democratic party will never have enough votes to win, unless it enjoles these revolutionary spirits and gives them charge of the party's management. That is the kind of talk given us by the Birmingham State Herald and its able conductor, the Birmingham News. Let us harmonize, they say, but all the harmony we see offered us is harmony at the muzzle of a shotgun and the Winchester rifle. Harmony, under such circumstances, is equivalent to surrender. Are democrats ready for such action? Do they want "harmony" on such terms?—Mobile Register.

for Infants and Children.

THIRTY years' observation of Castoria with the patronage of millions of persons, permit us to speak of it without guessing. It is unquestionably the best remedy for Infants and Children the world has ever known. It is harmless. Children like it. It gives them health. It will save their lives. In it Mothers have something which is absolutely safe and practically perfect as a child's medicine.

Castoria destroys Worms.

Castoria allays Feverishness.

Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd.

Castoria cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic.

Castoria relieves Teething Troubles.

Castoria cures Constipation and Flatulency.

Castoria neutralises the effects of carbonic acid gas or poisonous air. Castoria does not contain morphine, opium, or other narcotic property.

Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep.

Castoria is put up in one-size bottles only. It is not sold in bulk. Don't allow any one to sell you anything else on the plea or promise that it is "just as good" and "will answer every purpose."

See that you get C-A-S-T-O-R-I-A.

PHILADELPHIA

THIS MORNING?

THE TIMES is the most extensively circulated and widely read newspaper published in Pennsylvania. Its discussion of public men and public measures is the interest of public integrity, honest government and prosperous industry, and it knows no party or personal allegiance in treating public issues. In the broadest and best sense a family newspaper.

THE TIMES alone has the largest circulation by deserving it, and claims that it is unsurpassed in all the essentials of a great metropolitan newspaper. Specimen copies of any edition will be sent to any one sending its address.

TERMS: DAILY, $3.00 per annum; $1.00 for four months; 20 cents per month. SUNDAY EDITION, twenty-four large, handsome pages—188 columns, elegantly illustrated, $2.00 per copy. Pairs per copy. Daily and Sunday, $3.00 per annum; 50 cents per month. WEEKLY EDITION, 50 cents per annum.

Non-Resident Notice.

STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. In Chancery, Sixth District, North-Eastern Chancery Division: Claudia Holman, Complainant, vs. I. M. Holman, Defendant.

In this case it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of John D. Strange, that the defendant, I. M. Holman, is a non-resident of Alabama, and resides in the State of Texas; and further, that in belief of said affidavit, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in THE CHRONICLE, a newspaper published in the county of Shelby one week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said I. M. Holman, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 10th day of February, A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him. Done at office in Columbiana this 14th day of January, A. D. 1896. GORDON DUBOSE, Register.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Sheriff Nelson spent Monday in Montevallo.

Robert O'Hara has accepted a clerkship with H. Fox.

John W. Johnston paid Vincent a business visit Saturday.

James Evans spent Sunday with his mother on Yellow Leaf.

Mrs. J. G. Parker left Monday for Vincent to visit relatives.

John Millstead, of Wilsonville, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Prof. C. E. Franklin, of Shelby, was in town a few hours Saturday.

WANTED—A correspondent from our neighboring town Shelby—easy terms.

Misses Green, Wagner, Parker and Milner, took in the city of Shelby Saturday.

Henry Fallon left Monday for Birmingham to resume work for Linn Iron Co.

Miss Eva Weaver is a guest of her sister, Mrs. I. W. Bailey, in Calera, this week.

Hon. E. S. Lyman, of Montevallo, transacted legal business here Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Emma Millstead returned Monday from a two weeks' stay with Wilsonville relatives.

An important notice by Tax Assessor Hammond will be found in this issue. Read it and save trouble and cost.

Mrs. M. A. Johnston left Tuesday for a visit to her grandson, John Millstead, in Wilsonville.

Don't forget the "mitte" social. Let everybody go and prove by their liberal contributions, their sympathy for this worthy work.

FOR SALE OR RENT.—The very desirable residence property of Mrs. D. B. McMath can be bought on easy terms. For full information apply at this office.

Miss Sadie Williams returned home Sunday from Bailey Springs, where she has been attending college. Being in delicate health her father thought best to have her come home until she is able to resume her studies.

John Porter came over yesterday, and expects to leave today with his family for Blocton, where they will make their home. We regret to lose these good people, but we congratulate Blocton on this valuable acquisition to her citizenship.

Abe Pinion had a rich experience a few days since up in the piney woods, north of here. He was deputized by the sheriff to make a levy on a lot of personal property, and was sent out to bring it to town. His path was not strewn with roses by any means. The family proceeded to make it very warm for him. The air was made blue with sticks, clubs, etc., and while he was on the ground tangled up with a male member of the family, one of the females conceived the idea of using a fence rail for a bow and the aforesaid Pinion's neck for a fiddle, and she lost no time in carrying out her plan. She sawed away vigorously, and while she failed to draw from the improvised violin any melody to speak of, she succeeded in raising a howl from the unfortunate deputy that shook the acorns from the trees, and sent the cattle flying over the hills in their mad haste to escape from what they doubtless thought was the roar of a frenzied lion. Abe came in with the stuff just the same, and while his left ear hasn't the proper set, his right eye would easily answer for four, each lip would make a saddle blanket, and he is minus several huge patches of skin on his face and neck, still he is alive, and while disfigured slightly is still in the ring.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Passed by the Medical Society on the Death of Dr. Jeff. Suttle Davis.

WHEREAS, in the inscrutable providence of an all wise God, Dr. Jeff. S. Davis, a worthy member of the Shelby county medical society, has been removed from our midst by death, and

WHEREAS, we recognize in him those characteristic traits of mind and heart that caused him to be admired and beloved by all, and

WHEREAS, he had endeared himself to his professional brethren by virtue of his manly qualities, his professional skill, his untiring energy in elevating his profession,

RESOLVED, That while we mourn his loss as a working member of this organization, we can point with pride to his noble example, which we will strive to emulate.

RESOLVED, That while we bow with reverent submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, still we feel keenly our irreparable loss, and mourn with his stricken community and his afflicted family to whom we tender our heartfelt sympathy.

RESOLVED, That a page be inscribed to his memory in the book of minutes, and that these resolutions be printed in our county papers. Also that a copy be sent to the family of our deceased brother.

Wilsonville Warblings.

Horseback riding is all the "go."

Mrs. Nat. Self is visiting at her mother-in-law's.

The young people enjoyed a pleasant walk to the "planer," last Sunday eve.

Measles is spreading through our town and community with great rapidity.

Butch, Jr., come again. Your writings are enjoyed by all, especially by "Nellie Bly."

Mrs. John Hall and Miss Laura Weldon visited relatives in Weldon a few days last week.

We are glad to report that Oscar Tinney, who has been stricken with the measles, is improving.

E. Williamson and W. R. Smith are training bloodhounds. Wilsonville is now ready for the bravest of robbers.

Notwithstanding measles our school is receiving new pupils every week. The work on the new wing will be completed in a few days.

Rev. J. H. McCord filled his regular appointments here Sunday morning and night. Sunday's sermon was pronounced one of the best of his life.

The new Methodist minister, Mr. Cary, arrived last Friday with his family, and they are stopping with Dr. Boyer until their home is ready for them.

It was reported at the last meeting that the literary society would meet at Prof. Kilpatrick's, but the place has been changed to Mrs. S. A. Densler's. All are cordially invited to attend next Friday night.

Will Smith has got into another "scrape." While going up for his girl last Sunday night he came in contact with a stump, thereby receiving slight injuries and losing about $2.50, but we are glad to say he recovered his money, and is recovering from his fall.

NELLIE BLY.

HUMAN SYMPATHY.

Next to Godliness comes humanity.

Some who fail in reaching the higher state of perfection in the first, almost attain to it in the other quality. If a man cannot be Godly, let him be human. There is no quality in the make-up of mortality of more enduring benefit to the world than human sympathy. The tall peaks may claim our unbounded admiration by the glittering glory of their proud crests, but they are crowned with eternal snow. Had we not rather dwell in the green valley, where the sun shines warm?

Greatness and goodness are not necessarily divided by a wall of separation. A man may be good as well as great, but it is oftener the case that a man grows so great that he forgets how to be good. Oh, the barrenness and unprofitableness of a selfish life! The man who walks through the world wrapped up in himself may command the respect and admiration of mankind, but how unfruitful of usefulness is such a career.

The millions of beings in the world cry out for human sympathy. A man may give freely of his substance to satisfy the physical wants or to alleviate the ills of the flesh, but it is the kindly smile, the encouraging word, the sympathetic expression, that minister to the drooping spirit and the downcast heart. These great mailed, ice-capped mortals that move through the world so grand and stately, go down to a cold and cheerless grave where never a clod is melted by a human tear.

Human sympathy, the abiding interest of the human heart in the fortunes of its fellow beings, that is the quality that nerves the hand of the hero and strengthens the voice of the patriot. Each and every one of us is allotted just one life on earth. We may make it bloom and flourish with good deeds or we may allow it to remain leafless and bloomless and barren until the woodman lays his axe to the root of the tree.

There is no use saying you have no influence, no opportunity for assisting others. You may say that you need help worse than others. That is the quintessence of selfishness. We are cast in such multitudinous moulds, and our paths lie in such divergent directions, that we are all gifted with the great privileges for doing good. The trouble is, many of us seek the commendations of our consciences.

Many people cherish a false notion that the man to command or to rule must be blessed or cursed with an iron will and an implacable heart, that would not melt or unbend even if the stones of the street found tongues to cry out for mercy. Give me the man with a human heart attuned to the rhythmic chords of human sympathies, the lingering refrain of the melody which was heard when the morning stars sang together at creation's dawn.

Give me a man whose ideas of justice are not implacable, but are tempered with the rare and God-like quality of mercy. From the preacher in the pulpit to the humblest worshiper on the back seat, it is the man who has a heart filled with love and sympathy for his fellow man, on whom I will rely. Greatness without goodness is as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal.

All the accomplishments of learning, the attainments of intellectuality and the capabilities of genius, fall flat and unprofitable when they are not joined with the blessed hand of human sympathy. If we dwarf that happy faculty we part with the fairest portion of our birthright. Without it, vain and barren is the life of the wisest and greatest of men.—Montgomery M. Polson in Rome Tribune.

NEW FOOD CEREAL.

The Wonderful Possibilities of Kaffir Corn.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: The question of successful farming in the semi-arid regions of the great West is solved at last.

Kaffir corn, first introduced on the American continent from the Kaffir country, in Africa, less than a decade since, is still an unknown product to nine-tenths of the people of the United States.

At first planted here and there as a curiosity, it was found to grow readily in all localities and under all conditions, and experiments developed the fact that it would mature a crop in the driest and hottest seasons on the high Western plains. A more extended planting of the new grain and a comparison of results obtained soon developed the fact that whether the season was wet or dry, cool or hot, long or short, this new product would thrive on all kinds of soils with the minimum of care and cultivation, and planted any time between the first of April and the middle of July it would mature an absolutely sure crop of grain and fodder before the frosts of autumn.

The stalk looks somewhat like a single shoot of common corn, but shorter, attaining a height usually of from four and one-half to six feet, and having pointed leaves of a rich green color. The grain forms in a head at the extreme point of the shoot, where the tassel is on ordinary corn, the heads being from seven to twelve inches in length and six to eight in circumference, and when ripe look like great white or red plumes.

The grains are almost round, a little larger than a grain of rice and much resembling a grain of wheat in interior structure.

There are two varieties, red and white, the latter being the favorite crop. Though raised as an experiment here and there throughout the West for several years, it was not until the present year that it became a prominent crop. When the drought of last spring killed the wheat and oats and seemed almost certain to ruin the corn, the few who had had experience with the new grain began to advise their neighbors to plant Kaffir corn, as it would grow all right in dry weather, and they could thus at least raise feed for their stock. The newspapers took up the advice and soon farmers were planting Kaffir corn, utilizing the grounds where wheat and oats had failed at planting on sod or scattered patches where early corn had been burned out.

The planting was continued until well along in August, the acreage being in many sections greater than that ever devoted to a single crop. In Oklahoma alone nearly fifty thousand acres were planted with the new crop. And every grain of it planted grew and thrived to maturity, and before the summer was over the farmers began to wonder what they would do with it all. They knew it was good feed for stock, but there was not stock enough in the territory to consume it, and the product was yet so new that it was not recognized in the outside markets.

Experience had already developed the fact that it made a most admirable feed, either to winter stock or fatten them for market, but with an abundance of the grain on hand, Oklahoma farmers soon discovered that it was better for horses than either corn or oats, making them fat and stout and giving them a sleek, glossy appearance.

When it came to feeding hogs it was found that they gain flesh much more rapidly than when fed on common corn, and poultrymen have found the Kaffir grain an admirable egg producer, and when fed unthinned the fowls are given exercise in picking it from the head.

DOWN ON PANTHER.

A Mighty "Confusionment" Over One Lost Man.

Aunt Nancy Newton "Spendin' of the News"—Lige Rannels Drunk and Down for Christmas.—The Wadkins Boys Made Doll Rags and Gun Patchin' Out of His Breaches—New Year Resolutions.

(Copyright, 1895.)

On the third day of January, somewhere along in the shank of the evening, I was down to the lot fiddlin' and foolin' around amongst the stock, when lo! behold I heard a very familiar fuss and cacklin' go on at the house. And in the midst of the general confusionment I likewise caught the smell of a pipe—strong and clear and searchin'.

I could tell from a distance off that it was one of these old clay pipes what you read about, and not right new and fresh by a whole tremendous big lot.

"Aunt Nancy Newton, by the twelve epistles," says I to myself, and then presently when I returned back to the house bless gracious Aunt Nancy she was there.

"Spreadin' of the News."

"I am now about the most illdest woman in the round created to me perhaps," says Aunt Nancy to me and mother that night after supper.

I had built on a roarin' big fire—a regular shin-roaster, you understand—and with her pipe runnin' on full time the dear old lady warmed up to the subject powerful.

"The hogs are killed and the lard fried out and the sausage stuffed and the meat hung up. Christmas is over with and it's most too soon for gardenin'.

So I took my pipe and thank you and put on my bonnet and lit out. Whereas I am now just naturally on the pad, Rufus—visitin' around and spreadin' of the news. I ain't no tell tale tattler, and you will never remember the day when Nancy Newton went trapin' through the country peddlin' out scandalations.

But I am a woman—a plain female woman—and in all of your born days you never saw one of them sort that didn't love to hear the news and tell it.

"The mainest thing in the way of news that has took place in the Panther Creek settlement in durin the Christmas so far as I know was the scandalous scrape which old man Lige Rannels, backed his fool self into. It can't do us no harm for me to give out the facts up here I reckon, cause everybody down there has heard about it, and even to the children they are spreadin' of the news.

"Anyhow, old man Lige he went to town the day before Christmas, and naturally of course he waded right in and got drunk. That night he come up missin, and he remained missin for three whole days and nights had runnin'.

Now as to old man Lige, you all know him, and I don't have to come all the way up here to tell you that he ain't worth his room in this world nor in the future hereafter. But his folks can't help that, and the people in the settlement got sorry for them in their great trouble and worryment on account of the old man turnin' up lost. Nobody didn't know what had went with him. People in town saw him when he started off towards home, which he had then climbed up around more busthead whiskey than he could tote without wobblin' considerable. Ben Chris Weaver met him over there at the Wolf Creek bridge, which at that writin it took his level best to stay on his mule, and about first dusk the mule raked up to the lot gate with the saddle and bridle on. But old man Lige he had fell off somewhere by the wayside and come up missin."

When the Lost Was Found.

"The next day was Christmas day, and to be certain everybody was too monstrous busy havin a good time to hear the news concernin Lige Rannels. But on the followin day after that it leaked out, and on the third day the old man was still missin, and the settlement by that time had got powerful bad stirred up on the question. All the men folks turned out and put in to burn the woods and sift the ashes till they found old man Lige. Bless goodness, they went on horseback and afoot—in squads and droves—lookin for that which was lost, whilst all the women folks got together at the Rannels place to comfort and console with the widder and the orphans, and wait for the news.

"The sun hit was swingin tolerable low down towards the western hills, so to speak, when the men come back after the mule and wagin. They had found old man Lige hid out in a pine thicket in the old fields down there on this side of Wolf Creek, but from what they said they couldn't bring him on home without a wagin to haul him in. I took it on myself to go out amongst the men folks and ask Ben Chris Weaver if Lige was well or sick, crippled or dead. Ben Chris responded back to me that he was well, and neither sick nor crippled nor dead. But at the same time they couldn't bring him home without the wagin. So they hooked up the mule to the wagin and pulled out, leavin me and the rest of the women folks in outer darkness as to what was what and who was who.

"It was jest about sundown when they come back and old man Lige was settin up there in the wagin as big as life and cussin more terrible than a stage driver—cussin somebody we couldn't tell who, for everything he could lay his tongue to. The women folks then hid out on the back porch till the mule could bring him in and put him to bed. The leadin facts in the case didn't leak out till the next day, but when the news did get started it spread like a fire in the piney woods before a high wind in March.

"The naked, unwashed truth is mighty and bound to leak out, Rufus, and I never could see wherein it ought to hurt anybody," says Aunt Nancy as she went down into her thank you and came forth with another pipe load of smokin tobacco. "The plain truth is that two of the Wadkins boys had likewise also went to town the day before Christmas, and amongst other things they had bought some new pocket knives. And on that day it come to pass that whilst the Wadkins boys was returnin back home from town they found old man Lige Rannels drunk and down along the big road. So far back as I can remember boys have always been boys and the Wadkins ain't a blessed bit better than other people. At any rates, the Wadkins boys dismounted and got down right then and there and took up a fool notion that they would have some fun out of old Lige Rannels. They went to work they did and made doll rags and gun patchin out of old man Lige's breaches. From what the men that found him say, they must of cut port holes and bay windows all around and then jest naturally took out about three solid sections at the gallo end thereof.

"And that's how come old Lige to turn up missin and raise such a terrible confusionment amongst the neighbors. When he come to his senses about daylight the next mornin there was too many rents in his riggins for him to be travellin along the big road. He want fitten to go home, so he backed out down there in the pine thicket and struck camp. No doubt he would of been right there till now if the men in the settlement hadn't turned out and hunted him down. I know from what I have seen myself that it takes a powerful good pair of scissors to make a smooth cut through home-made jeans with every thread wool, warp and woof and allin. I reckon that is how come the Wadkins boys to try the mettle of their new pocket knives on old man Lige's breaches.

"And that's how come the old man lost for three days and nights, and that's how come he wouldn't return back home till he got a wagin to ride in. Old man Lige didn't know till it leaked out in the settlement who had done the devilment, but he was so foamn mad about it till he swore out the necessary papers and had the Wadkins boys arrested. The trial is comin of next week, and consequently I must be at home by that time in orderment to keep up with what might come to pass."

That ain't all the news we got from Panther Creek, but it would take a book to tell you all the things that Aunt Nancy has told me.

Some New Year Resolutions.

The Farmers' Club of Rocky Creek come together in a called meetin Saturday night, and amongst other business that was turned off we signed up the followin New Year resolutions:

Resolved, That we will be plain folks and fellow-citizens this year and let the general government run itself if it can.

Resolved, That politics are all right and good enough for people that have got plenty money and no poor kinney, but they won't pay off the feed bills nor buy a new frock for the baby.

Resolved, That the horny-handed son of toil is as good a man as the horny-tongued politician, and most in generally a blamee sitch better.

Resolved, That a fool farmer that would be fooled by a fool politician is the gonebyest biggest fool in the whole lot.

Resolved, That if the general government will fight its own wars we will do our level best to meet the great question of bread and meat.

Resolved, That we will raise more corn and less sand this year.

Resolved, That we will be honest and sober and virtuous, and consequently happy. REFUS SANDERS.

TIPS ABOUT PEOPLE.

A monument to the late Bishop Wayman (colored) will be erected in Baltimore.

It is not generally known that the wife of Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador in Constantinople, is the lady known to the world as Violet Fane.

Capt. Thomas Morley, a survivor of the charge of the Light brigade, Libby prison and Ford's theater disaster, is living in Washington and is in good health.

Mrs. Mary Rochester (colored) died in Newcastle, Del., county almshouse a few days ago at the reputed age of 104 years. She had lived in that vicinity during most of her life.

Mrs. Samuel Craft, living near McGee's, Simson county, Miss., is just 47 years old, and has had 29 children, 14 of whom are living. This is considered something of a record in that section.

Sandow, the strong man, has a big brain as well as a big body. He is quite an ingenious fellow, and among his inventions are an improvement on the bicycle and a combination trunk and bathtub for travelers.

Dr. Thalburg, the physical director, and Miss Ballentine, the gymnasium director, at Vassar college, have forbidden the students there from engaging in long distance running matches. They say such contests are more likely to be hurtful than helpful.

Baring Gould, the novelist, lecturer and historian, is a keen antiquary. One who knows him writes that "the wallows in it. You should see him on Dartmoor with his shovels and wheelbarrows, unearthing some forgotten domicile, and then you would see the real man. Give him an old church register, and he'll spin you yarns about it by the hour."

Malaria on the Mississippi Bottoms.

From the Banner-Democrat, Lake Providence, La. The swamp lands along the banks of the Mississippi river in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana are generally considered very unhealthy in contrast with the hilly country adjoining them. It is here the germs of malaria are formed, and from which originate those terrible malarial chills and fevers which the people of the low countries dread. In addition to these are intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, indigestion and rheumatism, all caused from malarial germs and the dampness of the atmosphere.

Medical science has been put to its utmost capacity to devise some mode of treatment by which these physical ailments can be moderated, if not eradicated, but so far it has failed. Nor does it seem that there can be found any cure for these symptoms. Such has been the general opinion until recently, when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills found their way here, and came to stay. Today those who have used them say they would not do without them for all the medicines in the drug stores.

Mr. Dan O'Sullivan, Sr., is a prominent citizen of this city, Lake Providence, La., and has been identified with its interests for years. At present he occupies an important position on the City Council and is also secretary of that body. He was once a strong, robust, healthy man, full of vigor and always on the go. Within the last year, however, his health has been very bad, his appetite poor, his digestion poor, in fact, his entire system was completely out of order. He began to use various medicines, but to no purpose. At length he decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. In a few days the change for the better could be noticed. He continued to improve so fast that the proprietor of the Lake Providence Banner-Democrat interviewed him and asked him what he had been taking to put him in such good shape again. His reply was in substance as follows:

"My liver was all out of order, my digestion was very bad, I felt sluggish and did not want to do a thing but to lay around the house. My blood began to get thin, and I felt sick all over. I concluded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as I had heard so much about them. After taking them a few days I could feel that they were doing me a good deal of good. I continued the use of them, and in a week or so I felt like a new man. They toned up my stomach, put my blood in good condition, gave me a good color, a good appetite, in fact, put me in first-class shape. My friends congratulated my return of health, and I smiled when I told them that Pink Pills did the work."

Mr. O'Sullivan takes every opportunity to recommend them to others who are being likewise benefited.

Mrs. D. H. Parker, who was raised in the city of Lake Providence, but who now resides in Greenville, Mississippi, also uses Pink Pills. Her husband, Mr. D. H. Parker, a popular traveling salesman of the DuPont Tobacco Company, of St. Louis, says that for years his wife had been suffering from dyspepsia and indigestion, that she had to be very careful what she ate, and would frequently have severe spells from being a little imprudent in her diet. She sent for Pink Pills, took them and is now well and strong, and can eat any and every thing without being affected in the slightest manner. She is proud in her praises of Dr. Williams' great remedy. She also suffered from rheumatism, and that too, was left her. These are only two cases where the Pink Pills have done so much good. Others of a like nature in this locality could be mentioned, if necessary, but the experiences of this gentleman and this lady are enough to warrant the assertion that for restorative qualities, and general recuperative properties, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best on the market.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

DURING the year 1895, the Utica (N. Y.) Herald tried to keep a record of all people reported to have died in the United States at the age of 100 years or over. The total reported was just 100. Two-thirds of these were women, all but four being white women. The oldest person to die was a colored male, who was 125. A white man died at St. Louis who had claimed to be 140, but there was no proof that he was over 121. The oldest white woman was 120. There were 14 people whose ages ranged from 110 to 125.

THERE is much suffering in Cuba, and a prospect that the hardships will increase rapidly. The industries of the island are generally suspended, and railway lines interrupted. Travel on all roads is dangerous. The destruction of the sugar and tobacco crop means a loss of $100,000,000, to which must be added the sacking and burning of thousands of buildings. Among no body of men was there less fraud. He believed that, except where otherwise by special legislation, all pensions should be issued uniformly, the widow of a colonel receiving the same pension as the widow of a private.

THE Century Magazine, in an article entitled "The Anarchists of War," says that the immediate duty before the conservative forces of England and America is to organize for the establishment of a high-class and permanent board of international arbitration in place of the haphazard and piecemeal means to which we have been accustomed, admirable as its results have already proved. Once established between England and America, such a system would gradually spread among the nations of Europe, and sooner or later arbitration would be followed by disarmament.

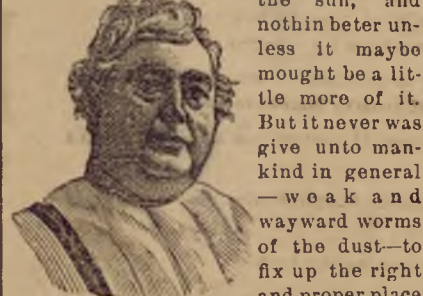

OUT OF THE WOODS.

"Great Gobs" of Sense From the Sago of Rocky Creek

On the Question of "Books and Book Learnin'"—Money Enough Wasted for Fancy Trimmings to "Feed the Widder and Orphan" and Build a New School House in Every Settlement.

(Copyright, 1896.)

Book learnin' is a right tolerable good thing, no doubts, in the right and proper place. There is nothin like it under the sun, and nothin better unless it maybe might be a little more of it. But it never was give unto mankind in general—weak and wayward worms of the dust—to fix up the right and proper place to put it. Only the good Lord can do that, and if it comes to pass that He didn't tend to it in layin the foundations it simply can't be did. And consequently I maintain that in this present day and generation people waste more time and more money tryin to pack down book learnin where there ain't no place for it than any other way.

The money which is blowed in along these lines would feed and clothe all the poor widder and orphan in the land and build a good log school house in every settlement.

"Tremendous Heavy Thoughts."

One clear frosty mornin last week I saw Billy Strickland, the only son of Dunk and his wife, pass by on his way to school, and that is how it come to pass that I am thinkin these tremendous heavy thoughts. I took good notice of that boy as he ambled along the big road, and right then and there I couldn't keep from thinkin of how Dunk and his wife have worked and worried, and starved and stunted, and saved and scratched and scraped up a little money in orderment to blow it in on that sim-blin-headed boy at school. You mought think—and the Stricklands would be dead certain to say—that it was none of my infernal business. But that wouldn't keep me from seein Billy on his way to school, and the sight of that boy is what makes me tell you what I do concernin the great and growin question of schools and books and book learnin.

Understand me now—I don't mean to say that Billy Strickland ain't worth his room in the world or his weight in sap sawdust. In his own peculiar way Billy is a rare smart boy. He ain't the least wite lazy, and when it comes to makin plow stocks and ox yokes and ax handles and the like of that, he could beat me out of sight and give me three in the game. And in durin crop time Billy will put as much fresh dirt behind him in a day as any boy of his age in the settlement. Of course he wouldn't be a thoroughbred American boy if he didn't love to swap knives and play marbles for keeps, and go huntin and fishin considerable between drinks, as it were. And yet he will turn off a boy's full share of odds and ends and jobs on the farm.

But when it comes to tendin school, and diggin the learnin out of books and packin it away under his hat—well, Billy Strickland he jest naturally ain't there. In the beginnin he don't want to learn. He knows a gracious plenty now. And he couldn't learn very much if he wanted book learnin so bad till he could taste it. The good Lord didn't fix up no place for Billy to pack away book learnin and he couldn't tote it in his pocket. More than that, the boy can't see where he will ever need any thing of the sort in his business. If a boy loves books, and the good things he can get out of books, the more he learns and knows the better it will be for him, providin he is trained up in the way he was cut out to go. If a boy raley wants to climb up the hill of knowledge you couldn't build a brick wall around him ten feet thick and a mile high and keep him down. But if you have got to run the boy down, and throw him and buck him and gag him, and lam and cram book learnin into him inch by inch, it is a plum waste of time and trouble and money.

If it ever comes to pass that I mought have a boy like Billy Strickland I never will be fool enough to blow in much of his time and my money on the school question. Seems to me like it would be a whole lot more better—better for me and better for him—to go forth and step off forty acres of land, and buy him a good mule and give him a new ax and turn him loose and tell him to pitch in. That would please Billy Strickland all over, and he would take to it like a hog to her wallow. He could run a shebang like that without any book learnin to speak of, and that is about the only layout that will ever fit Billy's hand.

One Book Only for Billy.

Now Dunk Strickland and his wife pass for smart people in regards to men and things in general, but when it comes to their son Billy they ain't got a lick of sense. They don't know as much about the general surroundings in Billy's case as Billy knows, and Billy he don't know anything for certain. Dunk thinks that Billy mought run for congress, or maybe get elected justice of the peace by and by, whilst his wife thinks Billy will make the best and biggest preacher in the round created world—providin of course they can scrape up money enough to give him plenty of schoolin.

The last time I was over to the Strickland place we got to talkin along this line, and I up and told Dunk my general opinions in regards to Billy.

"If you will but only save back the money you are now spendin on Billy at school, and when he gets old enough to go forth on his own book, take it and buy somethin that will fill out his hand, it will be a blame sight better for the boy," says I. "Billy he don't take to books, and books don't mix with Billy, and so there you are. If you was rich, and Billy was rich, and it was recorded that you would both remain forever rich, it mought sorter do to foot off precious time and chunk away good money in your Jack-o'-merlanter chase after book learnin. But under the general circumstance of the present surroundings it is vanity—plu perfect vanity."

Then Dunk swelled up considerable and lowed that Billy was as smart as the common run of boys, and he must have all the schoolin he would take. But bless gracious, I thought in my soul that Miss Strickland would jump on me right then in her own house. She got foam in mad and flew off at the handle and turned loose her personal opinions in great gobs and red-hot chunks. She would let me know that her and Dunk could raise a boy up in the way for him to go as well as me or anybody else. And she would give me to understand that Billy had learnt as much as any boy could learn unless the teacher would put him in more books. "Hilt ain't natural," says she, "for the boy to learn very much when he ain't got nothin to study it out of but one blue-back spellin book."

It was then a mighty good time of year for me to lay low and say nothin. So I had to let Dunk and his wife have their way in regards to their boy Billy and his book learnin. As to that, they can spend every dollar they can rake and scrape and keep Billy good to school till he comes to be a full-grown man, but he will never need any more books. There is more learnin in that one blue-back spellin book than the whole entire human family ever could stuff into Billy's head.

Too Many "Fancy Trimmings."

The last time I went over in the hill country—on my return back home I passed by a little shanty down there on the old Stage Road, where the Widder Buntin lives. She was Miss Mollie Fannin before she married Sim Buntin, which Sim he took and died two years ago and left Mollie with a whole passle of children to scramble through this vain and foetin world as best she can.

Whereas, when I come by there I can't say I couldn't help from thinkin about Mollie Fannin as she use to be in them other days, and the widder Buntin as she is now. Old man Lot Fannin and his wife didn't have but the one girl and that was Mollie. They had some boys, but Mollie she was the mainest member of the family and the general pet of all. Old man Lot and his wife worked themselves and their boys like so many free niggers, and spent all the money they could make and scrape on Mollie. They kept her in school till they lowed she knowed more than the teacher down at the Cross Roads, and then they sent her off to college. When finally at last she had learnt it all and come back home, they skimmed the milk and fed her on the cream, as it were. They lit in and bought her a fine planner and gave her big parties and dressed her finer than split silk. They went deeper and deeper in debt every year for fine parties and fine riggins and general fancy trimmings which they give to Mollie.

In the main time Miss Mollie, she was human flesh and blood, you understand, and in the run of time she took it into her head that she must go and get married. So presently her and Sim Buntin got "hooked up in double harness," as Andy Lucas were wont to say, and put in to hangin their clothes on the same peg. Now Sim he is dead and gone, and in regards to that, he didn't stack up for very many while he was livin. From what I hear people say, it took his level blamsted to keep out of the poor house, and the widder and children can do that much without him.

But honest now, wouldn't it be a blame sight better for Mollie if old man Lot had saved up some of that money he spent in sendin her off to college and givin her fine parties and buyin silks and satins, and put it in land so she would now have a home for her children and herself?

Miss Mollie use to could read and write and talk latin as free and easy as I can handle plain United States, and I reckon she can till yet. But tell me, patient and long-sufferin reader, what good will that do the Widder Buntin and her children six? She could like-wise knock the livin socks off of a planner, and maybe she mought do that now if she had one. But that don't put no meat in the smokehouse or meal in the barrel. She has forgot more in regards to books than the common run of women will ever know, but at the same time she is just simply the Widder Buntin today, livin in that little shanty down there on the old Stage Road, worryin along as best she can workin 365 days in the year—exceptin Sundays—to keep the wolf out of the front door.

Remember now, it aint for me to say a word out of the way concernin that good woman. I used to think a great pile of Miss Mollie Fannin, and I ruther like the Widder Buntin. It aint none of her fault that she is now a poor lone widder, with a whole passle of orphan to raise and nothin to go on. And she ain't in no wise to blame for the free and reckless way in which the old folks spent their money on her in her young days. But if old man Lot Fannin could wake up today and peep out of his grave and see his daughter Mollie as the Widder Buntin, he mought likewise also see wherein he played the fool when he spent all his money to give her somethin that she never did raley need, and which ain't worth a continental now.

A Powerful Short "Sermon."

My good old grandfater (may his tribe increase forever) was a man of few words and plenty of sense. He didn't talk very much, but he said a whole lot. He never wabbled around the edges. He shot to hit and most in generally plugged the bull's eye. And I never have forgot, from that good day to this blessed hour, a short and powerful sermon which he preached to me onest upon a time.

"The mainest thing with poor folks, Rufus, is to make the edges cut comin," says he. "Save your time as well as your money, and make the fingers count your way. Settle the question as to what you will do and what you will be, and then set your pegs and work out your plans accordin. If you mean to be a farmer, which I reckon you will, as it runs in the family, it would be vanity to spend your money to go off to college and learn everythin in the high flurin branches. It will pay you better to take the money you would spend for fancy book learnin and put it into a pair of good mules. Latin and algebray and history and the like of that will do tolerable well if a boy has got plenty of time and plenty of money to take it all in, but you can be a good farmer and run your business to the winnin pint with-out all them fancy trimmings. If you can read and write and figger through the rithmetic that will do to start on, and if you must learn any more you can pick it up on the run. Lawyers and doctors and school teachers have to go on up into the higher branches, as they say, but that wouldn't stand for much with you when it comes down to rock bottom and plain business. Make the edges cut comin, Rufus, and spend your time and money for somethin that you need in your everyday business—somethin that will fill your hand and help you in the fight."

Now then. Set you down this. The money that people spend for book learnin, which never will be worth a continental in the great issues of everyday life, would feed all the widers and orphan in the land, and build a new school house in every settlement.

RUFUS SANDERS.

PEOPLE.

Mascagni was lately asked in what European city he would like to live, and replied: "From 9 to 11, London; from 11 to 5, Paris; from 5 to 7, Vienna; from 7 to 10, Budapest, and after 10, Berlin."

The statue of Ole Bull, which the Scandinavians of Minnesota are to erect in Minneapolis, is being modeled by Fjelde, the Scandinavian sculptor of that city. It is expected that the bronze statue will be completed in about six months.

Li Hung Chang is now in Pekin, no longer viceroy of the great province of Chihli. Relegated to a little temple at Peking, a few followers and the members of his numerous family gathered about him. He is, it is said by those on the spot, really shelled. His health is said to be failing and his prestige is nil.

Nelson Dingley, Jr., the chairman of the committee on ways and means, never had any profession other than that of a newspaper proprietor and editor, creating in 20 years of hard work the most influential and widely-read paper in Maine, the Lewiston Journal. Even now he finds time on occasions to write a leading article.

Paul Louis Courier, when bitterly assailed by a French professor, quietly remarked: "I fancy he must be vexed. He calls me 'Jacobin, rebel, plagiarist, thief, poisoner, forger, leper, madman, impostor, liar, a horrible, filthy, grinning rascalier.' I gather what he wants to say. He means that he and I are not of the same opinion, and this is his only way of putting it."

FASHIONS IN RINGS.

In Nero's time there was a fashion prevalent of wearing large rings, the setting of which was carved with the bust of the special divinity who was the wearer's patron.

Paradise rings were greatly worn in Italy three centuries ago. They were very wide and bore on the circumference representations of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

When the tomb of the great Emperor Frederick, who died in 1250, was opened in 1780, his coronation ring, set with a beautiful emerald, was still found upon his finger.

The ring of Edward the Confessor is preserved among the royal regalia of Great Britain. For several centuries it was used in the coronation ceremonies of the English kings.

In the Etruscan tombs of northern Italy, gold rings have been found made in the shape of a cord, a large knot of intricate pattern forming the principal part of the ornament.

Mourning rings were greatly used in Europe during the 17th century. After the execution of Charles I. his sympathizers in England wore mourning rings in token of their grief.

The scarabaeus, or sacred beetle of the Egyptians, was a favorite subject for a setting in the early Egyptian rings. It was carved in stone, the work often being exquisitely done.

MORE EXCITEMENT

The Reported Movement of the British Flying Squadron, Said to be Now Headed for Bermuda, Furnishes Another Occasion for Indulging in War Talk and Trying to Get Up Another Excitement in the Country.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—A Washington special says:

"The report that the British flying squadron is to be sent to Bermuda caused much surprise here yesterday, and there is talk of introducing a resolution in the house instructing the committee on foreign affairs to report on Mr. Livingston's Venezuela resolutions without more delay. No confirmation or denial of the report of the squadron's movement is obtainable from authentic sources at the navy department, but belief exists that it is probably true. If it proves true to the satisfaction of the department it is thought probable that the white squadron will be ordered to Venezuela waters."

"I have no doubt of the accuracy of the report that that British flying squadron is ordered to Bermuda," said Congressman Livingston, of Georgia, yesterday. He added: "Moreover, the squadron will go thence to Venezuela. I knew it the other day when I offered my resolution directing the president to check the British advance and to compel them to withdraw their reinforcements at their Venezuela outposts. I tried so to inform the house but Boutelle objected. The squadron will, I understand, choke the payment of the $7,500 damage bill out of Crespo and then offer him three or five millions in gold for the disputed territory. My information is reliable."

"How about the Venezuela constitution prohibiting the transfer of territory to another nation?"

"Five millions of dollars in gold, backed up by a crack British squadron, are not unlikely to play hell with a South American constitution."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"I can do nothing till the foreign affairs committee makes its report. That done, I shall push my resolution directing the president to stop this hostile action of Great Britain, and I have no doubt it will go through the house like a flash through a train of powder."

"We have got to act. This nation cannot afford to permit the Venezuela question to be settled in such, to us, ignominious manner. The administration may think it all right and in conformity with the Monroe doctrine to have European navies buy land on this side of the water, but congress does not, neither do the people, as will shortly be proved to the satisfaction of everybody on this side and on the other side of the globe, as soon as we get a chance to vote on the question."

THREE IMPORTANT MATTERS

Considered by the House Judiciary Committee Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The house judiciary committee yesterday considered the resolution of Mr. Boutner, of Louisiana, looking to the impeachment of Comptroller Bowler for his action in stopping payment of sugar bounties authorized by congress. While not finally acted upon it was agreed to report the matter back to the house with a request that the committee be authorized to inquire into the powers of the comptroller and to report upon the status of laws under which he acts.

The committee ordered favorably reported the bill of Mr. Curtis, of New York, to reduce the cases in which the penalty of death may be inflicted. Instead of death the measure provides for imprisonment at hard labor for life.

The bill of Mr. Richardson, of Tennessee, incorporating the supreme council of the thirty-third degree Scottish Rite masonry, for the southern jurisdiction, was also favorably acted upon.

HARRISON-DIMMICK.

The Ex-President Formally Announces His Engagement to Mrs. Dimmick.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Ex-President Harrison last night formally announced his engagement to Mrs. Dimmick at the Fifth-avenue hotel.

There was a crowd of newspaper men and others about the hotel shortly before 9 o'clock when Secretary Tibbits appeared and handed them the following:

"Gen. Harrison authorizes the announcement that he and Mrs. Dimmick are engaged to be married, and that the marriage will not take place until after Lent."

Col. Tibbits refused to further discuss the announcement, and although the ex-president was up-stairs in his room at the time, he denied himself to all newspaper men.

Col. Tibbits said that Gen. Harrison would remain in the city until after Sunday, when he would go to Indianapolis, and from there to Washington.

CUBA HIS WATERLOO.

Gen. Camacho to Retire from Command of the Spanish Forces.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Mail and Express prints the following dispatch from its Havana correspondent:

"I am informed on authority which I cannot question that Captain-General Martinez Campos yesterday decided to retire from the command of the Spanish forces in Cuba and from the direction of the campaign against the insurgents."

A NATIONAL BANK.

Stopped Payment by Order of the Comptroller of the Currency.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—A special from Portsmouth, O., says that the Farmer's national bank of that city stopped payment at noon yesterday, by order of the comptroller of the currency. The only explanation that has been given out is that the bank has been unable to realize on its securities in time to meet obligations coming due. The depositors will be paid in full as the assets far exceed the liabilities.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Comparative Statement of Early January Failures.—The Situation a Perplexing One, with no Basis Upon Which to Forecast the Immediate Future, Yet Business and Prices are Encouragingly Well Sustained.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—R. G. Dun & Co. say to-day:

Failures for nine days of January have shown liabilities of $3,568,000, against $4,522,531 last year in ten days, and $9,041,225 in eleven days of 1894. Failures for the past week have been much larger in magnitude, numbering 395 in the United States, against 371 last year, and 81 in Canada, against 61 last year.

The situation could hardly be more perplexing for business men. Practical merchants, manufacturers and bankers can have little sympathy for those who minimize their difficulties. None doubt that the government will raise money to meet obligations, but how far the money market will be disturbed or the treasury reserve first diminished none can say. The business world can not know as yet how far foreign questions may upset calculations, though there seems every reason to expect peaceful settlement. It can not know what may be the duties on any important class of imports a month hence; whether imports are likely to exceed exports, and draw away gold; whether the deficit of revenue will continue, or what other taxation will be levied.

Failure of the senate thus far to take any action upon financial measures proposed by the president or those passed by the house affects unfavorably all branches of business. Under such adverse circumstances it is actually encouraging that shrinkage in transactions and resulting commercial disasters have not been greater. But four large failures within a day or two indicate that the same conditions cannot continue without much embarrassment.

Domestic trade shown by clearing-house payments is 8.8 per cent. larger than last year, but 27.8 per cent. less than in 1893, and in nearly all trades there is much hesitation. Railroad earnings for the first week of January were 5.7 per cent. larger than in January, 1895, but 13.5 per cent. less than in 1893. December shows a gain of 8.7 over 1893, and a decrease of 7.5 compared with 1893.

Stocks steadily advanced until Friday, but the failures brought a more cautious feeling. After rising on the average $1.51 per share, railroads closed $1.30 higher for the week. Speculation in products was not very active and wheat was practically unchanged, though Atlantic exports for two weeks, flour included, have been 4,485,190 bushels, against 4,273,124 last year. Western receipts still make short crop predictions ridiculous, amounting for two weeks of January to 5,421,900 bushels, against 2,559,000 last year.

Corn receipts were also liberal, and exports about five times last year's. Cotton receipts still indicate a yield neither as small as Mr. Neill's reiterated estimate of 6,500,000 bales, nor as large as the 7,000,000 bales estimated by others, but it is yet to be seen whether supplies held for better prices are of consequence. The price declined an eighth, with accounts of narrower demand by spinners abroad and declining prices.

Cotton goods are not notably lower, but concessions to secure business are reported in many instances, and many of the mills have been running largely in anticipation of orders not yet received.

There is a little better inquiry for staples, with indications that dealers' stocks are running low. The opening of fine and fancy wools has brought no change in prices, and revisions caused by recent openings of worsteds have been generally toward lower prices.

SUGAR BOUNTY CLAIMS

Submitted for Adjudication to the Court of Claims.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Secretary Carlisle yesterday sent to the court of claims for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the sugar bounty law, the Oxnard claim, which was held up by Comptroller Bowler on the ground that the law authorizing the payment of bounties was unconstitutional. Secretary Carlisle's letter reads:

"In accordance with the certificate of the auditor of the treasury department, made on his own behalf and at the request of the comptroller of the treasury, and also on my own behalf as secretary of the treasury, I have the honor to transmit the claim of the Oxnard Beet Sugar Co. for $11,782.50, 'for bounty on beet sugar manufactured and produced prior to August 23, 1894,' payment whereof is demanded for the appropriation of $238,260.08, made in the sundry civil appropriation act of March 2, 1895. Said claim, together with all vouchers, papers, documents and proofs pertaining thereto, is herewith transmitted to the court of claims, under section 1,063 of the revised statutes for trial and adjudication, in order that a judgment may be entered under the provisions of section 1,064."

The claim involves controverted questions of law and of constitutional construction. The decision will furnish a precedent for future action of the proper accounting officers of the treasury in the adjustment of a large number of cases.

ALMOST A CENTENARIAN.

Death of Mrs. Eliza Ayers at Jacksonville, Ill.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Jan. 18.—Mrs. Eliza Ayers, who had attained almost 100 years, died Thursday. She was the widow of the late David K. Ayers, probably one of the best-known men in Illinois at an early day. He was one of the founders of the republican party, and the organizer of the oldest bank in the state, now carried on by his two sons, both men of much ability. His wife was a lady of great force of character, wholly devoted to doing good.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

Options on Battlefield of Shiloh.

The secretary of war has notified the officers of the Shiloh Battlefield association that the options held by them on the lands of the Shiloh battlefield could not be used by the government, owing to the fact that congress at the close of the last session passed an act placing a limit on the amount of money to be expended for lands on that battlefield to $20,000. One owner has asked the government $25,000 for 180 acres. Condemnation proceedings were instituted and the jury awarded him $5,883. He will appeal the case. A purchasing agent has been kept on salary for one year, at a cost of $2,400 to the government, and not one acre has been secured. Unless congress removes the restriction on the price to be paid, there will be very little land purchased on that battlefield. The options expire March 4, when the land owners will be at liberty to set their own prices on the land.

For Killing His Assailant.

Thomas H. Ponder, a member of the fire department of Savannah, Ga., who killed Frank Keenan, an ex-fireman, on June 6 last, was tried and found guilty, with recommendation to mercy, after four days' trial. Keenan charged Ponder with having testified falsely against him at an investigation in which Keenan was discharged from the force. Ponder, hearing of Keenan's threats to do him up, armed himself. While he was on duty at the fire headquarters Keenan went in and made an assault on Ponder,

THE * CHRONICLE *

C. C. DuBOISE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, JAN. 23, 1896.

THE BARS LET DOWN.

The state democratic executive committee met in Montgomery Tuesday. The free silver men had a majority of the committee and ruled things their own way. Four vacancies were filled by men of their way of thinking. Resolutions were passed inviting all persons who agree to support democratic principles and nominees to take part in the primaries, but permit county committees to decide whether negroes shall be allowed to participate. Beat meetings will be held April 11, county conventions April 15 and the state convention April 21, the latter to meet in Montgomery.

Hon. John B. Knox, of Calhoun, was elected chairman to succeed Hon. H. C. Tompkins, who resigned. We doubt if a wiser selection could have been made. Mr. Knox is a gentleman of marked ability, a sterling democrat, is active, zealous, true to his convictions, and a bold and courageous leader. His election will inspire confidence, and success under his leadership is a foregone conclusion.

We doubt very seriously the wisdom of the committee's action in throwing open the doors to all who desire to participate in our primaries. This was not in accordance with our views, but since the committee has spoken, we as a loyal democrat will abide its decision, and will accept its decree. We will fight the battles on the lines indicated by the committee, trusting all will be for the best in the end.

And now that the committee has mapped out the course to be pursued, let's fall into line cheerfully. With unity of purpose, and harmony in our ranks, a glorious victory is assured. No combination our enemies can form will stand in the way of a united and harmonious democracy.

Hon. I. D. Mason was a delegate from this county to the meeting of the American Cotton Growers' Protection Association held in Memphis Tuesday. The object of the meeting was to devise some plan to reduce the acreage planted to cotton, and we learned in a conversation with Mr. Mason that the chances of success are flattering. Hon. Hector D. Lane was re-elected president of the association, with a vice president from each state, who is to be the president of the organization in that state. Hon. H. C. Reynolds, of Montevallo, was elected president for the state of Alabama, a most excellent selection. Seven states were represented, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee, Louisiana and Texas. One hundred and fifty delegates were present. An able and very instructive address was delivered by President Lane which was received with enthusiasm. Full proceedings of the meeting will be published shortly in pamphlet form, and will be distributed among the cotton producers. The only way, in our candid opinion, for farmers to ever become self-sustaining and as a consequence independent is to keep down the cotton acreage, and as nearly as possible raise everything they consume. This is the only object this association has in view, and we firmly believe when the farmers have given the matter due consideration they will adopt its suggestions. We will have more to say on this subject later on.

It is now stated that Secretary Carlisle is a candidate for the democratic nomination for president.

Rev. L. M. Wilson, of Agricola, has announced his candidacy for commissioner of agriculture.

The people's party national convention will be held at St. Louis July 22.

The national democratic convention will be held at Chicago July 7.

To those who are charging up all the ills and financial misfortunes to the democratic administration, we respectfully submit the following statement of facts from the New York Mercury: "Democrats should bear in mind the fact that the republican party is responsible for the condition of the federal treasury. The looting of the treasury began under President Harrison. The deficit originated under Harrison after he had signed two iniquitous bills—the Sherman silver makeshift and the McKinley robber tariff. Harrison retired from office leaving an empty treasury, and it was the same treasury which he found filled to overflowing when he went into office four years before. Cleveland filled the treasury; Harrison emptied it. All the ills the country now suffers from are due to republican demagoguery and republican squandering."

The location of the State Industrial School for White Girls has been settled, and the institution will be established at Montevallo, as was decided by the trustees last year. The citizens of Montevallo a few days ago paid $8000 to the trustees and turned over the deeds to the property which was donated.

PUBLIC DEBTS AND SO FORTH.

From the Chattanooga Times.

Much is said about the public debt of the United States as a great burden on the people. In fact it is a mere bagatelle. Consider the ability of the country to carry debt, and our charges on that account are very small. By comparison we owe next to nothing. On January 1, 1896, our bonded debt was a per capita obligation of $14.63. That is to say, if every family were to pay (averaging the families at five each) the sum of $73.15, the debt could be wiped out.

What our bibulous population disburses for beer, wine, whisky, brandy, etc., in a single year, would pay the bonded debt of $915,962,112, redeem the greenbacks and Sherman notes of $490,347,298, and leave a net balance of $53,690,590. Our whole debt, bonded and non-interest bearing, is only $1,406,309,410. The bonded debt of France, exclusive of $2,000,000,000 of annuities, is $4,446,793,338, a per capita burden on her population of $116.35. This is eight and one-third times as heavy a load to carry as ours is; and the French have not more than one-half the ability of the United States to bear a debt burden. Her population is 38,000,000, ours 70,000,000. Her population is steadily diminishing, ours grows at a rate that doubles it once in forty years. The area of France is the same as that of Texas. Her colonies are a financial drawback on the home government.

Nor is England in greatly better position, in such a comparison. Her debt is $3,350,719,563, a per capita of $87.79, or six times our individual obligation. Low as are the rates these countries pay, their interest charges are enormous compared to the trifle of $36,000,000 we pay. England pays $90,000,000 interest yearly; France $160,000,000. The English debt is stationary, regarded as a perpetuity; that of France steadily grows at an average rate of about $25,000,000 a year.

Italy owes more than double our debt; Russia nearly four times as much; Spain, poor old thing, owes $500,000,000 more than we, even since her creditors forgave her a full third of their dues. None of the so-called great powers owes as little as we, and such petty states as Prussia owes a fifth more.

This is no plea for national extravagance. Nothing of the kind. No journal has more strenuously urged true economy, on every form of government in our country, than has The Times. What we say is to show that the borrowing of a few millions, in a period of transition in our currency affairs, a period of heavy expenditure on a new navy, coast defenses, etc., that such borrowing is no killing affair, nothing the people cannot carry and pay, without hurting themselves.

We have done some expensive "projecting," including the most gigantic and expensive civil war in history. We have fooled with fiat paper; we have swindled ourselves with redundant silver coinage; we have tolerated, if not actually encouraged, the piling up, year after year, of a pension burden, the like of which was never seen in the world's history.

And if we dance we must pay the fiddler. The debt of the people's own making; the conditions that forced an increase of the debt, since 1893, did not grow on bushes, come up from the earth, fall from the sky or materialize out of the impalpable air. We, "You and I and the other fellow," dear reader, made these conditions of today, as our predecessors made those of 1861-76, the war and reconstruction era.

What we advise is good sense, calmness, fairness to officials, in the discussion of these matters. We are not only unfair, as things are now going, a false element in our politics is not even decent in its treatment of those upon whom the country has laid the tremendous task of holding up its credit, while they are wrestling with a vicious currency, and are handicapped by the effects of bad and clumsy systems of taxation.

We should remember how much better off we are than all the rest of the world, and try to be at least half reasonable. There is no occasion for fright; and there is no excuse for attributing to the president and his finance minister, conditions deliberately created by the people and their representatives in congress.

HOW ARE THE MIGHTY FALLEN!

From the Kansas City Times.

Curiously enough, the senate, which the founders of the government intended should be the conservative member of the government, has developed into a stronghold of politico-financial freakishness in legislation, and its members into most pronounced and rabid cranks. Its latest eccentricity is an attempt to force free silver legislation in a time when the credit of government is shaky. The senate has ceased to represent the people, as the house does undoubtedly, and has become a laughing stock and a byword among men, instead of a body of men of character, weight and dignity, of whom the most frivolous would not speak with disrespect. A few more performances such as the senate has been indulging in of late years will make the people begin to revolt against its insufferable arrogance, impudence and tyranny.

The house bill authorizing the issue of 3 per cent. bonds instead of 4 per cents, unquestionably represents the popular will, as it does the public interest. The senate is denying its passage at the dictation of senators who represent meagre populations and strictly local interests. Can there be doubt, if such courses are persisted in, that the people will presently begin to consider what can be done to change the system that gives to the representatives of pocket boroughs the power to override the representatives of populous states and to defeat the will of the majority of the people? It is not to be presumed that the people will permanently submit to have their interests sacrificed and their desires negated in order to perpetuate a system so grossly abused when they have power to change it? It is not to be forgotten that there are two ways of altering the constitution. The senate can stand in the way of an amendment, but it cannot obstruct the work of a constitutional convention, and it is now deliberately provoking the call of such a convention.—New York World.

It is no longer a great honor to be a member of the senate. The day has gone in which to sit on the floor is to attain the summit of political ambition in this country. Many men of experience and capacity admit they would prefer seats in the other house, if only seats there were held by a longer tenure. It is the six year term that makes the senate so attractive and gives membership in it greater charm. Many men who hold seats in the senate came hither without previous training in public life. Not a few of them are wholly unfit for the tasks which they have assumed. Some of them are not even fit to be representatives of districts in the lower house, or delegates from territories with the right to speak, but not to vote. In the change that has been going on in the senate for some years past the great men of the body appear to have come down to the level of the upstarts and accidentals and purchasers of honors, instead of lifting the recruits up to their standard. This is what is the matter with the United States senate.—Walter Wellman in the Chicago Times-Herald.

WANTS NO THIRD TERM.

A Washington special to the Nashville Banner, of Wednesday, says: "Members of the democratic national committee are authority for the statement that Mr. Cleveland has announced positively that he will not have a renomination. The men making this statement will not permit their names to be used. The statement has been made to their colleagues on the committee by two or three of the committeemen who are friendly to Mr. Cleveland and have talked with him on the subject, that Mr. Cleveland voluntarily announced to them that he would not run for a third term, and authorized them to let the committee understand this. Mr. Cleveland is quoted as saying that he does not feel called upon to make an announcement in the newspapers, but would like his friends on the national committee to know his position. Those confident of Mr. Cleveland go further and say that if anything should occur to warrant his doing so Mr. Cleveland will, at the proper time, make a formal announcement, taking strong grounds against a third term."

IS THIS A SAMPLE?

From the Montgomery News.

The Tuscaloosa Journal is a poplite paper, and has the usual poplite ideas. Some sound money democrat has a mortgage on the office material, and the editor wants his political friends and sympathizers to help him pay the mortgage, adding: We would burn it up, every splinter of wood and every letter of type before we would let it get into the hands of our enemies. Now this sounds rather wild, don't it? But it is literally true. This man, who boldly proclaims he would commit arson in order to prevent a creditor from getting his money, will talk about honest elections and ballot box frauds, and other stereotyped phrases of his party! He's a beautiful example.

"Curious marriage that, yesterday." "How, curious?" "The bride was given away, and the girls are saying that the groom threw himself away."—New York Press.

"These trousers are awfully short." "Well you told my collector the other day that you were awful short yourself."—Stonington Bulletin.

"Is your friend Wilkins the sort of a man who would borrow a dollar from you and never pay it back?" "Nixie! Not from me."

DEMAGOGUES' HUMBUG.

From the Nashville American.

About the biggest humbug of the age is the tirade made by many public men and many newspapers against the "bank power" and its growing influence. Did trade, commerce and civilization not require banks they would not exist, and if these men and papers who harrangue against banks and their growing power, which is a fabrication, want to return to the days of the note shavers, why don't they say so? Banks don't force their loans upon borrowers, but they afford borrowers an opportunity for obtaining money which in the absence of banks would only be begranted by usurers. Banks collect the surplus deposits of individuals and furnish a means by which it can be used in the daily business transactions of a community. The fellow who is hard up and cannot give security generally abuses banks, but the men who know that business cannot get along without banks appreciate their value. From Senator Mills' remarks, it is inferable that he thinks a bank should lend a depositor's money to Tom, Dick and Harry because they need it, regardless of the rights of a depositor, and Senator Mills proposes a crusade against banks evidently because they, as a rule, adopt wise business policies. It is not at all likely that the well established laws of trade and commerce will be overturned by Senator Mills' contention that the United States treasury should do the banking business of this country and issue all the circulating notes. The experiment of the treasury as a bank has been a costly one, and the people will have to pay greater sums in the future to sustain this policy than they have in the past.

UNIQUE COMPOSITION.

A Piece of Poetry Which Can Be Read Three Different Ways.

I send a unique composition which was originally published in a Philadelphia paper over a hundred years ago. It may be read three different ways. First, let the whole be read in the order in which it is printed; second, read the lines downward on the left of each comma in every line; third, in like manner on the right of each comma. In the first reading the revolutionary cause is condemned, and, by the others, encouraged and lauded:
Hark! hark! the trumpet sounds, the din of war's alarms;
O'er seas and solid grounds, doth call us all to arms.
Who for King George do stand, their honors soon shall shine;
Their ruin is at hand, who with the Congress join.
The acts of Parliament, in them I much delight;
I hate their cursed intent, who for the Congress fight.
The torments of the day, they are my daily feast;
They soon will sneak away, who Independence boast:
Who non-resistance hold, they have my hand and heart.
May they for slaves be sold, who act a Whigish part;
On Mansfield, North and Bute, may daily blessings pour.
Confusion and dispute, on Congress evermore.
To North and British lords, may honor still be done.
I wish a block of cord, to General Washington.
—Washington Star.

TURN THE CUN THE OTHER WAY.

From the Brundage News.

The Florence Times in a recent issue says: "All the votes of this country want in connection with this bond business is to locate the responsibility for them, and to get a good square whack at the guilty parties." "Why, dear Times, we have been under the impression, lo, these many years, that the 'responsibility' for our financial condition had been settled on the republican party. Who else and what else created the obnoxious laws which make possible the 'endless chain' of drainage upon the national treasury. Now, just quit 'whacking' at your own party and put in a few 'good' square whacks at the guilty parties, the republicans."

PARKER & ARMSTRONG

Probate Notice.

The State of Alabama, Shelby County. Probate Court, 18th day of January, 1896. Estate of John Dorrough, Deceased. This day came Joseph T. Dorrough, administrator of the estate of John Dorrough, deceased and filed his account, vouchers, evidences and statement for a final settlement of the same. It is ordered that the 10th day of February, 1896, be appointed a day for making such settlement, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper. W. F. THIETFORD, JR., Jan-23-3 Special Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness secured by the mortgage made May 23, 1891, by Thomas J. Peter and Esther A. Peter to French Nabors, and recorded in the probate office of Shelby county, Alabama, in volume 34 of mortgages, page 12, which mortgage and the indebtedness secured by same, having been transferred and assigned to me, and being now held by me, and said default still continuing, I, Minthorne Woolsey, will on Saturday the 13 day of February, 1896, sell to the highest bidder for cash, at the post office door in the town of Briarfield, Alabama, the lands conveyed in said mortgage and described as follows, to wit: The west half of the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section twenty, and all that part of the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section sixteen that lies west of the dirt road leading from Montevallo to Randolph, and the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section fourteen, all in township twenty-four, north, range twelve east, containing in all 74 acres more or less. CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 33 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Seven years ago, my wife had a severe attack of lung trouble which the physicians pronounced consumption. The cough was extremely distressing, especially at night, and was frequently attended with the spitting of blood. The doctors being unable to help her, I induced her to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was surprised at the great relief it gave. Before using one whole bottle, she was cured, so that now she is quite strong and healthy. That this medicine saved my wife's life, I have not the least doubt."—K. MORRIS, Memphis, Tenn.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

John Chambers, of New Orleans, is here on a visit.

R. E. McLean, of Birmingham, is at home on a visit to his family.

Prof. C. E. Franklin, of Shelby, was a guest of our town Saturday.

Robert Sawyer died last week at his home, near Shelby, of measles.

Hon. W. B. Browne paid Birmingham a "professional" visit Saturday.

John Davis, of Tennessee, is on a visit to his mother, Mrs. R. E. McLean.

O. N. Pritchard came up from Al-drich Friday to attend the teachers' institute.

Gus Little, aged 46 years, died last Friday at his home, in Pelham, of throat disease.

Prof. C. H. Florey and brother T. G. Florey, of Harpersville, attended the institute here last week.

Miss Birdie Allen, of Montevallo, was the guest of Columbiana friends the latter part of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuqua, after a visit of three weeks to relatives here, left last week for their home in Tehuacana, Texas.

Tax Assessor Hammond has purchased the residence on East College street from John Porter, and will move into it in a short time.

Dr. H. I. Williams has purchased the residence property of Mrs. D. B. McMath, on north Main street, in this place, and will move into same in a few days.

Sam Letkowitz, of the dry goods firm of Erick & Letkowitz, at Bessemer, Ala., was in our town for two days. He is much pleased with the business outlook here.

Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Jones will make this their home for the future. They arrived last week and are at the Colonial. Dr. Jones is now traveling for a Knoxville house, and will be on the road most of the time.

An interesting session of the teachers' institute was held here last Friday and Saturday. The attendance was rather small, owing to the very disagreeable weather, but those present were profitably entertained.

Judging from the number of real estate deals made here recently, it would seem that lots here are in active demand. But then this is only a starter. As soon as our matchless school facilities are generally understood, Columbiana dirt will be at a premium, so if you want to get in "on the ground floor," buy now before the boom strikes us.

We understand that one of the leading firms of Bessemer will in the near future be interested in a business enterprise here under the management of H. Fox. They propose to carry the largest stock of merchandise ever carried in Shelby county, and will be prepared to compete with any market in the state. Keep your eye open. Call to see Mr. Fox at the Moore corner.

Yesterday an important real estate deal was consummated. J. H. Page purchased from B. L. Moore the vacant lot on the south-east corner of Main and College streets, and it is his intention to build thereon a two-story brick building 32 feet wide and 80 feet long. It will be completed and ready for occupancy by mid-summer. Mr. Page informed us that he will put in a large stock of goods early in the fall. This is good news, for the more stores we have the more trade will be attracted here.

Walter. H. Daran, for a number of years secretary and treasurer of the Calera Lime Co., and who until recently has held the same position for the Chewacla Lime Co., in South Alabama, was last week promoted to a very responsible position, with a largely increased salary with the Anniston Lime & Coal Co., of Anniston. He is a young man of exceptionally fine business qualifications, and we note with pleasure his success.

Harpersville Echoes.

Measles! measles!
Oats are being sowed.
Measles have played havoc with our school.

E. V. Caldwell paid Anniston a business trip a few days ago.

The alliance school house has been moved from here to Cresswell.

Col. Kidd has gone to Birmingham this week with a drove of cattle.

Mr. Giles' congregation was very small Sunday on account of measles.

Farm hands are very scarce here, in fact there is a good demand for wage hands.

W. B. Hubbard is off on a few days rest this week and has gone up in the upper portion of the state.

Some of our boys want to know what a "gold bug" is. Is it related any way to a "blind tiger?"

The bed renovators who are stationed at Vincent are working up this community for all it is worth.

Dr. Teague, of Columbiana, that venerable man of God and one whom we all love, is visiting Harpersville.

Dr. Nelson has built him a barn two stories and has a collar. The cellar is to keep his horse in when the wind blows.

There is measles in almost every family in our community, and Prof. Florey has dismissed his school for an indefinite time.

Deputy Sheriff Shelby Nelson arrested Ike and George Green here last week charged with selling cattle that didn't belong to them.

Cadet Frank Gorman, of the Howard, was over last Sunday and the girls all say that he looks so very handsome with his uniform on.

Politics are not being talked much now, in fact our farmers are more interested in the bread and meat question than they are in politics, but when it comes to voting they will be there all the same.

JAKE.

Wilsonville Warblings.

A. G. Weldon is preparing to build a new house.

C. K. Clifton, of Jefferson county, was here last week.

There was a good many drummers in our town last week.

Mrs. Johnston, of Columbiana, is visiting relatives here.

Three families have moved in our community since December.

Will Tinney, who has been working in Anniston, has returned home.

The measles which is raging in our little town has caused many to stop work.

Rev. Cary, pastor of the Methodist church, has moved into his new residence.

The sermon at the Methodist church Sunday night was enjoyed by all who attended.

John Brown, who has been absent several months, is now at home with his mother.

As we had no preaching Sunday morning we had a very interesting prayermeeting.

Neither of our teachers could attend the institute at Columbiana on account of sickness.

Miss Florence Weatherly, who is teacher of Vincent, spent several days with relatives at this place.

Three of the meanest men in the world were in town Sunday eve. They took a pet cat from one of the store porches, cut off its ears and tail, then left it thus to suffer. They should be prosecuted for cruelty to animals.

The next meeting of our literary society will be held at Mrs. H. C. Dolshime's and the program will be as follows: A recitation by Miss Judie Kilpatrick; prophecy by Miss Bessie Nimmo; Music by Miss Olive Densler; News of the week by Mr. Austin Daniel; Debate, subject: "Who deserves the greatest praise Columbus for discovering or Washington for defending America," debaters: For Columbus, Mr. Claude Jackson, Miss Lula Weldon, Mr. W. J. Tinney, Miss Purnie Pope; for Washington, Mr. W. R. Smith, Mr. Oscar Tinney, Miss Kate Gwin, Miss Ellie Brown.

PANSY.

Easily Satisfied.

Tramp—Please, mum, would ye be so kind as to let me have a needle and thread?

Mrs. Surburb—Well, y-es, I can let you have that.

"Thankee, mum. Now, you'd oblige me very much if you'll let me have a bit of cloth for a patch."

"Well, here is some."

"Thankee, mum; but it's a different color from my travelin' suit. Perhaps, mum, you could spare me some of your husband's old clothes that this patch will patch."

"Well, I declare! I'll give you an old suit however. Here it is."

"Thankee, mum, I see it's a little large, mum, but, if you'll kindly furnish me with a square meal, nebbey I can fill it out."—New York Weekly.

Almost everyone that can't sing was at one time a member of a church choir.—Athenian Globe.

WHO AND WHAT ARE THEY?

From the Chattanooga Times.

Who are these men that keep up the shouting that they are the peculiar friends and old guardians of the rights of the dear people; their "right" to unlimited rag money, silver ditto, and the rest of the populist demagoguery and mischief? Who are they and what have they done for their country? What has their work accomplished for the betterment of the working people? When and where did they aid the cause of popular and higher education? How many hospitals have they built and endowed? What abuse have they reformed?

Will somebody name a single man among those who have led these fad-labeled factions, that has left a mark on the history of his country and time, that is to his credit and the benefit of the masses? We confess our inability to think of a single instance.

Among the great number of rich men who last year bequeathed or presented to charity, to the cause of education, criminal reform, religion and other like objects, the vast sum of $29,000,000, we will wager odds there was not one silvermoon or populist or socialist or anarchist. If there is one such let him be named without delay; and we will then have a rare specimen, which we have been in search of, for lo these many years, and have not found him.

These specialists in lip-service for humanity, expended all their energies advocating some theory of government guardianship of the people. They want government to put the stamping mills to work turning out "cheap" silver money; they would set the printing presses running to print millions of paper "dollars;" they demand that government go into the market and buy all the products of the farm, paying for it in scrip at full prices; they ask the government to lay its heavy hand on the railways, telegraph lines, telephones; in short they would have the government appoint itself guardian in ordinary to the whole people, the silly fellows forgetting the people are, in the last analysis, the government.

And when these good souls have done striving to bring in the millennium, by the power of a series of "Be it enacted," they seem to be totally exhausted and utterly incapacitated for the doing of any kind of practical good. Their theories are the all-in-all with them. They begin and end in a bathos, made up of sentiment of the sweetened water sort, and flimsy speculation on what ought to be. No matter how rich they may be, they never think it worth their while to go into their pockets for a penny to do a bit of good with, or to mention a charity, school or other public benefaction, in their will.

Take the Peppers and Powderlys; the Debses; the Vests and Camerons; the labor and charity and political demagogues, and select from the whole list a single capable, honest and useful man, if you can find him. We can't. They are either selfish schemers or harebrained idealists who have no practical sense.

Up-to-Date Seedsmen.

Among the fruit and flower novelties which 1896 brings us, we notice that the enterprising and reliable firm of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., are already calling attention to three, which seem to have won great favor where known. They are the Double Sweet Pea, the only one in the world true to name, "Bride of Niagara," the "Early Leader Tomato," the earliest of all the early tomato and to become a great favorite, and the already famous blackberry, the "Rathburn."

From the praise and compliments given so abundantly to the "Bride of Niagara," this sweet pea must be more than charming and from the encomiums lavished on both the new tomato and this new blackberry, it is pretty certain no garden desiring to have the first and best of every thing, can be without these three new comers.

By the way, readers, are any of you so far behind the times as not to know "Vick's Floral Guide?" If any of you have never seen it, send 10 cents to this firm at Rochester, N. Y., and get a copy. You can deduct this from the first order for seeds and the pleasure and information their Guide will give you will certainly induce you to keep up the acquaintance.

Senator Morgan.

From the New York Tribune.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, bubbled with language continuously for two hours in the senate on Monday. It is not unlikely that when the angel with one foot on the sea and the other on dry land starts in to proclaim that Time shall be no more, he will find Morgan somewhere on the shore discussing finance and refusing to be interrupted. In that case the angel will have to sit down and fold up his wings and let Time run on indefinitely if not interminably.

Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than make good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. Dr. King's New Discovery, for consumption, coughs and colds, each bottle guaranteed—Electric Bitters, the great remedy for Liver, Stomach and Kidneys. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, and Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are a perfect pill. All these remedies guaranteed to do just what is claimed for them, and the dealer whose name is attached herewith will be glad to tell you more about them. Sold at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, tumors, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Parker & Armstrong.

Marvelous Results.
From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church, at River Junction, she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

HOW WOMEN BUY DIAMONDS.

Prominent Jeweler Refuses to Place a Price on a Gem.

To the private office of a prominent jeweler the other day entered a middle-aged woman, richly caparisoned in finery and furbelow, and evidently forming part of the dough that makes the upper crust. She held in one hand a diamond earring. The jewel was large and brilliant. With entire coolness of demeanor she said: "I lost the mate to this. Will you be kind enough to tell me what it will cost to get another exactly like it?"

The jeweler eyed her keenly and then said: "Madame, where did you lose your earring?"

The effect of this simple question upon the woman was surprising. She was evidently unprepared for the query, and there was certainly something in it that disturbed her. "It makes no difference where I lost it," she answered in a decidedly sharp tone. "What will it cost me to obtain another exactly like this?" and she held up the sparkling stone.

"Did you advertise for the one you lost, madame?" persisted the jeweler blandly.

"What has that got to do with the matter?" she replied in an angry tone. "Well, madame," was the smiling reply, "if you advertise for the earring which you lost you might recover it, and then you would not be placed under the necessity of ascertaining what it would cost to replace it. Advertise first, madame, and if you do not recover the jewel come in again and I will answer your questions." Saying this the diamond dealer politely bowed the door.

"Why will women lie in such small affairs," said the jeweler, wearily, "and why will nearly every purchaser of a diamond look upon the merchant with whom he or she deals as a rascal? That woman hasn't lost an earring. She has purchased a pair, perhaps, on trial, and she will go to nearly every jeweler in town with that pretty lie and endeavor to get a price upon that stone. It is one of the finest of diamonds and evidently came from one of our leading dealers, whom she insists on believing is engaged in a scheme to rob her. The chances are that she will eventually get in the hands of some unscrupulous merchant, whom she can find even in big stores. He will tell her that the stone is 'off-colored' and contains a flaw." He will show her a poor diamond of the same size as the other, and fix upon it a price which he knows is less than the fine brilliant one that she bought. The result will be that madame will send her fine brilliant back in a rage and buy the inferior stone for twice what it is worth. This evil has grown to such an extent that it is sometimes impossible to detect the fraudulent character of the stories brought us. They are all very ingenious. As a result big houses, except in rare cases, refuse to place prices upon jewels brought to them."

The jeweler continued: "People have the queerest notions about diamonds and other jewels, and some of them give us much trouble. The most general delusion is that diamonds have a standard value just as arbitrarily fixed as that of a double eagle. You will frequently hear people say: 'It is an excellent investment to place your money in fine diamonds, for they are worth just so much a carat, and you can always sell them for just what you paid for them.' My lady buys a handsome brooch for $700, and after wearing it a year or two endeavors to sell it to her jeweler, or, perhaps, to his rival. She is offered $200 for it. She then throws up her hands and lifts up her voice, and protests that she has been swindled. What nonsense it all is! With diamonds as with other merchandise a stone is worth exactly what it will bring. Were it otherwise there could be no profit in diamond dealing. How could I make money in selling double eagles when I would have to pay $20 for them, and could not sell them for a penny more?"

"Here is a very fine Indian brilliant upon my finger. I bought it at a forced sale and paid nearly $800 for it. Yesterday I was offered $1,300 for it, but I would not sell because I am in love with the stone. Yet I cannot say that the stone is worth $1,300. It was worth it at the time that sum was offered for it by one who wanted it, but if I were compelled to sell it next week at 24 hours' notice I might not get $600 for it. Why should a woman expect to wear a brooch for two years and then obtain for it the same money she paid for it? Last week I bought a new carriage and paid $1,800 for it, I said to a friend: 'Come and take an $800 drive with me.' He looked at me as if he thought me insane. 'I mean it,' I said. 'There is a carriage that cost me $1,800. We will drive in it through the park. To-morrow I will not be able to obtain $1,000 for it.' With jewelry it is much the same way."—Philadelphia Times.

A KNOW NOTHING CONGRESS.

Distressing Incapacity of the Republican House.

The president urged congress not to take a holiday recess without making provision for a pressing financial emergency. Congress did not adjourn. It recognized the need of action at once if there was to be action in time to do any good. The house passed a tariff bill and a bond bill, neither of which was of any use whatever for the purpose of meeting the emergency.

Now we are told, after all this show of alacrity on the part of the house, that "senators feel there is no necessity for them to make haste," because "neither of these measures can pass for many long weeks and perhaps months." Therefore senators proceed in the most leisurely way to complete the organization of their house as a republican body and then talk of adjourning for a week without attempting to do anything in response to the president's appeal.

"Thus we have a complete and distressing demonstration of the incapacity of either house of the present congress to act rationally in a situation which demands prompt action. The one thing to be done was to provide for the maintenance of gold payments at a time when the gold reserve was liable to be exhausted in the absence of power to replenish it at once by borrowing. The president asked authority to borrow on the most favorable terms and to protect the reserve against further raids by canceling the redeemed legal tenders or at least holding them in the treasury so they could not be used again to empty the gold vaults."

The house responded by passing a tariff bill, knowing perfectly well that it could not be passed and put into effect in time to do any good, even if it would bring in any gold when in effect, and knowing just as well that it would bring no gold into the treasury except what was drawn out in exchange for legal tenders. It also responded by passing a bond bill depriving the president even of the power he now has to sell bonds for gold drawn from sources outside of the treasury. In short, the house passed two bills to embarrass the treasury, not to afford security.

And the senate confessed its utter incapacity by placidly organizing as a republican silver body and going to sleep with the president's alarm bell ringing in its ears.

What sort of a congress is this to deal with a state of affairs under which it may become necessary to raise large sums of money? Suppose war should suddenly break out between this country and Great Britain, how would we fare financially? New loans would have to be authorized, for the treasury department has no authority to issue bonds for war purposes or for any purpose not specified in the resumption act. But no reasonable loan act could be had from this congress. Even if the house should develop sense enough to authorize a gold bond the senate would have none of it.

If war should break out now about the first thing this congress would do would be to authorize a great lot of greenbacks and silver certificates against alleged seigniorage. Suspension of gold payments would quickly follow. The currency would depreciate as it did during the civil war, prices would go up to correspond and the cost of the war would be at least twice what it ought to be. And the debt would have to be paid in sound money or the public and private credit of the country would be ruined.

War would be a double calamity with such a congress in the saddle. With the possibility of war confronting them people ought to be able to see the importance of a sound and solid monetary system. They ought to see that the government never should exercise the power to issue legal tender notes except to meet some great emergency, and even then should exercise it so sparingly as not to cause depreciation. They ought to see that such notes should be withdrawn completely at the earliest moment after the passing of the emergency. But this congress sees nothing of the kind. It is far less capable of enacting wise financial measures than were the war congresses of 1861 and 1865.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Reserve of Wind. As one travels around and about that monetary scheme of the republicans, its boshiness shows at every corner. There is the "fatal mush of concession" everywhere. For one instance of many, it proposes that all greenbacks redeemed in gold shall be held in the treasury as a part of the "reserve." What is it when analyzed? The redemption of the greenbacks is but the payment of the debt expressed on their face. What is the "reserve"? It is the money, the actual money, kept to pay these debts with. What then, is this proposition? To put the paid promises to pay into the fund with which to pay. A parrot would be for a business firm to put into its safe the notes which it had taken up to be used "on a pinch" in paying other notes with. Should this nonsense prevail and become a law, one can imagine a holder of the greenback notes of the government presenting them for payment and being paid in the redeemed and paid greenbacks held in the "gold" reserve. Could anything be more absurd than this? And yet it is the best method that a party that boasts of its superior administrative and business capacity can devise. Before they are through with it they are likely to recant even on this, and order the continued reissue of greenbacks. Then republicans themselves cannot say of what the reserve would consist.—St. Paul Globe.

—What is there about protection pap that makes those fed on it such sniveling molly-coddles? There is not a state in the union that has been the scene of more lawlessness than the protection stronghold of Pennsylvania. There is no state with more paupers in proportion to population. There is no state where strikes have been so frequent or more extensive, or where more want has afflicted the tariff-protected wage workers.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

—Mr. Dingley's gross blunder in the preparation of a new tariff measure which he makes an abbreviated bottled McKim bill is gross even in a matter of detail. Mr. Dingley, chairman of the committee on ways and means, ought to have been well enough informed to save his committee from a blunder which designates the act as the act of August 27, 1864.—Chicago Chronicle.

AN OUTRAGEOUS TAX.

Dingleyism Designs to Defraud the American People.

The Dingley robber tariff bill (this title almost rhymes with the "McKinley robber tariff bill") which the republican house passed by an almost unanimous party vote restores wool to the dutiable list. The proposition is to again tax the people's clothing and blankets—one of the most outrageous taxes that can be inflicted upon the consumers of the land—and all for the benefit of a few raisers of fancy sheep in Ohio.

The people have been fighting for free wool for many years, and now that they have secured it, they will not willingly surrender the boon. The people declared for untaxed wool after a long and careful investigation, and there is no reason to suppose that they have changed their views. The attempt of the republican congress to reimpose an outrageous tax on wool will result in the repudiation of that party at the polls next fall.

Why did the republicans provide for a heavy tax on wool and woolen clothing in this Dingley bill? The real sheep raisers of the country did not ask for it. It will not benefit them. It will probably benefit a few men who are engaged in fancy stock raising, and who will thereby be enabled to rob the public of vast sums of money. But the general run of farmers who raise wool for the market will not only not be benefited—they will be injured by this outrageous tax.

The American Wool and Cotton Reporter gave an interesting review of the wool trade of the United States. It showed that during the past year the sales of raw wool in this country aggregated 86,000,000 pounds more than the sales of the previous year; it showed that American wool had increased in price during the same period, precisely as the advocates of untaxed wool had predicted it would; it showed, too, that a remarkable development of the woolen industry had taken place since raw wool was placed on the free list.

Good all-wool clothes are cheap now, cheaper than ever before, notwithstanding the increase in the price of native wool. This is accounted for by the fact that the foreign wool which enters into the goods is obtained without any tax. It has been demonstrated that a cheap coat does not mean a cheap man under it.

No good reason can be assigned why the American people should wish to go back to the days of taxed wool.

The wool tax is an outrageous one. Dingleyism appears to be only McKinleyism behind a new mask.—Illinois State Register.

TWO SHAM MEASURES.

The Seamy Schemes of Republicans for Relieving the Treasury.

Some of our republican friends are still trying to delude themselves into the belief that the action of congress was a proper response to the president's request to do something to relieve the treasury. "The house," we are told, "prepared and passed a bill to increase the revenues of the government, taking at once the sure way of affording the gold reserve protection." Did it? On the republican theory the only trouble with the treasury was a lack of revenue. The Dingley bill was offered as the remedy. "It will add $40,000,000 to the revenues at once," said Mr. Dingley. Well, that is more than enough revenue required if the republican theory were correct. If the only trouble was lack of revenue, and this bill supplied that lack, what more legislation is necessary?

The republicans, however, give the lie to their own professions by immediately proposing and passing through the house a bond bill for the very purpose that the first bill was said to be for. But neither the increased tariff bill nor the bond bill will accomplish the relief of the treasury. The one is a sham measure designed to restore a portion of McKinleyism under false pretenses. The other is an alleged improvement on the present law authorizing the issue of bonds to protect the gold reserve. But the prospect of the benefit that might result from a proper law authorizing a bond issue is swept away in advance by the provisions of the bill. In deference to the populist element in the republican party, the provision was inserted for the payment of the bonds in "coin," instead of in gold. Another clause forbids the retirement of the greenbacks. The former provision will prevent the sale of the bonds for a high price. The second keeps up the "endless chain."

The president has investigated and finds that there is no prospect of any helpful legislation from congress. The house is simply trifling with a growing situation; the senate, organized as it is, cannot be relied upon for anything. Therefore, the president will proceed to use the means that the law authorizes, to maintain the credit and integrity of this country, as he has done since March 4, 1864, when the republican administration handed over to him a bankrupt treasury. There will be an issue of bonds soon, we are told, under the law of 1875, to protect the gold reserve. The republican congress simply passes two sham measures to relieve the administration.—Utica Observer.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

—Tom Reed can now cancel the order for 26 bedrooms at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago. Mr. Reed made a mistake in the town.—Toledo Blade.

—Since it has been placed astride the old tariff issue Mr. McKinley's boom has enjoyed something of its former excellent health and chipper disposition.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

—St. Louis won that convention on her merits. This talk about a little $75,000 check cutting ice with a party which distributes $100,000 funds in blocks of five is tiresome.—Albany Argus.

—It is one of the most discouraging symptoms in the present disturbed situation that the republican majority in congress is disposed to take advantage of a critical emergency by making it an excuse for forcing such tariff legislation upon the country as the people have emphatically and repeatedly protested against. If there be one thing demanded more than another at this crisis it is the prompt adoption of such a financial policy as will create absolute confidence both at home and abroad.—Detroit Free Press.

HURRAH FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

The farmers of Pennsylvania are to be congratulated. M. M. Luther, East Troy, Pa., grew over 200 bushels Salzer's Silver Mine Oats on one measured acre. Think of it! Now there are thirty thousand farmers going to try and beat Mr. Luther and win $200 in gold! and they'll do it. Will you?

Then there is Silver King Barley, cropped on poor soil 110 bus. per acre in 1895. Isn't that wonderful—and corn 230 bus. and potatoes and grasses and clovers, fodder plants, etc., etc. Freight is cheap to all points.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND it with 10c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will receive their mammoth catalogue and ten packages grains and grasses, including above oats, free.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

borrowing from health.

If you have borrowed from health to satisfy the demands of business, if your blood is not getting that constant supply of fat from your food it should have, you must pay back from somewhere, and the somewhere will be from the fat stored up in the body.

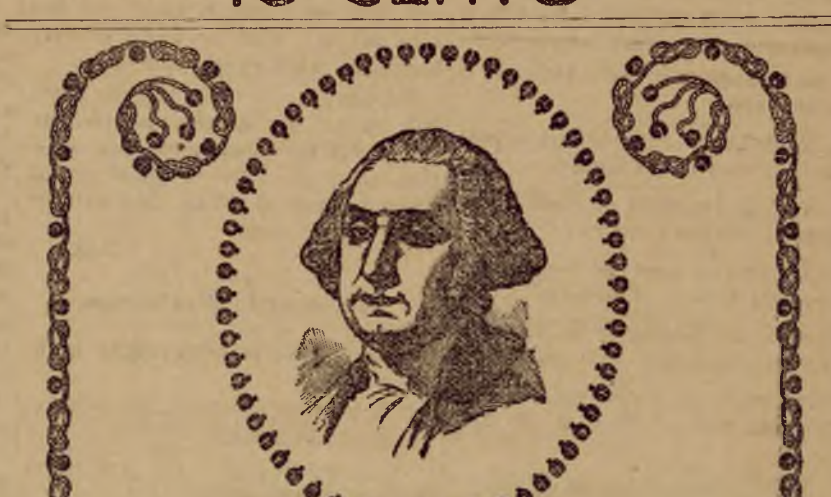

The sign of this borrowing is thinness; the result, nerve-waste. You need fat to keep the blood in health unless you want to live with no reserve force—live from hand to mouth. Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil is more than a medicine. It is a food. The Hypophosphites make it a nerve food, too. It comes as near perfection as good things ever come in this world.

Be sure you get Scott's Emulsion when you want it and not a cheap substitute.

A GREATER NUMBER OF suicides were committed in New York last year than in any other city in the world. The list of suicides for the year comprises 458 victims, taken from all walks of life, and varying in age from children less than 15 years to men and women nearly 90 years old. This list is the largest on record there, although the percentage of suicides to the entire population is lower than on some previous years. At certain periods last year there was an average of more than one suicide a day there.

THE WEATHER BUREAU IS ENGAGED IN experiments in the management of aeroplanes of kites that promise to be of high scientific value. Prof. Moore purposes to devise a system of kites that can be relied upon to carry a considerable weight two miles above the surface of the earth, instantly being sent up to this altitude which will automatically record the condition of the atmosphere above. Prof. Moore feels that the weather service has now reached a satisfactory state so far as concerns predictions of winds, their violence and temperatures, but the weak spot is predicting rainfalls.

POSTMASTER-GENERAL WILSON HAS ISSUED a general order providing that in all cities and towns having free delivery postal service the postal system be extended to include house-to-house collections. For the convenience of the department, however, the introduction of boxes in the house, until further orders, will be confined to 25 places. The action taken is the result of practical tests made in St. Louis and Washington. Householders in the cities will be required, for their own convenience and at their own expense, to supply suitable boxes of a kind already approved by the department.

THE HIGHEST COURT IN NEW YORK HAS JUST DECIDED THAT THE present liquor law of the state calls for the abandonment of about $5,000,000 worth of liquor saloons in New York City alone—all because of their proximity to schools and churches. This law will cause a vastly greater destruction of property and vested rights than was caused by prohibition in the states of Kansas and Iowa. There are other New York laws of recent origin which tend in the same direction. Even the Sunday closing law has the effect of many saloons look to Sunday business for the profit on the week's work.

THE ST. PAUL ASHORE.

Another Accident Befalls the New American Liner.

STUCK IN THE SAND OFF LONG BRANCH.

It is Thought that High Tide and Plenty of Assistance Will Get Her Afloat—The Campanian's Narrow Escape.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., Jan. 25.—The American line steamer, St. Paul, from Southampton for New York, came ashore on the outer bar off Hotel Brighton, at Long Branch, N. J., during a dense fog at 1:30 a. m. She was shortly afterward discovered by the patrol from the Long Branch life-saving station, and preparations were immediately made to open communication with her. The apparatus was hauled to the place and brought into use, a shot with line attached was fired across the vessel, the hawser hauled on board and the breeches buoy sent off.

The St. Paul is stranded opposite East End—that is between Long Branch and New Long Branch. She rolled heavily immediately after going ashore. No passengers have been taken off the steamer, and messages received over the breeches buoy state that everything is all right on board the vessel.

The St. Paul has about 200 bags of mail, $300,000 in gold and 700 people on board.

Another steamer, supposed to be the Campanian, is at anchor a mile down the beach. She came very near going ashore also.

The members of the life-saving crew at Sandy Hook, who have returned here from Long Branch, are of the opinion that the St. Paul will be floated by the wrecking crew at high tide.

The following is a partial list of the sacon passengers on board the St. Paul:

Hon. W. Bourke Cockran.
Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. Brown.
Miss Mary Louise Foss.
Mrs. H. G. Fellows.
Miss E. G. Gallagher.
Mrs. Lillian K. Gore and infant.
H. C. Horton.
C. E. Horton.
Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt.
Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Knopf.
Mr. and Mrs. E. Dwight Kendall.
Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Mosher.
Robert Mandell.
Miss Lucy Russell Martin.
H. S. Pratt.
George H. Peck.
Isaac L. Bodberg.
G. W. Rowan.
Mrs. J. S. Raper.
Mrs. Minnie Sachs.
J. J. Thompson.
Mr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Worth.
Prince George Wolkonsky.
Mr. and Mrs. Dixon C. Walker.
W. Whitehouse.

It is considered quite probable that some of the freight will have to be lightened off of her as it was high tide when she went ashore and the tide can not be counted, therefore, with certainty, to float her. It will be high tide between two and three o'clock. The bottom on which she lies is a gradual slope.

The St. Paul is commanded by Capt. Jamison. This is her first return trip since her recent accident, which occurred in her engine room at her dock here, whereby ten men were either instantly killed or badly injured.

The officers and crew of the St. Paul number 331.

The St. Paul has been the victim of several minor accidents. Even before she got into the water she had one. When the launching should have taken place the great shipstuck on the ways, and stayed there for several days.

Only a week before Christmas last an accident occurred, which resulted in the death of several of her crew and delayed her trip across the Atlantic for several days.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., Jan. 25.—The life-saving crew of Station 3, at 1:45 p. m., began the work of transferring the passengers from the vessel to the tugs. The task was an extremely difficult one, as there was a heavy sea running, and it was with considerable danger to the passengers, unaccustomed to positions where surety of foot and coolness were necessary. Especially was this true as regards the women.

Capt. Merritt of the wrecking company, arrived at Long Branch at 1 p. m. After looking the situation over very carefully he said he expected to have a hard time in getting the vessel safely off into deep water. The flood tide at 1 o'clock was slowly working the vessel nearer to the shore. She was then still hard aground amidst ships.

The Mails Transferred.

SANDY HOOK, N. J., Jan. 25.—The life-saving crews commenced transferring the mails at 11 o'clock to another steamer, and they were sent to the city in the afternoon. It is supposed that the passengers were transferred to another steamer.

The weather is clear and the wind is light from the southwest, with the surf moderating.

THE BELLIGERENT SPIRIT

In British Guiana Has Calmed Down or Is Discreetly Stilled.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Bureau of American Republics has received newspapers from British Guiana dated as late as January 8, which indicate that the belligerent spirit evinced by the colony there several months ago has calmed down considerably, or else is being discreetly stifled, on account of the more serious turn the Venezuelan dispute took upon President Cleveland's special message, followed so closely by the complications growing out of the Transvaal matter.

THE STATE OF TRADE

As Reflected by Bradstreet's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Bradstreet's weekly review says: An analysis of special telegrams to Bradstreet's from the more important business centers throughout the country shows considerable irregularity in the trade, the most favorable feature being the tendency of staple prices to advance. The advance of three cents in wheat again raises the question of the beginning of the end of the long period of depression of cereal prices has come. Supplies of wheat for leading importing markets are now controlled by Russia and the United States. The ability of India as well as Argentina to ship is much restricted compared with previous years, and Australia left the list of exporters when she began to import wheat from San Francisco recently. Domestic wheat stocks are larger than earlier official and trade estimates, but the export demand has increased so far beyond what was anticipated that the market is much more being continued, that the bulls in the speculative markets are counting on higher prices.

At such centers as Chicago and St. Louis reports are made that the interior merchants have been disappointed in the season's business and are buying somewhat more sparingly than was expected, although many jobbers at those cities report the travelers for clothing, dry goods, shoes and hardware houses are taking fair orders for spring delivery.

Total exports of wheat (four included as wheat), from both coasts of the United States this week amount to 3,849,000 bushels, as compared with 3,292,000 bushels last week, 2,840,000 in the week one year ago, 2,947,000 two years ago, 2,531,000 in the corresponding week of 1893 and as contrasted with 3,557,000 in the like week in 1892. Exports of Indian corn aggregate 3,192,000 bushels this week, a slight decrease from the week before, but more than four times the quantity sent abroad in the corresponding week one year ago, nearly twice the amount exported in the week two years ago, four times that sent out of the country in the like week in 1893, and about 600,000 bushels less than in the corresponding week in preceding years the 52 this week is seen to be an unusually large number. One year ago the total was 38; it was 40 in each of the corresponding weeks in 1894 and in 1893, and 44 in 1892.

There are 2 business failures reported from Canada this week, against 74 last week, thus indicating a large falling off. But when contrasted with the number of failures in preceding years the 52 this week is seen to be an unusually large number. One year ago the total was 38; it was 40 in each of the corresponding weeks in 1894 and in 1893, and 44 in 1892.

A WILD PANIC

Occasioned by a Fire at Worley, Ia., Friday Night.

WORLEY, Ia., Jan. 25.—Panic, with almost miraculous escape from fatality, attended the destruction of the opera house here Friday night. The fire broke out about 10 o'clock in Vibber & Heald's hardware store in the opera house block.

A Catholic fair was in progress in the opera house when the fire started. When the flames were seen the people upstairs and down began a wild scramble for safety. There was a fearful crush on the ground floor, but the cooler heads succeeded in getting everybody out without serious injury. Those upstairs had a more dangerous time of it. The fire made rapid progress and was very near the people by the time ladders were procured. Then there was a great difficulty in keeping the frightened people in check so that all might escape. This was finally accomplished in safety. The fire destroyed the opera house block, including one bank and another bank on the south side of the town and the new Loomis hotel, opposite the opera house block; also some small stores and two dwellings.

THE BRITISH CASE

In the Venezuelan Dispute Will Assume Larger Proportions Than Expected.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The statement of the Venezuela dispute, which is being prepared by Sir Frederick Pollock, corporate professor of jurisprudence of Oxford university, will take larger proportions than was expected.

It will scarcely be ready at the time set for the reopening of parliament. Sir Frederick Pollock has for a long time been an advocate of permanent arbitration.

TERRIBLE PLUNGE

Through an Open Draw of a Cleveland (O.) Fire Engine.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 25.—Fire engine No. 2, with two men on board, plunged into the river through the draw-brake opening at the foot of Seneca street hill, before daylight. Charles Coolidge and William Burgess were on the back of the engine and did not heed the warning that the men in the front seat, who jumped, shouted to them. They went down with the engine. Both were rescued. The horses were drowned.

NITRO-GLYCERINE.

Frightful and Fatal Explosion Near St. Mary's, O.

ST. MARY'S, O., Jan. 25.—A near load of nitro-glycerine exploded, killing Sam Angel, the driver, and two horses. The wagon contained 760 quarts of the explosive, and was being transferred to the magazine on the Kistler farm. Fragments of flesh, harness and blankets are hanging on the branches of what trees remained after the explosion. The shock was felt for many miles around.

Owned Up the Corn.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 25.—Representative James A. Spear, of Clinton county, has admitted that he asked a constituent $300 to secure for him an appointment as a guard in the state prison, and his constituent has asked his resignation. Mr. Spear came here today to tender his resignation, but was unable to do so, as Speaker Sleeper is not in the city.

SAVED FOR THE LAW.

Narrow Escape of the Atwater Murderers From Lynching.

REMARKABLE NERVE OF SAM FIELDSON.

Constant at Webster Groves—Deserted by His Guards, and Unarmed, He Escaped the Mob and Took the Prisoners to St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 25.—To the remarkable courage and able management of Constable Sam Fieldson, a man who had never been given credit for the possession of any great amount of sand, Sam Foster, the black murderer of Bertram A. Atwater, the Chicago artist, and accomplice, "Cotton" Schmidt, are indebted for the fact that they are still living, and St. Louis county has been spared the humiliating responsibility for a lynching.

After the coroner's jury at Webster Groves had sat upon the case Friday afternoon, and reached the only verdict possible under the evidence, it was dark. There had been evidences all through the inquest that delays were made in the hope that it would be night before the prisoners could be taken back to Clayton. Even the jurors suggested dilatory motions.

At 6:30 the constable, Coroner Caster, Juror Bellairs and the two prisoners left the village in a double buggy. Fieldson, who was driving, gave his two pistols to Dr. Caster and Bellairs. While driving along the Manchester road about two miles north of Webster Groves they were met by a party of citizens who had gone on ahead to wait for them.

"Halt!" they cried. "Give your prisoners up to us."

Fieldson's only answer was to lash his team into a gallop, while the two guards drew their revolvers, determined to sell the lives of the prisoners entrusted to them at the highest price possible.

Bullets flew around the flying rig, and a brand new half-inch rope was whirled threateningly in the air. The crowd was left behind in a frenzy of disappointed rage. They were not helpless, though, and as soon as possible everything that ran on wheels in the entire suburb was in hot pursuit. To beat the prisoners and their guards to the Clayton jail was the intention.

The coroner and Juror Bellairs had seen enough of fighting by this time, and got out, taking the revolvers with them. This left Fieldson unarmed, alone in the buggy with his prisoners. Fieldson succeeded in turning his horses, throwing the man holding them to the ground, a frightful ride for life followed. Fieldson went back toward Webster Groves, followed by hundreds of men on foot, horseback and in carriages, buggies and other vehicles.

During the struggle at the Manchester road many shots were fired, and Peter Schmidt, the young highwayman, was shot in the left hip.

Fieldson passed through Webster Groves and thence to Kirkwood, where he left his horses and vehicle and went on foot with his prisoners, eastward, into the woods near Woodlawn. He was followed by about one hundred armed men, who overtook him and taken him and his prisoners walked nine miles to Ellendale, at the limits of St. Louis, where they boarded a train at 10:53 and were landed into the Union station.

They were met by a guard of police. First they were taken to the dispensary, where Dr. Lippe extracted the bullet from the white boy's hip.

Schmidt and Foster were then locked up in four courts' cells and Fieldson remained in the ship of the just on Night Chief Kieley's coach.

After the jury rendered its decision Foster made an unsuccessful attempt to jump out of the window of Justice Pehrn's court at Webster Groves.

MAKALLE EVACUATED

By the Italian Force by Permission of the Abyssinian Government.

ROME, Jan. 25.—Gen. Barateri, governor of Erythraea and commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in Abyssinia, has informed the government that on Thursday the Italian garrison at Makalle, commanded by Col. Galliano, evacuated that place, taking with him all the arms, ammunition, equipments and other contents of the fortress. It is reported, Gen. Barateri says, that the evacuation of the fortress by the beleaguered garrison was accomplished by permission of the Abyssinian forces, which were besieging Makalle, who desired not only to pay tribute to the heroism of Col. Galliano and his command, but also to obtain peace.

FROM A LIVE WIRE.

Awful Experience of Z. T. Hartzell, a St. Louis Carpenter.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 25.—Zachariah T. Hartzell, a carpenter, 45 years of age, miraculously escaped a horrible death at 10:30 a. m.

While engaged in repairing the roof of a building at Fourteenth and Center streets he came in contact with a live electric light wire and hung from it, suspended in mid-air, for fully five minutes. The horrible sight of the man slowly roasting to death, with blue flames and smoke issuing from his body as it came in contact with the deadly current, was witnessed by a crowd of over 500 men, women and children.

Firemen went to the rescue and released him from his horrible predicament. He will recover.

For Beach of Promise.

GALSBURG, Ill., Jan. 25.—J. A. Mackenzie, for many years the most prominent criminal lawyer of the Knox county bar, has been sued by Parthena Connor, of Knoxville, for $10,000 for breach of promise of marriage.

SENSATIONAL SCENE

In the Chicago Criminal Court at the Sentencing of John Oram.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—There was a sensational scene in the criminal court when John Oram was called up to say why sentence of death should not be imposed upon him for the murder of Joseph Coalan. As Oram rose to testify, the judge told her her husband is not guilty. He shall not suffer for my crime. The court-room was instantly in an uproar. When quiet was restored the prisoner asked time to consider, which was granted him, and he then pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Mrs. Oram told the judge that she committed the murder, but that her husband's lawyers would not allow her to testify. The judge told her her testimony would be of no avail, as her previous contradictory testimony would disprove it. She then fainted repeatedly.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 25.—A special to the Times from El Paso, Tex., says: The programme for Stuart's fistic tournament has been completed as follows:

February 14—Maher vs. Fitzsimmons, purse $10,000, and heavy-weight championship of the world.

February 15—Bright Eyes vs. Walcott, purse $3,500, and welter-weight championship of the world.

February 16—Jack Everhart vs. Horace Leeds, purse $3,500, and light-weight championship of America.

February 17—George Dixon vs. Jerry Marshall, purse $9,000, and feather-weight championship of the world.

February 18—Jimmy Barry vs. Johnny Murphy, purse $3,500, and bantam-weight championship of the world.

Pronounced Untrue.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—A press dispatch from Havana, Friday, made the startling statement that Gen. Gomez, commander-in-chief of the Cuban insurgent forces, was dying of consumption. Physicians were said to have given him only two months more of life. This dispatch is pronounced to be absolutely untrue.

An Alleged Defaulter and Fugitive.

LEMAIRS, Ia., Jan. 25.—Edward Kirsbaum, treasurer of Plymouth county, was being missing since last Monday. A partial examination of his accounts shows a shortage of about twenty-five thousand dollars, and a warrant has been issued charging him with being a defaulter and fugitive from justice.

Fire at Cleveland, O.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 25.—An early morning fire in the H. C. Rouse power block on Frankfort street, between Seneca street and Bank street, caused a loss of about $20,000. The fire started in one of the upper floors occupied by House & Hill's brass foundry.

THE CHRONICLE

C. C. DuBOSE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, JAN. 30, 1896.

THE trial of P. G. Bowman, charged with the murder of Eugene Jeffers, was concluded Saturday night in Birmingham. The following morning the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty. Human life, it would seem, is indeed a cheap commodity these days.

WITH one plow running regularly and another occasionally, a farmer near Montevallo made 1,200 bushels of corn, ten bales of cotton, 200 bushels of sweet potatoes, $50 worth of watermelons, grapes, etc. This shows what push, perseverance and energy will do on a farm.

A CLUB of one hundred and fifty Clarke men was formed in Birmingham Monday night. Looks as though Johnson will have a serious tussle to keep his home county in line. The fact is there is a host of sound money democrats in Jefferson who propose to stand on principle rather than be led by sentiment. Right, aren't they?

OUR friend, "Jake," of Harpersville, seems to have modified his views somewhat since the meeting of the state executive committee. Before that he was a red-hot Johnston man, but judging from what he says this week he has cooled off very considerably. Well, "Jake," there are dead loads of democrats of the same way of thinking. There is no doubt of the fact that Johnson is losing ground every day. We can find now only two gentlemen in this place who are for Johnston. In the last race he had a very strong following. Things have changed, "Jake," and our advice is come over with THE CHRONICLE and support Clarke. He is a sure winner. It is only a question of a few weeks until you will be a Clarke man anyway, so join the procession and let's pull together.

IT appears that both the cotton and woolen mills of Fall River are abundantly satisfied with the new tariff if the earnings and dividends of the past year afford any indication of its workings. In fact, the Fall River factories have had the most prosperous period in their history. The annual statement of dividends, paid during 1895, shows a percentage of more than 8 per cent on over $21,000,000 of capital, these dividends aggregating $1,721,425. It is argued that if woolen manufacturing pays so well in New England, it should pay more in the South, and if the holders of capital are looking for a division of investment, they can find it by dividing the new industries. This would mean woolen as well as cotton manufacturing in the Southern States. In this respect Georgia takes the lead, as in some of the large cities of that state woolen mills have already been established.

THE populists, too, have found a convention city, and Uncle Joe Sibley is in the enjoyment of a corresponding degree of happiness. It was a matter of doubt for quite a period what Mr. Sibley would do with his share of the invitation to help find a convention home for the third party, but there is a clearness in the atmosphere now because the doubt is removed. The populists will hold their national convention in St. Louis on the 22nd of July, and the call sent out bids "all men and all organizations in pursuit of financial reform to concentrate in the convention and become one of the vigorous political factors of the year." Mr. Sibley has declared very strongly for the single issue of the free coinage of silver. This is a hopeful sign, provided Mr. Sibley sticks long enough to his declaration. The populists will certainly stick to that issue whether Sibley does or not, as they have nothing else to stick to, for with free silver out of the road the populists would be in the unfortunate position of being a party without an issue.—Philadelphia Times.

MR. DEAN'S ADDRESS.

We publish in full this week Chairman Dean's appeal to his fellow populists, and in the light of recent events it makes interesting reading. The Rev. Burn-His-Arm-Off tendered his resignation to the meeting last week, and G. B. Deans, of this county, is now drawing his salary as chairman. And, by the way, he makes a pretty good populist for so young a recruit. His "tale of woe" comes well up to the standard of all documents emanating from his party, and the way he scores the "ballot-box thieves" is neat and artistic. But if you will read his address carefully you can easily see Mr. Deans is scared, badly scared. He sees the hand-writing on the wall, and he rushes into print to prevent a stamped. Well, Mr. Deans, we are not looking for or expecting anything of that sort, but we are of the opinion that quite a number who have had ample time for reflection, will accept the invitation extended them, now that they see the utter folly of their past course. They can certainly see from the experience of the past, that the populist freak can never reach the dignity of a political party, but that its followers are being led step by step squarely into the republican fold. R. F. Kolb has recently given his consent to allow the republicans to place three of their party on the state ticket. That leaves four for the populists, but how about the county tickets? The republicans are expected to furnish the bulk of the vote, and it is not probable they will want most of the county offices. But be that as it may, the parties are one and inseparable, having in view but one object, the overthrow of democracy. This is a hopeless task, as they have found out to their sorrow long since, and now that prejudice has given way to sober reason, the desertions from the freak party will be numerous.

The Birmingham News, commenting on Mr. Deans address says:

"Mr. Deans displays much feeling in the matter by his free and reckless use of words which indicates his fear that many former followers of Kolb will avail themselves of the invitation the democracy has extended them. Mr. Deans discovers in this invitation 'a deep plotted scheme.' In this he is correct in the sense that it is 'a deeply plotted scheme' which the News and other lovers of democracy and good government have been working upon for three years past to get the white men of Alabama together again as they once were for upholding, insuring and perpetuating good government in this great state of ours.

"Mr. Deans' address, however, is but another manifestation of the growing weakness of the populist cause. But Mr. Deans, in the opinion of the News, is going to find his words falling upon deaf ears when he appeals to those men who, though life-long democrats, made the mistake of following off a bolt, the folly of which they have since been able to see. They knocked for admission to the party door the year after their false step had been taken, and now their knock has been answered, though late, it is not too late. The News believes that the white men of Alabama who redeemed the state from republican misrule twenty or more years ago, are going to get together again. Mr. Deans evidently foresees this result, and it is this that is giving him and other populist politicians such deep concern."

LESS COTTON AND MORE MONEY.

At the recent meeting in Memphis of the southern cotton growers the following address was issued, which we commend to the earnest consideration of our farmers:

"To the Cotton Growers of America. 'The Cotton Growers' Protective association of America, in convention assembled at Memphis, Tenn., on the 21st day of January, 1896, again come to you with an urgent appeal for co-operative action in planting the crop for 1896."

"It is a matter of extreme congratulation that the appeal made to you last year was so generally responded to and that the crop of 1895 was made upon the undiminished acreage and had the effect of greatly increasing the prices and bringing prosperity to the country. The crop of 1895, though estimated to be 3,400,000 bales short of the crop of 1894, was in the markets of the world, worth more by nearly $30,000,000. In the face of this result, to abandon the idea of diminished acreage would be to sound the retreat in the face of victory. It is the consensus of opinion among the best thinkers that if by any means the cotton crop of America could be held within the limits of 7,000,000 bales per annum for ten years the people of the southern states would be the richest and most prosperous agricultural people in the world. How can this be brought about? The answer is with you.

"We appeal to your self-interest and to your patriotism to do all in your power to keep down the production of the staple. Do not abandon the ground you have won; fight upon the lines laid down; make the cotton states self-supporting; put more land in clover and grasses for your hog to run on; diversify your crops, and when you have done all this, the area devoted to cotton will yield more profitable returns than if you sought to increase the number of bales. It is felt by the more thoughtful men that we are entering upon a year of great uncertainties and that even a small cotton crop may fail to give adequate returns for its production. The mutterings of a storm are disturbing the country and unsettling all business calculations. The prudent man will limit his sales to meet it. With the commerce of the country interrupted by war—and war may come—cotton would be unsaleable except at nominal prices. Every consideration, then, of patriotism, of self-interest and of prudence, dictates that you adhere strictly to the rule of diminished acreage. Earnest men are earnestly working to lead you and to guide you into prosperity. Do not let them labor in vain, but cheerfully and hopefully respond to their appeal.

CHAIRMAN DEANS' WARNING.

He Issues an Appeal to His Followers to Steer Clear of the Ballot-Box Stuffers.

From the Birmingham News.

The populite leaders have evidently awakened to the fact that many of the wandering sheep, now that the bars have been let down, will return to the democratic fold. In conference assembled last Thursday they instructed their new chairman to call to the sheep before the stampede homeward commenced. Mr. Deans has accordingly issued an address, as follows:

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., JAN. 24, 1896.

To the Populists of Alabama.

The state executive committee of the people's party of Alabama, in session January 23rd, was requested by Hon. S. M. Adams to accept his resignation as chairman. The committee, recognizing the ability, integrity and fitness of Mr. Adams in the performance of the duties involved in the position he had seen fit to decline to further honor and hold, accepted his resignation with regret and with high appreciation for his services in behalf of the reform movement.

The committee then placed me in the position of trust, honor and responsibility, formerly occupied by Mr. Adams, and, in its acceptance, I ask the populists of Alabama to co-operate and advise with me in the discharge of the important work we have undertaken.

At the suggestion and by the request of the state executive committee this address is made that the populist voters of Alabama may be acquainted with and awakened to the political situation that now confronts the reform movement.

The state campaign is practically at hand and the lines of contest are fast being formed by the political parties in Alabama. The state executive committee of the organized democratic party met January 21, 1896, and formulated its plan of action.

It may not be unwise at this time to refer to the resolutions adopted by this committee to inveigle voters who have affiliated with the reform movement in Alabama into the snare of ballot box stuffers. The resolutions adopted by the state committee of the "organized" democracy, with the pretension of fairness, are really but a disguise to cloak the corrupt methods of the "organized" democracy and to divert the minds of the defrauded people of Alabama from the ballot box stuffers within that organization and from the fact that this party is controlled by these enemies to honest government.

The record of fraud and usurpation made by the "organized" democracy speaks in thunder tones to the liberty-loving people of Alabama, a warning that cannot fail to cause them to be wary of political associations with a party that has both wronged and robbed them.

This recent action of the "organized" democratic executive committee is no doubt the consummation of a deeply plotted scheme of Captain Johnston, who, let it never be forgotten by the patriotic people of Alabama, was the chief conspirator in the midnight-clave of the unscrupulous political tricksters, who put into execution a plan, conceived in iniquity, to defraud the people of their choice for governor in 1890, when an overwhelming majority had expressed themselves for Reuben F. Kold.

Let it now be remembered that Captain Johnston has publicly declared, although he claims to be in favor of fair and honest elections, that he would support, if nominated by the "organized" democracy, Judge Caffee, of Lowndes county, who has practically declared, over his own signature, that he had counted 4,999 fraudulent votes of the "organized" democracy in 1894 and that he would do it again!

Captain Johnston has also declared in public speeches in this state that he favors the free and unlimited coinage of silver and that a gold standard would entail more miseries to the people of this country than all the wars, pestilences and famines, and, in the next breath avows that he would support a gold standard nominee for any office named by his party!

The position held by Richard H. Clarke on the currency question and his advocacy of a single gold standard with its attending ruin, is plainly known to the populists of Alabama, who need not be counselled to refuse their support to either him or his policies.

The "organized" committee, at present controlled by the Johnston faction, in its resolutions adopted January 21st invites all voters in Alabama to participate in the primaries of the "organized" democracy, who will pledge to support the nominees and "principles" of the party. As Johnston advocates the free coinage of silver, as Clarke is a radical goldbug, and as Knox, the chairman of the "organized" democratic committee, is an advocate of the gold standard, and Johnston, a free silver man, claims to control this committee, the voters of Alabama can not possibly conceive what the principles of the "organized" democracy may be when formulated by a hybrid and a mongrel state convention. The populists of Alabama, judging the "organized" democracy by its past record, can not see in this party but one fixed and agreed policy and principle, but no one can deny the unity of the "organized" democracy on the question of ballot box stuffing. By record, precedent and practice, the "organized" democracy is a ballot box stuffing party.

The reform movement in 1893, seeking to restore peace and liberty to the state, submitted to the executive committee of the "organized" democracy, through its state executive committee a fair, just and equitable proposition to hold a white primary election, in which each party or faction should have representations of its own choice to protect the interests at the polls. The "organized" committee refused to concede or submit to such an honest settlement of the political differences of the people and only make the proposition they have so lately promulgated, because they have the party machinery and the power to again defraud the people.

The "organized" democracy opens its front doors to admit voters of all parties and the Caffees come in the back doors to fix the election returns. The populists of Alabama can not hope for honest elections except by sustaining the reform movement.

The people's party is the only party that is a unit in favor of the free coinage of silver.

All fair-minded, honest and liberty-seeking people of Alabama, who desire to reclaim the state from the corrupt party now dominating it, are appealed to that the reform movement should have their hearty support.

The prospects for the success of the reform movement in this state were never brighter than now.

By concerted action on the part of all opposition to "organized" democracy, it is in the power of the people to drive from power this corrupt oligarchy in Alabama and established a republican form of government in the state.

G. B. DEANS,
Chairman State Executive Committee
People's Party of Alabama.

Great Change in the South.

From the New York Mercury.

Who would have thought five years ago that the South, in this century, would be building warships, and be prepared to build the largest and finest of modern battle ships? Who would have thought ten years ago that in 1895 the South would be dotted all over with the smokestacks of cotton factories, and there would be hardly a county in the entire cotton belt in which the whirr of the loom and the song of the spindle would be heard? Who would have thought ten years ago that the South would be making the best of steel and be sending coke and iron to Pennsylvania? All these things have come to pass, and they but partially tell the story of the marvellous development of the resources of the South. They are the greatest wonders of this industrial age, and are but forerunners of others to come.

Domestic Economy.

From the Chicago Tribune.

What's this? exclaimed the young husband, referring to the memorandum she had given him. "One dozen eggs, a pound of raisins, bottle of lemon extract for condensed milk, dime's worth of ground cinnamon and half a dollar's worth of sugar. What do you want of all these things, Belinda?"

"I've got a dry loaf of baker's bread," replied the young wife, "that I'm going to save by working up into a bread pudding. I never let anything go to waste, Henry."

What Can a Boy Do?

From the Minneapolis Tribune.

A recent poem in the children's page asks "What can a boy do anyhow?" Well, by the proper use of a tack, he can make his pa talk in five different languages; by dropping a little ammonia on her back, he can make the family cat drill a hole through the woodshed; by the free and disingenuous conversation to his sister's best young man, he can make that sister cherish pessimistic feelings toward the universe. What can't a boy do?

STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY.
In Chancery, Sixth District, North-Eastern Chancery Division:
Claudia Holman, Complainant, vs. I. M. Holman, Defendant.
In this case it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of John D. Strange, that the defendant, I. M. Holman, is a non-resident of Alabama, and resides in the State of Texas; and further, that in belief of said affidavit, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in The Chronicle, a newspaper published in the county of Shelby once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said I. M. Holman, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 10th day of February, A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.
Done at office in Columbiana this 4th day of January, A. D. 1896.

Greek. The institute was opened with a song and a prayer by Rev. J. M. McCluskey. After a few songs and a short talk from Mr. Greek the institute adjourned for dinner, having enrolled the names of ten teachers. The institute was again called to order at 2 p. m. by Sup't. Huston. Two songs were sung and a prayer offered by Rev. T. M. Wilson. The programme was then consulted and W. B. Greek was called upon for his welcome. Response in an essay. The teachers were prepared to appreciate his words of sympathy for the hard worked teacher. Miss Mary Liles was elected secretary. The first subject on the programme was then discussed by Messrs. Crumpton and C. H. Florey. Essays were read by Misses Ida O'Hara and Mary Liles. The next subject "How best to secure night study on the part of pupils" was discussed by Messrs. S. S. Crumpton, W. C. Evans, C. H. Florey and Rev. C. W. O'Hara, and continued for some time, developing a lively debate on the use of the rod in the school room.

The next subject "How best to begin primary geography" was taken up and satisfactorily presented by Miss Lucy Smith. After a closing song the institute adjourned. At 7:30 it was again called to order by Superintendent Huston. After song and a prayer by Rev. Walker we had an essay by Miss Belle Seale. Several subjects from the programme were passed over and "appalling evils of trashy literature and ways out of these evils" was taken up and an interesting discussion opened by J. H. Hammond, followed by Rev. T. M. Wilson, Mr. Longshore and several others took part in the discussion. They showed in a forcible way the great amount of trashy literature found in the homes; the great evil being done. We had an essay by Miss Elva Greek, a guitar solo by Miss Mabel Greek, recitations and several declamations from students of the High school and the exercises of the evening closed with a song and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Walker.

The institute was called to order Saturday morning at 10 a. m., by Superintendent Huston. After a song prayer was offered by Rev. J. M. McCluskey. The names of twenty-one teachers were enrolled during the institute. A resolution was passed that the place of meeting for the institute should be decided by the board.

The subject, "Which are better oral or written examinations" was next taken up and discussed by Rev. J. M. McCluskey, W. B. Greek and others. Written examinations were emphasized as very necessary. The importance of mental arithmetic and how best to teach it was presented by Messrs. C. N. Pritchard and C. H. Florey. Interesting experiences were related by them and others. After a song, we had an essay read by Miss F. O. Weatherly, a guitar duet by Misses Ethel and Mabel Greek, and short and encouraging talks from Rev. C. W. O'Hara and Superintendent Huston. The question box was then opened and a number of live questions were discussed and satisfactorily answered.

A closing song was sung, a touching prayer was offered by Rev. C. W. O'Hara, and a very pleasant and harmonious session of the institute closed.

The following resolutions were adopted:
RESOLVED 1, "That we the teachers of Shelby county, hereby express our thanks to the good people of Columbiana for hospitality shown us during our attendance on the institute.

2 That we extend our thanks to our secretary for the faithful manner in which she has kept the minutes of the institute.

3 That we tender our hearty thanks to Miss Lucy Smith and the choir for piano music during the institute, and also to Misses Ethel and Mabel Greek for music on the guitar."

Respectfully submitted,
M. A. LILES, Secretary.

The Local Editor.

From the Texas Herald.
The editor of a local paper is the most thoroughly criticized individual of a community. To escape criticism he would have to be a member of all churches and of none; a prohibitionist and a drunkard at the same time; a married man and a single man at once; a philanthropist and miser at once; a saint and sinner, a genius and a fool, a hypocrite, a backbiter, a liar, a rascal and the opposite of each.

Cure for Headache.
As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headache yields to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only fifty cents at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

Harpersville Echoes.

Mr. McKay, aged about 60 years died near here last week.

We understand that a new store is to be opened up at Vincent at an early day by George Cosper and B. F. Glover. We wish them success in their undertaking.

We understand that Mr. Kolb is advising his crowd to fuse with the republicans and vote for them. They don't need any advising here, Mr. Kolb, they have been doing that for a long time.

Mrs. Green, wife of the late Sidney Green, died near here last Sunday. She had been sick for a long time and her death was not unexpected. She was buried here Monday. Peace to her ashes.

Rev. Mr. Roberts came down last Thursday to marry a couple near here, but on his arrival found the bride's people so very sick with the measles that the marriage was postponed to some future time.

We are bitterly opposed to the action of the democratic state committee last week. Those "pops" would not vote for a democrat if they knew that their votes would save the whole country from hades. They let the bars down and went out of the party, and as for my part I am more than anxious for them to stay out. Now if this action was brought about by Capt. Johnson and his men, I will say for their benefit that another break or two like that and Mr. Johnson will come up liking a few votes at Harpersville when the day that the primary election shall have closed.

Our community was greatly shocked Monday morning over the report that Mrs. Henderson had died early that morning of congestion. Mrs. Henderson was the wife of the late Dr. Samuel Henderson, D. D., and mother of Mrs. W. W. Wallace, C. B. and Rev. W. S. Henderson. She was not sick but a day and her death was quite a shock indeed. She was a christian lady, a kind and affectionate mother and a good neighbor, loved and respected by all who knew her. She was buried Tuesday at Talladega, by her late husband. The bereaved family have the sympathy of this entire community in their sad bereavement.

We have waited and waited, looked and looked, wished and wished, hoped and hoped for a boom of some sort to strike Harpersville if nothing more than a matrimonial boom, but our hopes are almost blasted. Some of our people would marry if they could get who they wanted, but those that they want they can't get, and those that they can get the devil would not have, so there is the way the thing is in that line. We have plenty of room here for two or three more stores and then a carpenter could have work all the time. Then we have room for some more good law abiding, church going, intelligent people. Our town is beautifully located and perfectly healthy, so healthy that our clever little doctor (I mean little in size) has decided that he can't make a living here by rolling "pills" and has added a poultry yard to his profession, so we say to those seeking homes come to Harpersville and you will a hearty welcome find.

One of the sadest affairs occurred in this county last Friday night near Sterrett that has occurred in this county in a long time. John Goodwin shot his wife with one barrel of his shot gun and then deliberately shot himself with the other barrel and both died in a few minutes. It seems that there had been trouble between them ever since last summer when Mrs. Goodwin joined the Baptist church contrary to Mr. Goodwin's wish. Friday night Mr. Goodwin sent his children from home all but one or two and then the sad tragedy occurred. Mrs. Goodwin was a daughter of Mr. Gill, of this place, and was highly respected for her many traits of womanly character and loved and respected by all who knew her. Mr. Goodwin was well known throughout the county and has always been well thought of in the community in which he lived until of late when I am told he has been very offensive. We deeply sympathize with both families and the bereaved children in their sad hour of affliction and the affair is to be regretted by us all.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Cailloute, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

MRS. ADAMS' LETTER.

LYERLY, Chatooga Co., Ga., Oct. 4, 1895.

Two medicines have done me so much good I cannot find words to express my gratitude for them. I was down with a complication of troubles, catarrh of the bowels and falling of the womb. For seven weeks I could not sit up. Two bottles of McElree's Wine of Cardui and one package of Theford's Black-Draught cured me. I have recommended the Wine of Cardui Treatment to a number of suffering women, and not one has failed to find relief by its use. If I can do anything to help bring this good medicine to the attention of sufferers, I will be glad. MRS. E. C. ADAMS.

NOTES ABOUT WAR.

On January 1, 1895, the armies of the world included 4,200,000 men.

The first war of profane history was about a woman—Helen of Troy.

The total cost of our navy during the civil war, 1861-65, was $312,000,000.

After the great battle of Cannae, 53,312 dead men were found on the field.

On July 1, 1895, there were 261,000 men serving in the navies of the world.

Great Britain now owns 5,212 cannons; France, 8,260, and Germany, 8,920.

Switzerland has a population of less than 3,000,000, and a standing army of 130,000.

During our great civil war 61,362 men on the union side were killed outright in battle.

In time of war France reckons on putting out 370 men to every 1,000 of her population.

At the present time all Europe is a well-armed camp and has so been for more than a quarter of a century.

The war of the lovers was the seventh religious war of France, waged between the years 1576 and 1678.

At the great battle of Bannockburn, 185,000 men fought, and of that number 38,000 were killed or wounded.

The "five nations of Europe" own 2,310 war ships, mounting 88,209 guns, all ready for immediate service.

The most expensive army of the world is that of Germany, which costs from $56,000,000 to $105,000,000 per year.

France boasts of a navy of 408 ships of 290,000 tons and 621,000 horse-power, and 80 others in process of construction.

The new German rifle ranges up to 4,000 yards, and at 900 yards the bullet will pierce ten inches of solid pine timber.

Since the Mannlicher gun came into use the ratio is four killed to one wounded—just the opposite to what it formerly was.

Since Napoleon "died like a caged lion in his exile home" 6,000,000 Frenchmen have perished in the wars of that country.

A gentleman made the following return to the income tax commissioner: "For the last three years my income has been somewhat under $150. In future it will be more precarious, as the man is dead of whom I borrowed the money."—Tit-Bits.

HURRAH FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

The farmers of Pennsylvania are to be congratulated. M. M. Luther, East Troy, Pa., grew over 200 bushels Salzer's Silver Mine Oats on one measured acre. Think of it! Now there are thirty thousand farmers going to try and beat Mr. Luther and win $200 in gold! and they'll do it. Will you?

Then there is Silver King Barley, cropped on poor soil 116 bush. per acre in 1895. Isn't that wonderful—and corn 230 bush. and potatoes and grasses and clovers, fodder plants, etc., etc. Freight is cheap to all points.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND it with the postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will receive their mammoth catalogue and ten packages grains and grasses, including above oats, free.

A PARAGRAPH in a provincial paper reads: "A thunderstorm made Berauger a poet, a mother's kiss made West a painter and a salary of 30 shillings a week makes us a journalist."—Tit-Bits.

The gay cravat which she selected

Will leave him soon a wreck.

While he with truth remarks, dejected, "I'll get it in the neck."

—Washington Star.

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. WOMAN'S WIT.

Told by a Society Girl

Something About Morphine Sulphur, Molasses and Other Things.

From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.

Among the popular society leaders in East Orange, N. J., Emma L. Stoll, a charming young maiden, is the foremost rank. She is of a lovely disposition, and the light of the social set in which she moves. For two years she has been a sick girl from internal troubles peculiar to women, and having recently recovered, has given our reporter the following interesting account:

"Instead of improving under the care of my physician I became worse. For five weeks I was unable to get out of bed and about six o'clock each morning I suffered horribly. My lips were sore and lacerated from the acid secreted, for in my efforts to keep from screaming I sunk my teeth deep into my lips. At such times I rolled and tossed, until the bed shook like an aspen leaf, and I thought so serious that the doctor—I won't tell you his name, gave me some morphine pills to take. The very thought of them how makes me shiver. These morphine pills simply put me to sleep for awhile and when I became conscious again my agony was renewed.

"The pain in my stomach and back was more than I could stand. 'Your blood is poor,' said the doctor, 'take sulphur and molasses,' and I did until it was a great wonder that I was not a molasses cake. It was time wasted in taking it because I was not benefited in the least; my suffering continued, but by a mighty effort after being ill bed-ridden, I got up. Oh, but I was like eight long. From 119 pills, I had had ten; nine, my cheeks were pale and sunken and I limped; yes, actually hobbled from the extreme pain in my side. Then I read Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and the testimonial in the New Englander with hope. I got the pills and took them. Before many days I began to improve and before I had finished one box I felt as if I could go out and walk for miles. I soon stopped limping and through the pills I soon bid goodbye to my headaches while the pain in my stomach and back slowly but surely subsided until the influence of these pills that seem to be able to persuade my mind to leave one's body. Now I am as used to be; well and strong, light-hearted and merry but never without the pills. See I have got some of them now," and from a nearby desk she handed out one of the boxes.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore exhausted energies. They are also specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppurations, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale and yellow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes of 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct, by mail from Dr. Williams' Medical Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

PITH AND POINT.

—Corroborative Evidence.—"They say there are fewer persons dying this winter than usual." "Yes, I know lots and lots of people who haven't died at all."—Chicago Record.

—Same Thing.—Inquirer—"Do you think that journalistic work is a good preparation for writing fiction?" Editor—"On the sensational papers it is. Journalistic work there is mostly fiction."—Exchange.

"You're a crank and a theater dude!" shouted the fierce-looking man in the slouch hat. "That's what you are! You're a damned 'ingrey'!" "I'm a potato masher, am I?" roared the other, lunging at him.—Chicago Tribune.

TWO DEAD MEN.

The man upon the bicycle.

The man upon his feet.

Cleaving and quickly both of them.

Cleaving down the street.

The man upon his feet has gone.

Into a real eternal!

The man who seemed to be scorching yet

In the regions called infernal.

—Detroit Tribune.

—Miss NURS—"I'm so afraid, doctor, that something will happen and that I may be buried alive." Dr. PYLIS—"Nonsense! You need not fear anything like that. You take the medicine I gave you and you need no longer be afraid of being buried alive. That is something that never happened to my patients."—Harper's Bazar.

—Mrs. QUERREL sat looking into the fire. Presently she chuckled a little bit. "What are you chuckling at?" kindly inquired Mr. QUERREL. "I was thinking of the time when you proposed. You told me to say the one little word that would make you happy for life." "Yes, I remember. And you went and said the wrong word."—Cleveland Enquirer.

—Although there was a recent scare lest the large exportation of ivory from India and Africa would result in the destruction of the elephant, it has been found to be absolutely groundless. Most of the ivory that we receive is "dead"—that is, ivory which has been taken from animals long since dead and which has been stored away by the natives for years. There is no danger whatever of the supply being exhausted for several generations at least.

ANTARCTIC ICE.

It Differs Considerably from That of the Northern Regions.

The difference in the formation of Arctic and Antarctic ice, as is well known, is very great. While the northern bergs mostly consist of a large ice-mass running up into numberless towers and arches resembling the mountain peaks which surround the glaciers from which they were torn, the Antarctic bergs are solid masses of floating ice, with perpendicular walls, and an unbroken plateau on the top.

All showed plainly whether they were broken from the large southerly barrier or discharged from the glaciers of Victoria Land. All the barrier bergs had very distinct blue lines across their walls, indicating the annual growth by snowfall. These lines were, of course, not to be found on the glacier ice. The latter also showed more likeness to the northern ice than did the former. The peaks and towers of the Arctic icebergs are supposed to be formed by the influence of ocean currents wearing away the softer part of the ice-mass under water, until the natural law of gravitation forces it to upset.

But why have the Antarctic icebergs a different appearance? It is certain that in the Antarctic waters there are also currents. Yet even icebergs that have gone as far north as the south of New Zealand have all maintained the marks of their Antarctic origin. I cannot see any other reason for the dissimilarity between the bergs of the north and those of the south but that the Arctic icebergs, as a rule, must pass through climates which in temperature rapidly change from one extreme to another, and the icebergs take much longer time in floating southward than do the Antarctic icebergs in advancing northward, and thus, as a rule, the northern icebergs exist much longer than those of the Antarctic.—C. E. Borchgrevink, in Century.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

Useful Hints Which Have Been Gathered Here and There.

Well-regulated toilet tables now boast a small instrument of the brush variety not bigger than a paint brush. It is for applying vasoline to the eyebrows. Vasoline is reputed to be an excellent ointment for making both eyelashes and eyebrows grow.

A nice way to keep wax for the work-basket is to fill shells of English walnuts with melted wax, fastening the two half shells together at one end. There will be a small space at the other end through which the thread will slip when the wax is being used.

When a pen has been used until it appears to be spoiled, place it over a flame (a gas light, for instance), for a quarter of a minute, then dip it into water, and it will be again ready for use. A new pen which is found too hard to write with will become softer by being thus heated.

Moist tea leaves and salt are excellent for sweeping a carpet, as the leaves gather the dust and the salt brightens the colors and helps drive away moths. Sweep with short strokes with the nap of the carpet. In this way the carpets will wear longer and look brighter than when swept in the ordinary manner.

To tell whether a thermometer accurately does its work, invert the instrument. If the mercury does not fall to the end, or if it breaks into several small columns, the thermometer contains air, and is inaccurate. If perfectly made, the slender thread should fill the tube or should break off at the bulb and fall to the end of the tube.

Insufficient drying is the cause of most chapped hands. It is an excellent idea to keep on one's dressing table a box of almond meal with a perforated cover. When the hands are dried with the towel, a little almond meal dusted over them will complete the work of absorbing the moisture and the hands will not chafe.

A useful little article for some out-of-the-way corner is the feather brush holder. For the tiny brush used in dusting life-size busts, etc., the best holder is made from one of those waxen-headed dolls, to be had at the Japanese exhibits. The round head of this foreign individual is pierced at the top, making a hole large enough to admit of the handle of the brush passing through. The doll should be fitted out in a robe of some Japanese material—silk or paper—and should have a loop of ribbon sufficiently long to admit of hanging from the wall. A few curious buttons or odd copper baubles, if sewed to his gown and to the suspending ribbon, would increase the effect.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

BAD MANNERS.

Few of Us Are Without Some Disagreeable Habit.

Webster defines "habit" as "temperament of body; fixed custom." When we consider what some people's so-called "habits" are, the definition may well make us feel the grave importance of shunning disagreeable "customs," lest they become "fixed." The most humiliating feature of tricks of manner is that we are often sublimely unconscious that we possess them. So long as they affect only ourselves we may ignore them, but when, as is too often the case, they mar the comfort of other people, they are sinful as well as foolish. One man, well born, well educated and the courteous gentleman in parlor or upon the street, at the table resembles a four-footed animal of the porcine species. He bends low over his plate, eats rapidly and noisily and accompanies the whole process with a series of sounds that are suspiciously like grunts. Another man, punctilious in table manners, will, when deeply interested in conversation, draw his pen-knife from his pocket and scrape and file his nails until his interlocutor feels as if she would scream with nervousness. Still another man, a devout clergyman, with love for his fellow men and genuine respect for women, will, on meeting a lady, simply touch his fingers to the brim of his hat, accompanying the action with a patronizing wave of the hand. A woman, to whom the term "lady" in its best, truest sense may be fitly applied, will, when listening to a story or argument addressed to her, pick up a book or magazine and keep her eyes fixed on its pages, occasionally turning over a leaf, passing here and there to look at a picture, seemingly absorbed in her task. If anyone suggests that she is reading she denies the charge with indignation. She is simply "looking over the pages; she is not reading a word, and hears with interest all that is said." One is forced to believe her declaration, but may surely be pardoned for resenting the appearance of inattention. The excuse offered by friends that it is "only a habit of Laura's" makes the trick seem no less rude. Perhaps it may be of benefit, however, if it warns others to shun the least inclination to such apes of good breeding.—Harper's Bazar.

Scentsing the Hair.

Many women so love the odor of violets that they desire to have their locks, as well as wearing apparel, breathe their fragrance. This is rather difficult, as the hair, while taking scents readily, will not retain them for any length of time. An easy, agreeable, and at the same time satisfactory method of scentsing the hair is that said to be popular among Persian belles. Wash the hair until very light and soft, and when partly dry hang over a bed of glowing charcoal, on which, from time to time, sprinkle a little orris powder, catching the fumes in the loosened hair. A little powdered gum benzoin sprinkled on the coals scents the hair agreeably, and is also beneficial. This method serves the double purpose of drying the hair quickly and thoroughly, as well as scentsing it with a delicate fragrance.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Canal Choked Up

Is practically useless. The human organism is provided with a canal which sometimes becomes choked up, namely, the bowels, through which much of the effete and waste matter of the system escapes. When they are choked up, constipation, in other words—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will relieve them effectively, but without pain, and institute a regular habit of body. This medicine also remedies malarial, bilious, dyspeptic, rheumatic, nervous and kidney trouble, and strengthens the entire system.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, lingers, passing through the throat, the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squamous feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

The last annual report of the postmaster-general showed that the cost of carrying and handling second-class mail matter for the past fiscal year was $21,225,000. The government received for the service $2,658,000, leaving a net loss of about $19,000,000.

It is claimed that a roomy passenger ship can be built on this pattern to cross the English channel 45 feet under water.

DURING the last five years there have been 43,902 homicides in the United States—an average of 7,317 per year. In the same time there have been 723 legal executions and 1,118 lynchings. In the last year 10,500 persons were killed, or at the rate of $75 per month, whereas in 1890 the number was only 4,200, or less than half as many as in 1895. These figures show that the crime of murder is increasing instead of diminishing.

JUDGE BREEMAN, of the supreme court of New York, thinks that the evil of collusive applications for divorce has grown so great in his state as to demand a radical remedy. SENATOR PUSEY, who has practically been chosen a leader of the anti-prohibition forces in the Iowa legislature, in an interview recently stated that the present legislature would defeat the resolution re-submitting constitutional prohibition to a vote of the people and would pass a law authorizing the manufacture of liquor. There is at present a law on the statute books authorizing the sale of liquor in communities where a majority petition for it.

The establishment of postal savings banks in this country, the Chicago Record says, would be a great stimulus for saving to many people of small incomes. Many are suspicious of banks, and many of those institutions will not take the money of small depositors anyway. There would be full confidence in the government savings banks. With them the instance many would save and accumulate for their old age or for some worthy object who now spend all they make. One of the greatest incentives to waste is the lack of a place to put money for safe keeping.

The national convention of manufacturers adopted unanimously a resolution favoring the enactment by congress at an early day of a national bankruptcy law that will deal equitably with both creditor and debtor. It was set forth in the preamble to this resolution that the present laws of bankruptcy in many of the states are not uniform in their application and discriminate against the rights of the creditor class to such an extent that the preference creditor frequently absorbs the entire assets of the bankrupt and thus prevents the administration of that justice which all want.

A CRIME CONFESSED.

The Mystery of a Life Let Out in St. Louis Revealed.

MINNIE MEYERS, BURIED AS A SUICIDE.

Was Murdered by Arthur Schneider, Now in Jail at New Orleans for Another Killing—A Copy of the Murderer's Confession.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 1.—Arthur Schneider, held in the parish prison on two murder charges, voluntarily confesses the killing of an unknown young woman in St. Louis in August, 1894.

Positive information has been received from the Mound city to the effect that the body of the woman Schneider claims to have murdered was found by the St. Louis authorities at the spot indicated.

Arthur Schneider is 22 years of age, but he is fast becoming a celebrated criminal. In December, 1894, he shot and killed Herman Schroeder in a Royal street bar saloon and seriously wounded Katherine Burkhardt, with whom both men were in love.

The confession made by Schneider in relation to the St. Louis murder is as follows:

"It was in the latter part of August, 1894, in St. Louis, Mo., as near as I can remember, I did work at that time as waiter in a restaurant at No. 112 north Broadway. One evening I took the Olive street cable car and went to Forest park. It was a warm evening. I walked for quite a long time, as I saw in front of me a lady by herself. Nobody was around us. It was my way to make myself always very quickly acquainted with girls, and this girl, by herself in Forest park, was in my estimation nothing less than a hussy, where everyone can allow himself some liberty.

"I sneaked on tiptoe from behind toward her and covered her eyes with my hands asked her, like children do, 'Guess who is that?' Instead, as I supposed, to hear an answer like 'Is it you, darling?' the lady started to scream, and this set me in such a rage that I had no other thought, as 'when you let her go she will scream again, and you are betrayed. To prevent this, I'll kill you.'

"I caught her round the neck, threw her on the earth and knelt on my hands, which I had around the neck. I strangled her. I don't know how long I knelt on the neck. I let the neck go, and the head, which was turned upward, turned lifeless on the side. The ray of an incandescent light opposite to me reflected in some water. A thought struck me. 'Throw her in there.' That was what I did."

"I carried her down a short slope and threw her right on the edge of the water and left. It may have been the River Des Peres. I ran, I don't know around where. I saw through the trees a street car moving, and there I went to later on. I landed in the pavilion of the Delmar Avenue car, a branch of the Lindell railway.

"I shrunk back whenever I saw a newspaper, afraid to see that she was found, and that they were searching for the evil-doer. I had a good position. I made plenty of money, but St. Louis was not any more for me. I asked for my release, but Mr. and Mrs. Block, the proprietors, would not let me go, and I ran away.

"It happened that I bought a German newspaper down here, and I saw in there that she was found. Nobody, though a long time in the morgue, could identify her. Though several times dug out of the grave, none could find out her name. She came from Valley Park, and here I saw that I murdered an honest life, and not a woman of bad character.

"I don't know nothing more and I am glad. Some may suffer under the suspicion to have committed this crime. Release him, if you truly, somebody have suffered the death penalty, I am sorry.

"I estimated her from 18 to 22 years, with short, curly hair. The color of clothes and hair I can't tell on account of the darkness of the night. Height, five feet five.

"I recollect that I hit her with a pocket-knife on her straw hat. That is all I have to confess, and I am a good deal lighter and prepared for what I deserve. And to have forgiveness, pray you. Yours truly, "ARTHUR SCHNEIDER."

The Finding of the Body.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—On June 21, 1894, the body of a beautiful young girl was taken from the Meramec river 100 yards from the bridge at Valley Park. It did not seem long in the water, and the features were not distorted.

It was a winsome face, and thousands viewed it through the glass exhibition windows of the morgue after the body had been brought here. The remains were identified as those of five different girls, but identification was finally settled and the corpse was interred as that of Minnie Meyers, or White, 21. Hers was a history of confidence and love, betrayal and death. The elements of murder were missing. No one saw the deed, and the girl was alone when she left the 'Frisco train at Valley Park. It was assumed that she had walked into a secluded spot on the river bank, waded into the water and drowned.

No other hypothesis being proved, the coroner's verdict was suicide.

HUNTING FOR TROUBLE.

Gen. Marin Has Gone Out to Round Up Gomez and Maceo.

HAVANA, Feb. 1.—Gen. Marin, acting captain-general of the Spanish forces here, who left this city Thursday with his staff and a number of prominent merchants and clerks familiar with the province of Pinar del Rio, who will act as scouts, has hopes to strengthen it considerably before engaging with Gomez, who is still understood to be trying to effect a junction with the insurgent forces under Maceo. Wire communication with the front is interrupted. Spanish officers here say that an important engagement will be fought before Gen. Marin returns to Havana.

UNPRECEDENTED.

Money Sent to Nebraska Drought Sufferers Returned with Interest.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 1.—Friday the secretary of the Commercial club received a draft for $103 from Grand Island, Neb., the same being money with interest donated by the jobbers of this city to Nebraska drought sufferers in 1894. A letter accompanying the draft says the farmers who were helped in 1894 raised good crops last year and are anxious to discharge their obligations. The money was sent as a gift, not as a loan, and its return was a surprise and something unprecedented.

Injured by His Own Ax.

ELSPERRY, Mo., Feb. 1.—While engaged in felling a tree on Norton's island, Friday, James Reynolds' ax got caught in an overhanging limb, and in extricating it the blade struck him squarely in the mouth, splitting his chin and jaw and otherwise injuring him.

Held Up by Highwaymen.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 1.—Albert Davison, one of the best-known sporting men in Ohio, was held up by three highwaymen at midnight, near his home on Race street, and robbed of $500 and a diamond pin. He was beaten almost to death with a club.

Victims of Dynamite.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 1.—A charge of dynamite exploded prematurely on slope No. 2 of the Henry Ellen coal mines Friday, and Evan Morgan, of Ohio, and George Beard, of Alabama, were almost instantly killed, being badly mutilated.

A Dangerous Plaything.

BENTON, Mo., Feb. 1.—Lee Arnold, the 10-year-old son of ex-Congressman Marshall Arnold, shot his playmate, Willie Lambert, aged 8 years, here Friday evening with a Robert rifle, which was recently given him, causing a serious wound.

STABBED TO DEATH.

Two Young Farmers Frightfully Carved Near St. Louis.

ONE IS DEAD AND THE OTHER MAY DIE.

The Tragedy the Result of an Attempt of William and Charles Gillhaus to Drive Over a Neighbor's Land With a Load of Lumber.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—William Gillhaus, aged 33, is dead, and Charles Gillhaus, aged 30, is dying at the farmhouse of their mother, Mrs. Christine Gillhaus, in the extreme northwestern portion of St. Ferdinand township, St. Louis county, two miles southeast of the junction of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

Two stabs in the neck, severing arteries, caused William's death, and eight wounds in his brother Charles' back make his chances of living doubtful.

All the wounds were caused by the sharp blade of a pocket knife, wielded under most unusual circumstances by Henry Segar, a 60-year-old neighbor, Friday evening.

The stabbing was the result of the Gillhaus' attempt to drive their wagon across Segar's land over his protest. It was a double duel to the death, with no seconds to see fair play. Nature's weapons gave way to the knife as the struggle grew fiercer, and no mercy was shown by the victors.

The country people have been using this road as a public highway until it has come to be a matter of custom. Indeed, from its appearance one would imagine it to be a regular country road.

It was over the right to traverse this roadway that the terrible tragedy came about.

Two years ago the Gillhaus boys, Charles and William, came to America and settled with their aged mother on a farm next north of Segar's place. They were fine-looking, hard-working, stalwart fellows, who by their industry soon earned a good name among the country people.

Like the rest of the farmers, they were in the habit of using the road over Segar's farm. By so doing they could save themselves a good three miles, for otherwise they would have been obliged to take an almost abandoned highway which runs close along the Missouri's bank from the Mississippi west, intersecting the Columbia Bottom road.

From the information obtained upon this point, Segar has of late determined to put a stop to travel across his property.

He warned all his neighbors, but despite this they persisted in taking the short cut. Then, more determined than ever, he put a heavy rail across the roadway, effectually barring passage unless it were removed, and it was where this rail was placed that the battle occurred.

Deputy Sheriff Heneken, of Clayton, has gone to the scene to arrest the murderers.

THE STRANDED ST. PAUL.

Another Fruitless Effort to Float the Sea Monster.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The wreckers at work on the stranded steamship St. Paul, Long Branch, were doomed to disappointment again. The east winds, which they had been whistling for had come, but the big ship resisted all efforts to get her off the beach. It was raining hard at Long Branch, and the wind blew from the northeast, but the sea remained calm. There was scarcely any surf to speak of.

The usual preparations were made by the wreckers to haul on the St. Paul. At 8.30 a. m., or about an hour and a half before high tide, two tugs began hauling on the disabled vessel. The tug boats occupied the same position as they did Friday. The tug pulled and tugged on the stern of the St. Paul, but she stuck fast, and the tugs only succeeded in moving her about ten feet.

The wreckers hope that the easterly wind will freshen up before the day is over and cause the sea to roll. This is what they have been hoping for ever since last Saturday, when the St. Paul went ashore.

A KENTUCKY SHOOTING.

That May Have a Double Lynching as a Sequel.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 1.—Rufus Todd, a young farmer of Madison county, was shot in his own doorway Friday morning. He and some one at his stable, and taking his shotgun, started out to investigate. Just as he stepped on the porch the assassins fired a load of slugs into his body, producing fatal wounds. Ruben Miller and Sam Mallory, negroes, were arrested and placed in jail. Should Todd die the negroes will likely be lynched.

Ten of Col. Galliano's Officers Detained.

ROME, Feb. 1.—Gen. Baratieri reports that despite King Menekle's promise to afford the safe conduct of Col. Galliano and his command to Baratieri's camp, the Abyssinian monarch detained ten of the officers of Galliano's column and still holds them.

Bicycleist Killed.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 1.—James Debb, engineer at the Colton bicycle factory, was struck by a Michigan Central passenger train near Bancroft street, Friday, while riding his wheel, and instantly killed.

Marion Williamson Acquitted.

WICHITA, Kas., Feb. 1.—Marion Williamson, who has been on trial here, charged with the murder of Henry H. Leonard on the night of November 17, was acquitted.

To Look After American Interests.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 1.—Mr. C. H. Knight, United States vice-consul here, has gone to Pretoria to attend the interests of the Americans under arrest there.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session.)

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—When the senate met, after taking a recess from ten o'clock Friday night, the attendance was rather slim, there being perhaps 20 present.

The vice-president presented a deficiency estimate of $300,000 by the secretary of the navy for completing practice vessels for the naval academy, and for the outfit of vessels of the navy already authorized.

Mr. Allen (rep. Neb.) introduced a bill to reduce public expenditures and for other purposes, which was referred to the finance committee.

Mr. Morrill (rep. Vt.), chairman of the finance committee, then addressed the senate in opposition to the free-coinage substitute reported by that committee for the house bond bill.

After debate the bill, as amended by the senate providing for free coinage, was finally passed by a vote of 42 to 35.

THE STATE OF TRADE.

As Indicated by Bradstreet's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

The features of the week are continued demand for merchandise and checked industrial operations. Least satisfactory is the waiting attitude of some of the more important industries.

General trade at the close of January proves disappointing, particularly in central, western and northwestern states, where the movement of merchandise from jobbers has been slow and unsatisfactory, it being only fair at a few points.

The volume of spring goods distributed from Chicago in January falls behind expectations, although larger than in January, 1895. Some traders in the territory tributary to Chicago are making orders small owing to having carried over large stock and to a desire to confine purchases to actual requirements. At St. Louis, spring demand is slow and general trade is characterized as only fair by the most sanguine.

The condition in the northwest is such that grain moves freely in some regions, irrespective of low prices. A result is shown by New York, Chicago and St. Louis jobbers in prices of standard cotton goods, which demoralizes demand.

Exports of wheat (four included) from both coasts of the United States this week show a marked falling off, amounting to only 2,900,000 bushels, compared with 3,800,000 bushels last week, 2,480,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 2,080,000 bushels two years ago, 3,120,000 bushels in the corresponding week three years ago and 4,740,000 bushels four years ago. Exports of Indian corn held up well, amounting to 197,000 bushels.

Business failures throughout the United States this week show another large increase, not only as compared with last week, but as contrasted with the total for the fourth week in January, 1895, 1894 and 1893. The total is 283; last week it was 341; last year, 316; in 1894, 340; in 1893, 271, and in 1892 it was 279.

There are 23 business failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week, an exceptionally large number. The total last week was 52; one year ago, 50; in 1894 it was 44; in 1893 it was 54, and in the corresponding week of 1892, only 31.

CLARA BARTON AND PARTY.

Are Still in London, as Yet Undecided When to Proceed to Constantinople.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Miss Clara Barton, of the Red Cross society, and her party, who are en route to Anatolia to distribute relief among the sufferers there, are remaining quietly at a west end hotel. It has not yet been decided when the party will proceed to Constantinople. Miss Barton has discussed the pros and cons in a calm, forceful way. She points out that the port's permission for her and her helpers as individuals to distribute relief throws the onus of protection on the American government, and that the persons selected for the work seem somewhat anxious to learn whether Mr. Terrell, the American minister to Turkey, will undertake to appoint individual members of the Red Cross society as bearers of relief or whether he is willing to assume the risk of appointing anyone.

Miss Barton does not know whether Secretary of State Olney has sent any instructions to Mr. Terrell regarding her and her party.

THE LONDON PRESS.

On the Outcome of the Defender Investigation in New York.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The St. James Gazette in an article under the caption: "A Case for an Apology," says:

"The New York Yacht club has given Lord Dunraven a severe lesson in fairness and good manners. He owes the New York Yacht club and American sportsmen generally, an ample apology. He owes it to his own reputation as a gentleman to apologize."

The Pall Mall Gazette says the charges made by Lord Dunraven have been cheerfully refuted, and expressed hope that the incident is now closed.

The Westminster Gazette says: "Probably no one deprecates Lord Dunraven's outbreak of temper more than Lord Dunraven himself."

The Globe says that Lord Dunraven was justified in making charges, though they have never been proved nor disproved."

SAD SUICIDE.

The Result of an Assault by a Kentuckian Upon His Neighbor's Wife.

NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 1.—Mrs. Wm. P. Faff, aged 35, committed suicide Friday afternoon. She emptied two chambers of a revolver into her heart and sank back in a rocking chair. Flames, started by the flash of the pistol, burned every stitch of clothing from her body, and when help came the woman was a charred mass. She left a letter, in which she says the Veitzels, neighbors, drugged liquor that was given her, and while she was under the influence of the drug, she was abused by Veitzel. Realizing what had happened to her, her horror so grew upon her that she resolved to take her life.

The Kentucky Senatorship.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 1.—The special election in Nelson county for a representative is passing off quietly. Beckham, dem. democrat, will win by 400 to 300. Poor (rep.) can be counted on to vote for Hunter after Thursday next, and as Senator Ogilvie (dem.) will be unable to come to Frankfort, the democrats will have to stay away from the joint session to prevent Hunter's election.

France Urged to Intervene.

PARIS, Feb. 1.—The Politique Coloniale urges France to intervene in the matter of the Brazilians having offered territory claimed by French Guiana.

The President of the Lead Trust Ill.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Col. Wm. P. Thompson, president of the Lead trust, is seriously ill with pneumonia. His condition is said to be critical.

GETTING IMPATIENT.

The British Public Not Pleased with Lord Salisbury's Methods.

IN DEALING WITH FOREIGN MATTERS.

His Vague Acceptance of the Monroe Doctrine Disappoints the People, Who Want a More Explicit Definition of His Policy.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The speech delivered by Prime Minister Salisbury Friday night was very disappointing, for the reason that he gave no indication that he was doing anything to settle the trouble with the United States, and also for the reason that his statement concerning Armenia showed that there was little, if any, hope of the British government doing anything to mitigate the evils in that afflicted part of the Turkish dominions. More definite information on all the questions that have caused so much comment and uneasiness recently will undoubtedly be furnished, but will require interpellations in the house of commons to compel the government to furnish it. It is certain that Lord Salisbury's speech has only whetted the determination of the liberals to challenge, by amendments to the address in reply to the queen's speech opening the session of parliament, the policy of the government toward Armenia and Venezuela. Though explanations may be demanded anent the Transvaal and Germany, no motion attacking the government in this direction will emanate from the opposition. Parliament can not effectively discuss the raid of Dr. Jameson into the Transvaal while judicial proceedings are pending against him and his followers, and the inquiry that will be made into the British South Africa Co.'s complicity in the raid will postpone debate on the subject. It can be said, however, that the whole strength of the liberals, which will be added to by a number of discontented unionists, will be brought to bear on the government in trying to force explicit statements regarding Armenia. The opposition will want to know why Great Britain's policy toward Armenia was failed; the nature of the entente between Russia and Turkey, and also why the difficulty with the United States concerning the arbitration of the Venezuela boundary dispute has been prolonged.

Within the past month liberal opinion has set strongly against Lord Salisbury's treatment of the Venezuelan question.

Lord Salisbury's vague acceptance in his speech Friday night of the "Monroe doctrine as President Monroe understood it," disappoints the country, which is waiting for a more explicit definition of the government's attitude. According to Mr. John Bolton, a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, Great Britain need have no fear of referring the dispute to arbitration. In a letter which he has written to the newspapers he says that he has seen and examined the Spanish and Dutch records, and they prove the British claims fully. Mr. Bolton holds that the Schomburgk line is ill defined and can not clearly be identified, but that the records, he declares, confirm the British title to territory to the westward of that line.

A KENTUCKY TRAGEDY.

The Murdered and Mutilated Body of a Young Woman Found Near Fort Thomas, Ky.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 1.—The horribly mutilated body of an unknown young woman was found this morning in a clump of bushes on John B. Locks' farm, on the Kentucky side of the river, near Fort Thomas, and 300 yards from the street car line.

The corpse was thinly clad and the clothing torn, indicating a struggle. The head was severed from the body and is missing. It is believed that the girl was murdered Thursday night, as the dogs at Mr. Locks' farm house made an unusual demonstration on that night. The coroner has been called from Newport and the police notified.

WHAT SAY THE VOTERS?

It is less than two months until our municipal election, and it occurs to us it is not too early to take steps towards putting out a ticket. With the experience of the past year fresh in mind it is not likely we will be guilty of the same blunders again. We regard it as unfortunate that politics were forced into the school question, but since such is the case it is cause for congratulation that this sin cannot be charged to the democrats of Columbiana. They tried in every conceivable way to unite the community, regardless of politics, but their plans were thwarted at every turn. It is needless to make any further efforts in this direction. THE CHRONICLE shall advocate putting out a straight municipal ticket, and let the people settle this question at the polls. The issue is not of our seeking, but since our opponents have forced it, we shall be content with nothing less than to submit the question to the voters and let them settle it at the polls. We like harmony and can stand a good deal of it, and we are ready at all times to go as far as any to secure it in an honorable way, but we do not propose to advocate the sacrifice of principle for the sake of harmony, or to please any man or set of men.

Let the people say who shall rule.

The senate, by a vote of 42 to 35, has passed the free coinage substitute for the house bond bill, and the result will be that future bond issues will have to be made under existing law. The house will not concur in the senate amendments, and, if it did, the president would veto the bill. In a grave crisis the highest legislative body in the land has written itself down as an enemy of the public credit and the advocate of a depreciated currency. The course of the senate in thus defeating by substitution a very necessary measure reveals as never before the value of the constitutional safeguard provided in the veto power of the executive. It also reveals in a very emphatic manner the presence of more demagogues than statesmen in the senate.

JOHNSTON, silvermoon candidate for governor of Alabama, declines to jointly canvass the state with Clarke, the sound money candidate. Johnson puts his declination on the ground that a canvass before nomination would tend to further divide the party; but if he thought the disturbance would help him he'd go in. He's afraid of Clarke's sledge-hammer logic, and convincing array of the truths of history.—Chattanooga Times.

Geo. Ellis, chief clerk in the auditor's office, announces that he is a candidate for the democratic nomination of state treasurer. Mr. Ellis is a former citizen of Dallas county and has always been an active worker and supporter of the party. He asks the nomination, feeling confident that he is competent to discharge the duties of the office.

Do you suppose it will ever occur to the Advertiser that it would be well to save its thunder for the enemy and not waste it all on Johnston and the State Herald? Has the old lady gone deaf?

MR. HARRISON, ex-president, has issued a card, in which he positively declares that he cannot consent for his name to be presented to, or used in, the St. Louis convention.

JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON has declined to meet Clark in joint debate. Well, Brother Johnston may be a little short on "nerve," but his judgement is good anyway.

JOHN L. COBBS, of Montgomery, has announced as a candidate for the democratic nomination of state treasurer. Mr. Cobbs held the office for four years.

The Republicans of the fourth district have called a congressional convention for March 4th.

THE COLONIAL CLUB.

A well organized, well regulated club is a necessity in every community, and we rejoice to see that some of our foremost, enterprising young men have organized such an institution in our midst.

When a club, by virtue of its constitution and by-laws, is put upon a high plane, it is a powerful factor in the grand work of higher civilization and culture. Some think that a club room is a place where men meet to drink, smoke, gamble and indulge in profane, vulgar converse. There are such, and they should be condemned as a nuisance by all virtuous people. But, per contra, there are clubs of a very different character, organized by gentlemen of culture and refinement, and kept pure by virtue of laws made inviolate. I have known many of the latter, have been entertained by them, and have spent many pleasant and profitable evenings with the distinguished men of our land—distinguished both in church and state. I know such a club room in a city near by, to whose rooms I have been honored with a permanent card of admission. I seldom fail to visit them when in that city, there I have access to a valuable library of standard works, the latest and best periodicals, late newspapers from all quarters of the globe. In those well lighted, well furnished rooms, you can read the light literature of the day, or if perchance you wish to investigate some historic or scientific question, you can find works that enable you to pursue your investigation. There you meet men distinguished in letters and in art, lawyers, doctors, teachers, bankers, merchants, artists, all polished gentlemen, some reading, some discussing questions, historic or economic, (political and religious questions are tabooed,) some playing chess, some enjoying a rubber at whist or playing cards, draughts, backgammon, dominoes or other innocent games. All games are innocent, per se. It is in spending too much time or betting on them that makes them vicious. There you can listen to the discussion of any and all questions pertaining to the higher culture of man, both mind and body. No man from the chief justice to your humble correspondent leaves those rooms without having obtained some useful information and feeling refreshed from the genial flow of wit and wisdom surrounding him. Occasionally they give an entertainment, where none but ladies and none but gentlemen enjoy that most charming of all amusements ever invented since the days of Israel's "sweet singer," the social dance. Men are gregarious animals; they need relaxation, they want amusement. Let them be innocent. Dr. Talmage aptly remarks, "before you deprive the young of the amusements they have, give them something better." Now young men cultivate your minds, your hearts, your bodies, they are the Lord's, He created you for enjoyment. Enjoy this grand world and your noble capacities. Be moderate, do not be carried away with earthly pleasures. There are two sides to life; do not live for selfish ends, but prepare yourselves mind, soul and body for broad minded characters and a life of philanthropy. Set up a high standard of morality, and above all cultivate that high, that knightly regard for female purity that should ever distinguish the genuine club man.

SENEX.

A SENATORIAL CHUMP.

From the St. Louis Republic.

Senator Tillman's maiden speech might have scored a hit if it had been delivered for the benefit of a hoodlum gang and against another hoodlum gang. It contains the information that one United States senator holds himself emancipated from the restrictions which men since the days of Moses have associated with fitness for existence in an established order. He pretended to speak for the South. Yet that harrangue, dripping with un-suppported accusations, inflammatory, ignorant, unfeeling and flatulent, is capable of robbing the South as even a sectional tariff law could scarcely rob her in years. It can rob the South of much advancement in wealth and population. It can furnish the detractors of the South with instruments of misrepresentation which they could not plausibly invent. Senator Tillman may hear some approval. There are men everywhere to applaud boorish and excited vituperation. They are in no corner of the earth, however, the men who do good to their communities. They are the men whose laws against assault and riot are made to fit; the men who make the progress of civilization slow and painful; who are the enemies of the sheriff and the courts of law. Business and education languish where they are numerous. The christian preacher is discouraged where they infest. Senator Tillman had the beginning of a great career. The small farmers of the South, fearless, hardworking, moral citizens, wanted a spokesman. He has fallen below his opportunities. His character is not strong enough to develop. Discussion, poise and reflection are impossible to him even in positions where without them disgraceful failure is the plain destiny of the delinquent. The populists agitation is singular in the story of the nations. Of all the men it has thrown into the public view, not one has been able to sustain himself. Not one has reached even moderate standing in a generation of by no means extraordinary leaders.—The West hastened to turn get it heaped upon. The South blushes when it thinks of Irby, Marion Butler and Tillman. Cleveland and Carlisle are not infallible; they have opponents among good men and good democrats. Their mistakes will be regarded with greater kindness and their enemies will be fewer when Tillman's contemptible billingsgate is read by the country.

SILVER CONSPIRACY.

Walter Wellman Outlines It—A Silver Paper Basis the End Desired.

A Washington special from Walter Wellman to the Chicago Times-Herald says:

The great silver conspiracy is afoot. It is a conspiracy to bring about monetary revolution, to take the country from a gold basis and put in on a silver-paper basis. Many friends of the present system do not realize the danger which this conspiracy threatens. They pin their faith to the great majority against free silver which exists in the country, to the good sense and conservatism of the people. They say, and rightly, that this country will never vote to adopt the monetary system of Mexico, of Chile, of Peru. But they overlook the fact that in order to succeed in their present plans the silver men do not care to carry the country. They do not need to meet the issue squarely. The conspirators think they have an easier and surer way of reaching the desired end. And what is the plot? A very simple one. With their blockade of the senate they propose to prevent the enactment of any law that will enable the executive to maintain the gold reserve and the gold standard without repeated issues of bonds. Then they propose to intrigue with political parties to bribe or bulldoze them till they get into the White House a man who will refuse to issue bonds for that purpose. Anyone can see what would follow.

That this conspiracy is afoot, that it is well organized, skillfully directed, well entrenched and exceedingly dangerous, no longer admits of doubt. Teller, of Colorado, and Jones, of Nevada, are its brains. It began with the wholesale manufacture of new states in the far West by the republican party. Having thus obtained a strong minority in the senate, the silver forces by virtue of an anti-force bill intrigue with Gorman, defeated cloture and entrenched themselves behind the rules. For the present they have a majority in the senate, but majority or no majority they are secure. Success of their plot requires not action, but the absence of it. Without cloture action against a strong and determined minority is impossible. Not for years, it is morally certain, will any legislation pass the senate that will make it unnecessary for the president of the United States to buy gold for bonds if he wishes to maintain the reserve, and with and through it the present monetary standard. This part of the plot is assuredly successful.

How about the other part? Will they succeed in getting into the White House a president who refuses to maintain the reserve as Mr. Cleveland has maintained it? Everything depends upon the courage and firmness of the leaders of the two great parties upon the courage and understanding of the delegates who make up the two great national conventions. The conspirators are playing their cards well. First, they work up sentiment against increasing the national debt in time of peace. Those plotters who are democrats easily convince members of their party that such increase is not in accordance with true democratic principles. Those who are republicans quite as easily persuade their party confederates to denounce the democratic president for his sales of bonds. Both parties are thus caught in the silver trap, both are drifting along toward their national conventions with a tendency to denounce addition to the national debt in time of peace. Suppose both platforms contain such denunciation—that is one great point gained. It then remains only to secure the nomination of candidates who will adhere to the platform.

If anyone supposes the silver forces in either party hope to secure adoption of an out-and-out free silver plank he is much mistaken. They may ask for this, and insist upon it most strenuously, making their demand something to trade with, but they do not expect to get it. Their real aim is an anti-bond declaration in both parties if they can get it, but in one if they can do no better; after that the nomination by both conventions of candidates who will follow to the letter the tenets of the platform. If they can't get both they will take one. Then in the campaign they will maneuver to secure the election of the candidate who is most likely to protect their interests, be he republican or democrat. If all these convention intrigues fail and both parties turn a deaf ear to their blandishments, the plotters have in reserve the straight-out silver party, whose convention is to meet in St. Louis after both the other conventions have been held.

There are candidates for the presidency in both parties who would be only too glad secretly to give pledge of doing the bidding of these conspirators if thereby they could win the nomination. Nor should it be forgotten that in either convention the out-and-out silver men are likely to have from one-fourth to one-third of all the delegates, with many of the remaining two-thirds in more or less sympathy with them. They will be a positive, compact force, having a single purpose always in view, and ready to throw their strength wherever their plans can be promoted. If the sound money men permit themselves to be hoodwinked or to be intimidated, if they weakly conclude they can make sure of success at the polls only by compromising with the silver element, then the conspiracy may succeed. It is not impossible.

"Four years."
"And you guess how old I am?"
"No, mam; I can only count up to thirty."—Tit Bit.

SAYS CAPTAIN JOE.

From the Columbia Breeze.

"I'm for Captain Joe of the silver gang. And with my fame the whole State rang One day last week, when my chosen set On the State Committee in session met. We had things heated and brewed to a T. And it worked like a charm, as all may see: And it adds another string to my bow," Says Captain Joe.

"We downed the bars and opened the gate. And invited all to participate, Of whatever creed, or color, or clan— But, then, you see, 'twas my only plan To catch the votes I so sadly need. Ken while I admit 'twas a sorry deed, But pride, and honor, and all must go," Says Captain Joe.

"'Tis a bitter pill and hard to swallow. For with this rabble I now must wallow; Republican, populist, negroes and all I surely must have—or as surely fall. 'Tis hard, I ween, for a man so high To admit one of them as good as I. But without their votes to the wall I go," Says Captain Joe.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

Supt. Wingate spent last week with home folks at Verbena.

M. W. Leonard, county physician, is now a guest of the Acme.

We are glad to say our Sunday school at this place is one among the best.

John Fulton has found him a dear at the residence of W. A. Walburn.

Miss Earl Anchors, of Columbiana, is the honored guest of W. A. Walburn.

Etheline, the little daughter of Chas. McLane, is very sick with la grippe.

John P. West and J. Stein, of Carera, were guests of the Acme hotel this week.

Wil-Ful is very sorry that the young people have so little respect for Sunday nights.

W. H. Bell and J. F. McLane, of Shelby, visited Chas. McLane, of this city, Sunday.

Frank Walburn, of the Columbiana High School, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents.

W. P. Brewer, of Siluria, the favorite Methodist of J. E. Morris, preached Sunday at West Saginaw.

A Methodist church will be organized at this place the fourth Sunday in February by Reverend Berry.

Miss Lela Fulton, who has just returned from an extended visit to Blocton, is now very sick with la grippe.

Prof. Douglass, of the Rutherford High School of Pelham, Ala., was in the city Sunday, deer hunting. How about that, Miss N— ?

Miss Ella Satherwhite, the reigning belle of Jemison, has captivated the hearts of all the gents of this city and is now the belle of the town.

Call on Sunday and Wednesday nights at the residences of Mr. Smith, Manard or Saterwhite, and see J. R. W. and T. H. R., our leading society gents. H. C. F. thinks it very hard to ride fifteen miles to see his best girl and then be eves-dropped.

The young people of our city had a musicale at Mr. Saterwhite's Wednesday night. All the young men of the town were invited except Dr. Leonard, Bob Galloway and Clay Fulton; those three were sadly disappointed. After sitting around awhile with their fingers in their mouths, they decided that they would go down and let the crowd know they were well, and would have gone had they had an invitation. A after spending 15 minutes, they all got up, told the crowd they had enjoyed themselves hugely, they raising their hats, bid them a fadewell good night to return no more.

MOTHERS, Do You Know

that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

THE * TIMES
PHILADELPHIA

THIS MORNING?

THE TIMES is the most extensively circulated and widely read newspaper published in Pennsylvania. Its discussion of public and private measures is in the interest of public integrity, honest government and prosperous industry, and it knows no party or personal allegiance in treating public issues. In the broadest and best sense a family newspaper.

THE TIMES aims to have the largest circulation by deserving it, and claims that it is unsurpassed in all the essentials of a great metropolitan newspaper. Specimen copies of any edition will be sent to any one sending their address.

TERMS: DAILY, $3.00 per annum; $1.00 for four months; 30 cents per month. SUNDAY EDITION, twenty-four large, handsome pages—18 columns, elegantly illustrated, $2.00 per annum; 5 cents per copy. Non-Resident Notice.

STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY.

In Chancery, Sixth District, North-Eastern Chancery Division.

Claudia Holman, Complainant, vs. I. M. Holman, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of John D. Stranzo, that the defendant, I. M. Holman, is a non-resident of Alabama, and resides in the State of Texas; and further, that in belief of said affidavit, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in The Chronicle, a newspaper published in the county of Shelby once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said I. M. Holman, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 10th day of February, A. D. 1896, on or before that day, thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Thereat once in Columbiana this 4th day of January, A. D. 1896.

"For fully two years, I suffered from rheumatism, and was frequently in such a condition that I could hardly walk. I spent some time in Hot Springs, Ark., and the treatment helped me for the time being; but soon the complaint returned and I was as badly afflicted as ever. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being recommended, I resolved to try it, and, after using six bottles, I was completely cured."—P. H. FORD, Ouachita City, La.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

E. S. Lyman, of Montevallo, was in town Tuesday and Wednesday.

James Reynolds, of Montevallo, was in town Thursday and Friday.

James Harris, of Aldrich, was among his many friends here Monday.

Miss Nora Leeper, of Birmingham, is a guest of friends in town this week.

Miss Etta Dykes was a guest of Miss Pearl Seal Monday and Tuesday.

The Colonial Club gave a ball last Thursday evening at the Colonial Hotel.

R. E. McLean and family left Tuesday for Birmingham, where they will reside in future.

Maj. J. W. Pitts has moved here from Crosswell, and is occupying the Leeper residence.

Quite a number of Shelby's young people were up to attend the "Colonial Ball" Thursday night.

W. A. and Miss Augusta Thompson returned home Monday from a visit to relatives in Bessemer.

Miss Mary and Sallie Bolin, of Wilsonville, were guests of Miss Lucy Smith Saturday and Sunday.

Hon. T. J. Martin, of Harpersville, than whom no better democrat lives, was in town a few hours Saturday.

Dr. T. G. Nelson and wife, of Harpersville, were among their many friends here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Captain Booker and two daughters came up Thursday last from Shelby Springs to attend the ball at the Colonial.

Among those who attended the "Colonial Ball" Thursday evening last, were Messrs. Pat McConaughy, Lewis Bowden and Mr. Hardy, of Montevallo.

Mrs. B. B. Lewis, of Nashville, Tenn., was in town Thursday and Friday in the interest of the Home and Parsonage Society of the Methodist church.

Manard Pond, and wife, of Logan, Ohio, were in town a few hours Saturday. Mr. Paul will reside at Shelby Springs, and will in future have charge of that delightful resort.

Dr. Page says it tickles him to think that a "little piney woods republican" could come down here and lead the procession in building the handsomest store building in town. Come to think of it, it is funny.

Chairman Martin issues a call this week for a meeting of the democratic county executive committee, to be held in this place February 21st. Every member of the committee should be here on that day. See call elsewhere.

Dr. J. S. Hill, of Courtland, Ala., an accomplished dentist, and a thorough gentleman, will be in our town soon. Those having work in that line will do well to await his arrival. We have seen much of his work and know that it cannot be excelled.

J. B. Elliott, familiarly known as "Uncle Jeff," made a trip to Birmingham last week, and they say he threw a brick at a wooden negro who presided with pestle and mortar in front of a drug store, because the negro grinned at him, and it may be so for all we know to the contrary.

If rumors count for anything Columbiana is on the eve of a good sized, healthy building boom. There are several projects under consideration, but as yet none of them have assumed definite shape, but we have strong reason to believe that several will materialize in the near future. In the meantime, if you want a lot cheap, buy at once.

The two-story brick store is now a certainty. The plans and specifications have been made, and the contract given to Z. H. Clardy & Son, of Talladega. The contractors were given until Sept. 1st next to complete the building, but it is safe to predict, knowing the Clardys as we do, that much less time will be consumed in its construction. The contract calls for a splendid structure, fitted up in first-class style throughout, and will be an ornament to our town. Such enterprise and public spirit deserves the reward sure to follow.

CAN ALABAMA WIN?

There is at present a spirited contest going on between some of the technical colleges of the country for a fine nickel and gold plated engine lathe, offered by the Lodge-Davis Machine Tool Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, to the technical school securing the largest number of votes before March first. Any male person in the United States over 15 years old can vote.

The Agricultural & Mechanical College at Auburn has gone into this contest, and with the proper support from the citizens of the state, we see no reason why Alabama cannot win the prize. Voting blanks may be found at J. M. Spencer's store and we trust all our readers will take occasion to vote, as it costs nothing and will help on a worthy enterprise. We would also suggest that persons interested in this contest, and all Alabamians should be interested, secure as many votes as they can, getting names and addresses on sheets of letter paper, and forward to the A. & M. College, Auburn, Ala. All lists should be at the college not later than February 24th.

We have a smaller population than many of our rivals, but what we lack in numbers we can make up in zeal. We hope every reader will sign and see that his neighbor signs so that a thorough canvass may be made.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Measles! measles! oh how fascinating.

The additional room to the Wilsonville institute will be completed in a few days.

I suppose a traveling man (footman) has fallen in love with one of our most popular young ladies.

Oscar Tinney, after sharing his part of the measles, is now able to be upon the streets once more.

We heard very interesting sermons at the M. E. church Sunday and Sunday night, delivered by the new pastor.

We are glad to see E. Williamson, after several days confinement with the measles, able to take charge of his position again.

The plans of erecting the M. E. church parsonage are in operation. This parsonage is badly needed and we hope to see it completed at an early date.

It is suggested by some of the young people, that we organize a choir, also that we meet one night each week for practice. What do you think of it, Nellie?

On account of illness the S. P. L. League meeting was postponed for two weeks hence. This will give those who are interested in the programme ample time.

The little sparrow will no longer have such a pleasant time around here; think they will all be killed out, as the little girls have decided that "bird-thrashing" is quite a sport.

Some of the young men are desirous of the postmistress making her office "strictly private," to prevent the young ladies from seeking refuge there, while waiting for the mail.

In addition to the other new buildings being erected in Wilsonville, Messrs. Holland, O'Hara and Lightsey are building a blacksmith shop near their gin and grist mill. Suppose they will have it in operation in a few days.

We learn that Mr. Tinney has purchased a "black horse." The other "black horse" in this community will probably obtain a little rest in the future; as good competitors always gain some customers. You are "strictly in the fight," aren't you, Will?

Haints! haints! they tell me there was one in town last week; a few days hence he was ploughing in the field, the trace chain broke, and while he was repairing same, his mule got a "one-eyed peep" at him which caused the animal to get extremely frightened; the result was a runaway. Yes away so far it has not been seen since.

We are sorry to learn of the burning of Mr. Shrader's mills, located four and one-half miles south of Shelby, Ala., which was supposed to have been incendiary. W. R. Smith took his bloodhounds to the scene; but on account of being notified too late, other hounds had made a failure on the track; consequently he did not attempt the race.

There is a man whom we all know lives here in Wilsonville. The girls say he's quite a beau. When down at "Bolinville."

He goes there many times a week. Dresses to his own delight. And ah! that tender heart he seeks. 'Till late these wintry nights.

And almost every time he goes. He sings the little song: "Darling do you love me so?" And thus the time prolongs.

And then he says: My dear you sing That song, that to my heart, Joy, love and happiness brings Each time before we part.

Of course she knows the song so well. She thus begins to sing: "Come back! Come back! I love you still, My love to you I bring."

He goes away with a glad heart. With love beyond degree. Thinking how sad 't would be to part Without that song to me.

Behold sometimes away he goes To work somewhere a while; His heart with sorrow overflows. Next day in town he smiles.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it if procurable. G. A. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy that he has used in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Prof. J. A. Spearman will move into his new residence soon.

Measles are everywhere, but we hope that they will soon disappear.

Joab Jackson will leave today for Birmingham, to be treated by Dr. Davis.

We have had several weddings of late on Four Mile. Let the good work go on.

The weather has been so bad that the farmers have not done anything in their crops.

Miss Mary Burgess, of Sylacauga, is spending a while with her aunt, Mrs. J. L. Riddle.

William Jackson is our champion rat-catcher. He has captured 22 in the last few days.

J. R. Ray is running his saw mill for all it is worth. He is cutting bridge timber for the railroad.

The tackey party, given at William Jackson's Saturday night, was enjoyed by all who attended.

Nero would like to know why Nellie Bly doesn't write every week, as her writings are always interesting.

We understand that there will be preaching the third Saturday and Sunday in this month at J. L. Riddle's.

Prof. Crumpton's school, at Four Mile, is progressing rapidly. He is probably the best teacher we have had for years.

DIED.—In Chambers county, Ala., Jan. 7, at the residence of his son, Jno. M. Davis, Hon. James M. Davis, aged 83 years. Peace to his ashes.

Wilsonville Warblings.

Mrs. Geo. McGowen paid Calera a visit last Wednesday.

Witeman Self, of Hattiesburg, Miss., paid a flying visit to his old home, Sunday.

The young people enjoyed a pleasant walk to the big spring last Sunday afternoon.

We would personally mention those who have been blessed with measles, but their names is legion.

Mrs. Mebbin, who has been visiting returned to her home in Memphis, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. Cary filled his appointments here Sunday morning and night preaching two very interesting sermons.

We are very sorry indeed to report the severe illness of little Ruth Weldon, and wish for her a speedy recovery.

W. H. Sommerville and family, of Birmingham, after spending several days with his father at this place, returned home Monday.

Misses Mary and Sallie Bolin, two of our most charming young ladies, spent several days with friends in Columbiana last week.

Measles has certainly played havoc in our community. Those who are nearly well should be very careful for fear of relapsing.

Lumber is being placed on the ground for the new Methodist parsonage. Look out for a call from the ladies of the "Parsonage Aid Society."

The literary society which was to have met last Friday night was postponed on account of measles; and will meet on the 14th, inst., with the program which has been published.

Highpoint Gleanings.

H. J. Cashatt has removed to St. Clair county.

D. F. Funderberg's school, at this place, is on a boom.

G. B. Spruiell made a business trip to Henryellen this week.

J. S. Dyke & Co. brought in a large stock of new goods last week.

Farmers are sowing oats and preparing for a good year's work.

Part of the bridge over Blue creek at this place, fell in last Thursday.

Rev. Wm. Brasher will preach at the Baptist church here next Sunday.

Collins Dyke has taken charge of the mill and ginnery of J. S. Dyke & Co.

Tillman Adams, near Vandiver, has removed to A. R. Henderson's place, in this community.

M. B. Spradley, superintendent of education of St. Clair county, delivered a speech to the people here last Wednesday. His discourse was very interesting to all who heard it.

We will be glad to hear of the nomination of D. F. Funderburg for superintendent of education of St. Clair. Mr. Funderburg has been teaching here some time, and is closely connected with both Shelby and St. Clair in school affairs. As his home is in St. Clair and he has been solicited for the office by many of his friends, we wish to hear of his success.

WENT HOME TO DIE.

The Old Man's Face Was Wreathed in Smiles When They Found Him.

They told me in the dining car of a train on the Louisville & Nashville road that in the smoking car was an old colored man who was going south to see his old plantation home again before death claimed him. By and by I went in to have a talk with him. He was wrinkled and white haired, and evidently very old, and when I expressed wonder that his friends in Kentucky should have let him set out on such a long journey he replied:

"They just couldn't help themselves, sah. I tole de chill'en I was bound to cum, an' dey jes' had to let me."

"And how long since you left the old plantation?"

"Way back in wah times, sah. I dun went right off wid some Yunkies soga, an' dat's de last I eber did see of Mars. Thomases folks. Ize gwine down to 'sprise 'em."

"Where is it?"

"Jest a little ways out o' Selma. Dey tell me dat 'm great changes 'bout Selma, but I reckon I kin walk right down de road an' find de plantation in de night. Bress de Lawd, sah, but I don't reckon I could hev closed my eyes in death if dey hadn't let me cum. Dat's bin sich a longin' to see de ole place agin dat I couldn't stand it."

Three or four of us chipped in to get his meals and make him comfortable, but we saw that the journey was telling on his strength. On the morning of the day we were to reach Selma I could see that he was weak and nervous, and when I sat down beside him he said:

"Ize feelin' sort o' skeart 'bout myself dis mornin'. I had a dream last night dat I was walkin' long de road an' met a funeral, an' when I axed who was gwine to be buried a white man spoke up and said:

"'On my soul, if dat hein't Mars Thomases old nigger Job, who runned off dootin' de wah! Heah boy, let me tole you somethin'. Yo' has cum too late to see yo' ole mars; dat's him in de coffin, an' he was a axin' 'bout yo' jese de day befo' he died.'"

I told him that dreams did not signify, and after a bit had him quite chirped up. I got him some tobacco for his pipe, saw that he had breakfast, and as I left him he smiled all over with happiness, as he said:

"Only two hours mo' to Selma! Ize mos' dun got dere!"

Thirty minutes later the conductor beckoned to three or four of us to come into the smoker. The old man sat in his chair, leaning against the side of the car, and seemed to be sleeping.

"He's been dead ten minutes," quietly observed the conductor, "and he died as peacefully as a child falling asleep!"

So he had. There was a smile on his old black face—a smile of anticipation, and the pipe had not fallen from his fingers. Death had come like a soft and fleck mantle.

SILVER KING BARLEY, 116 BU.

The barley wonder. Yields right along on poor, good or indifferent soils 80 to 100 bus. per acre. That pays at 20c. a bushel!

Salzer's mammoth catalogue is full of good things. Silver Mine Oats yielded 201 1-3 bushels in 1895. It will do better in 1896. Hurray for Teosinte, Sam Vetch, Spurry and Giant Clover and lots and lots of grasses and clovers they offer. 35 packages earliest vegetables $1.00.

If you will cut this out and send it with 10c. postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will get free ten grain and grass samples, including barley, etc., and their catalogue. Catalogue alone 5c.

The Great Old Story Teller Down on Rocky Creek.

Andy Lucas and His Store-Bought Clothes—That "Orfai" Night in Murder Creek Swamp—Blev Scroggins in Harness.

[COPYRIGHT, 1894.]

Talkin' about them tremendous big ruins, and spring freshets, and high waters, and along so and the like of that——they always put me in mind of the time when Andy Lucas lost his law —lives and a dodged a watery grave by the skin of his teeth, as it were, down in Murder Creek swamp.

I wish in thy soul that I could give you that story exactly like Andy give it to me, with all the flourishes and fancy flourishes. Then you would have somethin' to wake up in the dead hours of night and laugh about.

"THEY STORE-BOUGHT CLOTHES."

"You maybe thought not think it, Rufe," says Andy, in giv' in the latest facts in the case to me, "but I had made a full hand in the field that year.

Men, sir, I worked so scandalous hard and regular till I cum down nigh gettin' down on the lifts that summer. I got so monthless poor in the flesh, till, by gattins, I had to wear my heavy woolen clothes through the heat and burden of the summer to keep the sun from warpin' my ribs.

"But at any rate, along in the fall of the year the old folks went to town one day, and when they returned back home they fetched me a brand spunkin' new suit of store-bought clothes. Jy this time there was a light sprinkle of hair on my face, and a right sharp smattering of women on my brain. I had come up to that pass in life, you understand, when I knowed the general difference between a bunch of calves and a plow line.

"The next day was Sunday. Bright and early that mornin' I got into my new riggins, I did, and I got out and went over across Murder Creek to see the Turner girls. Shet your eyes now, Rufe, and look back if you can till you see me with my first suit of store-bought clothes on, proud as a rooster with his first tail feathers and gallin to beat creation. Now when it come to courtin' of the girls, I didn't stack up any to speak of that day. But I had on them store-bought clothes and a paper calor which stood so stiff and high till I had to go out and climb up to the back fence in orderment to spit. And I saw the Turner girls and they saw me with them fancy riggins on.

"Well, maybe it didn't rufe that day. But if I remember right, Rufe, it rained in great floods and sluices. It put in about ten o'clock that mornin' and rained slap till dark and way into the night. The Turner folks they wanted me to remain over till the next mornin', but at that time I never had stayed away from home all night and I didn't know for certain how it would feel. So way long towards midnight the rain held up and I put out for home with them same store-bought clothes on.

"IT BRUNG ON A NIGHT SWEAT."

"When finally at last I got down to Murder Creek swamp it was so infernally dark till I could jest naturally feel it with my fingers."—Andy had to stop and take a long breath before he could go on with the story. "The dark was so thick and heavy, Rufe, till blamed if it didn't look to me like I could slice it up with my pocket knife.

I couldn't see the creek, but by the twelve epistles I could hear a mighty confusion going on down there in the swamp. The water hit was ripplin' and roarin' and snortin like a passle of blind steers in a canebrake.

"But I couldn't turn round and go back to the Turner place, and I couldn't stay down there in the swamp all night.

So somethin' had to be did. I rufe—scemthin had to be did. I want in no way oneasy about findin' my way through the swamp and across the creek. The road and the foot log—everything was perfectly familiar to me. But I had new store-bought clothes, what would happen to them? The was the mainest question, Rufe, with me. I was neither sugar nor salt, and it stood to reason that mud and water wouldn't hurt me.

But it was way yonder different in regards to them store-bought clothes.

"Well, finally at last I pulled off my Sunday boots and my new clothes, tied 'em up into a wallet, put 'em on my shoulder and started on across the creek. But I didn't much more than git on the foot log before I found out that the blame thing was floatin', and about the next thing I knowed I didn't know anything for certain. The log had turned with me and down I went kerplash—Sunday boots, store bought clothes and all.

"Human nature is most in generally always human, Rufe, and when I comes to my senses I was flutterin' and flounderinin' out on the other side of the creek, whilst my store-bought clothes and my Sunday boots went floatin' down stream through that dark and awful swamp.

"I then pulled out for home, and when I got there I didn't have on anything to speak of in the way of clothes, and what little I did have on was mornstrous wet and cold. Even to my stake-and-rided shirt that high standin' collar had got wet and wilted down till they stuck as close as the skin.

"And that was all, Rufe, not by a whole tremendous big lot. Dabblame it, when I got home the dogs didn't know me, and in order to save my hide and what few clothes I did have on, I had to clam a tree. The dogs kept up such a rippet till presently the old man had to come out and mind the tree till I could slide down and run into the house.

"I have had many a clost call, and I have pulled my foot self through many a tight place, Rufe, but by long odds the most roughest and toughest time I have ever saw was down in Murder

Creek swamp that night, when I lost my Sunday boots and my store-bought clothes. It brung on a night sweat and wound up with a buck ager, and set me back at least three years in my growth. The truth is, Rufe, I never have felt quite altogether as big as I did that Sunday mornin' when I started over the creek to see the Turner girls with my store-bought clothes on.

Someway it rufe seems to me like I have been growin' less and less gradually by degrees from that day to this."

BLEV SCROGGINS IN HARNESS.

For the last three days and nights hand runnin' I have been moppin' and grubbin' around in the low grounds of sorrow. Cause why? Blev Scroggins, my playmate through the golden days of childhood and of boyhood—side partner in all my trials and triumphs and troubles and tribulations—my friend and fellow citizen till death do us part—has backed himself into a mighty bad scrape.

If it ever comes to pass that you might want to work up a quiet little game amongst the boys with the "documents," Blev Scroggins is right there with two or three ears up his sleeve. But when it comes to a horse swap he nint so very many. So it come to pass one day last week that Blev went to town and tanked up to about six bits in the dollar, and then tuckt a Gipsy camp for a horse trade.

Naturally, of course, he got recom-modations, and what was more he got the first socks swapped off of him on the last rattle out of the box. The Gipsies traded him a mule that was pritty as a picture, but a deaf as a post and as blind as a mole. Then Blev got foun-in mad about it, whilst at the same time he had said the game, and if the cards got gummed up it was his place to stand and take it like a man.

But instid of that, he come on home green-eyed mad, and that night, in the still and solemn hours, he went back to the Gipsy camp. And yet still that went all. He put on a full set of wagon harness, trace chains and all, and then broke loose all of a sudden like right slap kerbal in the middle of the camp.

And of all the pitchin' and plungin' and kickin' and snortin you ever heard tell of he carried it on right then and there. When the Gipsies woke up they thought their horses had broke loose in camp with the harness on, and them that didn't wake up good thought the last final end of time had come.

To be certainly of course a mighty confusion and a general scatter-ation was goin on around there presently. One Gipsy run over a wagon and broke his leg in two places. Another one run head foremost into a tree and fractured his skull, whilst one of the women fainted and fell in the fire and got burnt so bad till they don't think she can recover. On first blush the Gipsies took up a notion that the witches had got in amongst them, and so they broke up camp the next day and moved down on Long Creek. But in the main time truth was mighty and bound to leak out. Blev Scroggins felt so low down mean about it till he up and told the naked facts in the case and give his own fool self away.

Consequently the high Sheriff come out one day last week with papers of compellment for a man by the name of Scroggins. Everybody in the settlement went on Blev's bond to keep him at home, but he will have to tend court durin the spring 'erm, and beyond that the good Lord only knows what.

THE NEWS FROM ROCKY CREEK.

About the onliest news that I can give out this week is in regards to a family log rollin they had over at Elder Newton's one day last week.

The doctor was there, and likewise also two or three good old female ladies.

When the general confusion was over Miss Newton she had e come across with twin babies, and both boys at that.

The mother and the babies are deim well as could be expected under the general circumference of the calamity.

The Deacon will probably recover.

BACHELOR IGNORANCE.

Especially When Children Happen to Be Under Consideration.

Bachelors who have lived long alone or in hotels or clubs acquire strange ignorance about children. One of these was telling a friend how his little nephew enjoyed "The Jungle Book."

"How old is he?" was asked.

"Oh, I don't know. Seven or eight.

Maybe ten."

"Then he can read the stories himself?"

"Let me see. No, he can't. He's too young. He has the book read to him."

"Then he must be less than ten years old."

The uncle was puzzled. "That's so," he said, reflectively. "My brother hasn't been married nearly so long as that. I

CURRENT COMMENT.
A census of the entire world is proposed for the year 1900.

FAY HOWARD and George Richard accomplished the feat of rolling two beer kegs from Green Bay, Wis., to St. Louis within 60 days on a wager of $700.

A RUSH of miners for the gold fields of Alaska is reported from the large cities on the Pacific coast. Some of the prospectors say there is more gold in Alaska than in south Africa, and that the precious metal in our Arctic territory is widely distributed.

The strongest light on any sea coast of the world will soon be in working order on the Jersey shore. It will have no rival for power anywhere. This great electric light will have 2,500,000 candle power, and will be on the top of Barnegat lighthouse.

The New York World recently stated that naval officers in that city and Brooklyn declared that it was the intention of the government to place the navy on as complete a war footing as possible in time of peace and demonstrate what the United States can do in the way of a coast defense fleet to guard our shores, both on the Pacific and the Atlantic.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK, of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, will ask the New York legislature to pass a bill prohibiting the appearance in public of women in knee dresses, tight, bloomers and all feminine raiment. Living pictures, burlesque shows and comic operas are also to be suppressed by the Comstock bill, which has for its object the elevation of the American stage.

JOHN B. ROBINSON, of South Africa, is thought to be the richest man in the world. His fortune is estimated at $350,000,000. In 1878 Robinson was in debt. He had kept a grocery store in the Orange Free State, but he could not make both ends meet. He and his wife begged their way for 300 miles to Kimberley. Here Robinson laid the foundation of his enormous fortune by picking up a rough diamond worth $1,500. His ambition now is to be worth $1,000,000,000.

ROBERT BORCHGREVINK, the Norwegian explorer, is arranging an expedition to the south pole next winter. The scheme that the explorer has in hand is to travel over 160 miles inland on snow shoes and sledges, with three Norwegian companions, till he reaches the south magnetic pole. He expects that it will take him more than two years to do so. He says a commercial company has been formed in England for the purpose of whaling and this company has agreed to send out an expedition next September. Eleven scientists are to go with the expedition.

The cattle growers of the United States will probably have to encounter in the not remote future a vigorous competition in the European markets from Australia. That land of vast areas of cheap grazing lands is capable of producing an enormous supply of meat and the quantity is increasing from year to year. Shipments of live cattle from Australia to Europe have not been very successful, but it is said that chilled beef has been sent from Sydney to Liverpool in such good condition as to sell in the markets at the prices obtained for beef shipped from Chicago.

MR. SPERRY's bill to provide for delivery of letters in towns and other places where no free delivery exists says that whenever not less than 20 persons who receive their mail matter through the same post office petition the postmaster at such office to appoint carriers to deliver and collect the mail from such person the postmaster is to do so. The carrier is to receive from the person to whom the mail is delivered a compensation agreed on, and if no agreement is made, they may demand not exceeding one cent for each letter. They are to receive no other compensation.

THE news comes from Brandenburg, Germany, of a discovery which excites the deepest interest in scientific, commercial and industrial circles. Dr. Sells has contrived a photographic instrument which will in minute details reproduce the various colors of objects, persons and landscapes brought within a specified range of the camera, the colors losing none of their original brilliancy and shade. Dr. Sells sent a number of photographs in colors of rose bushes, peacocks, crazy quilts and tropical butterflies to some experts for their examination, which were greatly admired.

MR. CYRUS EDSON, who was at one time the commissioner of health of the city and county of New York, has made a discovery which, it is said, may solve the problem of the cure of consumption. After numerous experiments he has produced a fluid which he calls aseptolin. It contains 2.75 per cent. of carbolic acid, and to every ounce of it there is added one hundredth of a grain of a new salt called pilocarpin-phenyl-hydroxide. The aseptolin is injected under the skin and into the blood. It has also cured every case of malaria and la grippe in which it has been tried.

THE COMING BATTLES

To be Fought, It is Said, on the Estate of Dr. Alexander.

PART OF WHICH IS DISPUTED GROUND

On the International Border, Where No Interference is Probable—Gov. Thornton of New Mexico at El Paso, and Talks of the Fights.

THE BATTLES TO BE FOUGHT ON NEUTRAL GROUND.

EL PASO, TEX., Feb. 8.—A gentleman who will not allow his name to be used, but is known to be very close to Dan Stuart, Friday evening said:

"The Maher-Fitzsimmons fight will take place on the estate of Dr. Alexander, a retired United States army surgeon, who has one of the finest grape vineyards in Mexico, located four miles from El Paso. This estate consists of 4,000 acres of land in a body. Part of it is located on the disputed international boundary line, and is not yet under the direction of either Mexico or the United States. Dr. Alexander is not only willing that the fight should come off on his property, but his eldest son is a business partner of Dan A. Stuart on the board of trade at Dallas, where the stock, bond, cotton and produce market quotations of the world are posted. This son of Dr. Alexander made the arrangements for the fight to come off on the Alexander estate, and he declares that no Mexican authorities will interfere against the protest of his father and himself, who will do what they please on their property until the question of national jurisdiction is settled.

All doubt that has attached itself in the minds of the fighters, at least, of the ability of Dan Stuart to bring off the contests was apparently dispelled Friday night at a meeting between Julian, representing Fitzsimmons, and Peter Maher and Buck Connolly. The men manifested a desire to have Stuart enlighten them on the point of protection in case they came together. While Julian did not appear to care for anything further than to get his man in the ring against the Irishman, Peter was a bit chary, and wanted to be assured that no judicial aftermath would occur.

Stuart and the men interested were closeted for about an hour, the men retiring to a room away from the ears of the correspondents.

"I am satisfied," remarked Julian, after the meeting. "Mr. Stuart has shown us that there can be no trouble after the fight. We will meet and have it out on the morning of February 14."

"All I wanted to know," said Peter after the conference, "was that I was not running my head into the penitentiary. Stuart has told us something, in a pledge to keep our mouths shut, that makes me feel easy. I know that we will have a fight, and that there will be no bloody police finish to it."

This confidence, coupled with the story told regarding the location of the battlefield, made everyone in this vicinity feel certain the fight will take place.

Gov. Thornton at El Paso.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8.—A special to a morning paper from El Paso, Tex., says:

Gov. Thornton of New Mexico, together with Sheriff Escarate of Las Cruces and Deputies Casey and Gonzales, came in on Friday night's train. Gov. Thornton said: "I advised Escarate not to come to El Paso, because I did not believe there would be any attempt to bring off the fight in New Mexico, and also because the signing of the bill would take the matter out of the hands of the New Mexican authorities entirely."

"I instructed him that as soon as the bill should be signed he must wash his hands of the whole business. The signing will relieve the territorial authorities of all responsibility and place it upon the federal officers. Escarate and his deputies will go home as soon as they know that the bill is signed. I feel much relieved by this action of congress. Personally I do not care whether they have a fight or not, and there being no law in New Mexico against prize fighting I should not have felt obliged to use any extraordinary efforts to stop it. The opposition papers, however, by diligently circulating the false report that I had been bribed to shut my eyes, compelled me to take more notice of it than the law itself did."

THREE MEN INJURED

By the Fall of an Elevator at Moline, Ill.

MOLINE, Ill., Feb. 8.—By the falling of a five-ton elevator in the shops of the Deere & Mansur Manufacturing Co. three men were injured, one of them fatally. They are: Emil Anderson; die die; Christian Bjorndahl; seriously injured.

Feb. 8; internal injuries.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Of the League of American Wheelmen at Baltimore.

IT WILL BE OF MOMENTOUS IMPORT

To the Cycling Interests of the Country—Amendments to the Constitution and Good Roads Among the Subjects of Discussion.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 8.—Only ten states in the country will be represented at the national assembly of the L. A. W., which opens its sessions here Monday. The convention promises to go down in cycling history as the most momentous ever held. More knotty problems that require immediate solution will come up than have heretofore fallen to the province of a national assembly of wheelmen. Seventy-four amendments to the constitution are down for consideration. This remarkable condition is due to the fact that the league has grown in membership as fast within a recent period that the present system of government has become cumbersome. All kinds of schemes are advocated to simplify the conditions. With the arrival of the vanguard of the delegates league politics began to boom, and will continue to grow in importance until officers are elected next Wednesday. President Willison is on hand, and expresses unlimited confidence in his re-election. He undeniably wants the honor, as he regards it as a chance to vindicate his record as president. His strongest antagonist is Sterling Elliott, of Massachusetts. The fact that two other names are being talked of in connection with the presidency has given rise to suspicion that Elliott's followers fear his connection with the official bulletin of the L. A. W. has resulted in bringing in strong opposition to his candidacy.

The other choices in the race are Chossum, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Morrison, of Illinois. The racing question cannot enter into the contest as between Elliott and Elliott, as both candidates support racing under the jurisdiction of the league. President Willison's friends claim that he has 104 pledged, and will certainly be elected, as 96 votes is the maximum number needed. One hundred and ninety persons are eligible to cast ballots, but it is not expected that more than 150 will be present.

The assembly will practically be started by a meeting of the racing board Sunday afternoon. This board has autocratic powers over all who race on bicycles. The chief business to be considered will be in regard to reopening the Titus-Murphy-Cabanne case. The suspended riders will be represented by attorneys. There appears to be a sentiment among the members of the board in favor of reinstating at least two of the men.

Monday will be given up to talks on good roads, and at night a banquet will be given to 250 persons.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

By the Discharge of a Gun While Out Fox Hunting.

ALTON, Ill., Feb. 8.—Capt. A. C. Hartwell, of Callacomb, Ill., was the victim of a distressing accident while with a hunting party Friday at Lock Haven, six miles above Alton. Capt. Hartwell was visiting his cousin, Mr. Ed Lock, and they started out on a company of friends on a fox chase along the Piasa bluffs. By the accidental discharge of a firearm Capt. Hartwell received injuries from which he died later in the day. The deceased served in the federal army throughout the rebellion.

A POPULAR VERDICT.

Stanhope Royster, the Slayer of His Daughter's Seducer, Acquitted.

BOONE, Ia., Feb. 8.—Last month, Stanhope Royster shot and killed Banker McFarland for seducing his daughter. A week later the girl killed herself in Omaha. Friday Royster was acquitted of the murder, after a week's trial. The jury was out but five minutes.

When the verdict was announced a scene of the wildest enthusiasm followed. Men and women cheered at the top of their voices. Hats were thrown in the air and handkerchiefs waved. The sheriffs and bailiffs tried to restore order, but their voices were lost and their efforts were futile.

To Enforce the Double Liability Law.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 8.—The district court has ordered the enforcement of the double liability law in the suspensions of the State and Citizens' banks. There is a deficit of $221,000 in the former case, and the stockholders will be assessed 86 per cent. in the latter case.

A Victim of Spinal Meningitis.

Confessed Before Dying.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 8.—Sam Cummings, acquitted four years ago on the charge of killing James Perry, was fatally shot at Coal Creek in a general fight. Before dying he said he had committed the murder spoken of.

Complicated Tumor.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 8.—The sound-money democrats complimented R. T. Tyler, late democratic nominee for lieutenant-governor. The ballotstool: Hunter, 56; Blackburn, 52; Tyler, 5; Bate, 1.

Authority Revoked.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The government has revoked the authority granted to the British South Africa Co. to rule over the Ikanning and Montsiet districts of South Africa.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session.) HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Fifteen members responded to Speaker Reed's suggestion, at 10:35 a. m., that the house come to order for the third session of the legislative day of Friday.

Mr. Carlisle (rep. Mich.) was the first speaker of the day on the bond silver-coinage bill. He favored the passage of the bill to secure international bimetalism by an agreement with other nations than Great Britain, and if that could be accomplished, then to keep out foreign bullion and coin the American product.

Mr. Boathner (dem. Ia.) favored the coinage of just so much silver as could be maintained at a parity with gold.

Mr. Grosvenor (rep. O.) departed from consideration of the financial features of the matter to make a general political speech, taking for his text the plea of the gentleman from California (Mr. Johnson), "do something for silver."

THE STATE OF TRADE

As Indicated by Bradstreet's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

General trade waited the results of subscriptions to the bond issue, and the sentimental effects of the unexpectedly favorable outcome have been for easier money and improvement. Additional influences are found in heavier bank clearings, continued firmness of prices, sustained demand for iron and steel and the announcement from St. Paul, Minn., of a revival in the revival in business with jobbers in staple lines. At the east, Baltimore and Pittsburgh report favorable trade conditions. At the south, gains in wholesale lines are announced from Nashville, Memphis, Atlanta and Birmingham.

The reverse includes the depressing influence of storm and wet weather, indifference of consumers of domestic woolen dress goods, renewed sales of print cloths and other makes of cotton goods only after a reduction in prices, continuance of extreme conservatism in almost all lines, and the fact that the relief to the treasury by the heavy over-subscription to the bond issue in the absence of sound currency legislation by congress will probably prove only a temporary device to maintain the gold reserve. General trade at Chicago, St. Louis, Buffalo and Philadelphia shows no real gains from the preceding week, when the situation was quiet even to dullness, and the outlook unsatisfactory.

The total number of business failures throughout the United States last week as reported to Bradstreet's, is considerably smaller this week—338, as contrasted with 393 last week, 238 in the week one year ago, 336 in the first week of 1894, 223 in 1893, and with 214 in 1892.

The long list of business failures reported from the Canadian Dominion last week is practically equal with a total of 10, compared with 62 a week ago, 1 in the week a year ago, 56 two years ago, 45 three years ago and 68 four years ago.

ONE LIFE LOST

In the Burning of the Altmeyer Theater Block at McKeesport, Pa.

McKEESPORT, Pa., Feb. 8.—At 4 a. m. fire was discovered in the Altmeyer theater block, and in an almost incredible short time the building was a mass of flames. The building was located on Fifth avenue and was valued at $130,000. A short time ago arrangements were made to convert the building into a brewery, and it is thought that a workman interfered with the electric light wires there, causing the fire.

The Herald Publishing Co. occupied the top floor, and all the employees excepting George Bartow, foreman, escaped. He attempted to escape by sliding down the elevator rope from the sixth floor, but has not been heard from.

The residence of Peter Strohm, in the rear of Becker's hotel, and Dietrich's stables were crushed by falling walls. Altmeyer had $49,000 insurance, but failed to secure permission from the insurance companies to remodel the building. His loss is complete. The insurance is very small.

Normal School Building Burned.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 8.—The State normal school building at West Liberty, ten miles east of here, was entirely destroyed by fire early this morning. The fire is supposed to have started from some chemicals in the laboratory, and the flames were in full headway when discovered.

Refused to Quash the Writ.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The high court of justice has refused to quash the writ which was granted for the extradition to France of Emil Arton, who was arrested here last November for complicity with Dr. Herz and the late Baron Reinach in the Panama canal frauds.

Foul Play Suspected.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 8.—The body of a Mexican veteran named John Melton was taken from First creek Friday. Melton has just drawn his pension money. It is thought he was murdered and his body thrown in the creek.

An Error in the Bonds.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—An error has been discovered in the printing of the back of the new bonds, which will necessitate their destruction and re-printing. It affects only a few hundred thousand bonds.

To Wed a Fifteen-Year-Old Widow.

BROWNVILLE, Ky., Feb. 8.—A marriage license was issued Friday to B. F. Heath and Mrs. Mary C. Miller. The bride-to-be is 15 years old. Mrs. Miller's name was Hardin, and she was first married at the age of 14.

To Intercept the Veasey.

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 8.—The United States cruiser Raleigh has left here with orders to intercept the filibustering steamer J. N. Veasey, which stole out of Norfolk, Va., on the night of the 4th.

The World's Greatest Paleontologist.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 8.—Charles Wachsmuth, the world's greatest paleontologist in the line of crinoids, died suddenly Friday, aged 56 years. He was a native of Hanover, Germany.

Refused to Permit a Pair.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 8.—The republicans refused to allow one of their number to pair with Senator Ogilvie (dem.), who is very ill. They acknowledged that they expect him to die.

AN UNSAVORY RECORD

Is That of Scott Jackson, One of Pearl Bryan's Murderers.

FORMERLY LIVED IN JERSEY CITY, N. J.

Where He Cut a Wide Swath, and Only Missed the Penitentiary for Embezzlement by Turning State's Evidence on His Chum.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The Journal says that Scott Jackson, who is under arrest suspected of murdering Pearl Bryan near Cincinnati, was formerly well known in Jersey City. He lived there for three years, during which he cut quite a prominent figure in the social and business world. One of his partners in business and crime is now serving a term in the state prison of New Jersey for embezzlement.

About six years ago Jackson came to Jersey City with good recommendations. He belongs to a good family, his father being Commodore Jackson, who commanded many vessels, one of which he owned himself. He had a friend named Alexander Letts. They opened a resort for sporting men near the ferries, in Jersey City, on money advanced by Commodore Jackson. The amount was said to be $4,000. Jackson and Letts, it appears, obtained employment with the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. in the Jersey City office. One of Jackson's duties was to receive and open the mails.

After a few months extensive robberies in the railroad office were discovered. They were said to amount to $23,000. Finally they were traced to Jackson and Letts. It was found, according to testimony during the two trials that followed, that Jackson and Letts, to whom he handed them, had them cashed.

Meanwhile the saloon which they kept had become notorious. They were acknowledged high-flyers in sporting circles. Both had become "plungers" on the race tracks. It was reported that they made money, owing to their lavish expenditures. They "entertained" liberally in their own peculiar way, and for a time they were looked upon as "good fellows" among the sporting fraternity, who sought the privilege of their acquaintance. Suddenly, three years ago, the Pennsylvania railroad officials discovered that these two men were "sporting" at the expense of the company. Their arrest followed. At the first trial the jury disagreed. Before the second trial took place the railroad company discovered such proof of Jackson's guilt that he found it healthy to turn state's evidence against Letts. The latter was sentenced to a long term in state prison. Jackson went free, and also went away from Jersey.

During his lively career Jackson courted Miss Elsie Ramsay, a school teacher of Jersey Heights. She is a good-looking girl. They became engaged to be married, but when Letts was convicted of embezzlement on his partner's testimony the engagement was broken off—Miss Ramsay says.

THREE MOTHERS.

Mrs. Bryan May Lose Her Reason—Mrs. Jackson Say Letts the Law Take His Course. Mrs. Woods is Angry.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Feb. 8.—Scores of sympathizers call daily at the Bryan homestead, but Mrs. Bryan will see no visitors, and the family physician fears that she will lose her reason.

A reporter of the United Press had an interview with Mrs. Jackson, mother of Scott Jackson.

"If he is guilty of this terrible crime, let him meet justice and the full extent of the law. Possibly it is best that this affair end such a life," she said, after she had recited all she had done to take the proper care of her wayward son.

"There is no hope now of changing his life. I have done all a Christian mother could. The worst and the best have come. May God be merciful to him. May he have time, even yet, to repent and be saved."

Wood's mother is very different. She is excited, angry and rebellious. She refuses to believe that her son is in any wise guilty, ridicules the reports that her boy has led a reckless life as horrible lies started by the friends of Jackson for the purpose of making the crime rest less heavily upon the latter.

CONVICTED OF MURDER,

And the Principal Witness Against Him Was His Own Son.

WESTCHESTER, Pa., Feb. 8.—The jury in the case of Thos. Elvin, of Phoenixville, brought in a verdict, Friday, of murder in the first degree.

Elvin killed two of his children on November 15 by placing arsenic in their coffee. He also drank some of the poisoned coffee and afterward told his throat, but survived. Mrs. Elvin ran away with another man and this made Elvin despondent. Elvin's eldest son, 13 years old, was the principal witness against his father.

For Leader of the Irish Parliamentary Party.

DUBLIN, Feb. 8.—A meeting of the nationalist members of the house of commons was held here, and it was decided unanimously to request Mr. Thomas Sexton, member for the north division of Kerry, to accept the leadership of the Irish parliamentary party as the successor of Mr. Justin McCarthy.

Outside the Breastworks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The house committee on elections No. 1, Mr. Daniels, of New York, chairman, has denied the application of J. J. McDonald to serve notice of contest on Wm. A. Jones, the sitting member from the First Virginia district. Mr. McDonald failed to serve notice of contest in the limit of time prescribed by law.

Call of the Democratic County Committee.

The democratic executive committee of Shelby county is hereby called to meet at Columbiana on Friday the 21st day of February, 1896, to arrange for calling a county convention and beat meetings or primaries, as may be determined on, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

If there's anything in a name why shouldn't senators Cannon and Money get there?

WM. H. ENGLISH, candidate for vice president on the Hancock ticket, died at Indianapolis a few days ago.

PRATT, the gold brick swindler, who was recently arrested in Texas and brought back to Birmingham has been released from jail on giving bond in the sum of six thousand dollars, which amount he deposited in cash.

THE new photographic process by which the coin in an inside pocket is revealed wouldn't work on an editor unless it could supply the coin. See? It might work however, to perfection if all his delinquents would pay up. See?

THE act of 1883 under which the public mineral lands of Alabama were withdrawn from sale has been repealed and they are now subject to entry as other lands are. A great deal of the land classed as mineral in Alabama is also excellent for agriculture, and will be bought and utilized as such now that they are no longer reserved from purchase.

THE $100,000,000 government bond sale was a howling success, and as a consequence the average populiste is anything but happy. And, by the way, we failed to find where a single one of their party had put in a bid. But then they were good bonds. If they had been made payable in silver they would have taken the whole batch, in fact they would have been compelled to, for nobody else would have had them.

ANOTHER large $600,000 cotton mill is to be built in Alabama, this time at Cordova, the promoters being the Nashua Manufacturing Co., of New Hampshire. A mill is also to be erected in Oxford by the wide-awake citizens of that place. And this leads us to inquire why can't Columbiana capture one of these prizes? A little energy exerted in this direction would pay a handsome dividend on the investment. Let's try it, for a change.

FOR several days we have been making a canvass of Shelby county to ascertain the probable strength of the two candidates for governor. Two years ago Johnston had a very strong following in this county and we very naturally supposed that most of his former supporters were still for him, but such is not the case. Mr. Clarke has this county practically solid. Mr. Johnston is simply not in it. If you have any doubt as to the correctness of this statement, wait and see the outcome. Put Shelby county in the Clarke column.

MR. GEO. R. BOYD, of Montgomery, at present chief clerk in the treasurer's office, is a candidate for state treasurer, subject to the action of the approaching democratic convention. Mr. Boyd is a Dallas man, but prior to his removal to Montgomery he lived in Montevallo several years, where he now has many friends. He is an expert accountant, well equipped by training and experience for the office he seeks; of sterling character and integrity, and is in every respect worthy of the honor. Being an ex-Shelby man, he is entitled to much consideration at the hands of the delegation from this county.

WE notice in the dispatches that Hon. H. C. Reynolds, of Montevallo, is in Washington, trying to get an appropriation of public lands for the Girls' Industrial School. He is an untiring worker for this school, and it is just as certain to be a complete success as his life is spared to labor in its behalf. We don't mean to say that he alone will be responsible for its upbuilding, but we are more largely indebted to him for its capture, and he has done more toward putting it on a firm foundation from the start, than any one in Alabama. We feel confident that he will secure the land asked for, because as a matter of justice the school is entitled to it, and because Mr. Reynolds is not in the habit of going after anything and coming back without it. As a hustler he hasn't an equal. If Shelby county possessed a few more of his build, she could get another college or so, a cotton mill or a dozen for that matter, if she wanted them.

WE have given considerable space this week to the address of President H. C. Reynolds, of the Cotton Growers' Association, and also that of Hector D. Lane, commissioner of agriculture, both addresses urging the farmers to cut down the cotton acreage. These articles should receive careful consideration by the farmers, for there is no denying the fact that it is in their power to regulate the price of cotton. The last crop demonstrated this proposition to a nicety, when a 7,000,000 bale crop yielded the farmers $30,000,000 more than a 10,000,000 bale crop the year previous. Do you want any better evidence than that? If the farmers profit by this lesson they will have made a long stride towards permanent independence and prosperity, but if they, on the contrary, give no heed to those who have their interest at heart and plant another large crop, they will have no sympathy when they are forced to take 3 cents for their cotton.

THE COLONIAL CLUB AGAIN.

MR. EDITOR.—In your last issue is a plea for the Colonial club of our town by "Senex," and I ask for your kind permission for a counter plea.

So far as the object of the club is literary and scientific culture and social pleasure in its purest, highest and most innocent forms, it deserves and should receive encouragement, but "Senex" mentions two features, card-playing and dancing—that to the christian people of our community are like dead flies which cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stink savor.

His plea is evidently an insidious invitation to the young people of our town, nearly all of whom are church members, to join the club, and also a covert defense of those who have joined it. In politics it is considered base for a man while a member of a political party to be false to it. Why, then, should it be right for a christian to be unfaithful to his church?

While his position that all games are innocent per se, cards are considered by the church too dangerous for it ever to be safe to be handled. Not only is the game so fascinating that it consumes time that could be more profitably employed otherwise, but it unfits the mind for Bible study, for prayer and other devotional exercises. Cards are the gambler's tools, and the knowledge gained at the parlor table has prepared the way for the gambler's life and gambler's end. Progress down grade in cards is seen in the fact that a generation ago simple euchre was sufficient for ladies and gentlemen, but now it has in it the essence of gambling in the prize given the parties that are successful. Our estimate of a man's christianity never rises but always falls when we see him at the card table. The hearts of many mothers and wives and sisters today are bleeding and are even crushed from the vices in men which had their beginning at the social game of cards.

While dancing may be the most charming of all amusements it is also perhaps the most dangerous. Leading spirits in the great christian bodies of our country—Baptist, Episcopalian, Presbyterian and Methodist—condemn it in strong language. The church with which I am best acquainted—the Presbyterian—says: "In all its stages it is a fascinating and an intoxicating practice—it steals away our precious time, and dissipates religious impressions and hardens the heart—the men of the world with one consent agree that it is inconsistent with the nature of Christian profession for members of the church to engage in the dance; it has uniformly condemned the modern dance in all its forms as tending to evil, whether practiced in public halls or private parlors—some forms of this amusement are more mischievous than others; the round dance than the square; the public hall than the parlor; but all are evil and should be discontinued." After these words from his church can any Presbyterian engage in the dance without proving himself to be one of those whom the Scriptures say shall come in the last days who are "traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of Godliness but denying the power thereof?" I may add my own experience. In the past fifteen years I have become acquainted with perhaps from five to ten thousand christians from the highest to the lowest in the social scale and in many denominations, and I have never known one that practiced dancing and christianity at the same time and was a success in both. As one advanced the other inevitably declined.

While young men should cultivate their bodies which are the Lord's, the dance as practiced today does them more harm than good, for whatever strength, activity and grace the dance may impart are more than counterbalanced by the unhealthful style of dress, the late hours, the unwholesome refreshments and other concomitants. No intelligent physician unless blinded by prejudice will commend the modern dance as generally practiced from a hygienic standpoint. Many an excellent woman has found the seed of death in the cold contracted after the exercise of dancing. Her future I leave to the Judge of all the earth who will do right.

These features of the club do not meet with the approval of the good people of our town, and I for one, sincerely regret that any christian in our town has been so misguided as to consent to be a partner in these features of an institution which might otherwise be a cause for pride. Yours for Christ and the Church, W. J. SISKOTT.

THE PRICE OF COTTON IS WITH THE FARMERS.

"The Prudent Man Foreseeth the Evil, and Hideth Himself; but the Simple Pass on, and are Punished."—Prov. 27:42v.

The marked contrast in the prices of cotton for the seasons of 1894 and 1895, should convince every prudent man that it will be unwise to increase the acreage in cotton for the year 1896. The nine-and-a-half million bale crop at 5 cents brought distress and debt upon almost every grower. The 6,500,000 bales at 7 to 8 cents paid off most the debts incurred with the large crop, leaving the growers in better condition than for a decade. Will our planters be so imprudent and thoughtless as to place themselves in the hands of the merciless speculators by seeding down to cotton a greater acreage than they did in 1895? The crop of the coming season should not exceed that of last year, a bale. If the acreage be limited, then there will be a sufficient demand to keep the price from 7 to 9 cents per pound. The farmers made it profitable to themselves last year by reducing the cotton yield, in two ways. First, they received from 3 to 4 cents more per pound for their cotton than the year previous; and, secondly, they grew more corn, potatoes, hay, beets, sheep and hogs, all of which yielded fair profit to the growers, or prevented them from buying these necessities. By this change they did not have to contract debts for supplies, and all of these diversified crops and stock decreased the expenses of the farm and at the same time produced larger supplies of home fertilizers for keeping up the fertility of the lands.

The practical results and progress made by the change in 1895, have been very gratifying to us, as we earnestly and untiringly work to keep down the acreage and to increase the value of the product. The fewer bales the better the price; the larger the price the more independent and prosperous the people of the South. These grand results have been worth millions of dollars to the cotton growers of Alabama.

Why should any one grow two bales, incurring all the additional labor and expense, when one bale will bring as much money as two?

To maintain good prices it is absolutely and essentially necessary that the acreage be held at its present proportions, and if the acreage for this season be below that of 1895, the probability is that the price may reach as high as 10 cents. This would render the Southern people absolutely free from indebtedness and in better financial condition than they have been in twenty years.

The welfare of each other should be sought in this great agricultural question. The land owners should restrain their colored tenants who may be farming on shares, and require them to produce an abundance of oats, corn, syrup, potatoes, hay, peas, rice, and raise enough beets and hogs to supply their annual wants.

The indications are that the farmers in the great State of Texas will unite in contracting their acreage to a less area than last year, and I earnestly appeal to the people of Alabama to join in this movement regardless of race or color, and thus crown the united effort with success.

Yours truly,

HECTOR D. LANE, Commissioner of Agriculture.
P. S.—Mr. H. C. REYNOLDS, of Montevallo, Ala., was elected as president of the Cotton Growers' Association for the State of Alabama by the convention at Memphis. He is distinguished as a gentleman of untiring energy and talent, and he is now preparing to organize the cotton growers of this state, and I hope the people will give him a hearty co-operation in this grand object.

Bill on the Evils.

From the New York Evening Post.

The Hon. Bill Morgan made an address on the issues of the day at the recent banquet at Topeka, in honor of Kansas' birthday. He spoke in part as follows: "We have met three evils those blights, those horrors, those nightmares, those jinglams, those deurliums, tremens, drouth, hot winds and populists. The trouble in Kansas is that we have tried too much to reform the world, not enough to develop ourselves. We have been occupied with constructing systems of 'feenance' when we should have been digging ditches. We have expended our wind when we should have been setting up wind-mills."

A Plea to Cotton Growers.

ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT H. C. REYNOLDS TO THE FARMERS OF ALABAMA.

Having been appointed president of the Cotton Growers' Association of Alabama by the recent convention held at Memphis, Tenn., and accepting the honor which has been conferred upon me and desiring to further the objects of this association, I shall proceed to appoint a president for each county, whose duty it will be to appoint a committee in each beat in his county for the purpose of bringing the cotton growers together. I also appoint the 3rd Saturday in February the day for our assembling, to be known as "cotton growers' day," and request its observance throughout the state.

It is by thorough union and order that we may hope to make this organization a success. Furthermore, we should not allow ourselves to become discouraged by any apparent lack of success in the past, for the necessity of this organization was never more patent than it is at the present day.

From all quarters of the state we hear of the immense preparation being made in the way of purchase of fertilizers, mules and supplies beyond precedent. Should these efforts, together with the promised increase of acreage, prove successful, as we ordinarily have reason to believe they will, what better disaster can we expect? Shall we go blindly along and through lack of unity of action allow the speculators to grow richer and richer every year through our own follies and mistakes! The indications are now that we will grow anywhere from 10,000,000 to a 12,000,000 bale crop this year. Should this occur, I predict cotton will be slow sale at from three to four cents per pound. This, of course, with the immense expense the making of the crop will incur, means bankruptcy to the country. Can we not alter this condition of affairs? I say we can if we will.

The solution of this matter lies entirely in our own hands. It is by organization, and that only, that we can hope to accomplish anything. Every trade, occupation and profession has its organization, which controls and directs the action of the whole. The farmer organizes least of all, and so becomes the easy victim of the capitalist.

We have it in our power to make ourselves the most independent and prosperous people on earth. We should be masters of the situation, instead of slaves to it. We can fix the price of cotton for the world if we only will. We delude ourselves with the vain thought that possibly others may not help to over-produce, and in the end deplore our folly and damn the speculator, when we should condemn ourselves alone.

Why was it that cotton sold for from 25 to 50 cents a pound at the close of the war? Did not the fact demonstrate the law of supply and demand?

Is it not a fact, apparent to all, that the crop of 1895 of less than 7,000,000 bales will sell for more than the crop of 1895 of nearly 10,000,000 bales?

The decline of the price of cotton daily taking place is freely commented on by leading journals of the day as caused by the prospective over-production of this year.

In our desire for money crops we are apt to underestimate the importance of first of all producing an abundance of provisions for home purposes.

Again, I beg the farmers of Alabama to give these matters their serious attention before it is too late. Let us all meet on the day appointed and organize, with a view of preventing our own ruin.

H. C. REYNOLDS, Pres't C. G. A. of Ala. (State papers please copy.)

STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. In Chancery, Sixth District, North-Eastern Chancery Division: Claudia Holman, Complainant, vs. I. M. Holman, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of John D. Strange, that the defendant, I. M. Holman, is a non-resident of Alabama, and resides in the State of Texas; and further, that in belief of said affidavit the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in The Chronicle, a newspaper published in the county of Shelby once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said I. M. Holman, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 10th day of February, A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him. Done in office in Columbiana this 4th day of January, A. D. 1896. GORDON DEBOSE, Register.

Ayer's Pills

"My husband was subject to severe attacks of neuralgia which caused him great pain and suffering. The pains were principally about his eyes, and he often had to remain in a darkened room, not being able to stand the light. Ayer's Pills being recommended, he tried them, using one before each meal. They very soon afforded relief, followed by permanent cure. I am a strong believer in the efficacy of Ayer's Pills, and would not be without them for ten times their cost."—Mrs. M. E. TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

W. R. A. Milner spent Monday in Montevallo.
Miss Mary Wagner is on a visit to the city of Childersburg.
W. W. Walls, of Gadsden, spent Sunday with his family here.
Editor Graham, of Calera, was a visitor in our town Monday.
Mrs. Ella Bailey, of Calera, was a guest of relatives in town Saturday.
Mrs. Green and Miss Guelma visited relatives in Cresswell last week.
W. T. Johnson, of Highland, transacted legal business here Tuesday.
Mrs. Augusta Wilson, of Montevallo visited relatives here last week.
Miss Earl Anchors returned Monday from a visit to relatives at Saginaw.

W. S. Cary, of Montevallo, was among his many friends here Monday.
John Edwards, of Childersburg, spent Friday and Saturday in our city.

French Neighbors, a prominent citizen of Montevallo, was in town yesterday.
James Dykes spent a few days last week visiting Ashby, Calera and Montevallo.

John Upshaw, of Coosa county, visited A. D. Wortham Saturday and Sunday.
J. S. Falkner, of Sterrett, has accepted a position in the store of W. R. A. Milner.

Miss Florence Farrell, of beat 8, was on a visit last week to the family of Rev. C. W. O'Hara.

Hon. E. S. Lyman, one of Montevallo's cleverest citizens, was here yesterday on legal business.

J. F. McLane, Shelby's accommodating postmaster, was a welcome guest in our town Tuesday.

Miss Emma Looney, of Fayetteville, a former student of our High School, and a most agreeable young lady, is visiting Mrs. J. W. Johnston.

A team of mules ran away with Walter Timney Monday, and as a result he is carrying his left arm in a sling. It is not broken, but badly sprained.

Z. H. Clardy, of Talladega, was in town Thursday and Friday of last week, looking after the interest of the new brick building soon to be built in our town.

The three little CHRONICLE supplementers have the whooping-cough, so attribute any shortcomings in the paper this week to the fact that they make night hideous around the CHRONICLE dwelling, and as a consequence we are short on sleep.

There is no longer room for doubt that the Page brick block is a certainty. Every dollar of the contract price has been paid Mr. Clardy, and it is now only a question of a few months until it will be ready for occupancy. Good news, ain't it?

W. A. Thompson announces this week that he is a candidate for re-election to the office of county treasurer, subject to the action of the democratic county convention. He has made an excellent official, is courteous, painstaking and accurate, and always at his post of duty. His democracy has never been questioned, which is the best of proof that it is of standard quality. He has been a faithful guardian of the people's funds, and his record as a public official is above reproach.

Nothing affords us more real pleasure than to commend merit where it is deserved, and it is, therefore, a source of great satisfaction to note the high record of W. J. O'Hara, of this place, has made at Howard College. He has been on the honor roll every month since he entered college, two years, and his last report gives him 100 in every department, which means perfect. Dr. McGinn, president of Howard, said recently that Will was the brightest pupil he had in college. Truly this is an inviolable record.

Wilsonville Waifs.

The measles storm is subsiding. O. D. NoSmith was in town last week on business.

E. B. Teague was in town last Saturday.

J. M. Fowler, formerly of this place, after several weeks absence, was in town visiting relatives.

The latter part of "the waifs" last week were more poetry than truth.

June! June! come soon, is the loud and constant cry of E. Williamson.

Is it misfortune after misfortune, or chicken-pox after measles, Uncle Buck?

Messrs. E. T. Cosper and Joe Barr, formerly of this place, are now in the "Lone Star" state.

We understand that Mr. J. L. Ray will commence shipping charcoal from Mallory's station at an early day.

J. F. Pope has made quite an addition to his store in the way of a nice office.

The current topic in Wilsonville society is: "Who will occupy the house?" Mr. Timney is erecting?

Mr. B. Deltamus enjoyed one of his boyhood sports on Sunday afternoon. He was seen with the small boys on a pair of "Tom-walkers."

Will Smith is having some trouble with his bloodhounds. One of them has been dangerously ill. We think he has a case of the measles.

How delightful was the sight of E. Deltamus and Will Timney riding southward last Sunday afternoon.

We are glad to report that the cat, "Nelly Bly" was sympathizing with a few weeks previous, is convalescent.

The smiling face of W. W. Wallace was noticeable on our streets several times last week. We are a little afraid he likes our girls too well. Jealousy! jealousy!

It is reported, and we hope the report to be true, "that dear old Charlie Arnold" will visit our village soon. Our society, our homes and places of business are always open to you, Charlie. You have been missed beyond degree.

The S. P. league will meet next Friday night at the residence of Mr. Dalshims. Quite an interesting programme has been arranged, and we hope those who have parts therein will have no trouble in rendering them in an oratorical manner.

We understand that Claude Jackson is assisting the ladies in finding out who "two-in-a-skillet" is. Good luck to you, old boy.

Do you want to find him, wherever he may be?
And wouldn't you mind his pumpkin head, if him only you could see?

Of all the columns printed,
That ever I did see,
The little "Wilsonville warblings,"
Is the dearest one to me.

It gives us all the news therein,
Tells of our enterprise,
And always gives the truth, you know,
And never tells us lies.

And oh, I love so well to read
Those words so sweet and pure,
From the tender lines of thee,
Long may they work endure.

The author of it I do not know,
(She signs thus—"Nelly Bly.")
But if my thoughts should I unroll,
There's more than one to spy.

When I find those names so true,
There's cultivated minds;
There future is prospective views,
Like buds upon the vines.

How sad I how sad! to me would be,
To look these pages' o'er;
And there one little line to see,
Gone, gone, to come no more.

But may I see in years and years,
This column shine so bright,
So as to gladden far and near,
Like the Eastern Star at night.

Measles, measles, measles.

On account of measles there were no services at Liberty church last Saturday and Sunday.

On account of measles there is no farming going on here.

On account of measles there are not enough well people in this community to wait on the sick ones. I will give the names of several of the old people who are down with the measles. E. S. Martin, A. F. Clinkscales, B. A. Dodson and wife, Mrs. Tom Robinson, W. A. Blackerby and wife, L. W. Cheser and wife, Mrs. John Crane, Mrs. W. F. Adams, A. J. Blackerby, T. B. Holcomb and from 4 to 8 children at every house in the community and some of them very sick. The old women don't forget to "bless" the two young men who came to church a few Sundays ago full of measles.

Marshall Inzer and family, of St. Clair county, are here on a visit to W. A. Weldon's family. Since they arrived here one of their children was taken down with pneumonia, and is very sick at this writing.

Our friend, M. W. Cheser, who left here on the 23d of last December for Texas, writes that he will be back just as soon as his family gets well of the measles. He can't give up old Shelby.

There are some improvements going on around Centre. Wilbur Wilder is preparing to thrash wheat by water power.

"Tim" is listening for some one in Shelby to want office this time.

CAN ALABAMA WIN?

There is at present a spirited contest going on between some of the technical colleges of the country for a fine nickel and gold plated engine lathe, offered by the Lodge-Davis Machine Tool Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, to the technical school securing the largest number of votes before March first.

Any male person in the United States over 15 years old can vote.

The Agricultural & Mechanical College at Auburn has gone into this contest, and with the proper support from the citizens of the state, we see no reason why Alabama cannot win the prize. Voting blanks may be found at J. M. Spencer's store and we trust all our readers will take occasion to vote, as it costs nothing and will help on a worthy enterprise. We would also suggest that persons interested in this contest, secure as many votes as they can, getting names and addresses on sheets of letter paper, and forward to the A. & M. College, Auburn, Ala. All lists should be at the college not later than February 24th.

We have a smaller population than many of our rivals, but what we lack in numbers we can make up in zeal. We hope every reader will sign and see that his neighbor signs, so that a thorough canvass may be made.

Only a boy, like other boys,
Fond of battles fought and won;
Fond of his books and games and toys;
Living his childish griefs and joys—
The little Washington.

Only a lad, awkward and shy,
Mastering knowledge that, by and by,
Should aid him in duties great and high;
The youthful Washington.

Only a man of finest bent,
Surveyor, general, president,
Who served his country, and died content—
The patriot, Washington.

Only—ah! what was the secret, then,
Of his being America's chosen son?
Why was he famed above other men,
His name upon every tongue and pen,
The illustrious Washington?

A mighty brain, a will to endure,
Passions subdued, a slave to none,
A heart that was brave and strong and sure,
A soul that was noble and great and pure,
A faith in God that was held secure;
This was George Washington.

—W. Va. School Journal.

OMETHING has to be done," declared Mrs. Haskins, compressing her lips and settling back in her chair with a most determined air. "Why, one would think we were a lot of mummies, the way we have vegetated here this winter. There hasn't been a thing excepting that New Year's party at the Forsythes, and you know what a dismal affair that was. Miss Payne seemed slightly. She certainly did know what a dismal affair the Forsythe party had been—for her, more than for anyone else. She was quite sure that Tom didn't care at all, and that he was glad that their little misunderstanding had occurred and freed him from an engagement that was disagreeable to him. But she didn't speak of this to Mrs. Haskins, although she knew that little person was fully aware of the late unpleasantness, and was taking a fiendish delight in making delicate reference to subjects calculated to remind her friend of it. Miss Payne only assented, with a little nod and a half-articulate murmur, and Mrs. Haskins went on:

"Now, let's not sit and talk about it, merely, but let's do something. Of course, we can't celebrate Washington's birthday without a costume affair. Suppose we have a sleighing party, to wind up at The Hills with a supper and dance, with everyone in revolutionary costume. And, oh! the malicious little wretch went on enthusiastically, 'you and Mr. Enright shall be Martha and George, and lead the minuet—a regular 18th century minuet.'"

"N-no, I'd rather not," interrupted Miss Payne, in a half-stifled voice. "I don't—really, I'd rather not take such a prominent part."

"Nonsense, child!" chirped Mrs. Haskins, cheerfully. "You'll make a perfectly lovely Martha, and Tom Enright can be so stately and dignified when he chooses—and, besides, he's one of the very few men in town who can afford to be seen in short trousers."

And the little woman went on to outline her plans for the celebration, ignoring Gladys' all-too-apparent misgivings and the poor girl's efforts to decline the unwelcome honor she proposed to thrust upon her.

"I won't! I can't!" Gladys declared to herself, passionately, as she hurried down the gravelled pathway of the Haskins' place. "I'd rather die, indeed I would, and still I couldn't explain it to her, even if she does know already—the spiteful wretch! I hope he'll manage to decline, though."

But Mr. Enright did nothing of the kind. In fact, he had felt for some time as though he would give anything on earth for an opportunity to speak to Gladys and tell her how sorry he was for the way he had acted over her dancing with Neville three times at the Forsythe party—the fact being, however, that he really had just cause for being jealous and indignant, and that Gladys was the one from whom the apology was due. So, when Mrs. Haskins broached her plans to him, she was rather taken aback at the alacrity with which he consented to impersonate the Father of His Country, for she had anticipated her usual keen enjoyment in probing another's wound.

"The Hills" was a little summer hotel situated in a pleasant valley about ten miles from Millston, and, although closed to the general public through the winter, was the scene of occasional festivities inaugurated by Millston people. It had a delightful ball-room, and, better yet, the couple who had charge of the premises from season to season were phenomenal caterers.

The 29th of February came, and the morning ushered in delightful weather, which, together with a recent snowfall, combined to make it an ideal day for sleighing. Most of the merry-makers gathered at Mrs. Haskins' house in the afternoon, and Enright looked eagerly at Gladys, hoping, yet half afraid, that she would be a member of the same party as himself—and when he saw her smiling, flushed and happy-looking, in young Neville's cutter, alone with that most objectionable youth, he was very bitter, and was almost ready to give up going. But he didn't. Instead, he devoted himself most assiduously to a certain Miss Glazer, much to her gratification and the mystification of several of the others, who were not aware of his disagreement with Gladys.

There had been a change of programme, which involved dinner at The Hills, more sleighing, then some Washington tableaux, and the ball, and Enright and his ex-fiancee met at dinner—thanks to Mrs. Haskins, who, following her usual malicious tactics, had so managed as to seat them next to each other.

"I hope," quietly said Enright, with polite gravity, just after the soup was served—"I hope, Miss Payne, that you do not think this meeting one of my seeking. I would have avoided it had it been possible to do so."

"Pray don't be distressed, Mr. Enright," replied the girl, icily. "We are quite agreed on that point; so, perhaps, the less said the better."

Thenceforward, throughout the meal, Enright directed his conversation elsewhere, savagely noting, however, the feverish gaiety and apparent indifference to himself of the girl he had once expected to marry.

"Cold, cruel, utterly heartless!" he declared to himself, after the fashion of jealous lovers from time immemorial. And, after the fashion of the same, he proceeded to act as though he, too, were entirely indifferent, or, indeed, rather glad that it was all over between them.

As for Gladys, she vehemently told herself half a dozen times that she "didn't care," and, to demonstrate this, she went on with her flirtation with young Neville to a most outrageous extent, noting with great satisfaction that Tom notwithstanding his apparent devotion to plain little Miss Glazer, was absolutely white with jealousy and rage.

However, when they met after dinner, on the steps of the hotel piazza, to join the few who were for taking a half-hour drive by moonlight, he again spoke to her, taking advantage of a moment when Neville went to hasten the dainty hostess in his work. "See here, little girl," he began, hastily, with a glance about, to see if anyone could overhear him, "I can't stand this. I just—"

Gladys turned upon him with eyes opened wide in mock surprise. "I beg your pardon," she said, in her coldest "who-are-you-anyway" tones.

Enright said something—a bad word—between his teeth, but went on desperately: "Can't we make it all up, little girl? Can't I say or do something to show—"

"Yes, sir, you can," said the "little girl," snappily. "You can try to be a gentleman and confine your attentions to me to those called for by the programme—nothing more."

Enright shut his teeth savagely and turned away. He was quite positive of it now—he was altogether certain that of all the cold-hearted girls in the world, Gladys Payne was the worst. But he watched her (for his party passed and was passed in turn by the Neville cutter several times) just the same, and he was almost willing to swear that he, once saw Neville kiss the girl just after they entered the shadow of the pines on the hillside. He was almost right, too, for Neville did attempt to kiss her, but was good-naturedly repulsed. It had not come to that point with Gladys, although, to be sure, Tom couldn't but think so, and it made him almost to desperation to have to sit quietly and chatter small talk to little Miss Glazer—who, by the way, was enjoying his attentions immensely. So after they had returned to the hotel, he proceeded to make a fool of himself.

Meeting Neville in the men's dressing room he hissed between his clenched teeth:

"I'll have it out with you for this, Mr. Neville."

"For what?" queried that gentleman, in his most urbane manner.

"You know, sir. Your attentions to Miss Payne are—"

"The saddest failures in life are those that come from not putting forth the power and will to succeed.—L. P. Whipple.

"Ah, indeed," quoth Mr. Neville, sneeringly. "If Miss Payne prefers my attentions to yours, it is her privilege, I believe," and he turned away with a look of supreme contempt at his jealous rival, who clenched his fists and looked, for an instant, as if he would use them, but wisely thought better of it, and walked in the other direction.

He walked straight into the presence of Mrs. Haskins, to whom he declared his intentions of refusing utterly to take any part in the tableaux or the subsequent proceedings, and to that lady's protest that it was childish he answered that such might be the case, but that he could not, in justice to himself, take part with Miss Payne in anything, and that he was going home immediately. He knew that he had mortally offended Mrs. Haskins, but that was immaterial. His sole desire was to get away from Gladys's presence, and he was resolved to get away from Millston, too, by the very first train going anywhere.

Therefore, he made his curt adieu, and hiring the care-taker's saddle horse he dashed off towards town, his whole being animated with rage and despair, and his brain filled with just that one idea—to get away as far as possible. But, by the time he had reached the top of Four-Mile mountain the chill air and the active motion of riding had calmed him somewhat, and he drew rein and looked back.

Henshi! What was that? From the roof of the hotel, from all the windows on the west side of the building, he could see, through the clear moonlight, a dense volume of smoke pouring—and, as he looked, the flames burst out in places, and angry tongues of fire shot forth here and there.

Tom Enright hesitated for one dazed second—the next he was dashing back down the road at the top of his horse's speed.

The front yard was full of people when he galloped up, but a first glance showed him no sign of Gladys.

"Where is she? Where's Gladys—Miss Payne?" he asked of those nearest him, as he leaped from his horse. And as though in response, came the wild, despairing cry:

"Tom! Tom! Save me!"

After Mrs. Haskins had announced to her the sudden departure of her jealous lover, Gladys, who had been breaking her heart all the evening, gave way utterly, and at once went upstairs to have her cry out—and there she lay, utterly oblivious of all that went on about her, until the crash of falling timbers, the crackling of flames and the smoke rushing under the door roused her from her apathy. It was too late, she thought, to escape by the door—the smoke was almost suffocating her even with the door closed—and she rushed to the window, threw it open and lifted her voice in that wild cry:

"Tom!"

What did he care for flames and smoke, or for any kind of danger, with that cry ringing in his ears? With one bound he was inside the door, and though half-blinded before he had half reached the upper hall, groped onward, trying door after door, until, at last, he found her, and she fainted in his arms. How he ever got her safely out he never knew, but got her out he did, and when she opened her eyes, half an hour later, it was to find herself on the sofa in a near-by farmhouse, with Tom's arms about her and Tom's kisses raining on her face.

"Darling!" she whispered, "do you think you can forgive me?"

"My sweetest Martha," he answered, smilingly, "I cannot tell a lie—you know I do."

She lifted her face to be kissed.

"Is the surrender unconditional?" asked Tom, presently.

"Yes, dear."

"Then," he said, proudly straightening his broad shoulders, "I have made a conquest of which the Father of His Country might be jealous—and we're much obliged, after all, aren't we to Mrs. Haskins? For, if she hadn't cast us for Martha and George, we might not—"

"Oh, yes, we would—anything but making up, for us, would be impossible, you know," she interrupted, confidently.

BOERS AND BRITONS

May Have Another Mixup in the Near Future.

A FORCE OF TWENTY THOUSAND MEN

To Be Sent to South Africa by England to Back Up Demands to Be Made by Great Britain on the Transvaal Republic.

THERE IS SOMETHING IN THE WIND. LONDON, Feb. 15.—The Anglo-Boer troubles arising from Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal, or, perhaps, from a more remote cause, do not appear likely to be settled by a mere exchange of diplomatic correspondence. On the surface all appears to be clear sailing, but it can be stated with certainty that there is something in the wind of which the general public has as yet no knowledge.

AN ARMY CORPS FOR SOUTH AFRICA. The representative of the United Press learns the war office, acting under orders from the government, has made every preparation to send an army corps of 20,000 men to South Africa. Despite the silence of the English papers and in face of possible denials, the absolute accuracy of this statement can be relied upon. The war office was consulted by the government, the week after Emperor William sent his dispatch to President Kruger, as to how long it would take

LAND A FULLY EQUIPPED ARMY IN NATAL. Plans were prepared between the war office and the admiralty, with the result that it was reported that an expedition could be ready within three months. The details of the scheme are known only to the heads of the war office and the members of the inner cabinet, but the information received by the representative of the United Press points to a large contingent being drawn from India—cavalry, artillery and infantry, including Sikhs and other native troops.

THE PROMISE OF A PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT of the Transvaal difficulty does not appear to have sufficed to induce the British government to abandon its project. Final orders for the dispatch of the troops have not yet been given, but if the present designs are carried out a full corps will be in Natal some time in May. What real use is to be made of this force can only be surmised. The conservative organ, the Globe, alone of all the newspapers, seems to have received some word of

THE GOVERNMENT'S INTENTIONS.

It argues that soft words with the Boers is a sheer waste of time. England, it declares, will only get what she wants by a display of force—not an actual collision, but a demonstration. Therefore the government must increase its force in South Africa to such an extent as to convince the government at Pretoria that neither the Boers nor the Germans will be longer allowed to prevent submission to England's demands. The Globe does not attempt to estimate what force will be required

TO OVERHAUL THE BOERS,

but says the government has not enough troops in South Africa at present to do what at any moment it may be imperatively necessary to do. The English, after their thorough defeat at Majuba Hill in 1881 had 20,000 troops opposed to the Boers, who were not at all overawed then. If to the projected expedition there should be added the existing forces in South Africa there would be of all arms combined from 25,000 to 30,000 men who could be used in

A DEMONSTRATION AGAINST THE TRANSVAAL.

The republic might, and probably would, find an ally in the Orange Free State; would receive assistance from Dutch sympathizers in Cape Colony, and would probably secure the active intervention of Europe. It would be a big job for England to make even a limited demonstration.

BROKE OFF NEGOTIATIONS.

King Menelek's Terms Not Satisfactory to Italy.

Rome, Feb. 15.—It is announced that Gen. Baratieri, commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in Abyssinia, having been authorized by the government to conclude a treaty of peace with King Menelek, sent Maj. Saloa, of the Italian army, to treat with the king. The latter demanded that the Italians abandon the positions occupied by them in Abyssinia and revise the treaty of Ucciali, excluding therefrom the provision for an Italian protectorate over Abyssinia. After receiving a report from Maj. Saloa of the terms demanded by King Menelek, Gen. Baratieri immediately broke off the negotiations.

A New British Cruiser Launched.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The new British third-class cruiser Pelorus, the construction of which was begun in the dock yards at Sheerness, on May 21, 1895, was launched. The Pelorus is designed to develop a speed of 20 knots an hour. She is 300 feet long and will carry eight four-inch guns, eight quick-firing three-pounders, two Maxim guns and two torpedo tubes.

Washee Block Dead.

WICHITA, Kas., Feb. 15.—Washee Block, one of the most noted squaws of the west, died Friday at the home of her mother, near Watonga, Okla. It was to her efforts that the people are indebted for the opening of the Indian country south and west of original Oklahoma.

William Lathrop Kingdley.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 15.—William Lathrop Kingdley, the venerable literary man, died at his home in this city Friday, after a short illness. Mr. Kingdley was one of the best known writers in New England.

A CANADIAN PRISONER.

W. R. Lingham Among the Prisoners of the Transvaal Government.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 15.—David McLaren, a millionaire lumber merchant of this city, has left for England to interview Colonial Secretary Chamberlain with a view to securing the release of W. R. Lingham, formerly of Belleville, Ont., who is now in prison at Johannesburg at the instance of the Transvaal government. Mr. McLaren believes that Mr. Lingham is the victim of a Boer conspiracy. Mr. Lingham is manager of a company which has important railway concessions in the Transvaal, and the impression prevails here that the Boer government wants to break the contract.

A TIDAL WAVE

Of Religion and Morality in Eastern Kentucky and East Tennessee.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 15.—A great religious tidal wave is spreading over eastern Kentucky and east Tennessee. From nearly every county comes news of great revivals. One just closed at Sneedville, Hancock county, Tenn., reports 200 converts. In many sections the religious fervor has run into the worst kind of fanaticism. Holiness meetings are common, men and women claiming to be sanctified and can do no sin. In this county it has taken the form of a temperance crusade.

Catholic Dignitaries at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.—Cardinal Gibbons, accompanied by Bishops Keane, of the Catholic university at Washington, and Bishop Gabriels, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., arrived here Friday, to attend the opening of the Catholic winter school. Cardinal Sallati arrived this morning.

A Trolley Car Victim.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 15.—Joseph Simpson, a ship carpenter, stepped in front of an electric motor car on his way to work, and was so badly crushed that he died while on the way to the city hospital.

IT WAS THE LAST DAY

For Payment of the First Installment on the New Bonds.

THE NEW YORK SUB-TREASURY JAMMED.

It is Said the Morgan Syndicate Have Arranged to Take All Defaults in Allotments at the Figure of Their Bid.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—This was the last day for the payment of the first installment of the new $100,000,000 four per cent. bonds of 1905 just allotted by the government. The sub-treasury, in consequence, was jammed by bond purchasers, and it was almost impossible to get into the coin room. Assistant Treasurer Jordan gave notice at an early hour that he would close the sub-treasury doors at one o'clock sharp, and that no one would be permitted to enter after that hour. Another batch of $4,000,000 of the new bonds arrived, making a total of $3,000,000 thus far received. Transactions on the board in the bonds were heavy, and one lot of $507,000 sold at 115 1/2. The Hanover national bank deposited $1,000,000 on February 8, $3,613,901. Zimmerman & Forsyth withdrew $100,000, making the total withdrawals from February 8, $3,563,800.

A Boston special states that William Graves, of New York, on Friday sold his option to take $4,500,000 new governments at 115.3391 to the City national bank for $30,000.

It is stated that the deposits of gold at the sub-treasury and the national bank depositories amount to over $55,000,000. Premiums on gold to-day were nominally 1/4 @ 1/2 per cent. Greenbacks were one-sixteenth bid, offered at one-eighth per cent.

The doors of the sub-treasury were closed promptly at one o'clock and Assistant Treasurer Jordan announced that no further business would be done. He said that if it was found that any of the bond bidders had made gold payments not up to the amount required, arrangements would be made for them to complete payment later on. It was announced on high authority that Mr. Morgan's recent visit to Washington was for the purpose of consulting with Secretary Carlisle in regard to defaults by bidders. It was arranged that Mr. Morgan should buy all the bonds not taken by bidders at the same figure, 110.6877, paid by the Morgan syndicate. The Graves combination, which bid for $4,500,000 of the new bonds, did not pay their first installment, notwithstanding the fact that treasury officials were notified that the 20 per cent. due would be turned in. At the office of J. R. Newcombs & Co., where Graves has his headquarters, it was stated that the latter had left for Washington. The amounts of the payments into the sub-treasury and national bank depositories will not be known until a late hour.

FALSE HALF EAGLES.

Sterling P. Tallard, Convicted of Having Them in His Possession.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Feb. 15.—Sterling P. Tallard was committed in the United States court here Friday on having counterfeit money in his possession. He lived in Creek nation, near the Oklahoma line, and many spurious five-dollar gold pieces were circulated in the railway camps. Suspicion rested upon him. One day a confederate of Tallard, a boy called "Red," who lived at Tallard's, went into Shawnee, Okla., and after his departure five merchants found that each had a false half eagle. Tallard's house was raided and he was captured, together with a full electroplating outfit and a quantity of metal. The moulds were not found.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

A Farmer, His Wife and a Young Girl the Victims, Near Augusta, Ky.

AUGUSTA, Ky., Feb. 15.—Robert Laughlin, a farmer, his wife and May Jones, aged 14, were brutally murdered about 4 a. m. at a small farmhouse two miles from this place. The house was set on fire and burned, together with the bodies of Mrs. Laughlin and the young girl. Laughlin's throat was cut from ear to ear, and he ran three-quarters of a mile in his night clothes when he fell dead. It is thought two men are implicated in the murder, and one is described as being about five feet nine with black whiskers and mustache. Bloodhounds will be put on their track.

THAT SOLDIER SCRAP.

It Seems Likely to Cause Trouble at Fort Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 15.—Sparry county officials arrived in Omaha Friday night with warrants to arrest all United States soldiers engaged in a prize fight in that county last Sunday. Over 100 of the privates at Fort Omaha are said to have witnessed the fight between two soldiers, who, it is alleged, fought for a purse put up by officers who were present. The post commander denies that any officers were present. A full list is in the sheriff's possession of all, but it is still kept a secret. No arrests have been made as yet, but the authorities say all will be.

STEAMER ASHORE.

The British Steamer Otranto Ashore Off Great South Beach.

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The British steamer Otranto, Capt. Hubby, which left Shields January 23 for New York, is ashore on Great South beach, near here.

The steamer Otranto lies about 200 yards from the beach, about a quarter of a mile west of the Fire Island lifesaving station. There is not much sea on, and the vessel lies dry. The crew are still aboard, but they are in no danger.

Aaron W. Fagin Dead.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 15.—Aaron W. Fagin, after a long and tedious illness, died at 1:15 a. m. at his residence in this city.

Mr. Fagin was one of the most widely known men in St. Louis, having been prominently identified with the business growth and prosperity of the city for more than half a century.

John Russell Young's Condition.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 15.—The condition of ex-Minister to China John Russell Young, who is ill at his home in this city, is slightly improved. He rested fairly well during the night. Mr. Young is suffering from quinsy and nervous prostration.

Receding Ossified.

HUDSON, Mass., Feb. 15.—Edward Forrest, whose home is in this city, is becoming ossified in his right arm. He has been so afflicted by Christmas both legs were ossified to his knees, and since then the disease has progressed as far as the hips.

COLUMBIANA, FEB. 20, 1896.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce W. A. Thompson as a candidate for re-election to the office of Treasurer of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

The Alabama Enquirer nominates Gov. Claude Matthews, of Indiana, as the next democratic candidate for president.

BIRMINGHAM did herself proud Tuesday. For a city of her size the parade was a very creditable one. A very large crowd was attracted to the city, and notwithstanding the cold weather everybody turned out. It was a great day for Birmingham.

THE Masonic fraternity of Alabama has purchased a 100-foot lot in Montgomery, for $9,750 cash, and will erect thereon without delay a handsome Masonic temple, a state home for Masons. The details of the building have not been determined, but it will be a commodious brick and stone affair, and will be constructed and occupied solely for Masonic purposes.

DR. CYRUS EDSON, of New York, has discovered a consumption cure. It is a solution of carbolic acid in water, which, instead of poisoning the patient, as carbolic acid in other forms does, poisons the consumption germs and cures the patient. The "cure" was discovered in September last; 217 persons have been treated; 26 have been cured, 67 will be cured, 4 have shown an improvement, and the remainder, 213, have been under treatment for too short a time to enable the physicians to say anything except that the patients are better.

MEMBERS of the United Confederate Veterans' Association all over the South are interested in the action of the Southern Passenger Association taken at Tampa, Florida, last week, granting a special rate to the annual re-union of the former body, which takes place this year in the city of Richmond, Va. The rate granted is one cent a mile for the round trip. The rate is considered a liberal one, and will enable a large delegation from each southern state to be in attendance at the convention.

MARY ELLEN LEASE, the Kansas stateswoman, a clear type of populist and vociferous advocate of the fancy silverisms of the day, has repented of these things and become a preacher. A recent nervous prostration was the immediate cause of her mind taking a divine turn. The departure is startling and must be true, as the news comes from Wichita. Inasmuch as Mary E. Lease has the proper oratorical voice gained by practice on the stump, her new relations to the world will doubtless prove quite pleasant. There is really nothing in populism any more, as the prosperous conditions of business and industry everywhere over the country have practically removed any cause the populists may have for continuing as a party.

THE Troy Democrat has this to say of the populist organization in a county where they now hold the offices: "So insignificant a factor in county politics are the populists that they are almost lost sight of in the canvasses, conversation and discussions participated in by people on the streets, in the court house and other public places in this country. It would seem that the last vestige of alliance, populism, Jeffersonianism, etc., had been forever wiped out of the country. The only reminder we have that they ever existed and do exist are the populist office holders in this county, and whenever the thought crosses a democrat's mind, he reiterates his oft repeated obligation, an obligation as solemn as if taken under oath, that the populists shall be turned out and no one but democrats shall fill Pike county offices."

THE report that Nansen has reached the North Pole and is on his way back is important, if true. He is as likely as anybody to have got there and as likely to get back, and there is no inherent improbability in the success of an expedition that was most carefully planned, after the suggestions of many explorers, experience, and was in entirely competent hands. Nansen has been gone nearly three years, and it is time for him to be getting back, if he is coming. But Arctic explorers are among those whom we are not to expect till we see them. Rumors do not fly fast in Siberia and there could be no news of him at all unless it were positive news. As the reports are by no means positive or definite in form we shall have to wait somewhat longer. But everybody will hope for Nansen's success. Some day somebody will achieve this goal and it may as easily be Nansen as another.

IT IS NOT TRUE.

The free silver agitators are continually ranting that the "demonitization of silver has depreciated property." The recent speech of Hon. Josiah Patterson, of Tennessee, in the house is a complete refutation of that argument. Among many other good things, he said:

"Sir, it has been stated time and again that we have had a very great appreciation of gold since 1873 and a very great decline in values. It is not my purpose to enter upon a critical discussion of this question. I propose to call the attention of the committee to one great fact in our history, which, in my judgment, refutes the proposition. It is logically and ridiculously absurd to argue that the decline in the prices of commodities brought about by the marvelous inventions and improvements of the ages is the result of the fall in the price of silver. The truth is that silver itself is a commodity, and like all other commodities under modern conditions, it can be produced at less cost than formerly, and it has declined for the same reason that wheat has declined and manufactured products has declined. But the great fact which stands out in our history is that during the very period referred to we have had marvelous accumulations of wealth in the United States. It must be conceded by every thoughtful student of the history of this country that the United States was practically on a gold standard from 1850 to 1880. Leaving out the decade in which the war took place, we had from 1870 to 1880 another period of ten years when the country was on a depreciated paper basis. Then another ten years, from 1880 to 1890, when we were admittedly on a gold standard.

"Now, Mr. Chairman, the very important fact to which I desire to call the attention of the committee is that in 1850 we had a population of 23,191,876. In 1880 it had increased to 31,443,321. In 1890 the wealth of the United States amounted to $7,135,780,228. In 1880 it had increased to $16,159,616,068. Now, during the period we had 35 per cent. increase of population and 126 per cent. increase of wealth. This was under the gold standard.

"In 1870 the population of the United States amounted to 38,558,371, and in 1880 to 50,155,783 showing 30 per cent. increase in population. In 1870 the wealth of the United States amounted to $30,078,518,507, and in 1880 amounted to $43,642,000,000, showing only 45 per cent. increase. Now, in 1890, our population amounted to 62,622,250 and our wealth to $65,037,091,197, showing an increase of wealth amounting to 49 per cent. Now, these two decades, from 1850 to 1880 and from 1880 to 1890, being the decades in which we had not only the gold standard, but the greatest public confidence in our currency, were the decades in which we have had the largest increase of wealth during our national history.

"I do not pretend to say, Mr. Chairman, that this wealth was justly or equally distributed. I contend that under the operation of unjust tariff laws and other legislation it was not distributed as it would be under just and equal laws. But this is not the fault of the currency. The currency affects alike all sections and classes of our people."

BE HAPPY.

Montgomery Folson, in the Rome Tribune. "It is the duty of every human creature to be happy. It makes no matter how heavy the cross you are called upon to bear, cultivate a happy spirit. If the way of life seems rough and rugged, Heaven is filled with happiness. Troubles are transient. Happiness endures forever. It outlives time and timely things. Like a rainbow it spans the valley of death and its farther extremity blends with the sunlight of God.

Think about it for a moment. What is the use in fretting? Life is so short, so fleeting. There are so many things to enjoy in this world. If you foot away your time with petty troubles the golden moments will glide by and leave you disconsolate. Try to live up to the requirements of every hour of your life and bind the whole together with threads of sunshine.

By being happy you make others happy. You keep the divine light of gladness glowing around you so that others may be led into hopeful ways. There is plenty of time to be happy, but no time to worry over troubles. Put them aside and laugh and be joyful. And by and by when the reaper comes, go down to the grave with a smile on your lips and a song in your heart.

Died.

Mrs. Jones, mother of Mrs. Parker and Mrs. W. H. Wimpee, died at the home of the former last Wednesday morning. She came here with Mr. and Mrs. Wimpee few weeks ago from Alabama. She was in her usual health up till two days before she died. Tuesday she complained of being unwell—but she walked from Mr. Wimpee's to Mr. Parker's, where she died Wednesday morning. She was 79 years old the day before she died. Mrs. Jones was the widow of a Methodist preacher and was a consistent church member and Christian. The remains were interred in Oak Hill cemetery Thursday morning. Rev. J. A. Stafford conducted the funeral services. To the bereaved children The Sun extends sympathy.—The Whitewright (Tex.) Sun.

To the large number of stories of the "meanest man," which are frequently related, should be added that of a certain Frenchman, famous for his habit of grumbling at everything and on every occasion. He was attacked by inflammatory rheumatism, and was very carefully nursed by his wife, who was very devoted to him in spite of his fault-finding disposition. His sufferings caused her to burst into tears sometimes as she sat by his bedside. One day a friend of this invalid came in and asked how he was getting on. "Badly, badly," he exclaimed, "and it's all my wife's fault."

"Is it possible?" asked his friend, in surprise.

"Yes," the doctor told me that humidity was bad for me, and there the woman sits and cries just to make it moist in the room."—Pearsou's Weekly.

THE GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL AT MONTEVALLO.

Staff Correspondent of Birmingham News.

The status of the Industrial School for White Girls, is just now one of waiting. Several things have arisen to delay matters, and until arrangements, now in an unfinished state, are fully consummated, little progress will be made on the erection of the buildings. This delay, however, will not defer action later than April 1st, and by that time, anyhow, there will be preparations inaugurated for the buildings and other requisites.

The principal thing now in doubt, and one that will go a long way toward the success of the enterprise, is a bill that has been introduced in congress, looking to the appropriation of 25,000 acres of mineral lands in the state for the school. The bill has been introduced by Congressman Robbins, and will receive attention in the regular run of congressional business.

H. C. Reynolds, of Montevallo, and Capt. E. W. Booker, of Shalby Springs, are in Washington, assisting in every way possible to push the measure, and as there is no opposition to the bill, as it has a number of friends, there is small doubt of its passage. Senator Morgan has promised to give the matter his personal attention and influence as soon as it reaches the senate. Another thing that is causing some delay, is an effort by the executive committee of the trustees to secure a portion of the money now available for expenses, for the building of the structures, thus augmenting the $9,000 furnished by the town of Montevallo and the county of Shelby, and thereby putting up handsome and more convenient buildings than was at first intended.

As soon as these questions are satisfactorily arranged, the trustees will hold a meeting in Birmingham and consider plans and specifications for the buildings. This department is at present under the control of Col. W. W. Wadsworth, of Wadsworth, Ala., and all matters pertaining to architecture and the erection of the property will be looked after by him personally.

The people of Montevallo are very anxious that Miss Julia Tutwiler, the principal-elect of the school, commence now giving her time and attention to the enterprise. They think that she will be able to offer suggestions and make plans that will go a long way towards pushing things along.

Work will commence April 1st on making the brick for the buildings, which will be manufactured right on the ground. The grounds will be fixed up and made ship-shape as soon as practicable, and by the time the good weather sets in there will be a lively bustle in Shelby's historic old town. The structures are expected to be up and school opened by September 1st of this year, and after getting the works in motion there will be a grand rush to the finish.

Water works will be placed in the school, as well as electric lights. The almost perpetual-motion pump, which attracted so much attention at the Atlanta exposition, will be placed in the plant, and it is calculated that a fine system of water conveyance will be attained at a small cost. The supply of water will come from the large spring at the foot of the hill which flows 1,000 gallons of water every 60 seconds.

The great advantages of this school can readily be realized when it is known that in Shelby and adjoining counties, there are over 2,600 girls who will never get a collegiate education until furnished one by such an institution as the Girl's Industrial School. Taking the territory mentioned as an example, there must be thousands of girls in Alabama who will receive instruction in the higher and most useful branches at the hands of this institution.

A Two-Sided Paper.

"Oh, woe! woe!" cried one Atlanta citizen, meeting another in the street. "The country has gone to the dogs. We are a ruined community!"

Second Citizen—"Cheer up, my friend. Things are not half so bad. Our industries are reviving; wages have been raised, the crops are good, and we are on the eve of a great big boom!"

First Citizen—"I wish I could believe it, but the proof of things being the other way is too positive. I've just been reading about it in the papers."

Second Citizen—"So have I, and I find nothing but glowing accounts of business revival."

First Citizen—"What paper have you been reading?"

Second Citizen—"The Constitution."

First Citizen—"Great Scott, and so have I!"

Second Citizen—"Yes, but you read only the editorial page. Why don't you take a squint at the news side of the paper once in awhile and brace up?"

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle. At Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Parker & Armstrong.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

Col. West, of Calera, was in the city Wednesday. Call again Colonel; your ready wit is always welcome.

Miss Earl Anchors after an extended visit to W. A. Walburn returned to her home Monday, leaving some of our boys with sad and heavy hearts. How about that J. A. F?

Mrs. J. E. Morris visited Birmingham this week.

Miss Dovie Smitherman has been quite sick for several days but we are glad to learn is now convalescent.

T. H. Reed is very much troubled about his best girl's health. Cheer up Tom, Will-Full and the doctor thinks she is on the road to improvement and that there will be no need of another doctor.

Sam Leonard, the world's famed detective of Bessemer, was in our city today, but we are very thankful that we are not in need of a detective.

A little white horse and the famous two story buggy carried one of our leading society gents and the city belle to Camp Branch parke Sunday.

We are glad to be able to recognize J. R. Wagner as a citizen of this place.

J. H. Aldridge the section foreman on the S. L. R. R. was badly hurt by being run over with the handcar last week.

Saginaw's popular nurse got his foot badly mashed in the saw mill this week.

Shelby Naish, formerly of Siluria, is now a citizen of this place.

Miss Mary, when do you and the blue cap and gold spectacles anticipate another buggy ride?

Dr. M. W. Leonard has made several desperate efforts to see his best girl, but is always defeated. We believe he would get through alright with the girl's consent as he has the gift of continuance.

The departure of some of the Saginaw girls doesn't relieve Old Grey John from carrying two as he had to perform the same task Sunday.

We learn that wedding bells will ring at the residence of Nathaniel Thomas's Sunday next. Contracting parties, Charles Frost and Mrs. Dora Phillips, Judge E. L. Fulton officiator.

Rev. Berry was in town this week. Miss Nettie Leonard visited the Misses Fultons of the Acme Hotel this week.

Wil-ful would like to know why Bob G.—is so jolly this week, we believe he has been getting letters from his sweetheart, how does that hit you Bob?

Saginaw has been well blessed with a drunken jewelry smith this week, we have not yet learned his name.

Miss Nannie Fulton will take charge of the school at Maline Monday, February 17th.

Some of the girls say that they think they would like Chas. N.—right well.

S. E. Fulton, of Blocton, spent Sunday with home folks and friends.

The S. L. Co. R. R.'s new extension has been surveyed eight miles and road located; the right of way will be cleared in a few weeks and then be graded and track laid very soon.

Superintendent Wingate is making improvements every day on the mill. There is plenty of work here and every body is contented.

The colored people of this place dedicated their church last Sunday—Methodist. Our General Manager J. E. Morris built and furnished the lumber for it and donated it to them.

Wil-ful anticipates a big time at nardi gras, next Tuesday.

Wil-ful sympathize with The Chronicle supplements and the editor, for I know what it is, I have been there.

The turkey is gobbling up here, and by the way the music rolls at Wilsonville, Wil-ful thinks they are gobbling there too.

WILL-FUL.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 120 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of the medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bellman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel P. Fitch. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitch and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Joseph T. Dorrough, Deceased, Estate Of. Probate Court of Shelby County, Alabama, February 10, 1896.

This day comes J. T. Leeper, administrator of the estate of John S. Leeper, deceased, and files his application in writing and under oath, alleging that he is a creditor of the said estate of Dorrough, and praying that an order be made removing Mrs. Lydia M. Dorrough as the administratrix of said estate from said administration, on the ground of her non-residence.

It is ordered by the court that Monday, the 9th day of March, 1896, be appointed a day for hearing said application, at which time all persons concerned may appear at my office and contest same if they see proper.

Neuralgia ATTACKS THE EYES Makes THE LIGHT Unbearable. PERMANENTLY CURED BY USING Ayer's Pills

"My husband was subject to severe attacks of neuralgia which caused him great pain and suffering. The pains were principally about his eyes, and he often had to remain in a darkened room, not being able to stand the light. Ayer's Pills being recommended, he tried them, using one before each meal. They very soon afforded relief, followed by permanent cure. I am a strong believer in the efficacy of Ayer's Pills, and would not be without them for ten times their cost."—Mrs. M. E. TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

County court will convene next Monday.

Hon. Rufus Cobb, of Helena, spent Saturday in town.

John Farrell, of beat 8, entered our public school Monday.

Mrs. W. S. DuBose left today for an extended visit to North Alabama.

Mrs. T. L. Seale left Monday for Birmingham to take in Mardi Gras.

Messrs. Williamson and Jackson, of Wilsonville, spent Sunday in our city.

Dr. Hill, an accomplished dentist of Courtland, is in town for a short time.

Hon. E. S. Lyman, of Montevallo, transacted legal business here today.

Miss Earl Anchors left Tuesday for Blount, to be absent several weeks.

The democratic county executive committee will meet here tomorrow.

Rufus Lester and W. F. Thetford, took in Mardi Gras at Birmingham Tuesday.

J. T. Leeper returned yesterday from a two weeks visit to relatives in Birmingham.

J. H. Howell moved Monday from the country into the residence of Mrs. A. E. Jackson.

Miss Galloway, of Wilsonville, was a guest of Miss Birdie Morrison Sunday and Monday.

Miss Mary Milner, of Anniston, is spending some time with her brother, W. R. A. Milner.

Misses Lula and Blossom Densler, of Wilsonville, were guests of Miss T. Hammond Sunday.

Dr. H. I. Williams moved Monday into his residence recently purchased from Mrs. McMath.

Miss Lula Bowdon, of Calera, is spending the week with her friend, Miss Emma Wilson.

The young people anticipate a very pleasant evening as the guests of Mrs. B. L. Moore this evening.

Mrs. J. G. Parker and daughter Miss Nellie, accompanied by Miss Anna Milner spent Tuesday in Birmingham.

Col. J. K. Milner, of Anniston, is in town today. He says he is selling chewing gum and axle grease mostly.

B. L. Moore is building an addition to his store to be used by the Columbian Mercantile Co., as a grocery room.

Hon. W. B. Browne was taken quite sick Sunday, and was confined to his bed several days, but we were glad to see him out again this morning.

W. W. West, editor of The Herald, New Boston, Texas, was a pleasant caller in our office Monday. He is a genial, clever gentleman, and has made a success in journalism.

A happy wedding occurred last evening at the residence of the bride's father, one mile west of this place. The contracting parties were Mr. John F. Reynolds, of Shelby, and Miss Mollie Elliott, of this place. Rev. T. M. Wilson officiating. Our very best wishes go with them.

Anna, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nelson, was born November, 13th, 1895 and died January, 15th, 1896. Her body was interred in the family burying ground near Columbian, Ala., to await the resurrection.

The sweet little one so bright and lovely has been taken home by the dear Saviour to be with the great concourse of redeemed and to be with God and the angels. She adds one more to the infant host, making Heaven more attractive to the sorrowing parents sisters and brothers. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away blessed be the name of the Lord.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. W. Black, of Oxanna, Ala., visited relatives here last week.

Dr. W. S. DuBose, of Columbiana, was in town last week.

Miss Lena Somerville is on a visit to Birmingham.

Miss Clackler, of Oxanna, visited relatives here last week.

O. J. Nix, of Louisville, Ky., was in town last week.

Miss Susie Self and Mrs. Dr. Boyer visited Columbiana last week.

J. W. Bolin made a business trip to Columbiana last week.

Tramps seem to be immigrating or perhaps they are on the track of the converted tramp that traversed this section of country not long since.

Don't desert us "Nellie Bly," we miss you very much, and it would grieve us beyond degree to know that you had.

We understand that J. C. Jackson & Sons are in the market for first class cross-ties delivered at their planing mill.

W. L. Cale, of South Alabama, is attending our excellent school. We wish him much success and extend a hearty welcome.

Say, Claude, judging from the number of comic valentines you got I think the girls must have found you represented in every one they could find.

Girls, if any of you think you are getting old too quick I would suggest that you confer with Miss Matt Densler. She seems to be quite an artist in the way of making old people look young. Our authority for this advice is due to the correct report of the desperate case she arrived at with Mr. Cleckler.

St. Valentine's day has once more come and gone, with its valentines with true sentiments and others of a more comic nature were despatched by many to their friends and sweethearts.

H. A. Jackson will soon be recorded as a world renowned trick riding bicyclist. He has about accomplished one of the most complicated feats that has ever arose in the minds of trick riders.

He was seen one morning last week riding at a very steady gait and appeared to be at all ease when all at once his body was thrown into the air his wheel taking a near cut for home was obstructed by a ditch. Mr. Jackson, as soon as his sprained joints would allow mounted his wheel and was last seen going down the ditch at a very rapid rate peddling with his hands.

The S. P. L. League met last Friday night at the residence of Mrs. Dolshines. The programme was very nicely carried out. Miss Judie Kilpatrick deserves special credit for the manner in which she delivered a very sublime recitation. The subject debated was "Be it resolved that Columbus deserves more credit for discovering America than Washington for defending it," the subject being discussed by affirmative and negative the judges rendered their decision as a tie.

Programme arranged for next meeting as follows:

Spelling match by eight members of the society.

Reading, Miss Lucy Gwin.

Music, Miss Olive Densler.

News of week, A. A. Daniel.

Debate, subject "Does the ox pull the load or push it," by four small members of the society.

A charming one of Wilsonville.

With mind so strong and bright; The prophecy of our little League, So cheerfully did write.

Be it the truth we long to see, When ere that time doth come; To see our League as it will be, When thirty years have gone.

While all these changes now in view, Would you not be surprised; If everything does not come true, That she has prophesied.

She also speaks of Wilsonville, Its treats so nice and fine; And all improvements of the day, Will thus be here combined.

How we rejoice of this our town, With prophets two herein; And others here of great renown, Will later on begin.

Long may their honored work go on, Pleading to us before; Until these things have all been done, Then prophecy no more.

LIFE SAVED BY
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Seven years ago, my wife had a severe attack of lung trouble which the physicians pronounced consumption. The cough was extremely distressing, especially at night, and was frequently attended with the spitting of blood. The doctors being unable to help her, I induced her to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was surprised at the great relief it gave. Before using one whole bottle, she was cured, so that now she is quite strong and healthy. That this medicine saved my wife's life, I have not the least doubt."—K. MORRIS, Memphis, Tenn.

Prosperous Farmers.

Yankton Press and Dakotian. In Yankton County, South Dakota, there are at least one thousand farmers who came here poor as the proverbial turkey of Job, and who today count their worldly possessions by thousands. Many of them started in with a house full of soil, and almost empty hands so far as horses and cattle go. Today they occupy fine dwelling houses, have large barns, fine horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, granaries filled with grain, fruit orchards, and money in hand. We mention this to show that South Dakota farmers are the prosperous class. Prosperity is the rule—not the exception. With fair prices for grain and live stock they would be rolling in wealth. Prices, however, have nothing to do with the fertility of the soil and the favorable character of the climate. These natural advantages are here to stay and assure prosperity to the farming classes. A copy of an illustrated pamphlet on "Irrigation in South Dakota," just issued by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, can be had by addressing W. E. Foyell, General Immigration Agent, Chicago, Ill.

NERVOUS

People wonder why their nerves are so weak; why they get tired so easily; why they do not sleep naturally; why they have frequent headaches, indigestion and nervous dyspepsia. The explanation is simple. It is found in that impure blood feeding the nerves on refuse instead of the elements of strength and vigor. Opium and nerve compounds simply deaden and do not cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla feeds the nerves pure, rich blood; gives natural sleep, perfect digestion, is the true remedy for all nervous troubles.

SQUIRE RUFUS SANDERS.

Sage of Rocky Creek Has a High-Heel Time in Town.

"His and Mother" in a City Church—They Also See the Play—Some "Green Goods" from Town—Dead Oodles of Eggs.

To look at me from long taw you may be thought not think but I ain't no natural—born country idiot—not by a whole tremendous big lot. If you was to look rale close you might find the dew-drops in my wrinkles and the hayseed in my hair. But I know plenty of town people, and as to that, I have stayed in town a right smart myself. It wouldn't be plum square and honest for me to make out like I have lived in town and caught the town lick, with all the frills and trimmings, but I have been there, and whilst I was there I stayed there to the best of my ability.

They Went to Church in Town. Once upon a time me and mother got rich and reckless, as it were, and went up to the state fair to see the marvelous sights we had read about, which didn't come to pass. Then little Steve Cowlin—which he is now runnin' of a big bank in town, but was fetched up plain and honest as other boys in the Rocky Creek settlement—nothin' would do Steve and his folks but that me and mother must go and stay with them as long as we could. So we took out and put up and tarried and remained over with them a right good while. Steve loved it was worth four bits a day to hear me laugh and talk and see me eat, and he wanted us to hang up our duds and stay till next spring. If it was so I had to stay in town, I would rather put up with Steve Cowlin than any livin' man. I know Steve and Steve he knows me, with all my weak pints and wimmin ways.

But now presently, in the run of time, things got to comin' too scandalous thick and fast and furious to suit me. The next Sunday me and mother we lit out and went to church as usual, but it makes me smile all over myself till yet to think of the curious capers we must of cut amongst all the finery and confusion in that city church. As we went in the organ grinder turned loose with some of the gonestest, most soloncholy music I had ever saw. Hanged if it didn't make me feel all over in spots as big as a bed quilt.

Naturally of course I was headed for my regular place in the amen corner, and walkin' as high and awkward I reckon was a bald and calf in tall oats, but mother was so nervous and kitchish till we had to turn in and take a seat. The first chance we got. And then bless gracious it come to pass that we had took another man's bench, and the general boss of the meetin' come around and moved us into a back seat. That went powerful across the grain with me, and I wanted to say somethin' in plain United States so bad till I could taste it, but I was tongue-tied then. I always did get tongue-tied in church, and I had a mighty bad case of it that day. It is a disease that naturally runs in the Sanders family when they go to church, and I am rale glad of it.

Now in regards to religion—I reckon we had as much when we got back as we had when we started. I didn't sing narry lick, and mother couldn't even remember the text. Religion is somethin' that you feel and don't see, and it aint for me or any other mortal man to say which is which and who is who as to them that have got it. But it raley didn't seem to me like it was doatin' round about that day so thick till you could hit it with a stick. The preacher give out one song which started off to wit:

"Let them refuse to sing Who never knew their God."

And of all that tremendous big congregation, blained if everybody didn't refuse exceptin' a little crowd up in the loft with the organ and a few scatterin' voices in the amen corner.

"They don't run their church business on any such narrow contracted plans as that over at Cool Springs and Park Log and Pilgrim's Rest, do they, mother?" says I, when finally at last the meetin' broke up. "Everything is free down there. Salvation is free, and religion is free, and singin' is free, and the benches are free, and the people are free."

A Night at the Play. One night Steve bought the tickets and took me and mother to see a show. That was one time when we had paid seats, and by gittins we took 'em way up there in the front row. But I got so foam in mad that night—first one thing and then another—I can't recollect very much for certain about the show.

At any rate, it was one of these powerful humblike and stirrin' plays, and everything was so natural till I couldn't always keep in mind the general circumference of the surroundings. At one place the mainest lady in the play got terrible heart broke and put out on account of a lost handkerchief, which it seems like her husband had give her, and which his mother had give to him for luck. The lady she was cryin' and goin' on in such a movin' way, and callin' for the handkerchief so pitiful and constant till by gum I couldn't stand it no longer. I riz up, I did, right then and there and told the lady I would loan her my bandana, which no sooner said than done I went down into my pocket and came forth with it.

To be certain I didn't mean no harm, but me and my old red rag came mighty high bustin' up the play. About that time the general crowd must of sav somethin' funny somewhere along the line. They whooped and hollered, and went on at such a scandalous rate till presently a box-anthel policeman come around and asked if I didn't see down and behave myself he would put me out. But I want at church that night, you understand, and I told him as near as I could to go to that foreign country where they don't have to wear overcoats or shovel any snow to speak of. By this time I had climbed out of my coat and was ready to make doll rags and savage meat out of him, when mother she turned loose and fainted and fell over in it. And about that time Steve he come into the game and cut the pot, as it were, and me and him and mother went on home. It was way past bedtime anyhow, and I didn't give a cent's worth to stay and see the play out. After that I never could hear how the lady in the play come out with regards to that lost handkerchief. But it went natural for a thoroughbred southern gentleman to set there like a fool, whilst a lady was sheddin' tears as big as glass marbles, and nothin' to catch em in.

So it come to pass the very next day that me and mother packed up our duds and come on back home to Rocky Creek, which fits my hand a whole lot more better. There is plenty of elbow room and hand room down here, and if I put my feet on the mantelpiece and spit in the fire—that's my business.

Green Goods from Town. But whilst it may be that I am right tolerable green myself, in my day and generation I have seen plenty of green goods that come fresh from town. A stranger come through the settlement last year hailin' from Saint Louis and put up for a few days at our house. He was doctorin' on people's eyes and peddlin' specks. He never had seen any cotton growin' till he come down in this country, and it was a plum show to him. One day he went and pulled a whole passle of green balls and put em in water to make em open, when the blamdest biggest and blainest idiot in this country would know better than that. He wanted to see them "blooms" and "mature," as he put it, and in less than three days the last one of em had merroted. And then I told him if he would pull a few more and hang em up in a dry place they would soon bust open.

There was a town girl that come down here last summer and took board with us for a few weeks. She was rale smart in books, and she was as pretty as red shoes and striped stockings and blue garters. Naturally of course I could help from thinkin' a great pile of her, but in regards to country people and country life and country things in general she was so all-fired green till blained if you couldn't mighty nigh scrape it off with a splinter. She would down to the cowpen with me one day, and what do you reckon? By gracious! she wanted to know which one of our cows give sweet milk and which one give buttermilk, and which one give the natural butter. I told her it didn't come exactly that way, but that all the cows give sweet milk in the morning and buttermilk at noon and butter at night. She was ever so much obliged, she said, and thanked me kindly for throwin' new light on the great question of cows.

Dead Oodles of Eggs. Along in the spring some three or four years ago, if I riteollect right, a stranger come down into this pleasant stry of country, which he give his name as Maj. Hinton, from New York. He lit right in and bought up three forties of land over there close to the railroad station, and soon put it out that he was goin' to start a tremendous big chicken farm. The major was what you might call a high stepper and a fast mover, and he made out like he would go all the gaits and stand hitched. And when it come to chickens—well, the major he was right there. To hear him tell it, he had already forgot more about chickens than the old woman knowed which put the first settin' of eggs under a speckled hen. He pitched in and bought him a thunderin' big double-enter hatchin' machine, which the people come in for 40 miles around to see it. Then he took a spring wagon he did, and lit out through the country and bought up 300 hens, but narry rooster.

As to me, I never had raised no chickens, you understand, cause that is mother's branch of the business, and I didn't know for certain but what the major could take the hens and let em lay eggs and put em in his new-fangled hatchin' machine and bring forth a crop of chickens.

"I reckon maybe the major will have dead oodles of eggs," says mother to me when I told her what was goin' on over at the ranch, "but I will promise to eat all of his young chickens—single-handed and alone—feet, feathers and all."

And as usual mother was plum right about it. The major he had dead oodles of eggs—eggs to eat and eggs to throw away—but narry egg to hatch. Along in the summer the colery got in amongst his doves, and when he wound up the business that fall he didn't have a blame thing left but thirteen old hens worth two bits apiece, and a hatchin' machine that cost a hundred dollars.

I know that will sound powerful strange and pecurious to some people, but if it aint the naked, unwashed truth, then mother is a widdier and I aint married. RUFUS SANDERS.

Admiral Jervis and Capt. Hallowell.

At 6:30, it being then daylight, the leading British ship, the Colleen, 74, reported five sail to the southward and westward, and a small sloop of war was sent ahead to reconnoiter, the fleet proceeding under moderate canvas. As it advanced, and more and more enemies loomed up out of the haze, the customary reports succeeded one another in monotonous yet somewhat exciting rotation. "There are eight sail of the line, Sir John." "Very well, sir." "There are 20 sail of the line, Sir John." "Very well, sir." "There are 25 sail of the line, Sir John." "Very well, sir." The admiral had by this time been joined by Capt. Hallowell, an officer of very distinguished merit, but of eccentric character. His ship had been lost during his temporary absence on other duty two months before, and he was now present only as a passenger. When the final report of 27 ships was made, the admiral's chief of staff ventured a remonstrance on the inequality of force. "Enough of that, sir," retorted the admiral. "If there are 50 sail, I will go through them." Jervis was not a man with whom liberties could well be taken, but Hallowell was not to be restrained. "That's right, Sir John!" cried he, patting him on the back; "and by —, we'll give them a—d good licking!"—Capt. A. T. Mahan, in Century.

Decision in Favor of the De Long Hook and Eye.

Judge Acheson, in the United States Circuit Court at Pittsburgh, has just rendered, in the case of Richardson & De Long Brothers vs. Campbell & Smith, an important decision of great interest, sustaining letters patent owned by Richardson & De Long Brothers, which were granted to Frank E. De Long for a humped look and eye, and enjoining the defendants from selling the "Golden Spring" hooks and eyes.

The hooks dealt in by the defendants were manufactured by the Golden Spring Hook and Eye Company of Springfield, Mass. In these hooks the positions of the straight and curved portions of the De Long hook were reversed. The court held that this did not void infringement, and directed a decree to be entered for the plaintiffs.

The case, which was a test one of great importance, was contested at great length, and has been pending for almost two years.

Messrs. Richardson & De Long Brothers were represented by Messrs. Strawbridge & Taylor, Bradbury Deland, and John G. Johnson, of Philadelphia, and Frederick P. Fish, of Boston, and the defendants by Messrs. Allan Webster and William L. Pierce.—N. Y. Times, February 3, 1896.

AMERICA'S GREATEST SEED GROWERS.

Thirty years ago when the Salzers were conducting in a small but profitable way, a market garden and green house business in La Crosse, Wis., they little dreamed that within a third of a century they would be the leaders in the seed-growing and seed-selling industry of America. The secret of this phenomenal success was quality, liberality, push. Nothing in the world advertises itself quicker and better, and more lasting than quality and to the superior merit of Salzer's northern grown seeds; to their unusual life and vigor and to their absolute surety of growth, in conjunction with their great producing quantities, and this coupled with the great liberality of the firm in the way of rare and many extras to their order and push back of all, has placed the firm in the van and entitled them to the proud distinction of America's greatest seed growers! The production of rare vegetable sorts and new farm seeds has long been a great specialty with this company, owning and operating many thousands of acres of land. Their great eight hundred acre farm in South Dakota was visited by thousands interested in higher farming, and all rail roads gave half-fare rate within the state to any wishing to see the farm. The Salzers pay great attention to the new grasses, clovers and fodder plants, and their catalogue contains the largest list of rare farm seeds found in America.

A strong point of the John A. Salzer Seed Co. is that they keep large stocks of everything in the seed line on hand, so that a customer ordering them is always sure of getting what he orders. A slight idea of the magnitude of the firm's business can be gathered when they issue probably the largest number of catalogues of any American firm; that they use over $50,000 postage a year, employ in the packing and distributing of their seeds upwards of six hundred hands and require for their distributing warehouse over ten acres of floor room.

A five cent postage stamp sent to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., will bring you their great catalogue. It weighs but 15 pounds, holds a capacity of 30 eggs, and while not a toy, is just as amusing, besides being instructive as well.

Mr. Geo. H. Stahl, Quincy, Ill., writes for a copy of his handsome little booklet "K," describing the "Wooden Hen," also his large catalogue of the Model Excelsior Incubator. All sent free. Mention this paper.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

ABOUT THE FARM.

Milk will absorb odors more freely when cold than when warm, and for that reason close attention to details is as necessary in winter as in summer. Horses may be cheap now, but the fact that farmers are abandoning the raising of colts should be evidence that a time will arrive when horses will be more in demand and prices higher. Keep a supply of charcoal where the pigs can help themselves. It is important that the charcoal be freshly burned. This may be done by simply allowing it to become heated before being placed in the pig pen.

It costs more to feed ducklings than chicks, but the ducklings will grow twice as fast. A duckling of the Pekin breed should weigh five pounds when ten weeks old, while a chick of the same age will seldom reach two pounds.

Of all the flowers none will return greater satisfaction for trouble and expense than the gladiolus, and yet they are not common in our gardens. The bulbs take up so little space and the bloom is magnificent. The flowers come soon and succeed each other for months.

It is always wise to keep some form of mulch about the roots of bearing trees, rather than let soil form about them to choke and rob them. Even cut the weeds about the neighboring fields and place around their bases, or give them a share of the manure from the stables.

MUSICAL NOTATIONS.

Sarasate, the violinist, is remarkably simple in his manner of life. Though his apartments in London are magnificent, his food is always of the most homely kind, no better than that of a peasant.

Hans von Bulow, while conducting a concert, was much annoyed at the noise by some ladies in the audience. At last he could stand it no longer, and tapping for silence, he turned to the audience and said: "Remember, ladies, you are not saving Rome."

Baron Achille Paganini, only son of the famous violinist, died recently at Parma. He was a good amateur musician but was left too rich by his father to take up a profession. By direct appeal to Pope Pius IX, he obtained permission to have his father, who died without the sacraments, buried in consecrated ground in his native town.

COME WEST FOR YOUR SEED. That's what we say, because it's the best. Salzer's Wisconsin grown seeds are bred to earliness and produce the earliest vegetables in the world. THE CHRONICLE

G. C. DuBOISE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, FEB. 27, 1890.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce W. A. Thompson as a candidate for re-election to the office of Treasurer of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR TAX COLLECTOR.

The friends of W. L. Davis authorize The Chronicle to announce him as a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Shelby county, subject to the action of the county democratic convention.

GROVER'S PURPOSE.

Mr. Wellman, the correspondent at Washington of the Chicago Times Herald, says in a letter to his paper, that Mr. Cleveland will lead a fight in the Chicago convention for a sound money section in the platform. "No thick-and-thin utterances, no straddles of any kind, meet with favor in his eyes; and he will also oppose the nomination of any trimmer at the head of the ticket. With such a platform and such a candidate he believes the democrats may win, as the republicans are determined to temporize."

Commenting on Mr. Cleveland's policy, the Chattanooga Times says: Mr. Wellman quotes from discussions of the subject the President has had with his friends, to show that the presidential mind is fully and finally made up.

We hope it is true, and Wellman's remarkable aptness to hit things right inclines us to believe in this story. If Cleveland shall succeed, he will give his party a chance to win. If he fails he will still have vindicated his courage and testified his regard for the democracy, that has so signally honored him, and whose honor and success he has so close to his heart. The party, this year, that should display the courage to declare, without equivocation, for sound money, honest taxation; against trusts and combines and for complete civil service reform, would capture the country in November.

Cleveland can carry such a declaration through the convention, if any man can. His effort would have, no trace of personal interest about it, for his public political life will close on the fourth of next March.

And the fact that his work would be absolutely unselfish must give it much additional strength. We hope Mr. Cleveland may succeed in rounding off his remarkable career as a public man, with the achievement of this grand and glorious service, for his party and his country.

DIRTY FEET AND POOR HEALTH.

Dr. Horatio S. Brewer writes the Medical World: A patient of mine suggested to me that if I washed my feet every night in warm water and dashed them into a cold bath afterward I would find my rheumatic troubles relieved.

Now, once a week I have been accustomed to bathe my feet and considered I was an average clean person. By following out the advice I find that it has greatly assisted in relieving myself of periodical attacks of migraine, and for a wonder it has greatly helped an acidity of the stomach which afflicted me very much. He claims (being an electrician) that man requires to come in contact with the earth, and that incrustations on the feet become non-conductors of electricity. He eschews rubbers, and cites statistics to prove that people who go the nearest barefooted are more rugged and exempt from colds.

Rubbers make one feel uncomfortable, and what a relief it is to let the cold air play on one's feet after being closed up in air-tight covering all day. Is it possible that dirty feet produce or aggravate migraine?

He claims an exemption from rheumatism to those who will go barefooted and follow out his doctrine, for I have seen him wade in the snow barefooted. He may have borrowed the suggestion from the priest who claims to cure all diseases by walking on ice or in snow.

In these days of artificial heat, food and vitiated atmosphere, it is a great wonder there is no greater mortality than there is.

A RESULT OF THE ALLIANCE CRAZE.

From the Mobile Register.

A writer living in Chicora, Miss., has written to the Washington County News relating what he believes is the true story of the effect of the alliance craze of a few years ago. Some person has expressed regret that many young men are found in the lumber camps who ought to be working on the farms. The writer declares, however, that the word "ought" cannot be properly used in this connection, because the boys have no alternative. Necessity has driven them into the camps, a necessity which is directly the outgrowth of the alliance craze. The case is very strongly put, as follows: "Before the farmers alliance was introduced into this country, this condition of affairs did not so universally exist, and the credit system, which has been so much abused, was in vogue. A young man in those times with any integrity and industry could find some one with confidence enough in him to supply the necessities for making a little cotton or other produce by which he could get a start in life. During the life of the alliance, the fathers of some of these young men were either off at an alliance meeting or away off ten or twelve miles on the plough nag to hear some sap-head speak, or the forks of the road discussing money matters with other fathers, while the family was at home battling with the wolf. These things went on from bad to worse until some action was imperative with the young men. The alliance was the cause of all these things; it almost ruined the country. I can testify that there are young men here and at other public works, who came without a change of clothes, and are now well clad, look well, have paid their debts and have money in their pockets; at any rate they will leave out of debt and with respectable clothes on their backs."

He adds: "Don't blame the young men. Go to the heads of the families. There is where this evil originated."

We presume that these "heads of families," if they will be honest with themselves, will say that there is much truth in the charge. They have wasted the substance of life in chasing a shadow. What have they in return for the time they devoted to politics? What have they to show for it? They may claim that they would have done something had their state candidates been elected and inducted into office. Is that proved? Does not the history of affairs in counties where they have had control prove the contrary? It is a hard lesson, but it has to be learned namely, that the only thing the citizen can get out of the ballot box is the right to earn a living. When anything more than this is promised it is with the intent to deceive, and the man who believes the promise and spends his time trying to elect the maker of the promise will invariably find himself the poorer when the account is made up. This is the theory. The writer from Chicora shows us how it works out in practice.

Center Institute Items.

The measles is running down.

There is some whooping-cough in this community.

Oat sowing and fighting fire is the order of the day here.

Mr. J. B. Nivens and Mrs. J. F. Crane are very low at this writing.

Marshal Inzer and family left here for his home in St. Clair county a few days ago, having with him his sick child who is in a critical condition.

M. W. Cheser and family have returned from Texas back to their old home, and say they will make their old home their future home.

Robert Blackerby can be found at any and all times around the cradle, and he says it is a red-headed girl and weighs 94 pounds.

MARRIED.—At the residence of the bride's father, W. C. Wilder, on the 19th inst., L. B. Foust, of Camp Branch, to Miss Lizzie Wilder, Rev. Mr. Berry, of Pelham, officiating. Miss Lizzie is one of Yellow Leaf's fairest belles. Tim congratulates Mr. Foust for winning such a girl as Miss Lizzie. Mr. A. C. Wilder and Miss Luna Jackson accompanied the happy couple to their home on Camp Branch, and report having a nice time. Tim wishes the new couple a long, happy and prosperous life.

DIED.—A few days ago, Mrs. Mary Messer, aged 45 years. As she had been sick a long time, her death was not unexpected. She had lived a christian life from an early age. She leaves a husband and three little children, a brother and sister, and an aged mother 80 years old; a large connection and a host of friends to mourn her loss. The community extends their sympathies to the bereaved family.

TIM.

DIED.—On the night of the 21st of Feb., 1890, little Etta Robinson, daughter of A. F. Robinson, aged 10 years. The entire community extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved parents.

Knights of the Maccabees.

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail."—Signed F. W. Stevens, State Com. Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and bottles are free at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Wilsonville Waifs.

O. J. Nix, of Louisville, Ky., was in town last week.

Mr. Fellows, representing the Nicola Bros. Lumber Co., of Pittsburg, Pa., was in town Friday.

Will Tinney and brother, Oscar spent several days in Columbiana last week.

J. F. Pope made a business trip to Vincent and Columbiana last week.

J. H. Mason and family have returned to their old home in Choudrou, La.

On account of bad roads the charcoal business at Bolin's will be suspended for the present. Coal heretofore shipped from there will go to Nelson's.

Superintendent Frazier, of the Southern, passed through our city Friday evening.

Sam Shaw has returned from quite an extensive trip over the state, buying and selling cattle.

Mr. Tom Martin, of Harpersville, was in town last week.

A wild-cat still was run into near here last week. The still was quite a wreck after the officers had completed their work. A large amount of liquor was also destroyed.

Burglars attempted to enter the residence of J. M. Ray Thursday night last, but were frightened away by Jno. Tinney, who let his joys be known when he heard them trying to get into his room.

Politics is raging again. Butch, Jr., would say "look more closely to home affairs and let politics run itself for a season."

Messrs. Will Tinney and Jack Taylor, accompanied by quite a crowd of girls, indulged in a jolly good ride on Sunday afternoon.

Our ball ground is being fenced and will be in cultivation this season. Boys, we must secure another ground, and play ball.

The S. P. L. League will meet Friday night at the residence of W. S. Gwin. We anticipate a pleasant evening.

The trick-riding of H. A. Jackson is attracting much attention. Be patient, girls, after sufficient practice he will again appear before the public.

Quite an addition has been made to the usual prayer-meeting services in the way of a query box on theological themes. We hope this will induce the young people to take a more active part in the prayer-meetings.

E. Williamson is growing his first moustache. His future prospects for being a handsome man depend altogether upon the manner in which he trains it. Be careful, deal gently and give them the proper twist, old boy, and you will succeed in having a lovely moustache ten years hence.

C. Butler is preparing to make a more complete line of lumber by adding to his present machinery a planing-mill, also preparing to dry his lumber so as to be able to meet any orders in the yellow pine lumber manufacturer's line of business. Butch, Jr., presents his best wishes as to his future success.

Oh lovely pansy where hast thou been,
During these cold and wintry days;
Your blooming face I have not seen,
Since many weeks have passed away.

How did'st thou live those frosty nights,
That on the earth so white o'ercast;
No other pansies are in sight,
But you alone have come at last.

You thus escaped the snow and ice,
That withered all other flowers;
By your wise thoughts you lived so nice,
While blooming in the garden bowers.

How you thus kept your pleasing looks,
Through often freezing toil and strife;
'Tis but to you I like a book,
The art of living a winter life.

This art of course I cannot learn,
But winter now is almost o'er;
One "pansy" blossom I could earn,
I then would happy say no more.

We must see pansy ev'ry week,
When 'ere our lovely Spring doth come;
And then the blossoms we will seek,
'Till "pansy" blossoms are all gone.

'Tis only a pansy blossom,
'Twas only a withered flower;
But yet to me far dearer,
Than all the world's great power.

Bringing me back to June time,
Of a Summer long ago;
The fairest sweetest flower,
That ever I did know."

The measles which has been raging in this vicinity for quite a while has about subsided.

We have had some real cold weather lately, but since the cold weather a shower of rain has stopped some dangerous fires that have been raging out in the pine woods, and occasionally creeping up on fences in many places, have burned the fences down in some places.

Mrs. G. H. Moore is now very low. She has passed her three score and ten, and, in her present condition, cannot live long.

MARRIED.—At the bride's home on Wednesday Feb. 19, at 11:30 a. m., Miss Lizzie Wilder and Mr. L. B. Foust, Rev. Mr. Berry, of Pelham, Ala., officiating. After a nice dinner was served at the bride's home, the happy couple, accompanied by Miss Luna Jackson and Mr. A. C. Wilder and others that came up with Mr. Foust, took their departure for the groom's home, near Longview, Ala., and to the reception given by the groom's parents that night.

Hurrah for Clark. Give us a free ballot and a fair count and we will elect him.

Success to THE CHRONICLE and its many readers.

Items from Creswell.

(Received too late for last issue.)

Mr. Editor.—You or some one else got part of my letter of last week in quite a tangle, but I did not get very angry after I noticed your CHRONICLE family had the whooping-cough and you were losing so much sleep. You have my sympathy and best wishes for their early recovery. I imagine "Jake, or brother DuBose," would have to get up and hustle to get anything to compare with the fellow moving, as printed in my last week's communication. Instead of him being "heart-broken the second morning," and moving "10,300,104" times, I said I would venture he had broken the record by moving one hundred and three or one hundred and four times. This will give you a better chance for the treat, and if you can beat it, I would like to hear from you. And instead of him being heart-broken, he broke the hearts of some of our farmers (as he came here and put in to make a crop), and after getting considerably in debt he gave them the "g. b." One of our young men says it is about as severe on his pocket as it is on his heart.

DIED.—On Thursday last, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bazemore. It was taken sick Wednesday night and died Thursday afternoon. Measles is said to be the cause. They have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

Miss Willie Lipsey is expected to visit in this community the last of the week.

Miss Jennie Cosper, of Cobb, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Belle Chancellor, for several days.

Mr. G. W. Wallis went to Talladega on business Monday.

It is talked about that C. H. Burroughs, by the use of a mineral rod, found $2,800 a few weeks ago buried among some rocks in a swamp below here.

The valentine party at Mr. Lowe's last Friday night was an enjoyable occasion for all. Also on the following night at Mr. Ingram's. The following were visitors: R. M. and Miss Anna Speer, Stewartsville; Misses Mattie and Classie Lowe, Kelley's Creek; E. E. Wallis, Redding; Tom Glen, Argo. They have a hearty welcome in our midst and we hope to see their smiling faces with us again soon. There was some drinking, but not enough to interfere with the enjoyment of the occasion. We are proud of the boldness and courage of some of the most worthy young ladies in the matter of this whisky drinking. May they be so successful that it will influence every young man to quit drinking on such occasions, if not altogether. Girls, press forward in the good work and let us have decency when we assemble ourselves together.

"Tell me I hate the bowl—
Hate is a feeble word;
I loathe, abhor, my very soul
With strong disgust is stirred
When 'ere I see, or hear, or tell

Wilsonville Warblings.

Spring gardening has begun.

Mr. J. F. Pope attended the democratic meeting of the executive committee in Columbiana Friday.

Dr. Lightcap, of Talladega, has been spending a few days in our little town, setting our teeth in order. Doctor, your genial face is always welcome.

Some attraction led Messrs. W. J. and O. W. Tinney to Columbiana last week.

The heater for the new school room has at last arrived, to the delight of both teacher and pupils.

We hear that Miss Cora Smith is expected home in a few days. How glad we will all be to see her.

Miss Rosa Graham, who has been visiting relatives in Birmingham, returned home last week.

Rev. J. M. McCord filled his regular appointment here Sunday morning and night. His new study is telling on him already. His sermons were most excellent.

Miss Blossom Densler spent several days with friends in Columbiana last week, and reports a most delightful time.

We certainly are very proud of our poets and also our prophet and prophetess. Wilsonville's social purity league is developing some brilliant talent.

The "Earnest Workers" met last Sunday afternoon at the Baptist church. Quite a crowd attended and heard a very interesting talk by our pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McGowen, of Nelson's Switch, spent a few days last week with their brother, Mr. G. W. McGowen.

Messrs. Taylor and Tinney were strictly "in the ring" last Sunday afternoon. They gave a crowd of girls a most delightful ride in the "city" hack with their handsome steed.

For Sale.—A pair of fine coal black horses, without money and without price—provided, however, that the owners are accepted with them. Girls, don't all bid at once for fear of confusion.

Probate Notice.

Joseph T. Dorrough, Deceased, Estate Of. Probate Court of Shelby County, Alabama, February 10, 1890.

This day comes J. T. Leeper, administrator of the estate of John S. Leeper, deceased, and files his application in writing and under oath, alleging that he is a creditor of the said estate of Dorrough, and praying that an order be made removing Mrs. Lydia M. Dorrough as the administratrix of said estate from said administration, on the ground of her non-residence.

It is ordered by the court that Monday, the 9th of March, 1890, be appointed a day for hearing said application, at which time all persons concerned may appear at my office and contest same if they see proper.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Robert Bowdon, of Calera, spent Sunday in town.

Dr. T. G. Nelson, of Harpersville, spent yesterday in town.

County court convened Monday, and is still busy gridding out justice.

Claude Duran, of Calera, visited his grandmother, Mrs. Nelson, Sunday.

Miss Jessie Carter, of Shelby, is a guest of Miss Leila Parker this week.

Mrs. T. L. Seale and Mrs. H. S. Nelson visited friends in Avondale last week.

J. D. Harris and Isaac Woods spent Sunday with relatives near Talladega Springs.

Louis Bowdon, of Montevallo, came up Sunday, on a visit to friends, we suppose.

G. W. Shaw, of Pelham, called on us Monday and subscribed for The Chronicle.

D. M. Merrell, of near Farmer, had his name placed on our subscription list Tuesday.

Miss Addie Cronwell returned home Saturday from a visit to relatives and friends in Shelby.

Miss Pearl Seale and James Dyke visited friends and relatives west of Mt. Olive Sunday.

Misses Alma Duran and Florence Saunders, of Calera, were guests of friends here Sunday.

E. D. Hall is building a neat cottage dwelling on West College street, out near Mr. Tallant's home.

W. S. Cary, Esq., one of Montevallo's most progressive lawyers, was in our city Monday and Tuesday.

One of our fair belles was made happy by the presence of Capt. John Mosely, of Shelby, Sunday.

Messrs. E. Williamson and W. R. Smith, two prominent young Wilsonvillians, were in town yesterday.

Miss Eloise Bell, one of Shelby's most accomplished and lovable young ladies, spent this forenoon with friends here.

Dr. D. O. Mosely, of Perryville, this state, spent several days of last week here, which was for many years his home.

W. F. Adams, a substantial farmer of beat 8, gave us a pleasant call, and renewed his subscription to The Chronicle.

The Columbiana Mercantile Company tells us to tell you that they will sell you 104 yards best Sea Island Domestic for one dollar.

The pretty weather of the past few days has started a boom in the gardening line. A fine crop of blistered hands has been reaped already.

Miss Blossom Densler, one of the prettiest young ladies of Wilsonville, was a guest of her friend, Miss T. Hammond, from Friday until Sunday afternoon.

Maynard Pond, of Shelby Springs, was an appreciated caller in our office Saturday. He gave us a dollar, and had his name added to our rapidly growing list.

A gentleman who lives only a few miles east of Columbiana walked into a store here the other day and enquired of the young lady clerk: "Have you any colored lady's hose?"

The first leap year party of the season came off last evening at the residence of Rufus Lester. A large number of young people attended, and a jolly good time was the result.

G. H. Butler, traveling evangelist and street preacher, spent several days in this neighborhood last week. He is a forcible speaker, and made a favorable impression upon those who heard him.

Capt. W. H. Bell and P. B. Harrell, of Shelby, concluded a few days since to go on a deer hunt, and they did so, but got tangled up in the woods, and when last heard from they were spending the night with D. M. Merrell. They evidently need a compass.

The Columbiana Mercantile Company find it is too late to change their ad for this issue, but they are anxious for the ladies to know that they received yesterday a large shipment of henriettas, dress silks, trimmings, white goods, etc. Call and see these beautiful goods.

In another column will be found the announcement of W. L. Davis, who aspires to the office of tax collector of this county. Mr. Davis is well and favorably known in nearly every beat in the county. He has always been a staunch democrat, and is a thoroughly worthy and competent man. He is a christian gentleman.

A telegram received here yesterday imparted the sad news that C. P. Caldwell, who was reared in this community, was very low, and little hopes were entertained of his recovery. It is painful to think of a young man of such bright promise being cut down so suddenly, but his Maker knows best and we submit to his decree.

The proceedings of the county democratic executive committee will be found in this issue. The meeting was very well attended, and harmony and unity of purpose characterized their labors in the interest of democracy pure and unadulterated. Chairman Martin has a strong team, and he handles the ribbons after the most approved fashion.

Revenue officers have been making the paths of the whisky ring very thorny around this place for the past few days. They made a handsome haul out near Browning's mill capturing Wm. Strain, Sr., and son Wm. Strain, Jr. They found a copper still and about 1000 gallons of beer, which they destroyed. Since they have arrested Henry Norris, Frank Brown and E. W. Bell, charged with selling whisky and bitters. Moral: Don't monkey with the buzz saw.

Come Home.

J. H. Mason and family left Wilsonville last Wednesday for their old home in Louisiana. After inhaling the life giving air of Shelby for a brief time, they decided to once more imbed the malaria of the old Pelican State. Oh, you may speak of your dollars and cents, my brother, you may boast of your tropical clime, but three things Shelby is proud of, pure air, pure water and pine. God bless Shelby.

PROCEEDINGS

Of the Democratic Executive Committee.

Pursuant to call of the chairman, the Democratic Executive Committee met at Columbiana on Feb. 21, 1896, and was called to order by the chairman. The following resolutions were presented and adopted by your committee.

RESOLVED, By the Democratic Executive Committee of Shelby county, Alabama, at its meeting held in Columbiana on Feb. 21, 1896, that we hereby invite all conservative voters, irrespective of past political associations or differences, who can unite with us in the effort for pure, economical and constitutional government, and who will support the nominees and principles of the democratic party, to join with us in sending delegates from this county to the approaching state convention to be held in the city of Montgomery on the 21st day of April, 1896.

RESOLVED, That there shall be a primary, beat meeting, or mass meeting, held in each beat in the county on the 11th day of April, 1896, as each beat executive committee may determine, for the purpose of selecting delegates to a county convention to be held at Columbiana on April 15, 1896, for the purpose of selecting delegates to said state convention, and transacting such other business as may come before it.

RESOLVED, Each beat shall be entitled to one delegate to said county convention for every 10 votes or fraction thereof over 10 voted in said beat for the democratic candidate for governor in 1892.

RESOLVED, That the nominations for county officers shall be made at a separate convention, to be held at Columbiana after the county convention above provided for on the call of the then acting county executive committee.

In conformity with the above resolutions, the various beats will be entitled to the following representation in the county convention:

Harpersville Echoes.

Here we are again, not dead, but considerably worried by having the measles.

Prof. Florey has resumed his school again, although the attendance is small.

Our farmers are busily engaged in buying mules and fertilizers.

Judge Russell has traded for a Clark horse. He has all the gait, and is a perfect beauty.

Tom Davis has bought him a 20 cent mule and has joined the horse-swapper's ring.

The Clark forces are getting very weak up here, and some of them have been accused of coming over to the Johnson side for the small sum of one cigar.

Marion Sentell, (colored), of this place, was killed at Avondale last week while resisting arrest. He was wanted back in this county.

Rev. T. P. Roberts filled his regular appointment at the Methodist church last Sunday.

Mr. Lybrand, an old and highly respected citizen of beat 11, died a few days ago with measles. He was a good democrat, a kind neighbor, and a useful man, and will be greatly missed.

Oh, no, Mr. Editor, "Jake" is not ready to come over to the gold-bug crowd yet; but say, had you better not consider the matter over and come back to the democratic party and be with us democrats, who are going to elect Joe Johnson for governor. Old friend, this gold-bug party is a dreadful thing, and won't do. Come back home and you will a hearty welcome find.

Messrs. E. V. Caldwell and D. W. Kidd have been drawn as United States petit jurors, and W. Miller as grand juror. The court meets next Monday, and they will go over to Birmingham Sunday.

Mr. Thomas Hitchcock and Miss Ida Cater were married last Sunday morning, Rev. T. P. Roberts officiating. We wish for them a long and happy life.

We suggest that the Montgomery and Birmingham papers cease their war on the two candidates. They will need their ammunition after the convention. The enemy are not asleep but are laughing in their sleeves at the "fuss" which the democratic papers are making.

The excitement over Charley Burrough's gold find has about subsided, and the general supposition among our people is that it was just only a bucket of brass buttons that some Yankee hid out in time of the late war that he found.

Just think what has already happened this year, and only two months gone. It is astonishing. The north pole has been discovered, Mary Ellen Lease, the great poplite (woman) orator, has gone to preaching; G. B. Deans has been elected chairman of the pop-rep anarchy state committee, and Pomp Moore is a candidate for county treasurer! "Ye gods and little fishes"—all of this has happened and the world continues to move.

Ex-commissioner, A. M. Jones, is moving this week to Childersburg. Cow-feed is getting scarce, and the poor, old cow is beginning to look bad already.

There has been more mules sold here this winter than ever before in one winter.

"JAKE."

Mr. Editor—Please allow us space in your valuable paper to express our sincere thanks to the white people of this community who so liberally gave us of their money towards building our church which is almost completed. We would like to give the names of all who so kindly helped us, but space forbids. May God in His infinite wisdom bless each and every one of them is our prayer.

Mrs. S. N. Nash has our sympathies in her sickness.

Miss Dovie Smitherman, who has been very sick, is now convalescent. Cheer up, J. R. W., she will soon be out again.

The measles has made extensive visits to many of our homes. Go it, little fellows; we rejoice at your departure.

Dr. Long, of New York, was an honored guest of the Acme this week.

Prof. L. F. Goodwin, of the Elliottville academy, made us a flying visit this week. Call again, Professor, we are always glad to have you in our midst.

Miss Bird, one of Calera's charming bells, is the honored guest of J. A. Alldridge. The hearts of some of our boys are thrilled with joy at the presence of Miss Bird.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humors). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first. No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

Cotton.

With careful rotation of crops and liberal fertilizations, cotton lands will improve. The application of a proper fertilizer containing sufficient Potash often makes the difference between a profitable crop and failure. Use fertilizers containing not less than 3 to 4% Actual Potash.

Kainit is a complete specific against "Rust."

Our pamphlets are not advertising circulars booming special fertilizers, but are practical works, containing the results of latest experiments in this line. Every cotton farmer should have a copy. They are sent free for the asking.

Time Brings Everything to a Dead Level
—All Sorts of a Fool. Esau Got His Due—Joshua, the Son of None—

[Copyright, 1933.]
Most everything seems for me except time and the railroad cars. But with weak and wayward man, born of woman, time is a great thing. In my day and generation I have seen the bottom rail work up to the top, and I have seen the under dog whip the light. But it took time. Everybody must have their ups and downs, and over and under, and troubles and temptations and trials and triumphs in this vain and fleeting world below.

But you have took notice, I reckon, that somewhere down the line time most in generally always plays for even and brings everything to a dead level.

So It Was Written Down.
There was a wedding match over in the hill country one night last week and consequently Dave Singleton and Miss Bessie May Turner are now joining their clothes on the same peg.

On the following day after the wedding, me and mother we went over to the Turner place to see if everything had come to pass in the right and proper way, which of course it had. There had a fine infatue dinner over there that day, and the goneyest biggest layout of good things to eat I had ever saw in all my born days. In the run of the day I pitched in and climbed up around so tremendous much rich kitchen physics till by gracious I have been down with a bad case of the grunts henceforward from that time. But that fine wedding match between Dave Singleton and Miss Bessie May Turner put me to lookin back down the dusty road which leads into the past, and bring on a whole passle of remin.

It was 50 years ago, come next June, Col. Wash Turner and Bob Singleton are dead and gone the common way of all human flesh now, but both of them were with us in the flesh then. At that time Bob Singleton was livin on the Turner place and reatin land from the colonel, and him and Col. Wash were powerful strong friends. They run together so constant and so thick till by gattins you couldn't stirred em with a red hot stick. In them days Bob Singleton was flat on his back, and Col. Wash he was way up yonder—in regards to this world's goods. But that didn't make a continental bit of difference with them. They had went to the war and fit plun through together, and they was both bad medicine in big doses—hot stuff and a heap of it.

Nobody never did know and never could say for certain how it come to pass, but finally at last Bob and the colonel they fell out, and went right on come after their weapons. The very next Saturday they met up together in the big road, and when the fire ceased and the smoke cleared away Bob Singleton was dead.

All of Bob Singleton's folks had gone on ahead, exceptin little Dave, which at that time he was nothin but a yearlin boy, with his first pair of breeches on. After the funeral the next great question in the settlement was what to do with little Dave, and it was right there that Col. Wash Turner come forth and give it out that he would take the boy and give him a good home, and send him to school and raise him up like he was a member of the family.

"I loved Bob Singleton better than any man, livin or dead," says the colonel, and the water backed up in his eyes when he said it. "And I was as much in the family as he was when we both got our guns. But that is all over with now. The past is past, and the best that I can do now is to take the boy and give him the run of my place. Henceforward so long as I live my home will be his home."

So it come to pass one sad, hot day in June that little Dave Singleton, with nothin in this green world but his little wallet of plain clothes, went up to the big, house to live with Col. Wash Turner, the man that had killed his father. In the run of a few years the boy grew up and turned out to be a man, and him and the colonel was good friends from the jump. Time didn't wait for nothin, but time was playin for even and bringin things around to a dead level.

"A Strange Peculiar Will."
Three years ago last fall, to the best of my knowledge and belief, Col. Wash Turner was gathered up to his fathers. The day before he died he turned over in his bed and called for a lead pencil and wrote his last will. He wrote it on the wall cloth to his bed, which you can read it for yourself if you ever go over there to the old Turner place. And this is what he wrote:

"I leave everything I have got in this world to my wife, Prudie Turner, so long as she lives, and after that to our only daughter, Jessie May—excepting 80 acres of land and a pair of mules for Dave Singleton. It is my last dyn wish to be buried by the side of my dear departed friend, Bob Singleton."

WASH TURNER.
Some of the Turner kintery tried their level blamdest to make out like Col. Wash was out of his right mind, if not plum crazy, when he wrote that strange, peculiar will, so as they could all have a finger in the dish. But nobody else didn't believe that way. Col. Wash Turner was buried accordin over at old Mount Zion grave yard right by the side of Bob Singleton. His will stood firm and held good, and all that he had in the way of this world's goods belongs to the Wilder Turner and Bessie May and Dave Singleton.

Now since Dave and Miss Bessie took up a notion to mix clothes for life, naturally of course them and the widder can go nooks and keep everything in the family henceforward and forever. They are rule good people in their way—the Turners and the Singletons are—and as to me I hope their tribes will increase.

Such is life when we onest get use to it. Time plays for even and brings everything around to a dead level. The bottom rail works out on top. The under dog whips the light. And all is well for them that wait. So it was written down.

All Sorts of a Fool.
I have seen a whole tremendous big lot of fools—one kind and another—in this country. But I do believe that Deacon Joiner is the biggest and most all around fool I have ever scraped up acquaintance with.

In a plain, humble, Christian way the deacon is all sorts of a fool. Year before last he took and rented a farm from old man Bunk Weatherford for three years hand runnin, and got it for two bales of cotton a year. Along in the Christmas and New Year times this year the old man Bunk took up a notion that he wanted that farm to set out one of his boys on, and he went over to see the deacon and wanted to know of him what he would charge to give up the place and move out. The deacon loved he had rented the place for three years hand runnin and it belonged to him for one more year.

"I will let you have it, Bunk, for exactly what you let me have it," says the deacon, "and that is two bales of cotton." If it was worth that to you it is worth that to me."

"But, deacon," says Bunk, "the place really belongs to me. If you live here this year you will owe me two bales of cotton, and if you don't live on the place you won't owe me nothin. But I am willing to give you a little something to pull out now and quit even."

But he couldn't make the deacon see it that way. He held out and stuck to it that the place belonged to him this year, and if it was worth two bales of cotton to one man it was worth that much to any other man that needed it. Consequently old man Bunk had to give up quit quit, whilst the deacon still lives at the same place.

Some ten or fifteen years ago the deacon got tired farmin and took out and quit. He put in and bought him a big mule and a one-horse wagon and started out to peddle on tin ware and crockery and chickens and eggs.

"I can't make nothin at farmin, Bunk," says the deacon to me when he come along by our house on his last trip. "So I come to the conclusion that I might as well do better jest a peddlin and peddle around through the country."

But the old man didn't stick to the peddlin business more than six months, and if he ever done any peddlin to speak of it never did leak out on him.

Esau Got His Due.
On the last meetin day at Bark Log Deacon Joiner and two or three preachers come by and took dinner at our house. In the general conversation that followed right after dinner the deacon took a ride after case of rummish at the mouth and had a heap to say about the Scriptures.

One of the preachers said he never could see how it come to pass that a good woman like Rebecca fooled Isaac when he was old and blind and sick unto death and hornsoggled him, as it were, into layin his blessings on Jacob instid of Esau. It must of been right, he went on to say, because Rebecca was one of the Lord's chosen vessels, but it never did look right to him.

"To be certainly of course it was right," put in Deacon Joiner in a low, deep, solemn voice. "And what is more, brethren, Esau got his dues. As for me, I never could feel sorry for Esau any to speak of when they pulled the wool over old Isaac's eyes and got him to put his dyn blessing on Jacob's head. It was nothin more than ought to of come to pass with Esau, or any other man that would sell out his birth rights for a mess of potatoes."

The deacon was in dead earnest and plum honest when he said it, you understand, but it was all the preachers could do to hold in, and it took my level blamdest to keep up my serious appearments.

Joshua "the Son of None."
But to hear Deacon Joiner tell it, he was powerful sorry for Joshua because that great captain was "the son of none."

"But, deacon," put in one of the preachers, "Joshua was the son of Nun—N—N—Nun. Joshua was one of the chosen, but he come into this world in the right and proper way."

"I understand all that, brethren," the deacon come back. "I have read a few stanzas in the Bible myself. Of course he was the son of none—that is to say, the son of nobody, and he had neither father nor mother, or any other kintery so far as we know."

The brethren knowed Deacon Joiner and consequently they had to give up the argification and quit. And all the preachers in the round created world—from Adam down to the present period of time—couldn't make the deacon believe anything else but that Esau sold out his birth rights for a mess of potatoes, and Joshua was the son of none.

Holding Up the Amen Corner.
Whilst Deacon Joiner never has started out to preach, the cause he has been seriously threatened with more than onest. And when it comes to holdin up the amen corner—well, the deacon he is right there and the mainest man in the meetin.

I recollect onest upon a time, when the camp meetin was goin on over at Spring Hill, how Elder Newton brung on a right smart confusion. The elder he was leadin in prayer, and a powerful feelin, stirrin prayer it he. He prayed so loud and so long till he jest naturally got to foam in the mouth. Toorely he had to spit, and bless gracious he turned around and spit right slap kerdab in Parson Jernigan's hat.

But in the main time, you understand, Deacon Joiner was holdin up the amen corner to the best of his ability, and he couldn't keep up with what was goin on between Elder Newton and Parson Jernigan. He would put in a long, strong "amen" every chance he got, but he didn't know anything for certain.

"There now! Brother Jernigan, I spit in your hat," said Elder Newton, loud enough for everybody on the grounds to hear him.

"Amen!" said Deacon Joiner, in a loud voice.

And this blessed day the deacon don't know how close he come to bust in up that camp meetin on the spot.

Had Been Where They Raise It.
That brings to mind the time when Deacon Joiner and Andy Lucas got into a furious disputation in regards to the Scriptures.

It was right soon after the calamity of the foreign relations had went through the Bible and made various and sundry changes, and the deacon he was monstrous glad they changed the word hell into sheol. But Andy he took the other side and maintained that the committee was either drunk or crazy when they wiped out that platin old American word hell. So him and the deacon they had it up and down.

"Sheol ain't the word for that place, deacon," says Andy, "and sheol ain't no name for it."

"You are talkin now, Andy Lucas, jest simply because you have got somethin to talk with," says the deacon. "How come you to know anything about it?"

"I know the best word and the right name for it, deacon, because I have been where they raise it," says Andy, with a slow, sly wink.

And then the crowd give the deacon the grand horse laugh.

LOST LITERATURE.
Fire and Water Have Destroyed Many Precious Books.

The fine literature absolutely lost is very considerable. Of classical literature alone, books could be filled with the names of works, never to mention the mutilated state of many that survive. The causes of loss are few.

Fire is the most common. Ben Johnson, by the fire in his house, lost an entire drama of the Life of Henry V. with notes, and a number of other works. The first of London was responsible for the loss of many valuable works of the Elizabethan period and of much early English poetry. A severe blow to the lovers of Anglo-Saxon literature was the burning of the Cottonian library in 1731, which a vast quantity of old manuscripts were destroyed. In 1752, by a fire in Lincoln's Inn Fields, a large collection of manuscripts and pamphlets, gathered with great labor by Lord Chamberlain Somers, was lost.

About the same time Davies' notes on Cicero's "De Officiis" were lost by a fire in Strand, London.

The second great cause of loss is the ocean, whose "greedy maw" swallows all kinds of treasures so remorselessly. Early in the 15th century, Guarino Veronese was returning to Constantinople with a ship load of classical manuscripts. The vessel was wrecked and the treasures lost, a misfortune which turned the scholar's hair white in a few hours. Our own Spenser suffered serious loss by shipwreck of a servant crossing from Ireland. The last six books of the "Faerie Queen" and a number of translations and poems, including "Drains," "The Court of Cupid" and "The Hell of Lovers," were thus consigned to a watery grave. In 1600, on the death of Vincenzo Pinelli, his library was packed in three vessels bound for Naples. One was attacked by pirates, who flung out the books and papers into the sea and along the shore, some of the latter being picked up by the inhabitants and used to stuff windows with. Toward the close of last century a servant of Warburton came across a unique mass of manuscript plays, which she used up in lighting fires and making pie crust frills. And everybody remembers how a domestic of John Stuart Mill consigned to the flames a part of Carlyle's "French Revolution." The horror of Mill at the loss, and the "agony" of Carlyle in rewriting the work, are now matters of history.

A very curious loss was occasioned in Italy in the 14th century, when Raimondo Soranzo loaned the manuscript of Cicero's "De Gloria" to a friend, who pawned it, and died before its hiding place could be discovered.—N. Y. Dispatch.

A Drop of Water.
Water that is now in the ocean and in the river has been many times in the sky. The history of a single drop taken out of a glass of water is really a romantic one. No traveler has ever accomplished such distances in his life.

That particle may have reflected the palm trees of coral islands and have caught the sun's rays in the arch that spans a cloud clearing away from the valleys of Cumberland or California. It may have been carried by the gulf streams from the shores of Florida, or of Cuba, to be turned into a crystal of ice beside the precipices of Spitzbergen. It may have hovered over the streets of London and have formed a part of murky fog and have glistened on the young grass blades of April in Irish fields. It has been lifted up to heaven and sailed in great wool-packed clouds across the sky, forming part of a cloud mantle echoing with thunder. It has hung in a fleecy veil many miles above the earth at the close of long seasons of still weather. It has descended many times over in showers to refresh the earth and has sparkled and bubbled in mossy fountains in every country in Europe. And it has returned to its native skies, having accomplished its purpose, to be stored once again with electricity to give it new life-producing qualities and equip it as heaven's messenger to earth once more.—Charles S. Whiting, in Museum.

Queer Epitaphs.
Here are two curious epitaphs worthy of note for their quaintness. One is on a tombstone in Ulster, and runs: "To the memory of Thomas Kelly, who was accidentally shot by his brother as a mark of respect."

The other epitaph is to be found at Culmore, near Londonderry: "Here lies the remains of Thomas Nicholls, who died in Philadelphia, March, 1783. Had he lived he would have been buried here."

But perhaps neither of these epitaphs carries off the palm from the old one which, I fear, is already too well known to come with any newness: "Here lies Dobson, here lies he; Hallelujah, Hallelujah." —Gentleman.

Neighly Conventions.
Sisyphus was busily engaged in rolling the stone up to the top of the hill and letting it slide back again. "It's pretty monotonous, isn't it?" remarked one of his acquaintances.

"Yes. But I could get used to it. I could get along very well if it wasn't for people who come along and make remarks. I guess about 300 people a month tell me to 'never mind; life is always has its ups and downs.' And not less than 20 a day ask me if I don't know that a rolling stone gathers no moss."—Washington Star.

THE FIGHT IS ON.
There is an intense rivalry between the watermelon and tomato growers as to who can produce the earliest. Salzer's Earliest Watermelon ripened in 1890 in 52 days. That record is to be beaten, and Salzer pays $100 to the winner! Then on tomatoes the record on "50 days the Earliest Tomato" in 1895 was 68 days. That's to be beaten, and $50 paid. Salzer challenges the world to produce earlier melons, tomatoes, cabbages, radishes, peas or sweet corn than he offers. Get his mammoth catalogue. There is money in it.

LE YOT WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND it with 12c stamps to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will get free their great catalogue and a package of the yellow rind watermelon sensation. (K)

Prosperous Farmer.
Yankton J. and Dakota. In Yankton County, South Dakota, there are at least one thousand farmers who came here poor as the proverbial turkey of Job, and whotoday they occupy five dwelling houses, have large barns, fine horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, granaries filled with grain, fruit orchards, and money in hand. We mention this to show that South Dakota farmers are the prosperous class. Prosperity is the rule—not the exception. With fair prices for grain and stock they would be nothing in wealth. Prices, however, have nothing to do with the fertility of the soil and the favorable character of the climate. These natural advantages are here to stay and assure prosperity to the farming classes.

SPAIN used to derive $100,000,000 a year from Cuba, and now the figures on the other side of the ledger are $60,000,000. How long Spain can stand a loss of $40,000,000 a month on an unproductive colony is one of the questions connected with Cuba's struggle.

The inheritance tax is growing in favor both in Europe and America as a convenient and easy method of adding to the public revenues. When not excessive in the rate imposed this tax is approved also as just and fair, particularly when applied to collateral heirs. Several states of the union have recently made the inheritance tax a part of their revenue systems, Illinois being one of the latest to do so. The last legislature provided for a progressive tax on collateral heirs and a small tax on direct heirs, where the amount received is in excess of $20,000.

DR. ARTHUR DEBAUSSET, the aerial inventor of New York, is seeking congressional support in an endeavor to perfect his airship. The novel principle involved in De Bausset's airship is that it employs the motion of the earth in its service. His scheme is to ascend as far as possible above the earth's attraction and "camp out" until the earth moved around to a given point, when the ship would descend. His airship is, roughly speaking, a hollow steel cylinder, from which the air is exhausted. It would be possible to travel from New York to San Francisco in a day by it.

A NUMBER of leading citizens of New York have become interested in a movement to turn the surplus population of cities toward the country and at the same time to improve rural conditions. The work will be confined at first to Westchester county, N. Y., where the first agricultural university school will be opened March 4. It is assumed that there is need of greater skill and knowledge on the farm, and therefore the aim in the instruction will not be so much to increase the production as to obtain maximum yields on less acreage, reducing the cost and improving the quality.

WHETHER the well-dressed man who stood on the corner of Jackson street and Pacific avenue, Chicago, on the evening of the 28th and threw away $500 or more was a Cripple Creek millionaire, a board of trade speculator celebrating his victory in the grain pit, or just a plain fool with more money than brains, will probably never be known. The man's pockets were full of the coin, and he laughed as he tossed handfuls in the air and saw the crowd fight and push to get even a dime. When the stranger had exhausted his supply of coin he quietly walked away.

CUBANS REJOICING

Over the Passage of the Belligerent Rights Resolution.

A HOPEFUL AUGURY FOR "CUBA LIBRE."

Gen. Calixto Garcia, Senor Estrada Palma and Treasurer Guerra of the Revolutionary Party Express Themselves Enthusiastically.

New York, Feb. 29.—There was great rejoicing among the Cubans of this city Friday night at the junta, No. 66 Broadway, about the probability of the congress of the United States recognizing the insurgents in Cuba as belligerents. At the junta it was said that as soon as the measure is signed by the president recruiting offices will be opened in all the principal cities of the country, and that the recruits will receive $25 per month.

Gen. Calixto Garcia, who is held by the United States officials as the director of the Bermuda filibustering expedition, was seen at his home.

Gen. Garcia said: "Americans, whose ancestors fought and struggled for their independence, must know how the good news elates me. To aid in wresting Cuba from the grip of Spain was the ambition, the work of my best years. To be permitted to devote the remainder of my life to the brave and unequal struggle which my brothers in arms are now carrying on is all I ask of America."

"I am told by some that several years in prison for overzealous patriotism stares me in the face. But it is hard for me to believe that the people who welcomed Lafayette in their revolution against England will imprison me simply because I want to reach my native country and help her throw off the cruel, tyrannical yoke of Spain."

"You confess, then, general, that you intended to go to Cuba to fight?" "Confess? I proclaim it. It is the one great desire of my life. But I deny that I was intending to embark on the steamship Bermuda for Cuba. It was my desire to first land in San Domingo, or in some place where military drill and organization was possible. The Bermuda was not destined for the island of Cuba, and much will be proved at the examination next Wednesday."

"And you will sail to take part in the revolution?" "If God and the United States permit. This resolution of the senate gives me new hope. Only give me a little encouragement, and we will free Cuba for all time to come."

Estrada Palma, minister plenipotentiary from the provisional government to the United States, said: "You can imagine how I feel. I can't hide my joy if I would. I have always been quite confident that the justice of our request for belligerent rights would in the end prevail. No one could walk the streets of Washington and doubt it. There seemed to be a smile of welcome and hope in every eye."

"The ladies of the capital have given us incalculable aid. They have been with us from the start. I can see on the horizon the new line star of Cuba Libre, the United States said. 'You can imagine how I feel. I can't hide my joy if I would. I have always been quite confident that the justice of our request for belligerent rights would in the end prevail. No one could walk the streets of Washington and doubt it. There seemed to be a smile of welcome and hope in every eye.'"

A CUBAN TRIUMPH.

Seven Hundred Spaniards Placed Hors Du Combat.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 29.—The details of the battle at Palo Prieto, between Santa Clara and Placeta, about February 20, have arrived. The outcome was the greatest triumph the Cubans ever had, the Spanish loss being 700. Gen. Palanco was severely wounded, and his horse is now in the possession of Quintin Bandera. In their flight many Spaniards threw themselves into the river.

The Spaniards attacked a small detachment of scouts, who soon overtook the main body, and, after a short fight, the fearful machete charge was made, prostrating hundreds of Spaniards beneath their terrific onslaught. The severe Spanish losses are attributed greatly to the panic which ensued when "Charge with machete" was ordered.

MISSOURI PENITENTIARY

Quarantined on Account of Small Pox in the Vicinity.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 29.—The state penitentiary at Jefferson City has been quarantined by order of the state board of health, and until the quarantine is raised no one will be permitted to enter or leave that institution. The order is caused by the prevalence of small pox at Pleasant Hill, Nevada and Kansas City. There are no cases at the penitentiary, and the order is made as a precautionary measure. Pleasant Hill patients carried the disease both to Nevada and to this city. At Pleasant Hill there are about twelve cases, and eight houses have been quarantined. At Nevada, eight houses have been quarantined, here there are three cases and one house has been isolated.

THE PERE MARQUETTE STATUE.

No Arrangements Yet Made for Its Unveiling.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—The date has not yet been fixed for unveiling the statue of Pere Marquette, presented to the government by the state of Wisconsin. The statue, covered with cloth, has been in position in Statuary hall in the capitol for a week or more. Before the ceremony of unveiling takes place a resolution accepting the statue must be agreed to by both houses of congress. No such action has yet been taken.

IS IT A DEEP GAME?

That England is Playing in Dr. Jamieson's Case?

WAS THE DEMONSTRATION GENUINE?

Or Was It Manufactured to Order by Paid Agents of the Government?—There Are Those Who Believe It Was.

LONDON, Feb. 29.—The question is now being asked whether the demonstration attending the landing here of Dr. Jamieson and his fellow-rebels was a genuine outburst of public feeling or whether it was not largely due to plans of the government to excite the country against the Transvaal. Some of the members of the present ministry are past masters in the quiet game of arousing the country through the use of paid agents. If the course followed by the government in bringing Dr. Jamieson home from Africa is reviewed it would seem that everything was done to keep interest on the strain. Instead of wrapping the return of the filibuster in mystery, and having them tracked by press representatives from point to point, the government could, if it had so desired, have let the affair fizzle out quietly, and could have avoided fusses in taking the prisoners to the Bow Street police court.

For some reason best known to themselves the authorities appear to have attempted to awaken the Fenian bogey. An inquest was held a few days ago to ascertain the cause of the death of an elderly Irishman named Timothy O'Driscoll. Documents were produced which showed that O'Driscoll had negotiated for the purchase of an immense quantity of munitions of war from a German firm. John Leahy, a well-known Irishman and a friend of the deceased, who had been summoned as a witness, prudently said that the rifles were more than sufficient for Jamieson. Leahy now states that the arms were not intended for the Transvaal.

The speaker says it is impossible to accuse the authorities of responsibility for the Jamieson demonstration. London syndicates and other forces are now trying to mislead the opinion of the British and drag them into the commission of a crime worse than the partition of the Transvaal.

THE BALTIMORE STRIKE.

The Manufacturers Scheming to Tide Over the Difficulty.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 29.—(Garment workers and clothing manufacturers continue to talk fight as persistently as candidates for the prize ring championship. Aside from talks, proclamations, etc., nothing new has developed in the strike situation. The best feature of the strained relations between the manufacturers and the 6,000 strikers is the almost absolute freedom from disorderly outbreaks. The manufacturers have adopted a clever scheme to tide over immediate wants. They have agreed to loan one another help for pressing orders and as there are quite a number of workmen employed who are not members of the garment makers union, the manufacturers hope to tide over the difficulty for a while.

TWO PENSION BILLS

Under Consideration by the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—The house committee on invalid pensions began the consideration of two general pension bills. One proposes to reduce from 91 to 60 days the service required under the act of 1890, and the other looks to the granting of a service pension for 90 days' service. The proposition of the latter is to grant a pension of $2 per month for the first 90 days and one cent per day for each day's service over the 90-day limit. The merits of the measures were generally discussed, but no conclusion was reached.

The Death Sentence. PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 29.—Judge Slagle, in criminal court, passed the death sentence upon Joseph Oroz, a Hungarian who murdered Miss Teresa Boback, January 23 last.

For a Branch Mint at Chicago. WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Mr. Hopkins (rep. Ill.) introduced in the house a bill appropriating $300,000 for the establishment of a branch mint at Chicago.

FOR THE THIRD TIME

The O'Brien Block at Duluth, Minn., Discovered on Fire—Several Lives Thought to Have Been Lost.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 29.—For the third time within a few weeks the O'Brien block on West Michigan street was discovered on fire at 1:30 a. m., and in a short time it was seen that all efforts of the fire department to save it would be unsuccessful, so the energies of the firemen were directed to saving life and keeping the adjoining Knowlton block from being destroyed. The O'Brien is a business and apartment block in the center of the city, and more than 100 persons must have been sleeping in it. Paul Baldwin and his wife, who roomed on the fourth floor, in groping through the smoke in the hall, became separated and he was so closely followed by the flames that he only escaped by jumping through a window in the second story. The wife undoubtedly perished. There was a terrible panic among the roomers and several were trampled to death in the rush. The building is owned by the American Exchange bank and is valued at $25,000, and is a total loss; insurance, $20,000. There is an additional loss to Smith, Koors & Co., a commission firm, and M. M. Gasser, grocer, amounting to $5,000, well insured; besides a total loss by the roomers amounting to several thousand dollars. There is little doubt the fire was of incendiary origin.

SHORT AND SHARP

Would be a War with Spain, Says Admiral Belknap.

New York, Feb. 29.—A Journal special from Boston says: Rear-Admiral George E. Belknap, U. S. N. (retired), recognized as an authority on international affairs as well as on naval matters, thinks that in the event of a war between the United States and Spain the United States would not be the greater sufferer.

"I do not think," the admiral said, "the coast of the United States would be in any danger of attack. In my judgment, Spain would need all of her available navy around Cuba, for if she left the Cuban coast unguarded all our gulf ports would swarm with vessels loaded with men and munitions of war to be landed in Cuba."

"The seizure of Cuba would practically end the war, for Spain could make no attack on us that we could not successfully resist."

"No great expansion of our navy would be necessary. We should need all the ships we have in commission. I would not deem it wise to take too many ships from the Pacific, but we would have to concentrate all those we have available on the Atlantic coast. Some merchant steamers might be employed as commerce destroyers and as transports to land troops in Cuba. Such a war, if it should come, would be a short and sharp one."

THE NEW YORK AGROUND

Near the Quickest Buoy in the Lower Bay, New York.

New York, Feb. 29.—For the second time within a few weeks a steamer of the American Steamship line is ashore in the harbor. The steamer New York, while in charge of a pilot and feeling her way through the main ship channel in the lower bay, swerved from her course in a dense fog shortly before 6 a. m. and ran on the lower middle shoal, about a quarter of a mile from the Quickest buoy.

There are 87 first cabin, 130 second cabin and 250 steerage passengers on the steamer. Several steamboats and tugs have gone to the scene to take off the passengers.

DEADLY COAL GAS.

Three Members of a Family Dead and Five More Dying.

CHICAGO, Feb. 29.—Three persons are dead and five are dying as the result of the escape of coal gas in the residence of Farmer Fred Stuenkel, a few miles southwest of Chicago Heights, near Crest, Will county.

Physicians attending the family say the mother and four of the children will die. The father, the oldest daughter, Rosamond, aged 13, and the four-year-old child, Della, are already dead.

The dying are: Mrs. Kate Stuenkel, aged 43; mother; Hulda, aged 15; Arthur, aged eight; Reneta, aged seven months; William, aged 19.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT

Will Show a Small Surplus of Receipts for the Month.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—The statement of official receipts and expenditures of the government for February, which will be made public Monday next, will show receipts for the month in round figures $26,000,000, and expenditures $25,000,000, or an excess of receipts over expenditures of less than $1,000,000.

The deficit for the fiscal year to date is about $18,750,000. So far $94,762,086 in gold has been paid in on account of the purchase of new bonds.

Heavy Snowfall. ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 29.—A snowfall of several inches, the highest of the season, took place here Friday night. Reports from South Dakota points show the storm to have been general in the Jim River valley, extending into North Dakota and west to the Missouri river.

About as Bad as They Could Be. WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Ex-Senator Daves, of the Daves Indian commission, addressed the house committee on Indian affairs on the condition of affairs in the Indian territory. These he characterized as deplorable, and about as bad as they possibly could be.

For Assaulting a Pension Examiner. COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Feb. 29.—C. M. Cuppy, of Avoca, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and costs for assaulting Special Pension Examiner Brown.

In the Harms. WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Mr. W. W. Baldwin, of New York, the new third assistant secretary of state, assumed the duties of that position.

THE ISTHMIAN CANAL.

A Startling and Unexpected Solution of the Problem.

IS PRESENTED AS A POSSIBILITY.

A Deal Said to be on Foot for the Amalgamation of the Interests of the Nicaragua and the Panama Canal Companies.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Paris says: A startling and unexpected solution of the Panama canal problem is presented as a possibility of the near future. This is in the form of the consolidation of the Panama Canal Co. with the Nicaragua Canal Co.

It has been learned that the president of the latter corporation, Mr. J. R. Herdett, who has just left Paris, en route for America, bears with him a fusion of the two companies. This agreement was formally signed here, but is not conclusive. It is understood that it will become operative on behalf of the Panama company when concurred in by the directors of the Nicaragua Canal Co. in New York.

It provides for the absorption of the Panama franchise and assets, including the railroad across the isthmus. The French company is to receive a substantial sum of money and stock in the American corporation, which will proceed to pierce the isthmus via Lake Nicaragua.

The Nicaragua representatives, on their part, claim to derive great advantage from the removal of a possible future competitor and the securing of a monopoly of the waterways between the two oceans. With this change in the situation the many bankers of Great Britain and the continental centers, as well as of America, are prepared to float the Nicaragua company's bonds.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Unseasonable Weather Has Retarded General Trade.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

Changeable and, at times, unseasonable weather has continued to unfavorably influence the distribution of general merchandise. Relatively, the most active movement has been of shoes, groceries, dry goods, millinery and light hardware, but on the whole the merchandise movement has not materially improved. Jobbers of large western centers do not anticipate a heavy spring trade, as the outlook is for retailers carrying over larger stocks than expected.

Movement of leading staples is more favorable, with advances for wheat, Indian corn, oats, copper, leather and turpentine. Firm or steady prices are noted for wheat, flour, coffee, sugar, steel rails, lumber, coal and hides; but reactions appear in quotations for pork and lard, cotton and print cloths, petroleum, Bessemer pig iron, steel billets and some grades of southern pig.

Exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week show a marked falling off, not only from the same week ago, which was 3,141,000 bushels, but as compared with corresponding totals for corresponding weeks in February of four preceding years. One year ago the week's exports amounted to 2,692,000 bushels, and two years ago they were 2,972,000. In 1893, 3,251,000 bushels, and in 1892, 2,908,000 bushels.

The falling off in the total number of business failures throughout the United States this week is continued, the total being 271, compared with 276 last week, 34 in the corresponding week of 1895, 272 in the fourth week of February, 1894, 217 in 1893 and 237 in 1892.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session.) HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—The army appropriation bill, with senate amendments, was laid before the house and the amendments were disagreed to and a conference with the senate asked.

Mr. Lacey (rep., Ia.), chairman of the committee on public lands, called up the president's veto of the bill authorizing the leasing of the school lands in Arizona, which bill the speaker said the house must, under the constitution, now consider.

Mr. Lacey stated that the bill was identical with the one which he introduced in 1894 at the suggestion and on the recommendation of the commissioner of the general land office and secretary of the interior, and which subsequently became a law.

After considerable discussion the question: "Shall the bill pass, the president's objections to the contrary notwithstanding," was agreed to, yeas, 200; nays, 38. The announcement was received with a few hand claps.

A GLASGOW SENSATION

Similar to That Unearthed in London by Editor Stead.

LONDON, Feb. 29.—James Kier Hardie, the social labor and some-time member of parliament, has made discoveries in Glasgow similar to those unearthed by Mr. W. T. Stead in London, the details of which were published in 1885 in the Pall Mall Gazette, of which paper Mr. Stead was then the editor. Mr. Hardie's revelations are published in language that is even franker than was that employed by Mr. Stead in his statements respecting offenses against young women and children.

Had to Pay for His Tardiness. LONDON, Feb. 29.—Capt. Heany, the American citizen who was a member of Dr. Jamieson's staff on the occasion of the latter's raid into the Transvaal, sailed from Southampton for New York on the steamer St. Louis. He missed the steamer train from London and was obliged to charter a special train to catch the steamer.

Charged with Embezzlement. LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 29.—Sheriff John D. Phipps of Morgan county, has been arrested on the charge of embezzling $15,000 of county funds. Friends claim it is the result of spite work. He is well known throughout the state.

Three Children Burned to Death. A negro cabin in North Tupelo, Miss., was burned, and three children were burned to death. The mother barely escaped.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce W. A. Thompson as a candidate for re-election to the office of Treasurer of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR TAX COLLECTOR.

The friends of W. L. Davis authorize The Chronicle to announce him as a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

RETROSPECTIVE AND PROSPECTIVE.

During the last three or four trying years of panic and depression the capital of Shelby county has like a great many other towns, been to all intents and purposes dead; in fact, very dead. Under existing circumstances this was quite natural. Several causes, however, contributed to this result, the court house scramble perhaps more than any other one thing, for it jeopardized the property of the town and for the time being checked improvements of every kind.

This serious menace having been removed, our school at once became a live question, and after many months of arduous labor and great personal sacrifice a commodious building was erected, large enough to serve our community for many years to come. A bill was passed by the legislature incorporating the town and making this a free school district. There was practically no opposition to this bill, and it seemed as though our fondest hopes would be realized. But not so soon. There were yet ahead many obstacles to be encountered and overcome.

A few sordid, selfish men, perhaps half a dozen would cover the number, having no children to educate, combined to thwart every movement put forward in the interest of the school. The result of this opposition was the election at the outset of a compromise ticket—three democrats and three populites. There was no reason why politics should have cut any figure whatever in the election, only it was a part of the program of the few (half dozen) to kill the school; or, more properly speaking, everything that they could not own or control. These are the plain, naked, unvarnished facts, and they cannot be denied.

With no marshal to collect the city taxes, as provided for by law, their payment was left entirely optional with the property owners. Be it said, however, to their credit that a large majority, irrespective of party lines, walked up like men and paid every cent of the city tax, which as all are aware, goes wholly to the maintenance of the school.

This is our first year's experience. Do we care to have it repeated? The CHRONICLE is free to say it most emphatically does not. Nor do we propose to be classed with those who dread opposition, and are willing to repeal the law and go back to the old plan in order to placate a few sordid, selfish creatures who are known as men only from the fact that they wear breeches, and in order further that harmony may reign supreme. If harmony is to be purchased at the sacrifice of both manhood and principle, we say let the merry fight go on to the bitter end.

Less than a month ahead another election will be held to choose a mayor and five aldermen for the ensuing year. No one should be elected this year who is not an earnest and enthusiastic friend of our school, and who would be a staunch supporter of every measure looking toward the upbuilding of our community. No man of the milk and cider variety is wanted. The future of our school depends very largely upon the coming election. If its interests are placed in good hands, it will leap forward at a bound, and it will be safe to predict that it will in a very short time become a potent factor in attracting to our town the best class of citizens from the adjoining territory and neighboring towns. Are our people aware that we have, with one exception, the only absolutely free school in Alabama? And have they ever considered seriously its grand possibilities if fostered and properly encouraged? If not, now is the opportune time. A little reflection will establish firmly the conviction that it is our duty to select thoroughly competent men to control this our most important institution.

Let us take no step backward. The future is rich in promise once we decide to establish the school upon a firm basis, let it cost what it will. The prize is alluring and is worth all the effort it may cost.

COMPTROLLER BOOKER, in his address, delivered Friday before the Massachusetts Reform Club, in Boston epitomized the financial problem and its solution in the following very forcible sentences: "The cause of the weakened condition of the credit of our American currency is to be found in the fact that from the issuance of the first treasury note in 1862 to this very day, the inflationist has been the controlling force in American monetary legislation. He stands to-day the strenuous opponent of the single gold standard of value, and he ill-conceals his attitude by taking refuge in his announced belief in the historically demonstrated impossibility and absurdity of bimetalism, whether it be national or international. Until the inflationist is dislodged, there can be no permanent cure for our financial ills. When his career is ended, the treasury of the United States will cease carrying on the operations of a bank, its notes of issue will be paid and cancelled and their baneful influence lifted from all industries in the land. There will then be none who, for this people, would have other than a gold standard, and none who would suggest a dollar, whether of silver or paper, which is not everywhere, under any and all circumstances, and in whatever quantity, fairly interchangeable with every other dollar that circulates, without intailing loss to any one. In that day the private citizen and the lawmaker will have learned the truth announced a half-century since by one of Italy's most distinguished students of finance, 'money is essentially rebellious to the orders of law; it comes without being called; it goes without being arrested—dead to advances, insensible to threats, attracted solely by the allurements of profits.'"

We heartily agree with the editor of Educational Exchange in the suggestion he makes in the following paragraph:

How can Alabama secure proper facilities for her rural schools? The first step in answer to this question must be the adoption of a new state constitution, with adequate fundamental provisions for an efficient state system. For the past ten years, the teachers of the state have been begging the politicians for action in this matter, but the answer has been—"The time is not yet." The hour has come when those interested in the progress of the state must make this request a positive demand. Political expediency must no longer stand an impassable barrier to progress. Alabama today, with all her marvelous undeveloped resources, is, educationally, behind every other southern state, simply because her organic law practically forbids an efficient system of state schools.

FATE OF SKILLET TOTERS.

From the Asheville Aegis.

Hoping to get the populite support on the free coinage issue of 16 to 1 Captain Denson of this district, declared that he tooted his own skillet in the memorable campaign which resulted in a most inglorious defeat of his aspirations. On a Cleveland platform of sound money and a revenue tariff he had been elected to congress the previous term. This ought to be a warning to the democracy of the state as to the sentiments of the voting population.

Captain Denson succeeded in having the bars let down on the silver issue in his behalf that he might win. He went around the district giving Cleveland and the supporters of the administration Hail Columbia. His skillet was hung high in the air while his net was let down to catch everything afloat out of its moorings. But he failed to catch, while the organized looked on in very consternation at the high sounding criticisms of the policy of the administration.

Now without intending any abuse of Captain Johnston, can anyone tell us where the difference lies between him and "Billy of the Low Grounds?" Mr. Denson claimed to be a democrat, he claimed to be for harmony and to be the standard bearer of his party in his district. His claims had all the coloring of party action, and yet he was defeated, and defeated by the very party he had hoped would support him. If any man could entitle himself to populist support, Billy certainly rose to that distinction. Like Captain Johnston he had kind words and persuasive words for all of them. He repudiated a democratic administration and fought its policy. He favored the independent coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

His skillet was full of this kind of meat for his hearers. Does not Captain Johnston act in the same role? Has he not been toting his skillet for four years or more for the governor's office? Did he not lift it with a menace at the administration and a frown at the latter's supporters? Has he not succeeded in having the bars let down to secure votes for his nomination? In other words, if he had not borrowed Billy's skillet, has he not had one made after the same pattern?

It seems to us that if Captain Johnston succeeds in getting the nomination for governor of Alabama, Denson should have a monument of honor erected to the memory of his defeat in leading the way to final victory in the cause.

If the free silverites are so confident that they represent the people why do they dodge the issue and claim to be bimetalists? What they contend for is the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1. Why don't they stand by their colors?—Atlanta Journal.

PROCEEDINGS

Of the Democratic Executive Committee.

Pursuant to call of the chairman, the Democratic Executive Committee met at Columbiana on Feb. 21, 1896, and was called to order by the chairman. The following resolutions were presented and adopted by your committee.

RESOLVED, By the Democratic Executive Committee of Shelby county, Alabama, at its meeting held in Columbiana on Feb. 21, 1896, that we hereby invite all conservative voters, irrespective of past political associations or differences, who can unite with us in the effort for pure, economical and constitutional government, and who will support the nominees and principles of the democratic party, to join with us in sending delegates from this county to the approaching state convention to be held in the city of Montgomery on the 21st day of April, 1896.

RESOLVED, That there shall be a primary, beat meeting, or mass meeting, held in each beat in the county on the 11th day of April, 1896, as each beat executive committee may determine, for the purpose of selecting delegates to a county convention to be held at Columbiana on April 15, 1896, for the purpose of selecting delegates to said state convention, and transacting such other business as may come before it.

RESOLVED, Each beat shall be entitled to one delegate to said county convention for every 15 votes or fraction thereof over 10 voted in said beat for the democratic candidate for governor in 1892.

RESOLVED, That the nominations for county officers shall be made at a separate convention, to be held at Columbiana after the county convention above provided for on the call of the then acting county executive committee.

In conformity with the above resolutions, the various beats will be entitled to the following representation in the county convention:

SKAGGS' GREAT RECORD.

From the New York Sun.

Lovers of eloquence and poesy in Chicago, had an hour of lofty joys one night last week when Skaggs, the glow-worm and fire-bell of republican populism in Alabama, flickered and flashed and glowed through one of his iridescent speeches. Skaggs is the brains and voice of Reuben Kolb, the eccentric genius who inaugurates himself governor of Alabama at stated intervals. Kolb is the statesman whose name is in the papers. Skaggs is the mind that inspires and illuminates him and the whole state, the whole south. At Selma, in the summer of 1894, Skaggs talked an audience of 3,300 colored citizens white; at Mobile, in the fall of the same year, he talked 14,215 white democrats into black republicans. Skaggs is a wonder.

The republicans, the populists, and other malcontents, are reckoning without their host when they flatter themselves that they have already as good as secured the next presidency. Tom Reed will tell them in due time what he expects, and when his expectations are realized the democratic party will cover as with a pall all of his fine schemes.—Richmond Dispatch.

Items from Lewis.

Mr. John Powell has been quite sick recently, but is now convalescent.

Prof. S. S. Crumpton is the happiest man in town—It's a fine boy.

Mr. Vice Johnson lost a day last week and began plowing bright and early Sunday morning, and several of his neighbors had to come in to convince him that it was Sunday.

Mrs. L. A. Galloway, of Shelby, after spending several days at this place, has returned home.

Mr. W. C. Powell has been attending court this week.

Mr. J. E. Jackson and son, Paul, paid Columbiana a flying visit Saturday.

Miss Myrtle Jackson is quite sick, but we hope for her an early recovery.

The Methodists held their quarterly meeting at Blue Spring Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. H. Clay Paul filled his regular appointment at Four Mile Saturday and Sunday.

Lewis will go solid for Johnson this time—never give her out till you hear she is dead.

Mr. John Hartsfield, of Bessemer, is spending a few days in this community.

Mr. L. B. Riddle, of this place, spent Sunday in the Kingdom. Say, Beaufort, was it that bear you were after that was destroyed, or did you go to see your girl?

Burglars attempted to get into a house at this place, and did get in, but nothing is missing. We suppose they were after money, and if they were, they had better hunt on another place or they will get disappointed.

Our farmers are making good use of this pretty weather.

Liberty Items.

This is leap year, too, and if some of our young bachelors don't watch they will get their tansels tied before 1897.

We still have some measles and a few populites.

Messrs. T. A. Nivens, L. H. Mills and M. J. Cooper shaved last Sunday to go sparking.

Messrs. S. W. and R. H. Blackerby paid Bessemer a business trip the front end of last week.

Mr. W. A. Wilder and M. J. Cooper paid Birmingham a flying visit last week.

Mr. D. T. Adams turned loose and killed a fine turkey a few days since. Why didn't you ask Kate over, Tommy?

There is a certain young man in our community who loves harder than two blind mules can kick down hill backwards.

Two young ladies somewhere in a thousand miles of this place, got very badly disappointed a few Sundays ago. Their fellows didn't come.

Wonder who is going to marry next? Look out for that fellow that has gone to Birmingham.

Well the people here have all got over the measles and the boys can go to see the girls again and they are all happy, and (Kate) is, too. She just sits back in her rocker and sings "Polly put the Kettle On," and the "Girl I Left Behind Me."

Yours, truly, KATY.

Washington was a minute man. An accurate clock in the entry at Mount Vernon controlled the movements of the family. At his dinner parties he allowed five minutes for the differences of watches, and then waited for no one. If members of congress came at a late hour, his simple apology was, "Gentlemen, we are too punctual for you;" or, "Gentlemen, I have a cook who never asks whether the company has come, but whether the hour has come." Nobody ever waited for General Washington. He was always five minutes before the time, and if the parties he had to meet were not present at the season appointed, he considered the engagement cancelled and would leave the place and refuse to return.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimendale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church, at Rives' Junction, she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Non-Resident Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. Ann E. Perry, Complainant, vs. William T. Perry Defendant.

In Chancery Sixth District North-Eastern Chancery Division.

In this cause it is made to appear to the register by the affidavit of J. E. Holmes, that the defendant, William T. Perry, is a non-resident of Alabama, and resides in Denison, Grayson County, Texas; and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the register, that publication be made in the Chronicle, a newspaper published in the county of Shelby, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him to said William T. Perry to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 30th day of April, A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office in Columbiana, this 3rd day of March, A. D. 1896.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Faregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Charles H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.

HAVE YOU READ THE TIMES THIS MORNING?

THE TIMES is the most extensively circulated and widely read newspaper published in Pennsylvania. Its discussion of public and public measures is in the interest of public integrity, honest government and prosperous industry, and it knows no party or personal allegiance in treating public issues. In the broadest and best sense a family newspaper.

THE TIMES aims to have the largest circulation by deserving it, and claims that it is unsurpassed in all the essentials of a great metropolitan newspaper. Specimen copies of any edition will be sent to any one sending their address.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

James Harris, of Aldrich, spent Friday in town.

Miss Isla Avery, of Shelby spent Sunday in town.

N. N. Mostello, of Farmer, transacted business here Monday.

"Prepared Mustard" was in town yesterday trying to sell groceries.

Geo. Averett, of Shelby, was an appreciated caller at our office Monday.

Hon. T. J. Martin, of Harpersville, spent a few hours in town last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pond, of Shelby Springs came up Sunday to attend church.

The Shelby County Medical Society had its regular monthly meeting Tuesday.

W. J. O'Hara, of Howard college, spent a pleasant hour in our office
Saturday.

Dr. C. C. Oliver of Shelby, peeped into our office Tuesday. Stay longer next time, doctor.

Miss Mary Wagner returned home
Tuesday from a lengthy visit to relatives in Cresswell.

S. J. Finley, for two of three years a citizen of this place, but now of Texas, is on a visit to relatives here.

Robert Hall, one of Montevallo's most genial young men, was among his many friends here Monday.

Miss Helen Oliver, of Shelby, spent Tuesday and Wednesday as the guest of her friend, Miss Nellie Parker.

J. T. Leeper left Tuesday for Birmingham to attend the marriage of his cousin, Miss Mary Roberts to Mr.
George Willis, of Montgomery.

A list of the grand and petit jurors drawn to serve at the approaching term of circuit court, fourth Monday in March, will be found elsewhere.
See if you are one of the chosen.

J. M. Spencer has just received a large assortment of millinery goods, which are displayed in the rooms adjoining, formerly occupied as a law office. Miss Fannie Longshore has charge of this department.

Rev. J. G. Snedecor, agent of the American Bible Society, occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and at the Methodist church in the evening. He awakened new zeal in the Bible cause.

Clem Greek, came down from Anniston Saturday, and remained with home folks until Monday. Clem stands well in business circles, and judging from recent promotions it will not take him always to reach the top round of the ladder.

The Chronicle job department is rapidly becoming a popular institution if we may be allowed to judge from the quantity of work turned out each week and the number of new customers constantly being added to our list. "The senate is delighted," and so are our customers.

W. W. Albright wants all the people in this place and surrounding country to know that he desires to do their horseshoeing, blacksmith and repair work, and he has wisely planted an "ad" in The Chronicle. Result: plenty of work and money to put in the contribution box every Sunday.

Do you really believe, brother, that advertising don't pay? Surely not when evidence is before you daily proving the contrary. But if you still have doubts, watch closely for a day or two the only two stores here that use printer's ink. If you are not then convinced the treats are on us.

Dr. Page showed us yesterday a drawing showing the front of his building, work on which will commence with the opening of spring. It is a beauty, and will be the handsomest structure no doubt in the county.
And better still, it is to be filled chuck full of goods as soon as completed.
Who will be the next?

It always affords The Chronicle pleasure to commend merit where it is deserved, and as Dr. John S. Hill has done considerable work here, all of which has given entire satisfaction, we do not hesitate to pronounce him an artist in dental work, and not an ordinary "tooth carpenter," as are quite a number in his profession. Besides he paid his city license without a murmur, and did not attempt to beat it as one or two have done recently.

The supper given by the ladies of Shelby to assist in covering a deficit in paying off the school expenses was a complete success. The building was commenced under the most unfavorable auspices. The entire force of employees of the furnace was cut and no one knew when a resumption of work would take place. A good many of the subscribers could not possibly meet their subscribed obligations on that account. Yet the work of building went on—the school opened—and Prof. Savage put in charge. Under his management it went down and the school was completely broken up long before the session was at an end.
Then Prof. Dawson undertook to reopen the school with the prestige of his having made a good county superintendent. This was after his defeat for re-election to that office. Yet again was the success of the school doomed by his absconding and leaving ostensibly the state. During his brief management of the school, however, he had employed Prof. Franklin, a gentleman of christian virtues and sterling qualifications, and he was appointed to take charge of the school.
His services toward building up the high character of the school has won for him an enviable position and the whole community can attest to his faithful zeal in furthering the interests of his pupils. He holds a high place in the hearts of the people.

In connection with the ladies he has labored to make the supper a financial success. It was truly one in every sense of the word—socially, because the young people ate to repletion good oysters and nicknacks—while from a money point of view they realized the handsome sum of $60.00 above all expenses.

Harpersville Echoes.

The measles is about over.
An early spring is predicted.
The fair sex have commented gardening.

T. J. Martin paid Anniston a business trip last week.

There were several wagons from St.
Clair county on our streets last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Nelson, Jr., of Columbiana, visited relatives here Friday and Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Seale, who went from here in January to try their fortune in Georgia, have come back home and Mr. Seale is going to travel for a tobacco house.

Wonder who that man is at Creswell who moved so many times last year. I'll bet two bits to a ginger cake that he is either a Clarke man or a populite.

Miss Mollie, aged 22 years, daughter of Rev. W. F. Linder, living seven miles north of here, while burning corn stalks a few days ago caught fire and was so badly burned that she died the next day.

The supreme court says that the farmers alliance at Harpersville must finish paying Jack Jennings for school taught by him seven or eight years ago, and the "boys" are all paying up their dues now, while Judge Russell is having his crib filled with corn for cost. As will be remembered, this case was tried two or three times in justice court, and a time or two in circuit court and was finally carried to the Supreme court. I have been told that the amount at first was only about sixty dollars, and now it is somewhere between two and three hundred including costs and all.
Moral—Pay what you promise to and don't listen to your political bosses.

Rev. J. F. Parker preached at the Baptist church last Sunday.

W. B. Hubbard and Renfro Martin took in the entertainment at Childersburg last Friday night.

Webb Martin went over to Birmingham last week, prospecting.

We hear the name of H. C. Reynolds mentioned as a suitable man to represent Shelby in the next legislature.

Politics here are worth one hundred cents on the dollar now, with Johnson in the lead.

The CHRONICLE is a welcome visitor here, but of late days it don't reach us until Saturday at noon. Please hurry it up sooner.

The young people of our community are speaking of organizing a Literary Society in the near future, and if they do they will probably turn out some poetical writers as Wilsonville has done, and won't that just be splendid?
"JAKE."

Wilsonville Waifs.

Mr. Bony Smith, of Childersburg, was in town Tuesday.

Charlie Adkins, of Calera, spent several days with relatives here last week.
J. H. Hammond, of Columbiana, was in our city last week.

T. J. Martin and Pick Rowe, of Harpersville, were in town Friday.

Mr. Halloran, representing the Mc-Cormick Binders, of Philadelphia, Pa., was in town on business last week.

Mr. C. Bussler's father spent several days here last week.

J. F. Pope visited Sylacauga and
Vincent last week.

W. S. Gwinn made a business trip to Birmingham Friday.

J. H. Weldon made a business trip to Anniston Tuesday.

J. H. Roberson visited Calera Wednesday.

J. L. Ray visited Columbiana Wednesday.

Miss Clickler has returned to her home in Oxford after a two week's visit to relatives.

Mrs. J. F. Pope visited friends in Harpersville Wednesday.

H. FOX, MANAGER.

Ed. Winn went to Columbiana Wednesday.

W. R. Smith and E. Williamson went to Columbiana Wednesday.

Messrs. Holland and O'Hara visited Columbiana Wednesday.

Marvin Self left for Meridian, Miss.,
Wednesday, where he has secured a position with the N. O. & N. E. railroad Co.

The serenade Wednesday night was very much appreciated by all. The songs were simply immense.

Mr. Milton, of Selma, attended the funeral of his son here Saturday.

Buck Daniels says he is through with the measles now, but is not through "up the road."

Another ride was indulged in by the young people of our town Sunday afternoon.

Murder.—Found last Sunday morning by searching friends, one snowbird, supposed to have been killed by the bird-thrashing party on Saturday night. Girls, you should be careful and set good examples before the boys, as they seem to think what you do is nothing but right.

J. W. Kytie, sawyer for J. C. Jackson & Sons, was severely ill last week, consequently H. A. Jackson has had the pleasure of filling his position.

Rev. Stewart, President of the Orphans' Home at Evergreen, Ala., delivered an excellent sermon at the Baptist church last Sunday. The sermon seemed to be enjoyed very much by all those who were so fortunate as to be present. He is a prominent man in the homes of the orphans, and an urgent man in the ministerial work.
We extend to him a hearty welcome at any time it is convenient for him to give us a call.

Nelly Bly, we wish you an immediate disposal of the horses advertised by you last week, but we are a little afraid they are "hard stock" under conditions of the safe. We are not certain as to who Nellie Bly is, but if you are a girl we would make a special offer to cast the highest bid.

The prayer-meeting services last Wednesday evening were quite an improvement. Several questions were given to the committee appointed to answer them. All of which we expect to hear answered at the next meeting, which will be conducted by Mr. J. F.
Pope.

The program of the S. P. L. League was very nicely disposed of. The debate (subject mentioned two weeks before) was decided in favor of the pull side of the question.

The society will meet Friday night,
March 13th, at John Milstead's.

The following program was arranged:
Recitation, n. n. n. Miss Laura Weldon
Song, n. n. n. Miss Kate Gwinn
News of Week, n. n. n. Oscar Tinney
Speech, n. n. n. W. R. Smith
Music, n. n. n. Miss Olive Densler Criticism, n. n. n. W. S. Gwinn, Jr.

MY BOYHOOD DAYS.

How often do I think of the days of my youth,
And my loving playmates, so cheerful and so true;

The place where I so well loved to play
In summer's long, beautiful shining day.

The old sand-bed by the side of the public road,
In which I used to make play-houses for the toads,
The fish in the laughing streamlets and brooks
I used to try to catch them with a pin for a hook.

Away down on the farm, or riding on the lake
I would stay all the day until the eve was growing late;
I would then hurry home with great stories to tell
To my mother and my father who loved these so well.

One day I was playing by the side of the road,
When a gentleman drove up and asked rather boldly:

"Young fellow, whose boy you are I would love to know,"
I said to him bravely I belong to my Ma.

I once told a falsehood I'll never forget;
The good promise I made I will never regret.
I prayed to my mother and father to forgive,
And I'd never tell another as long as I lived.

My first days of study was tremendous to me,
It seemed that I would never learn my A. B.
C's;

But day after day I struggled on pretty well Till at last every word for "Baker," I could spell.

When only six years of age I started to school
Not knowing the rules I was hard to control;
My teacher would scold and tattle me about
I then would decide to get up and go out.

I soon fell in love with the little pretty girls.
I thought I was as large as any man in the world;
Although my years past would but only number ten.

How foolish boys are if they only knew it then.

The kiss from the small girls I use to get a few And slip up behind the older ones and kiss them too.

These pleasures are gone when a boy becomes a man.
Oh, if I were only a little boy again.

Infests the blood of humanity. It appears in various forms, but is forced to yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies and vitalizes the blood and cures all such diseases. Read this:

"In September, 1894, I made a misstep and injured my ankle. Very soon afterwards,

A Sore

two inches across formed and in walking I sprained my ankle. The sore became worse; I could not put my boot on and I thought I should have to give up at every step. I could not get any relief and had to stop work. I read of a cure of a similar case by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and concluded to try it. Before I had taken all of two bottles the sore had healed and the swelling had gone down. My

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

A woman life insurance is doing a thriving business in and about Nebo, Ky.

A bald eagle, with a big steel trap hanging to one of its legs, flew over Licking, Ky., a few days ago.

Hovessville, Ky., the county seat of Hancock county, has no Hebrew residents, and there is only one Hebrew in the county.

A woman's rights club has been organized in St. Joseph, Mo., and arrangements have been made for putting in a billiard table and a woman barber.

"In honor of a young lady visiting the town" a very successful dog fight was given in Swampville, Ky., the other day, according to a local paper.

A farmer in South Gray, Me., says he has a hen that is 22 years old, who can yet scratch a good living and care for a brood of chickens.

A man was put in charge of the officials of the county asylum in Kennebec county, Me., the other day on the sole ground that he was "ignorant." Just how ignorant he was the commitment papers did not state; they only said he was "ignorant."

A Lewiston (Me.) man found a gold ring in the street the other day. When he got home his wife bewailed to him the loss of her ring, which had somehow slipped from her finger in the course of the morning. The ring the husband found proved to be the one his wife had lost.

Last Christmas a San Francisco newspaper gave a silver cup to every child born on the Pacific coast on that day. The offer was made until some three weeks before Christmas. The Ledger, of Mexico, Mo., now announces that it will give a silver cup to every child born in the country next Christmas week.

ABOUT EYES.

Dreaming of an adversary signifies that you are to overcome obstacles which are in your way.

Many specimens of worms and the larvae of insects are not provided with eyes. Their habitation being in the earth, eyes to them would be useless.

It seldom happens that both eyes are exactly alike. An examination with a magnifying glass usually discovers many differences between the two.

When the under arch of the upper eyelid is a perfect semicircle it is indicative of goodness, but also of timidity, sometimes approaching cowardice.

Scientists who have made a study of the eye say that a flash of light lasting 40-1,000,000,000ths of a second is quite sufficient for distinct vision.

The eye which when open presents a long acute angle to the nose invariably indicates comprehensive understanding and great intelligence in its possessor.

M. Jules Cambon, at present governor-general of Algeria, has accepted the position of editor in chief of the Journal des Debats, which has now become an evening paper.

Stop, Thief!

Stop a small malady, which is stealing your strength, before it outruns your power to arrest it and recover what it took from you. The safest and promptest recuperator of wasting vitality is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which renews vigor, flesh and nerve quidity because it restores activity to those functions whose interruption interferes with general health. Use the Bitters for dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatic and kidney complaints and biliousness.

Homely Character Sketches from the Rocky Creek Settlement.

Uncle Silas Crosses the Last Ditch—Mart Mayo, the "Most Ablest" Liar—The Best in His Shop—Two Dollars for a Fly.

If it ever comes to pass that you brought run short on material for poets and preachers and philosophers and politicians—all you have got to do is to back your cart down into Rocky Creek, and load up with it.

And then, when you are in the place—plain, old-fashioned, American people, who worship God, and love their country, and serve their day and generation as they blame please—I will back the Rocky Creek settlement against the whole entire discovered world, and land my money as easy as pickin' it up in the big road.

Over the Last Ditch.

Old man Silas Gillum—Uncle Silas, as most everybody was wont to call him—was dead and gone now, but he was a man that had some quaint and peculiar ways of his own. In a general way he was a mighty good man, a good neighbor and a good citizen. He had come down from a long line of God-fearing, debt-paying, dram-drinking, democratic people. He had lived and moved and had his washin done in the same settlement somethin better than 80 years, and no man, livin or dead, ever had anything serious in his touchin Uncle Silas, exceptin that he was rather precocious and dead set on his ways.

But there was one particular pint in that good old man's life which I put in to tell you about. Every year the Lord sent for more than 90 years Uncle Silas had dug a ditch and cleared up a new ground. That was always the first thing with him right after Christmas. They tell me that when he was young and in his prime he used to sometimes pitch in and clear up whole acres of land, but inaybe dig a ditch half a mile long at one spell. But in his old days he got so he would whittle his work down considerable. Sometimes he would take in just a little skirt of new grass and dig a little ditch somewhere about the place. He always had more open land than he needed on the farm, you understand. But that was only one of them peculiar ways that Uncle Silas had. He had went on clearin a little and ditchin a little every year for sixty odd years, and consequently he was dead set in that way. And after Christmas he use to say he never could feel plum natural and right till he tended to his regular business.

Two or three weeks ago it so come to pass that I went by the Gillum place, and I took notice that Uncle Silas was still doin business at the old stand. Down in the woods paster he had cleared up a little new ground, not much bigger than a garden spot, and out in the orchard he had dug a little ditch to dreene the water into the big road.

It wouldnt be no ways strange to me if that good old man had made his last clearin and dug his last ditch, says I to myself as I rid on towards home. And then about the next news I got from Uncle Silas a funeral was goin on over to his house. He had crossed over the last ditch and went to the other land of light and sunshine and flowers.

The Best in His Shop.

But now when it comes to quaint and peculiar ways, old man Mart Mayo is the gonebyest most strangerest card in the whole pack. Mart is a natural-born liar. Sometimes it raley seems to me like he couldn't tell the truth with a dead rest.

And the maldest wonderment to me is that Mart knows he is a liar and don't even try to lie out of that. When you cuss catch him at it and pin him down in a close corner he will own up to it like a man. Every now and then he will pass a good resolution with himself, and swear by the livin and the dead that he is going to quit lyin. But he don't take out and quit, and sometimes I doubt right serious if he can quit.

If it ever comes to pass that you nought cross Murder creek bridge down on the old Jackson Trail road you will remember a man by the name of Mart Mayo, and the way in which he got the best of Andy Lucas. Old man Mart was goin to town one day, ridin his mule in a sweepin gallop, and down there at the bridge he met up with Andy Lucas and two of the Stribblin boys.

"We have just been talkin about you, Mart, as the slickest and most ablesst liar in the settlement," says Andy when Mart rid up, "and now we want you to give us the very best one in your shop." "Taint no time for givin now, boys," says Mart, "and as for you, Andy Lucas, you would better make your horse swap ends and burn the wind for home. Your wife has fell in a fit and she is now at the pint of death. I am now goin after the doctor."

With that Mart he struck off towards town in a gallop, whilst Andy he wheeled his horse like a top, put the spurs to him and lit out for home. It was nine miles from there to the Lucas place and Andy rid his horse at such a fast and furious lick till he was well-used and stove up henceforward for ever. And by gracious, when Andy got home his wife was out in the garden pickin vegetables for dinner, sound and well as ever and singin "Mollie Put the Kettle On" at the top of her voice.

Well, naturally of course Andy he was mad then. He was so foaminn mad till he borrowed a horse and went right on to town and wanted to work up a fight with Mart Mayo. "You can't throw no blame on me for that, Andy," says old man Mart. "You brung on the trouble yourself, which I can prove it by the Stribblin boys. You loved I was the most ablesst liar in the settlement, which everybody knows that without any tellin from you, and I didn't deny it. Then you wanted me to give you the best one in my shop, and I give it to you prompt and cheerful as I could."

He Used Up Henry Clay.

"It's no use in talkin, Rufe, I'm gwine to quit lyin," says old man Mart to me the next time I saw him after he sent Andy Lucas back home in such a tremendous big hurry. "Lyin don't do me no particular good, Rufe, and it might make do somethin harm. I have now told my last lie and took out and quit. You can set that down in your notebook, and if I don't stand up to it I hope I will never live to vote another democratic ticket."

"Did I ever tell you about the time I wiped the earth up with Henry Clay in a political argyfication?" says Mart, in the very next breath. "It was back there in Georgy, Rufe, and in my young days, when I was a whole team and the dog under the wagon and a tar bucket throwed in for good measure. And in regards to politics, I wore the bell and toted the spurs over any man that trod shoe there in them parts."

"You will recollect, Rufe, that Henry Clay was then the biggest man among the whigs, and he had come down into our beat to make a speech and hold a big political rallimention which at that time all the whigs in the settlement could set on the butt out of one log and hit not full. Most everybody in that country—even to the women and children—was Andy Jackson democrats, and at the meetin that day it was left for me to rise the democratic end of the chink. And by the shades of Washington, when I got through with Henry there went so much as a greasy spot to tell where he had stood. I smote him under the fifth rib, and I basted him gwine and a comin, till he just naturally had to give up the fight, and quit. But the bustin went on so thick and so regular—hot stuff and a heap of it—till finally at last, by hokeys, he had to mount his nag and leave the grounds."

"The next day I got a letter from Henry, in which he told me if I would but only quit the democratic party and vote over on the right side he would put me through for vice president in the followin campaign. But in respondin back with my answer I writ and told him I would not leave the old family lick log for all the fat jobs in the New Nited States."

So after that it is my private opinion that Mart Mayo will keep on tellin lies until a tombstone takes the job off of his hands. As a great and gifted liar he can now beat the finest tombstone in creation.

The Poor Old Lady Was Dead.

And then there is my side partner, Andy Lucas—he is likewise also one of them quaint and precocious kind of men. He is a right tolerable good judge of horses and corn whiskey ("white rik," as he calls it), but outside that I raley don't think Andy knows anything for certain.

Once upon a time me and Rufe Serregins and Andy Lucas went up to the state convention, and we tarried round about there till the next Sunday. To the general wonderment of me and Rufe Andy went to church three times in three different places that day—morbin etwihn 24 1/2 hours. And from the way he tells it, it would seem like he heard the same preacher preach the same sermon every time, which he took his text from along there in the good Book where you read abilit Simon Peter's wife's mother bein sick abed with a fever.

On our return back home the next day we took a boat and come down to the river. It also come to pass that the same big preacher which Andy Lucas had heard preach the same sermon at three different places the day before, was leavin towh by the same boat. About the time the vote was fixin to pull out there was a tremendous ringin of bells goin on around town.

"What in creation are they ringin all them bells for?" says the preacher to the general crowd.

"I reckon they must be havin a big funeral for Simon Peter's wife's mother," put Andy Lucas, as serious and innocent as you please. "I heard three times yesterday that she was sick abed with a high fever, and by this time no doubt the poor old lady must be dead."

Two Dollars for a Fly.

Everybody don't know why it is that Andy Lucas never did wade in very deep in regards to the church and religion. But me and him have always been as thick as thieves at a circus, and he has told me a heap of things "jest between us gals," as he is wont to put it.

"Way back there in my young and gallin days, you understand, Rufe, I come down high gittin forever weaned off from tendin church," says Andy to me, in tellin of the story. "It was in the heat and burden of summer time and the weather was scoundious hot. A big distracted meetin was goin on over at Dark Log, and on Sunday I climbed into my storebought clothes and went to church with Miss Pinky Ann Newtton. Well, Miss Pinky she was dressed clean out of sight that day, and I was puttin on a whole nassle of dog myself. After the sermon the preacher he called for money."

"All them that will give five dollars for the good work raise up your hands," says he, and he pulled three or four of the amen corner brethren to that extent.

"Now, all of them that are willin to put two dollars out at interest on the Lord's side, please raise your hands," says he.

"Now, mind you, Rufe, me and Miss Pinky Ann had waded in tolerable close to the amen corner in ornament to see and be seen. And about that time a blamed old fly lit on my nose and tickled so I couldn't stand it. Somethin jest naturally had to be did, and when I raised my hand to bresh off the fly the preacher thandered the Lord and slapped me down for two dollars."

"And do you know, Rufe, he sized my pile to a nat's heel? I had two dollars, smooth and even, in halves and quarters, and I had put it down there in my flanks where it would rattle as I walked, and by gatlines he cleaned me up. You know good and well I didn't have no money to put out at interest, but there I was, weedin of a wide row with Miss Pinky Ann, and everybody lookin at us, and I couldn't see no way to snake out. So I went down into my pocket, rich and reckless like, and settled up like a man, which at the same time it was like payin taxes or sheddin eye teeth. Henceforward after that I have always took a back seat in church, where I can bresh the flies off without buyin 'em at the rate of two dollars a head."

May the God of the hopeless and the helpless bless these quaint and peculiar people. The world needs them in its business.

Sciatic Rheumatism and Its Cure.

From the Gazette, Burlington, Iowa.

The story of Mr. Tabor's nearly fatal attack of sciatic rheumatism is familiar to his large circle of acquaintances, but for the benefit of others and those similarly afflicted The Gazette has investigated the matter for publication. Mr. Tabor is Secretary and Treasurer for the Commercial Printing Company, with offices in the Hedge Block and resides at 417 Basset Street, Burlington, Ia. A Gazette man sought an interview with Mr. Tabor at his place of business to-day, and, although he was busily engaged with imperative duties, he talked freely and feelingly in the subject of his recent severe sickness and subsequent wonderful cure.

"Yes," said Mr. Tabor, "I can safely say that I am well, that is, my old trouble with rheumatism has entirely disappeared, but I am still taking Pink Pills and will keep on taking them as long as I continue to grow stronger and healthier, and I have been every day since I began to use them. You will not wonder at my profound faith in the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People after you have heard what I have to tell you. About one year ago I was stricken suddenly with sciatic rheumatism and was confined to my bed. It grew worse and rapidly assumed the form of inflammatory rheumatism. I suffered constant and acute pains in all the buttocks. Which that horrible disease is capable of inflicting. At length under the constant care of a local physician I was enabled to return to my work, but only to find that I grew worse and rapidly assumed the form of inflammatory rheumatism. LAWYERS QUIBBLING

To Prevent the Extradition of Pearl Bryan's Slayers,

APPARENTLY OBLIVIOUS OF THE FACT

That Lawyers' Quibbles to Protect a Murderer Led to a Most Sanguinary and Costly Struggle in Cincinnati a Few Years Ago.

CINCINNATI, March 7.—Jackson, handcuffed to Sheriff Archibald, and Walling, walking free by the side of Criminal Bailiff Bowman, were taken before Judge Buchwalter at 9 a. m. in the first legal brush for their custody between their attorneys and the state of Kentucky. Jackson sat in the jury box looking in an absent-minded manner out of the windows, while Walling, who is the more communicative, talked with several friends, as he laughed and stroked a scant beard. Attorney Ermon, who will make the principal fight for the defense, came in early, while the commonwealth's attorney, Lockhart, and Nelson for Kentucky, also Attorneys Shepard and Andrews, for the prisoners, followed.

The trial room was carefully guarded. Attorney Shepard, for Walling, disclosed the plan agreed on for the defense. He asked that the men be tried separately. This would permit the man whose trial is delayed to learn the evidence against the first man. The court said he would hear the legal discussion in either case. This at once shut out the idea of forcing an explanation of the defense.

Col. Nelson read to the court all the papers involved in the extradition process which is directed to Scott Jackson.

Sheriff Plummer was called to prove his commission, to identify himself and Jackson as well, all of which he did.

Attorney Ermon then took him in hand and endeavored to show that Plummer, before Gov. Bushnell, failed to prove to the latter that he had actual personal knowledge of the facts set up in the indictment, and that, moreover, Gov. Bushnell, in allowing the warrant to go out under these circumstances, abused his discretionary power.

The court at once ruled that the record evidence so far introduced is competent for all purposes.

Ermon again asked leave to continue the court that the papers are insufficient, but at the court's suggestion he delayed the matter. While Jackson was being identified he looked squarely into Sheriff Plummer's face without a quiver.

Ermon again sought to break in on the papers by showing that Plummer was not accompanied by any witnesses, but Nelson objected and stood on the record, which seems to have the proper affidavit attached. The court sustained the objection.

During the argument the court remarked that the strength of the argument for defense was that the certificate of indictment simply states a belief. This ground is at least debatable, and the question is: Are these men fugitives from justice whose identity should be established by evidence.

Judge Buchwalter overruled the motion to dismiss the prisoners. Walling and Jackson turned pale after the court's statements, and the counsel said they had no other arguments to offer. The court said: "If I send the men to Kentucky, what will you do?" Counsel said: "File suits in habeas corpus."

CAPT. MAURICE HEANY,

One of Capt. Jamieson's Right-Hand Men, Arrives at New York.

New York, March 7.—Capt. Maurice Heany, the American who was a member of Dr. Jamieson's staff and participated in the latter's infamous raid on the Boers in South Africa in December, arrived here Friday on the steamship St. Louis. He is the first of that famous band to reach this country. The captain was met aboard the steamship by a representative of the United Press. In reply to a question as to his connection with the Johannesburg raid, Capt. Heany said: "I don't care to discuss the matter at all. I have not been well during the voyage and prefer to be left to pass on quietly. I have been married but recently, and myself and wife do not wish to stir up, or in any way discuss the events which have occurred during the past few months. It would be folly for me to talk upon the subject. I am sorry for Jamieson and the other boys, for they seem to be in a ticklish mess."

Capt. Heany comes to this country, it is understood, to place himself under the protection of the American government. It is believed that President Kruger of the South Africa Republic will demand the captain's return on a charge of treason, but the request is not likely to be granted.

BLACKBURN WINS.

Senator J. S. C. Blackburn Re-Elected at Frankfort, Ky.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 7.—Senator Blackburn has just been re-elected United States senator.

Amid cheers Populist Poor voted for Blackburn at the joint session to-day. On the ballot Poor voted for Pettit, but after it was completed, and before the result was announced, he arose and changed his vote to Blackburn.

Wild cheering ensued, and in rapid succession Messrs. Stephenson, Noe, Salyer, Baird, Elliston, Daugherty, Smith and Swinford rose and changed their votes to Blackburn. The Blackburn people were wild. Edgington, the other populist, had already voted for them.

A DEVILISH DEED.

Footpads Assault and Rob a Young Farmer and Place His Senseless Body on the Track.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., March 7.—Frank Frick, a young farmer, while returning home from this city Friday night, was assaulted by two men when on a steep grade on the Big Four railroad, and robbed of $40. The footpads then placed his body across the track. In this position he was found by a passing neighbor, just in time to remove the body before the Knickerbocker passenger train passed by for Cincinnati. The footpads have not been apprehended.

The house, after discussion, then voted non-concurrence in the amendments, Messrs. Wadsworth, Warner and Williams being named as managers on the part of the house.

The house then, in committee of the whole, resumed consideration of the post office appropriation bill.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Brighter Prospects for Business Appeared During the Week.

New York, March 7.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

General trade began the week relatively less favorably, but with the change from high winds and cold to milder weather, increased purchases and brighter prospects for business have appeared. Unfavorable conditions previously reported are continuing, but they are numerous, and those pointing to improvement.

Conspicuous among them is continued depression in the woolen and cotton goods manufacturing industries. Trade with manufacturers in those lines is very dull. Some cotton mills running half time. Iron and steel have had an unsatisfactory demand and prices of billets and southern pig are shaded. There are also reductions in quotations for cotton, print cloths, petroleum and hides, and for wheat, Indian corn and oats. Mercantile collections are generally unsatisfactory, notably at Chicago, where there are more complaints than for a year.

Exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week amount to 2,077,000 bushels, against 2,203,000 last week, 3,757,000 in the first week of March, 1895, 2,815,000 bushels in the corresponding week in 1894, 2,894,000 in 1893, and as compared with 3,754,000 in the like week of 1892. Exports of Indian corn are 2,775,000 this week, against 3,138,000 bushels last week, 1,947,000 bushels two years ago, and 679,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

Business failures throughout the country number 270 this week, against 271 last week, thus indicating that the improvement shown for nearly a month. The total in the corresponding week a year ago was 252, in the like week in 1894 it was 322, and in 1893, 221.

THE BRITISH BLUE BOOK

On the Venezuelan Question Various Comments Upon.

LONDON, March 7.—The Manchester Guardian, commenting on the Venezuelan blue book, says: "The report will require much expert explanation. It is evident that the British case is strong, and there is, therefore, more reason for submitting it to a suitable body, perhaps the American boundary commission, with some additions."

The Westminster Gazette says the contents of the blue book do not preclude negotiations upon the subjects of the dispute.

The Pall Mall Gazette makes no comments.

The St. James Gazette says: The historical and geographical claim is the strongest possible, but we decline ourselves if we suppose that settlement has been virtually reported by the publication of these elaborate and exhaustive blue books.

The Globe says: Though the British case has thus been brought into court, it is a profound mistake to assume that it will be submitted formally or informally to the American government. Great Britain has never recognized any American tribunal and jurisdiction whatever in the matter, and never will.

A SENSATION IN COURT.

Judge Henry an Advocate of the Shotgun in Defense of the Family Heir.

MASSACHUSETTS, March 7.—As the Phillips divorce case terminated in the circuit court in this city the spectators were astonished to hear Judge W. J. Henry, a venerable and conservative jurist, reprove the defendant, Ballingat Phillips, for not using a gun to defend his honor.

Thereupon the plaintiff, Mrs. Nettie B. Phillips, fainted and was carried from the room.

The case has been replete with disgusting testimony from the witnesses. The defendant, Ballingat Phillips, was shown to be the injured party, and was given the decree.

THE BROCKWAY GANG

Of Forgers Sentenced to Various Terms at Trenton, N. J.

TRENTON, N. J., March 7.—Wm. E. Brockway, Abbie L. Smith and Wm. E. Wagner, the counterfeiters, were arraigned for sentence before Judge Green of the federal court. Brockway was sentenced to 10 years in state prison and to pay a fine of $1,000. Mrs. Smith was sent to the Essex county penitentiary for four years and will have to pay a fine of $250. Wagner received the lightest sentence, owing to the fact that the jury had recommended him to the mercy of the court. His sentence was one year in the Hudson county penitentiary and a fine of $100.

FIRE AT COLUMBUS, O.

The Columbus Phatton Co. and Others Involved in the Ruin.

COLUMBUS, O., March 7.—The buildings formerly occupied by the Pioneer Buggy Co. on West Broad street are in ruins. The loss on the buildings is about $30,000. They are insured for $10,150, including that on boilers. The Columbus Phatton Co. places its loss at $13,500, with $10,000 insurance. The Columbus Paint Co. loses $7,000; insurance, $4,000. A. L. Reynolds loses $1,000; no insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. W. F. Burdell owned the building.

Given a Medal of Honor.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Orville T. Chamberlain, formerly captain of Company C, Forty-seventh Indiana infantry, who went through a galling fire to procure ammunition for his company at the battle of Chickamauga, has been granted a medal of honor by the president for "most distinguished gallantry."

SENATOR CHANDLER

Poking Up Senatorial Extravagance with a Sharp Stick

IN THE SHAPE OF STARTLING FIGURES.

Four Employees to Each Senator, With a Salary List Greater Than the Salary and Mileage Accounts of the Senators.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—In support of his resolution looking to the retrenchment of expenditures in the senate, Senator Chandler has sent a letter to Chairman Pritchard of the committee on civil service and retrenchment, and Senator Jones, chairman of the committee on contingent expenses of the senate, in which he calls attention to the many extravagant expenditures of the body he now seeks to have investigated.

Senator Chandler accompanies his letter with a table of facts from which he draws some very interesting conclusions. He shows that the total number of employees of the senate aggregates 353, among whom are 121 clerks, 57 messengers, 52 laborers, 23 pages, 18 folders and 15 policemen. The other departments are much smaller, there being, for instance, seven mail carriers, eight watchmen, five conductors of elevators, four messengers, acting as assistant doorkeepers, four assistant engineers, five firemen, etc.

The total expenditures of the senate, less the salaries and mileage of senators, which amounts to about $180,000 annually, has ranged from $477,332 in 1887 to $699,189 in 1891. This year there was a reduction to $648,201. The total increase in all expenditures has been $118,092, and the total decrease $917,124, leaving a net increase of $200,968.

It will be seen by these figures," Mr. Chandler says, "that there are about four employees to each of the 99 senators. Indeed, the policemen and there still remain 338 persons engaged in attendance upon senators. It must be manifest to you upon the briefest possible consideration given to the subject that the force is excessive and extravagant. Deduct from the 121 clerks the 90 secretaries of senators and there remain 31 clerks. These might not be in excess if it were not for the large additional force described in the list. What are 37 messengers and 52 laborers doing? It can not be possible that they are all usefully employed, giving full service for the money received by them."

Mr. Chandler then proceeds to compare the pay-roll of the senate employees with the expenses of the military academy at West Point. The bill carries an appropriation of $302,439 for the pay-roll and current and ordinary expenses, including the salary of 315 cadets at $40 a year. The naval academy bill carries an appropriation for like purposes of $365,618. These expenses, Mr. Chandler says, include all the expenditures for the maintenance of the schools, except the salaries of the military and naval officers on duty.

Continuing, he says: "Into the details of all the expenditures of the senate, which have grown so enormously, I have not been able to go. I have not deemed it necessary in order to justify me in pressing the resolution which I have offered; those details should be investigated by your two committees with a view to the dismissal of every surplus employee and the omission hereafter of every needless expenditure."

BOLD CHICAGO FOODPADS

Relieve James W. Sheridan, a Wealthy Brewer, of His Valuable Most Audacious.

CHICAGO, March 7.—One of the most remarkable holdups that has ever occurred in this city took place at seven o'clock Friday night on Ashland boulevard, the most aristocratic street on the west side. James W. Sheridan, a wealthy brewer, was relieved of a gold watch, about $500 in cash and a pin valued at $200.

The robbery was committed by three men, one of whom held a revolver against Sheridan's abdomen, while another pressed a gun against his side. The third man did the collecting. While the robbery was going on several of Sheridan's friends passed by and said: "Good evening, Mr. Sheridan." The victim, persuaded by the revolver which were held against his body, returned the salutation in a cheerful tone, and his friends, thinking that he was talking with the three men, went on their way and left Sheridan to be robbed. The robbery was committed on a busy street and under the glare of an electric lamp.

RAN OFF THE TRACK.

Three Ohio Southern Trainmen Badly Injured.

LIMA, O., March 7.—About 4 a. m. an east-bound train ran off the rails at the crossing over the Ohio Southern, about a mile east of the city. The engine was overturned and Brake-man Wm. Erwin, of Huntington, Ind., buried beneath it. He was held down for several hours before he was released, and his legs were badly crushed from the hips down. Fireman Jones was wedged between the tank and cars, and his right leg was badly mashed, while Engineer Horn was hurled through the cab window and escaped with a few injuries. The injured men all have families.

Given a Medal of Honor.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Orville T. Chamberlain, formerly captain of Company C, Forty-seventh Indiana infantry, who went through a galling fire to procure ammunition for his company at the battle of Chickamauga, has been granted a medal of honor by the president for "most distinguished gallantry."

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

Ex-Postmaster Sentenced for Arson.

Dave Sanders, until recently postmaster, farmer and merchant at Sardis, Ala., was recently sentenced to the state penitentiary for eight years. He was convicted of arson in the second degree in the city court at Selma a few days ago, and sentence was suspended to allow attorneys for the defendant an opportunity to argue a motion for a new trial, but they finally decided to appeal the case on exceptions already taken, and the execution of the sentence will be stayed until the case has been passed on by the supreme court. Sanders killed at one time three negroes in the public road, whom he said shot into his house as they rode by.

Management That Pays.

Years ago the state of Georgia incurred the bonds of the Northeastern railroad, running from Athens to Clayton, for $287,000. Two years ago the company defaulted and threw the road back on the hands of the state, which in turn, failing to find a purchaser, had to operate it. From being a bankrupt road the last year's business shows that it has become a good paying property, under state management.

The other day it turned into the state treasury $20,000 clear profit on the last half year's work, besides having largely increased the betterment.

Court Opened with Prayer.

When the circuit convened recently at St. Stephens, Ala., Attorney Samuel B. Browne moved that the proceedings be opened with a Bible reading. Judge W. S. Anderson responded that it would be appropriate and so granted the motion. Mr. Browne thereupon read in a clear voice from II. Peter. Circuit Solicitor Stewart Brooks then led fervently in prayer, while the assembly stood with bowed heads and responded "Amen" at the end.

Mexican War Veteran.

Capt. John Peek, one of Hartwell's (Ga.) oldest citizens, died the other morning. Capt. Peek was a soldier in the war with Mexico, organized a company from Madison county, N. C., and entered the confederate service in the late war. In the assault upon the bishop's palace in Monterey he was the second man to scale the heights.

Deadly Work with a Winchester.

In a desperate fight with regulators near Plant City, Fla., Bowen Sykes shot four men fatally and seriously wounded six others. Sykes received notice to leave the country, but instead of leaving he armed himself with a Winchester and awaited the coming of the regulators, with the above result.

Seaboard Connection.

The latest move in railroad circles is to give the Macon, Ga., a new line via Augusta, with an outlet by connection with the Seaboard Airline. The new line is to be composed of the Macon, Dublin & Savannah, the Wrightsville & Tennille, the Augusta Southern and the Port Royal & Western Carolina.

Presentment of Death.

John C. Herman, a once a merchant of Selma, Ala., dropped dead in Autauga county, 15 miles from Selma, the other day. He had a presentment of approaching death several months ago, and went about setting up his worldly affairs, and had about completed his task when death came.

Leader Disappears.

Rev. John Smith, a colored preacher who has led Atlanta (Ga.) darkies to believe that to-morrow they would ascend to heaven in a whirlwind, and many of whom he induced to sell all their household effects, has left the city and can not be found.

Sentenced to Death.

John Waldrop, colored, for the murder of Jasper Thornton, and Will Smith, colored, for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Arthur Woods, were sentenced to be hanged in the criminal court of Birmingham, Ala., the other day.

Alleged White Caps.

Nine citizens were arrested near Blountsville, Ala., on warrants sworn out by John Marshall, a young negro, who claims they were among 15 who whitecapped him and gave him a severe flogging with switches recently.

Charged with Embezzlement.

Mrs. Georgia P. Harris, stamp clerk in the post office at Memphis, Tenn., was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Post Office Inspector Little, charging her with embezzlement of $3,000 of her office funds.

Purvis Surrenders.

Will Purvis, the notorious whitecap at Purvis, Miss., who was sentenced to be hanged last December and escaped the day before his execution, surrendered to the sheriff at Purvis the other day.

Convicted of Murder.

A verdict of murder in the first degree was returned by the jury at Jackson, Tenn., in the Hart Greene case for the killing of M. P. Mitchell at Whiteville.

Southern States Exposition.

The Southern States Exposition Co. was incorporated at Springfield, Ill., the other day, with $100,000 capital.

D. P. Waring.

D. P. Waring, a prominent young business man of Columbus, Miss., died of pneumonia.

Dwelling and Contents Burned.

The house of James Radford, near Hopkinsville, Ky., with all contents and outbuildings, was burned the other night. Loss, $8,000; insurance $2,500.

Fell From a Train.

Andrew Moore, a well-to-do farmer of Hawkins county, Tenn., fell from a Southern railway train near Rogersville Junction, receiving fatal injuries.

Killed His Son.

At Wilde, Ky., near Richmond, Clinton Todd stabbed his son George, the boy dying in a few minutes. George was drunk and attacked his father,

NEW YORK DEMOCRACY

Getting Ready for the State and National Campaigns.

WHITNEY IS TAMMANY'S CANDIDATE

For the Presidential Nomination and Daniel S. Lamont for Governor—Some Want Flower Again—Talk of the St. Louis Convention.

New York, March 7.—It was reported in democratic circles Friday night that the Democratic state committee would meet the first week in April and call the democratic state convention for the election of delegates at large to the democratic national convention for the first second week in May.

County Clerk Henry D. Purroy expressed the unanimous opinion of Tammany when he said that, in his opinion, the man for the democrats to nominate for the presidency was Wm. C. Whitney.

"Mr. Whitney," said Mr. Purroy, "is the candidate of every sound money democrat in the state, and his popularity is as wide as the country. I believe that he would accept the nomination if it were the expressed wish of the convention, and if he does accept it I sincerely believe that he will be elected. I would not have said this a month ago, but now the chances of the democracy are improving every day, and I believe that with such a candidate as Mr. Whitney the result will be a democratic victory."

Some politicians want Roswell P. Flower to become the nominee for governor, while others think the situation presents an opportunity for Senator Hill to successfully seek vindication.

An active Cleveland man from Erie county is quoted as saying that he believed union in the party was nearer of accomplishment than at any time for years. His idea of it is that the conservative men shall be given the candidate for governor, Tammany Hall the candidate for lieutenant governor, and that an agreement shall be entered into that if the democrats carry the legislature by a large enough majority next fall to elect a United States senator David B. Elliot be re-elected without opposition.

The Tammany Hall men speak well of the candidacy of Wm. R. Grace for the gubernatorial nomination, and are also favorably disposed toward Perry Belmont. But the men of the Tammany senators and assemblymen in Albany must lean toward is Daniel S. Lamont, if he can be prevailed upon to run.

Republican presidential boom managers have made up their minds, in view of their experiences in Florida, Mississippi and Texas, that the committee on credentials at the St. Louis convention will virtually determine who the republican presidential nominee shall be. It is a foregone conclusion that there shall be contests in every state in the south, and the control of the credentials committee will be the main point of issue in the organization of the convention.

Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas have elected full sets of delegates, and from each of these states contesting delegations will be sent to the national convention.

The same game, it is said, will be played that resulted in Gen. Harrison's second nomination and his defeat. The delegations sent for McKinley will be contested by the Morton-Allison-Reed combination, and whenever the combination claims regularly the Ohio men will enter contests.

With this situation probable the prediction is made by conservative politicians that the St. Louis convention will not be permanently organized in less than a week from the time it is convened.

THE ORIGINATOR AND LEADER OF LOW PRICES,

Presents to his readers this week this Mammoth advertisement instead of the little Bulletin of two weeks ago. My space was too small to tell you all I wanted to say of the good things I have in store for the wide-awake cash buyer.

Therefore I have adopted this method of getting my goods and prices before the people. Appreciating the hard times and scarcity of money I determined at the beginning to give the people goods at living prices. How well I have succeeded I leave for you to decide. Ever since I started in business, I have been in the lead of all others with

THE BEST GOODS FOR THE LEAST MONEY.

My would-be imitators are following in the rear, two or three years behind the procession, in fact some of them have just begun to realize that the war is over. My success from the start has been phenomenal, due simply to one fact,

EXTREMELY LOW PRICES!

I am getting the cream while the other fellows get skimmed milk. I have never sold so many goods at this season of the year. And why? Simply because I have upset old moss-covered trade laws. Instead of offering an accumulation of old RUBBISH AT WAR PRICES, I am selling

NEW, FRESH, CLEAN, BRIGHT AND STYLISH GOODS AT PRICES THAT SIMPLY PARALYZE THE OLD TIMERS.

AND HERE THEY ARE FOR THIS WEEK:

MILLINERY.

In this department my stock is the Largest and Handsomest ever shown in this place. MISS FANNIE LONGSHORE, a lady of rare taste an extensive experience, has charge of this department, and it goes without saying that she can suit you in anything in that line. Remember, that in order to make low prices we exact the cash in every instance.

Every day I am adding new attractions to my already handsome and attractive stock. You will find my house brim full of bargains in every line, and at prices never before heard of. Some of the old croakers say I am selling goods for less than cost and that I am not doing a legitimate business. This I leave for you to decide, but one thing I will say, that I am not in business simply for my health. I am after the almighty dollar just as they are, and I intend to get it if LOW PRICES and FAIR DEALING count for anything. I am the only one who has displayed nerve enough to put his prices in cold type.

Thanking you for the very liberal patronage you have given me, and asking a continuance of the same,

THE OBJECTIVE POINT

Of the Anglo-Egyptian Expedition Thought to Be Berber.

DIVERSION IN FAVOR OF THE ITALIANS.

Anxiety Felt at Cairo Over the Situation—An Advance Upon Dongola Ordered—An Object Lesson by King Menelek.

The Anglo-Egyptian Army's Objective.

LONDON, March 14.—It is the opinion in highly-informed military circles that the objective point of the Anglo-Egyptian expedition, mention of which was made in these dispatches this week, is not Dongola, but Berber. The government is interested in minimizing the importance of the enterprise, and will, doubtless, when explaining the matter to the house of commons, speak of the expedition as an Egyptian one, arising from the necessity of checking the projected advance of the Mahdists in Egypt. The object of the expedition is not the protection of Egypt, but is to make a diversion in favor of the Italians at Kassala. This seems to be the best possible line of action to assist Italy without drawing upon the British treasury, while at the same time, it will show indefinitely the demands for the British evacuation of Egypt.

The main cost of the expedition will fall upon the Egyptian treasury, which is now in a condition to bear a financial strain. The financial report shows for 1894 a revenue of £1,088,000 in excess of the expenditures. This is a most striking proof of the prosperity of the country under British administration. Fighting is certain. The mahdi has a large force at Dongola, and this will undoubtedly be formidably increased before the expedition has time to get within striking distance.

Anxiety Felt at Cairo.

LONDON, March 14.—A dispatch from Cairo to the Globe says that as the fast of Ramadan will end on March 15, it is probable that the dervishes will immediately thereafter advance northwards from Dongola. A great deal of anxiety is felt in Cairo over the situation, and the military were in conference all day Friday for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken.

Baron De Courcel, French ambassador to Great Britain, crossed the channel from Dover to Calais this afternoon on his way to Paris to report to his government the results of a prolonged interview which he had with Lord Salisbury Friday evening. It is believed that the conference had especial reference to Egypt.

Advance on Dongola Ordered.

CAIRO, March 14.—Orders have been given to advance upon Dongola without delay. The North Stafford regiment has been ordered to proceed to Wady Halfa, and a black Egyptian battalion is also about to start for that place.

An Object Lesson.

ROME, March 14.—Dispatches from Massowah say that King Menelek has reviewed his troops in the presence of Maj. Salsia, the Italian officer who went to the Abyssinian camp to obtain permission to bury the bodies of the Italians killed in the battle at Adowa. The dispatches say that 100,000 well-armed Abyssinian troops marched past in good order. King Menelek also showed Maj. Salsia his stores of ammunition and provisions.

A VALUABLE MAP

Just issued by the Naval Hydrographic Office.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The naval hydrographic office has issued a large chart in four colors showing the submarine cables of the world, with the principal connecting land lines of telegraph, and the coaling, docking and repairing stations throughout the globe. The latter feature is particularly elaborate by means of simple symbols showing the capacity of all the coaling stations as well as the extent of repairs possible in each and the docking facilities. The maps are said to be the most accurate and complete yet published.

Killed His Step-Daughter and Himself.

YONKERS, N. Y., March 14.—Shortly before 9 a. m. Alexander Nemeth, 37 years of age, a Hungarian, shot his step-daughter, 16 years old, through the heart and then shot himself. Both the girl and her murderer died almost instantly. Mrs. Nemeth, the Hungarian's wife, says that Nemeth made advances to her daughter.

Confessed to Stealing Mail Matter.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Chief Inspector Wheeler of the post office department has received dispatches announcing the arrest and confession of guilt of Susan Hammond, postmistress at Hubbell, Ky., as of Postal Clerk Fisher, at Winona, Minn., for stealing mail matter.

Dominick O'Grady Insane.

CINCINNATI, March 14.—Dominick O'Grady, the Roman Catholic priest who killed Mary Gilmartin two years ago, and who has been confined in the strong ward of the city hospital for several months, has been adjudged insane. He will be removed to Longview asylum.

Laid Aside His Coats.

EDINBURGH, March 14.—The court has granted a decree of divorce to Alexander Cross, M. P., for the Camellie division of Glasgow. His wife is a daughter of Coats, the great thread manufacturer. Mrs. Cross left her husband in 1891 and refused to return to him.

Sheddy Will Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—The sheddy mill of Hitchen Bros., near Wistar station, was burned. Loss on building and machinery, $8,000; partially insured.

Gov. Morton of New York will not be a candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency unless an honest money plank is incorporated in the platform to be adopted by the state convention in New York on March 24.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Gross Railway Earnings the Favorable Feature of the Week.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

The only conspicuously favorable feature of the general business situation is the report of February gross railway earnings throughout the country. Receipts of 126 companies last month were larger, with a single exception, than any previous month for more than three years. The February total for 1896 being $24,484,000, a gain over that total last year of nearly 14 per cent. These results are due in part to better weather conditions, large grain traffic and the inclusion of one more business day.

General trade shows no marked change. Distribution of merchandise is most active for dry goods, hardware, shoes and millinery, paints, oils and heavy chemicals. Jobbers report spring trade of a waiting character, due to belated snowstorms and unusually cold weather. Collections, with few exceptions, are no better, and in many instances less satisfactory, which tends to retard the movement of merchandise.

Total exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States during the six business days ending March 12 amount to 2,401,000 bushels, against 2,400,000 last week, 2,791,000 bushels in the corresponding week last year, 3,225,000 in the second week of March, 1894, and as compared with 2,687,000 in the like week of 1893. Total exports of Indian corn in the same week amount to 1,768,000 bushels; a little more than 1,000,000 bushels less than in the previous week, and as compared with 882,000 bushels in the like week last year, and with 1,278,000 in the corresponding week of 1894.

Business in the United States this week fully maintains the rate of commercial embarrassments reported of late, with a total of 282 for six business days ending March 12, compared with 270 in the preceding week, 322 in the corresponding week one year ago, 231 in the second week of March, 1894; 221 in the corresponding week of 1893, and with 219 in the like week of 1892.

Donoghue Beaten Again.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—In the four-mile skating contest this afternoon at the ice palace between Howard Mosher, of Storm King, N. Y., Joe Donoghue and Charley Davidson, Mosher won in 13 minutes and 6 seconds. Donoghue was seconds and Davidson third.

Approved by the President.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The president has approved the joint resolutions granting the Cole county museum the use of certain rooms in the Jefferson City (Mo.) public building.

THROUGH THE BREAST.

Charles Wilson Shot and Instantly Killed by Spencer Bradshaw.

ST. LOUIS, March 14.—Charles Wilson, colored, was shot and almost instantly killed by Spencer Bradshaw, also colored, on the street, Friday night. Wilson was 17 years old. Bradshaw is 22. Bradshaw was standing on the corner when Wilson came running down the street. The men met and engaged in a brief dispute, when Bradshaw suddenly, and with out apparent cause, drew a revolver and shot Wilson in the left breast. He staggered a few feet and dropped dead.

Wilson and Bradshaw are supposed to have been on bad terms with one another for some time on account of family troubles.

Bradshaw was arrested charged with murder in the first degree.

THE GOULDS

Admit a Liability to Taxation on $2,500,000 in New York City.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The supreme court having decided that the Gould family are not residents of this city, the $10,000,000 levied on them has been taken from the tax books.

They have informed the tax commissioners, however, that they are willing to pay a tax on $2,500,000 which, they allege, through their lawyers, is just, and they will be taxed accordingly.

The tax commissioners still hold to the view that the Goulds should be taxed on $10,000,000.

A LAWYER SUSPENDED

For Attempting Subornation of Perjury in the Holmes Case.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—Wm. A. Shoemaker, one of the counsel for H. H. Holmes, the Pitzeel murderer, was to-day suspended by Judge Thayer for one year from practice before the courts of this county. Shoemaker was accused of attempting subornation of perjury in having a woman make false affidavits for the purpose of proving an alibi for Holmes. The scheme was exposed by District Attorney Graham during the Holmes' trial and created a sensation at the time.

AGAIN IN HAVANA PROVINCE.

The Insurgents Are Moving in Force Toward the Capital.

HAVANA, March 14.—The insurgents are again in the central portion of Havana province in force, and are moving westward to the neighborhood of the city of Havana. Col. Figueroa reports that Thursday morning he met a numerous band under Martinez and headed by the fourth of this county. They opened fire, but the troops stood firm.

Another report issued Friday says that Antonio Maceo has entered the province of Havana along the south coast.

HON. THOMAS H. NELSON.

Death of the Well Known Indiana Politician at Terre Haute.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 14.—Hon. Thomas H. Nelson died in this city at the age of 76 years. He was minister to Chili from 1861 to 1869, and President Grant appointed him minister to Mexico. He was always prominent in presidential campaigns as a public speaker, and several times headed the republican electoral ticket in this state. He was a brother of the celebrated "ball" Nelson, who was killed by Gen. Jeff Davis in Louisville, Ky., early in the late war.

SHEEP-KILLING DOGS.

Macon County (Mo.) Farmers Are Indignant at the Post.

MACON, Mo., March 14.—There is a great deal of indignation felt among the sheep raisers near Vienna, this county, over the great number of their muttons that have been killed by worthless dogs. They have lost nearly 150 sheep in this manner recently.

Charles N. Moody has lost 65, ten head of which were brought from Ohio, and valued at $17,500 apiece. In a circular addressed to the owners of dogs the sheep raisers have protested against the keeping of dogs.

Will Investigate Dr. Carl Peters.

BERLIN, March 14.—The government has decided to make inquiry into the conduct of Dr. Carl Peters, the explorer, while he was in Africa. This action is being taken as the result of Friday's debate in the reichstag, when Dr. Peters was denounced as a murderer and his trial demanded upon that charge.

Tom O'Brien Gets a Life Sentence.

PARIS, March 14.—The trial of Tom O'Brien, the American, accused of the murder of "Kid" Waddell, another American swindler, last March, was ended, the jury bringing in a verdict of guilty without premeditation. The court sentenced O'Brien to imprisonment at hard labor for life.

Dividend Declared.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 14.—At the semi-annual meeting of the board of directors of the Pittsburgh, Youngstown & Ashtabula railroad (operated by the Pennsylvania company) held here, a semi-annual dividend of 3 1/2 per cent. was declared on both preferred and common stock.

Export Bounties Upon German Sugar.

BERLIN, March 14.—The reichstag committee having in charge the government sugar bill, by a vote of 12 to 9, fixed the export bounties upon raw sugar at four marks; upon candy sugars at four marks, and upon all other grades at three and a half marks.

The Krugersdorp Dead to be Reinterred.

LONDON, March 14.—Advices from the Transvaal announce the intention to exhume the bodies of the followers of Dr. Jameson, who were killed in the battle of Krugersdorp in the recent raid into the South African republic, and to reinter them in a cemetery.

Mark Twain Will Recover.

LONDON, March 14.—A dispatch from Bombay says that Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), who is lying ill at Jersey, in the Bombay presidency, will recover, his condition not being as serious as first reported.

HER METAL TOO HEAVY.

Sea Trials of the Indiana's Batteries Not Satisfactory.

HER GUNS ARE NOT PROPERLY PLACED.

And Her Armament is Too Heavy—Her Sister Ship, the Massachusetts, Likely to Develop Defects of Similar Nature.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—A local paper has the following:

Private advices received in this city convey the information direct from officers of the new battleship Indiana that the result of the gun trials at sea of that big fighting machine have been disappointing and unsatisfactory. Her armament consists of four 13-inch guns, each 40 feet long and weighing 63 tons, mounted in pairs in two main turrets. Eight eight-inch guns are mounted in pairs in the four smaller turrets on the upper deck, four six-inch guns are mounted in pairs in the upper casemate amidships, with a secondary battery of 20 six-pounders and four one pounder rapid-fire guns and four Gatlings in the military tops. This forms the heaviest and most diversified armament ever placed on any vessel of like dimensions. Its weight is enormous, and the amount of metal thrown at one complete discharge of the main battery alone would be 6,680 pounds.

The result of her sea trial shows these guns are too big, and are not placed so as to be operated in action as designed. The two 13-inch guns and the four-inch guns mounted in turrets fore and aft were meant to shoot straight ahead or straight astern. But in trial it was impossible to shoot the eight-inch guns within more than 30 degrees of a straight line forward or aft without great danger to the men in the main turrets just beneath them. The discharge of the big guns in the upper turrets on the trial almost blew the head off a gunner's mate, who was in the sighting tower of the main turret.

It was found impossible, also, to operate the 13-inch guns in a broadside, because the discharge would unsettle if it did not entire wreck the upper turrets. When fired straight ahead on the trial trip the explosion caused the iron-battle hatches on the main deck to fly off and otherwise shook things up. The charge for one of these big guns varies from 475 to 525 pounds of hexagonal powder, and naval experts fear that the ship would cripple herself before she had been in action half an hour.

The same trouble will be encountered with the Massachusetts, the exact counterpart and sister ship of the Indiana, which will give an unofficial trial by her builders, starting next Tuesday.

ALBERT WALLACE

Hanged at Pekin, Ill., for the Murder of His Sister, Mrs. Bowler.

PEKIN, Ill., March 14.—Albert Wallace was hanged at 10:39 a. m. for the murder of his sister, Mrs. John Bowler. He was pronounced dead 11 minutes after the drop fell. He made no statement on the scaffold.

The murder was a foul one. Wallace, without any provocation, being of a moody, passionate disposition, cruelly shot down in death his sister and wounded three other persons, then gave himself up to the sheriff of Tazewell county. He was duly tried, adjudged guilty and sentenced to be hanged. The case was taken to the supreme court on a writ of error. A supersedeas was granted, but this tribunal, finding no material error in the record, except in that portion relating to the sentence, sent the case back for a re-sentence. This was pronounced, and the 14th day of March was fixed as the date of execution.

IMPORTS

Of Specie and General Merchandise at the Port of New York.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The imports of specie at New York for the week were $141,600, of which $42,983 were gold and $98,705 silver. For the same week of 1895 the imports were $1,270,639. The imports exclusive of specie were $9,435,853, of which $2,877,582 were dry goods and $6,558,271 general merchandise. Last year during the same week the imports were $12,221,549 of which $3,867,116 were dry goods and $8,354,433 general merchandise.

HE WAS BLIND.

Death of Ex-Gov. Flanders of Louisiana, Aged Eighty.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—Ex-Gov. B. Flanders of Louisiana died near this city Friday, aged 80. He was a native of Bristol, N. H., and came to New Orleans in 1845. He was appointed mayor of New Orleans in 1870, and elected in 1872, and was appointed assistant United States treasurer by Gen. Grant in 1873. Mr. Flanders became blind some years ago, and gave up politics entirely, retiring to his farm where he lived.

Addison L. Griffin Died at Sea.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Mr. Addison L. Griffin, the general agent in the United States of the Carnegie Steel & Iron Co., died suddenly of heart disease last Tuesday aboard the North German Lloyd steamship Fulda, while on his return home from a trip through Europe. His body has reached this city.

Hotel Ampersand Sold.

MALONE, N. Y., March 14.—The Hotel Ampersand, at Saranac Lake, one of the most magnificent houses in the Adirondacks, was sold on a mortgage foreclosure in this village Friday. The Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York bid in the property at $70,000.

SOUTHERN CLEANINGS.

Novel Damage Suit in Arkansas.

Three suits were filed in the circuit court at Hot Springs, Ark., the other day, against the Hot Springs Street Railway Co., which involve a somewhat novel question of law. The complainants allege that on January 31, 1895, a fire broke out in the house of George Gover, on Gaines avenue, and the fire department connected a line of hose from near the end of Malvern avenue and threw water on the fire. It is alleged that a street car negligently run over the hose and cut it, thus shutting off the water supply and causing the fire to spread and destroy the dwelling house formerly the residence of John Vaccaro and its contents. D. W. Bryant, the owner of the house, sues for the amount of loss over and above the amount paid by two insurance companies, and the Insurance Company of North America and the Arkansas Fire Insurance Co. sue for reimbursement for the amounts paid under their policies.

Murdered His Chum.

Arthur Hayne, member of a well-known family of Atlanta, Ga., has been indicted for the murder of his friend, William Spinks. The tragedy is rather peculiar, in that the principals had been lifelong friends, and had never before had a serious difference. They were playmates and comrades together. Eight years ago, when both were youths, Arthur Hayne killed a man while fighting a battle for his friend, Will Spinks. Both Hayne and Spinks were arrested. Hayne was tried on a charge of murder, and was acquitted, while Spinks was released on his own cognizance, and his case never came to trial.

After this affair the boys became closer friends than ever. Each was rather of a wild disposition, and their tastes ran in the same channel. Seven days ago they met, when Hayne, getting angry at some remark of Spinks', stabbed him, from which he died.

Treasure Trove.

Green Hartley, a young farmer near Fort Valley, Ga., plowed up a rock in the field and beneath it he found an old earthen pot containing $18,000 in coin. In addition to the coin, the jar contained a lot of greenbacks, which, however, were so badly damaged that nothing can be done with them. Young Hartley was told by someone that half of the money, so long as it had been found, belonged to the government, and he therefore took the whole amount to the county treasury at Fort Valley and placed it on deposit there. The discovery has created a decided sensation, and hundreds flocked there to go over the scene and see if there was not something else of the kind to be found. It is understood that the former owners of the property will lay claim to the gold.

Bad Fire at Mobile.

Mobile, Ala., had a $100,000 fire the other day, involving the loss of the greater part of 2,680 bales of cotton. The flames broke out in a cotton shed of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co., soon taking in the long quano warehouse and elevator on the same wharf, which was destroyed. In the slip next to the wharf was the British steamship Corso, known to have on board 24,000 pounds of giant powder and 300 barrels of petroleum, and there was energetic work on the part of the steam tugs to get the steamer out of the slip.

"Railroad Bill" Killed.

"Railroad Bill," the desperate negro, who for three years has terrorized the train hands on the Louisville & Nashville road, was killed at Atmore, near Brewton, Ala., by J. S. McGowan, Joseph and J. R. Johns, deputy sheriffs. He walked into a country store, was recognized and shot down without ceremony. A reward of several thousand dollars was offered for his capture dead or alive.

Split Open His Brother's Head.

Thomas Quattlebaum, 14 years old, killed his brother near Burch, Ala. The boys were out in the woods chopping cordwood. In some manner the younger of the two slipped and fell in the way of his brother, who was using the ax. The blade of the tool struck the boy in the head, splitting the skull entirely open. He managed to run a few yards, when he fell and soon expired.

Dying Woman's Child Devoured.

Mrs. Odon, a farmer's wife, in the western part of Geneva county, Ala., was burning some trash when a spark ignited her skirt and burned her fatally. While she lay suffering physical agonies, she was forced to witness three hogs devour her two-months-old baby, which she had placed on the ground while she worked.

Will Pay Dollar for Dollar.

James B. Pace, the millionaire president of the Planters' national bank of Richmond, Va., who made an assignment several months ago, will pay every dollar of his debt, and have a comfortable fortune left.

After Many Years.

A. W. Walters, aged 50, was arrested at Provenca, Natchitoches parish, La., for a killing committed in Texas 21 years ago. He had resided in Natchitoches and Saline parishes most of the time since the killing.

Left a Splendid Record.

Hon. S. P. Simpson, aged 63, died at his home in San Antonio, Tex. Deceased was a prominent member of the Texas bar, and leaves a splendid record.

New College President.

Prof. W. H. Morton, of Franklin, Ky., has been chosen president of Elizabeth Aull seminary of Lexington, Ky., succeeding Prof. T. P. Walton.

Twelve Years for Murder.

For stabbing Henry Baker, an old man, through the heart, Jim D. Nottingham was given 12 years in the penitentiary, at Clarksville, Tenn.

Drove an Ax Into His Abdomen.

Near Clay City, near Richmond, Ky., Boone Bringer was assaulted by Bud White with a club. Bringer drove an ax into White's abdomen.

PISTOLS AND KNIVES.

A Resolution to Exclude Them From the Kentucky Legislature.

THE EXPECTED STAMPEDE TO CARLISLE

Failed to Materialize and the Result Was Another Fruitless Ballot for United States Senator—Can They Vote Tuesday?

Another Fruitless Effort.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 14.—In the house Mr. Nance offered a resolution reciting that human life was more important than the election of a United States senator, and as it was reported that pistols and knives were being brought into the chamber, the sergeant-at-arms should be instructed to search both males and females before they were allowed on the floor. It was referred to the committee on military affairs.

Sheriff Armstrong had another consultation with the governor. After coming out of the executive office Mr. Armstrong said the governor asked him to take a squad of militia to the capitol. He told the governor that he preferred a posse of citizens. The governor also wanted him to clear the cloakrooms, but he declined to do so.

The governor proceeded to write out an order, but before the sheriff had arrived at the capitol, which was again in charge of the police, the senate cloakroom crowd had gone over to the house to witness the joint session.

There were 135 present at the joint session. The republicans demanded the reading of the journal, and seemed to be playing for delay.

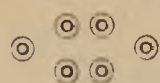

The delay policy seemed abandoned when the sheriff and posse arrived. The republicans again refrained from voting.

The democrats voted as usual until Haywood was reached, and he began making a speech, changing from Blackburn to Carlisle. The republicans held a hurried consultation and began to vote. All the senators were called except James and Walton. The house roll was then called.

A stampede to Carlisle had been expected, but it failed to come. The ballot resulted: Boyle, 63; Blackburn, 51; Carlisle, 14; Buckner, 1; Pettit, 1.

JOE · M. · SPENCER.

THE ORIGINATOR AND LEADER OF LOW PRICES,

Presents to his readers this week this Mammoth advertisement instead of the little Bulletin of two weeks ago. My space was too small to tell you all I wanted to say of the good things I have in store for the wide-awake cash buyer.

Therefore I have adopted this method of getting my goods and prices before the people. Appreciating the hard times and scarcity of money I determined at the beginning to give the people goods at living prices. How well I have succeeded I leave for you to decide. Ever since I started in business, I have been in the lead of all others with

THE BEST GOODS FOR THE LEAST MONEY.

My would-be imitators are following in the rear, two or three years behind the procession, in fact some of them have just begun to realize that the war is over. My success from the start has been phenomenal, due simply to one fact,

EXTREMELY LOW PRICES!

I am getting the cream while the other fellows get skimmed milk. I have never sold so many goods at this season of the year. And why? Simply because I have upset old moss-covered trade laws. Instead of offering an accumulation of old RUBBISH AT WAR PRICES, I am selling

NEW, FRESH, CLEAN, BRIGHT AND STYLISH GOODS AT PRICES THAT SIMPLY PARALYZE THE OLD TIMERS.

AND HERE THEY ARE FOR THIS WEEK:

GROCERIES.	HARDWARE.	NOTIONS AND SHOES.

— MILLINERY. —

In this department my stock is the Largest and Handsomest ever shown in this place. MISS FANNIE LONGSHORE, a lady of rare taste and extensive experience, has charge of this department, and it goes without saying that she can suit you in anything in that line. Remember, that in order to make low prices we exact the cash in every instance.

Every day I am adding new attractions to my already handsome and attractive stock. You will find my house brim full of bargains in every line, and at prices never before heard of. Some of the old croakers say I am selling goods for less than cost and that I am not doing a legitimate business. This I leave for you to decide, but one thing I will say, that I am not in business simply for my health. I am after the almighty dollar just as they are, and I intend to get it if LOW PRICES and FAIR DEALING count for anything. I am the only one who has displayed nerve enough to put his prices in cold type.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce W. A. Hammond, a candidate for re-election to the office of Treasurer of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR TAX COLLECTOR.

The friends of W. L. Davis authorize The Chronicle to announce him as a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Shelby county, subject to the action of the county democratic convention.

FOR TAX ASSESSOR.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce J. H. Hammond as a candidate for re-election to the office of Tax Assessor of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

Miss Earl Anchors returned Saturday from a visit to relatives in Blocton.

Mrs. Robert Carter, of Shelby, spent Saturday with her sister, Mrs. I. D. Mason.

Mrs. Augusta Wilson, of Montevallo, was a guest of J. L. Peters' family last week.

Hon. Cecil Browne and S. J. Bowie, of Talladega, were in town Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Bessie Nimmo, of Wilsonville, was a guest of her friend, Miss T. Hammond, Tuesday.

Chancery court was in session Monday and Tuesday, presided over by Hon. R. B. Kelley, of Anniston.

Earnest Avery and Jim Walker, of Shelby, came up Sunday afternoon to attend the Endeavor meeting.

A pretty line of ladies', misses' and children's hats just received.

COLUMBIANA MERCANTILE CO.

Rev. F. P. Culver, of Anniston, was in town last week in the interest of his father, I. F. Culver, of Union Springs, who is a candidate for commissioner of agriculture.

The many friends of Mrs. George Mason, will regret to learn of her illness. We hope she may soon recover. Mrs. Mason is one of the oldest ladies, having passed her 82nd birthday.

Dr. J. S. Hill will leave tomorrow for Courtland to visit his family, but will return next Wednesday, March 21st. He will bring his wife back with him to spend a few weeks here. A cordial welcome awaits her.

The Woman's Missionary Society will have a memorial service next Sunday evening in the Methodist church here. An interesting program has been prepared for the occasion. All cordially invited to attend.

The negroes of this place held a mass meeting Monday evening, and decided to put out a full municipal ticket composed entirely of colored men. Here it is: For mayor, R. M. Bird; for aldermen, J. R. White, E. R. Nelson, I. D. Mason, J. H. Page and W. W. Albright. Joe Miller and Robert McAdoo.

Refus Sanders will deliver a lecture in this place Tuesday evening next. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged, and the proceeds will be given to the Baptists of Calera to aid them in re-building their house of worship. We hope he will have a large audience. He will make you laugh at least a dollar's worth, and only charge 25 cents.

We hope our correspondents will bear patiently with us while our space is so restricted. We appreciate their efforts to help and all the news of the county, and we would gladly publish every communication sent us but we cannot at present. Soon the rush will subside, then we will give our newsgatherers the consideration they deserve.

J. H. Hammond announces this week his candidacy for re-election to the office of tax assessor of Shelby county. Mr. Hammond has made a most excellent record as an officer one of the very best ever had. He has served his constituents faithfully in the past and we have every reason to believe he would render even better service if chosen again.

G. W. Ellis, for many years chief clerk in the state auditor's office, is a candidate for state treasurer, and was here this week to acquaint our people with that fact. The editor of this paper has had considerable business with Mr. Ellis while he was in the auditor's office, and we were never treated with more fairness, courtesy and consideration by any one.

G. M. McCarty, of near Harpersville, was a pleasant caller in our office Tuesday. He said that the farmers in his community were in a decidedly better condition financially than they had been since the war. Instead of having to buy corn and meat this year, quite a number had these necessities to sell. This encourages us to hope that they will profit by past experience, and that we are now beginning an era of permanent prosperity.

Remember that the city election will be held on Monday, April 6th. Let all friends of the public schools of Columbiana, white and colored, be sure to come in and vote for the school ticket, as follows: For mayor, W. R. Browne; for aldermen, J. R. White, E. R. Nelson, I. D. Mason, J. H. Page and W. W. Albright. This ticket was brought out by a number signed by about sixty white men and forty colored men.

Below we give the ticket which all supporters of our schools are asked to support. Every man on the ticket is an earnest, able, enthusiastic friend of Columbiana and her free schools, both white and colored, and is well selected and placed before the people for this reason, and without regard to politics. If you believe in education, and want first class schools here, the following gentlemen are cordially recommended: For mayor, Hon. W. R. Browne; for aldermen, J. R. White, E. R. Nelson, I. D. Mason, J. H. Page and W. W. Albright.

A popular mass meeting (composed of seven men) was held last Saturday night in the Advocate office, and they decided to put out the following municipal ticket: For mayor, A. P. Longshore; for aldermen, Dr. H. I. Williams, W. A. Tillam, J. T. Barnett, A. W. Strickland and T. W. Timney. However, Dr. H. I. Williams and J. T. Barnett promptly repudiated the nomination, and requested the mayor in writing not to print their names on the official ballot; therefore the names of these two gentlemen, they having declined to serve on the popular ticket, will not appear on the official ballot.

Tobacco Culture in Alabama.

To the farmers of Shelby county.

My two acres of tobacco which I wrote of in the Shelby Sentinel was a success; not so good for play, but excellent for cigars. The culture of tobacco will add materially to the prosperity of the farmers when they learn to give it careful and proper attention. This is a good latitude, and the soil seems to be adapted, yet there are two things in the way, lack of experience, and the advantage of a home market. Doubtless you would be pleased to know how I mean to dispose of my last year's crop, realized enough tobacco to make about two thousand dollars' worth of cigars, therefore I will proceed at once to manufacture it into the same. My desire is to do something for myself and county, and my efforts will be crowned with success, if you will accept my proposition.

My proposition is: Will furnish seed and instructive text of culture, will establish manufacturing plant and buy your tobacco. You say that you would try this new industry and I am anxious about it. Please allow me to say, that you will never learn or accomplish anything until you first make an effort.

Now, you say: Yes, but the worm will destroy my crop. I learned last year, by hard study and close observation, to completely destroy the sphinx, the parent of the horn worm. Tobacco growers can have the advantage of my discovery in any time if desired. My advice to all who are willing to try this new industry is to give me more than one acre; that will give you an opportunity to find out whether or not tobacco will pay. I feel safe in saying tobacco culture will pay better than cotton.

The price of cotton for 1888 in the United States was 8 cents per pound, per acre $3.20. With tobacco for the same year, 8 cents per pound; per acre, $16.25. At present we have sixteen tobacco growing states in the United States. I was raised in one of our leading tobacco states, Virginia. I have been in Alabama nine years, have been advocating this industry for the last nine years. There is a prejudice here, but few farmers realizing any benefit of this vast amount of money. I have enough tobacco seed for distribution free of charge to supply Shelby county. If you order by mail, please enclose a 2-cent stamp. Order at once and get them sowed in this month. My home and postoffice is Columbiana, Ala. I will risk five or six acres; will you risk one? The culture and postoffice of tobacco will not only satisfy all local demands, but open up a large and profitable export trade. I hope that this writing may be of some benefit to all whom it may concern.

I am very truly yours,
M. McCARTHERY.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. W. Baker, of Kynulga, Ala., was in town Monday.

Col. W. T. Smith was called to Birmingham, on business, Monday.

J. F. Pope visited Columbiana Tuesday.

A. A. Daniel is visiting relatives in Calera and Selma.

Miss Janie Wallace, of Harpersville, spent several days with Misses Miller and Baker.

H. H. Stoudennire visited Birmingham Monday.

Miss Bessie Nimmo returned from Alpine Friday.

W. K. Kilpatrick made a business trip to Woodlawn Friday.

C. Butler made a business trip to Birmingham Friday.

Jeff Liles, of Columbiana, is visiting relatives here.

W. Smith visited Talladega Sunday.

Quite a crowd of young people attended services at Chapel Sunday.

"Jakes," we advise you not to stake all your money on Johnston for governor, unless you wish the enrollment at the pollhouse to be increased by your presence.

E. Williamson is very easily entertained. While a young lady was addressing him in accents mild and sweet, he went to sleep and fell to the floor. We say he went to sleep, it is possible that she spoke something to him which caused him to faint away.

J. D. Ligan, of Heflin, Ala., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. I. D. Montgomery of this city. He will probably make this his permanent home.

While at the literary society last Friday night, there was all at once a little band of seven or eight deeply interested in something on the opposite side of the room to that of the general crowd. We who were unconcerned at first, began to want to know what the attraction was that seemed to be so exciting. We thus began to enquire and by a thorough investigation found that Bud Edwards was in the centre of the little band trying to prove to them that he was growing a mustache.

H. A. Nelson, who to Columbiana last Saturday either on business or his own, or for his younger brother. This we do know, his brother gave him assistance while he was getting on the train, and began questioning him as soon as he stepped off the train coming back.

P. W. Terry, of Montgomery, Ala., (Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Agency) was in our city a few days last week. He seemingly has taken a great liking to our town and more especially our society (young ladies of course). We think he is a well polished gentleman and we cheerfully invite him to our city socially, and trust that he may be able to do some more business.

Oh, did you see that? Dr. Pope, let us insist on your keeping in before the public. We are proud of our energetic merchant, and present to him our best wishes for his continued speedy prosperity in the future.

John Weldon and sister, Mattie, are witnessed "in the home of the wise" once more. But we are sorry to see Miss Mattie's absence from our society on account of a case of measles. They will return to Howard college as soon as they are physically able.

We thank our editor for not publishing the poem last issue as we do not consider it a very appropriate time for spring poems when all nature is feeling winter's cold and chilly blasts.

According to the editor's statement last week, The Chronicle is growing. And we are glad it's a girl, as girls are like the chronicle, always in demand.

Agricola, deal a nifty go for Johnston, and if it does it will go in the sun, as that's where Johnston will be.

The S. P. L. League met last Friday night, March 27th. We added to the present officers of the society a finance committee for the purpose of finding those who fail to do their duty when called upon to do any part of the programme. The members of this committee are as follows: W. J. Timney, chairman; Miss Georgia Pope, Miss Lullaga Boser. We trust that this will cause each and every one who is called upon to respond cheerfully, (as have been hundreds) with but very few exceptions.

spring.
The foot of spring is on yon blue topped mountain.
Leaving green prints 'neath the spreading Her voice is heard beside each swelling fountain.
Giving sweet tones to it's wild melody.

From the warm South she brings many roses, To greet with smiles the eye of grief and care;
Her halcyon breath on the worn brow reposes, Her rich gifts are scattered everywhere.

In the low dale the snow white daisy springeth,
The blue-eyed violet nestling by it's side;
The sweet hior a daisy fringes the dale,
To the breeze that wanders far and wide.

The hyacinth and dogwood blossom tender, From their deep hearts an offering of love;
From their sunny smiles a sweet tender, Their language to the skies above.

Near the clear brook little brown sparrows, Are building their nests in vine clad bowers, While o'er them fall the willow's yellow arrows, Displing the water with mimic showers.

Items from Lewis.

Mrs. Hargrave, of the Mt. Olive settlement, is spending several days in this community. Miss Dixie Dyke, of Mt. Olive, spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Mattie Boser.

Elder S. S. Crumpton preached very interesting sermons at L. Riddle's Saturday and Sunday.

Messrs. Finley and Dykes, of Mt. Olive, spent Saturday and Sunday in this community, taking in the meeting.

The singing at J. L. Riddle's Saturday night was enjoyed by all who attended.

Benjamin Wilsonville will get on the top round yet, as she has a rifle ball dodger.

E. L. H. paid Childersburg a flying visit Thursday.

Rob Moore, of Ebenezer, Ala., has been spending a few days in this community, taking in the meeting.

Miss Bertie Downs, of Harpersville, after several weeks' stay in this community, has returned home, much to the regret of some of our young men.

Gone to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lyon, on the 8th inst., a boy.

Gov. Jackson is quite sick, but we hope for him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Jones, of Mt. Olive, spent Saturday and Sunday in this community.

William Jackson, Sr., of Chambers county, is spending a few days with his son, Seaborn.

Misses Florence and Lelia Adams spent Sunday at Poor Mills.

CASORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Fitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Fitcher is on every wrapper.

Guardian's Settlement

State of Alabama, Shelby County.

Probate Court, 9th day of March, 1896.

This day came Mrs. D. R. Cromwell, guardian of the estate of Josie, Jasper, Virgie Wallace and Henry Cromwell, minors, and filed her account, vouchers, evidences and statement for a final settlement of the same. It is ordered that Monday, the 30th day of March, 1896 be appointed a day for making such settlement at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.

D. R. McMILLAN, Judge of Probate.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of one Fl. Fa., issued from the Circuit court of Shelby county, and to me directed, I will proceed to sell at Wm. Bradley's, near Harpersville, on the 17th day of March, 1896, within the legal hours of sale, to the highest bidder for cash, the following described property, to-wit:

One bay horse; one mowing machine, all farming tools; 200 bushels of corn, more or less; 2000 pounds fodder, more or less; 1500 lbs hay, more or less; 25 bushels of cotton seed, more or less.

Let sold upon as the property of Wm. Bradley to satisfy said Fl. Fa. in my hands in favor of Mrs. S. A. Hubbard.

This 5th day of March, 1896.

H. W. NELSON, Sheriff.

Probate Notice.

E. H. Sawyer, Deceased, Estate of.

Probate Court, Shelby County Alabama.

Special Term, March 4, 1896.

Robert L. Sawyer, the former administrator of said estate, in said court, having died without making settlement of his said administration, this day came Elizabeth Sawyer as the administratrix of the estate of said Robert L. Sawyer, deceased, and filed a statement, account, vouchers and evidences for the purpose of making a settlement of the administration of the said Robert L. Sawyer deceased, upon the estate of said E. H. Sawyer, deceased; and the court having examined, stated and reported the same for a settlement. It is ordered by the court that on Monday the 30th day of March, 1896, be set for said settlement, at which time and for such purposes all persons in interest can appear at my office and contest said account and settlement, and have such other relief as the law permits in such cases.

D. R. MILLAN, Judge of Probate.

AMERICAN ATHLETES,

From the Boston Athletic Association and Cambridge University,

TO CONTEST IN THE GAMES AT ATHENS,

Sail From New York on the Fulda Amid College Cries and Flowers—The Games Begin April 5 and Continue Ten Days.

NEW YORK, March 21.—The teams of the Boston Athletic Association and Princeton University, which will represent American athletics at the revival of the Olympic games at Athens, on April 5, left New York on the North German Lloyd steamer Fulda. The teams will disembark at Naples and take the overland route to Greece.

The Princeton team is made up of Robert Garrett, Jr., of Baltimore, Md., who will captain and have charge of the quartette; Frank A. Lane, '97, of Franklin, O.; Albert C. Tyler, '97, of Wyoming, O.; and H. R. Jameson, '97, of Peoria, Ill.

The team went on board the steamer shortly after nine o'clock. Each of the representatives of "Old Nassau" wore a yellow tulip in his buttonhole and bouquets were showered on them by admiring fair ones. The Bostonians came on a run just before the gang planks were drawn in. T. E. Burke, Arthur Blake, W. Elbery H. Clark, I. P. Curtis, W. Welles Hoyt and Gardner Williams comprise the Boston delegation. The men from Princeton did not carry as many floral tributes as the collegians, but the ruddy cry of the B. A. C. was none the less in evidence. "Johnny" Graham will have charge of the Bostonians, and the party also included Sheriff O'Brien of Suffolk county, who will witness the games.

The teams will arrive at Athens on April 5. The games begin on April 5 and last until April 15. The athletes who will carry the honor of the Stars and Stripes in the land which was the home of heroes and the delight of poets can scarcely be called a representative American team, but too much praise can not be given to the organization that sent them out. Whether the teams bring back golden wreaths from "ancient Greece" or not, the fact remains that to the Boston Athletic Association and Princeton University teams belong the honor of having stepped into the breach. The portion of the programme in which the brawn of muscle of America will be pitted against all comers is as follows:

One hundred, 400, 800 and 1,500 meters foot races, 110 meters hurdle race; putting shot and discus, pole vault, running broad and high jumps, and long distance races from Marathon to Athens.

All the men are in fine condition. Jack McMasters has had the Princeton men hard at work for the past three weeks. McMasters said that he was afraid that the voyage will throw the men off a little, but thinks that the Greek climate will not be as hard on the men as the English climate would be. The Boston team is also trained to a hair.

By arrangement with the steamship company preparations have been made to enable the men to practice on board during the voyage.

SENATOR MORGAN

Introduces a Joint Cuban Belongency Resolution

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Just before the senate adjourned Friday Senator Morgan, who reported the Cuban resolutions originally and has from the start taken a prominent part in the senate debate favorable to the recognition of the Cubans, introduced the following joint resolution:

"Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the United States in congress assembled that it is hereby declared that a state of public war exists in the island of Cuba between the government of Spain and the people of that island who are supporting a separate government under the name of the Republic of Cuba, and the state of belligerency between said governments is hereby recognized."

The significance of the resolution is that it is a joint resolution instead of concurrent, and that it is confined to a bare recognition of belligerency upon the basis of the declaration that a state of war exists in Cuba.

ANOTHER VICTIM

Of Overwork in the Naval Engineer Department.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Admiral Selfridge, commanding the European station, has lost his fleet engineer through physical collapse. A cablegram received at the navy department Friday from him at Smyrna stated that Chief Engineer Gilbert M. McCarthy has broken down and was partially paralyzed. He has been granted a furlough and will come home in care of a medical officer from the fleet. Chief Engineer Winslow of the Minneapolis probably will be detailed to the flagship San Francisco as fleet engineer to succeed Chief Engineer McCarthy. The latter is believed to have served his last cruise for he is near the retiring age. He served with great honor in the late war.

EIGHTEEN VALUABLE HORSES

Suffocated in a Burning Stable at Saginaw, Mich.

SAGINAW, Mich., March 21.—A large barn in which F. E. Tallmadge had 18 valuable horses stabled, was destroyed by fire Friday night, and all of the horses were suffocated, also a high-priced Jersey cow. Among the horses killed were Pontoon (2,150), a half brother to Alibi; June Monk (2,440), and several other good ones. Tallmadge's loss is $7,000, with $2,000 insurance.

Perished in the Flames.

AVA, Mo., March 21.—Fire broke out here in the building recently occupied as a drug store by H. M. Miller, and Mrs. Binsinger, a widow, perished in the flames.

It is admitted that Olney and Salisbury are again negotiating over the Venezuelan boundaries in the most friendly sort of way.

Sidney Slocum, fraudulently extradited from Canada, was allowed by Judge Grosscup, of Chicago, ten days' safe conduct to return to Canada.

Rev. J. Z. Armstrong, former pastor of the Independence Avenue church, Kansas City, Mo., was expelled from the ministry for alleged immorality.

The keepers of filthy dairies in St. Louis seem to have more influence with the sanitary committee in the house of delegates than the health commissioner.

The state veterinarian of Illinois went to Waverly in response to a call from a local veterinarian and examined and killed three horses afflicted with glanders.

Archibald Young and Miss Gertrude Green were arrested at St. Joseph, Mo., on state warrants charging them with robbing the jewelry store of Rufus Stone.

The Chicago council has passed an ordinance which gives to physicians who have registered and secured the Red Cross badge, the right of way on the streets when answering professional calls.

Congressman Boatner was thrown out of the house by a partisan vote, but Benoit, who contested the seat, was refused it on the ground that the election was fraudulent on his part as much as the other.

MINE EXPLOSION.

With Probable Loss of Life, Near Newton, Pa.

NEWTON, Pa., March 21.—A mine explosion occurred at the Ohio and Pennsylvania mine, situated on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, four miles south of this place. The violence of the explosion was such that considerable debris was blown from the shaft into the engine room. A mule attached to a water cart and the cart itself was blown to pieces. Two injured men were taken from the shaft, and a man named O'Donnell and a boy, Willis Davis, are yet in the mine and supposed to be dead. The after-damp prevents an explosion of the mine as yet.

Corrections for the British Blue Book.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Lord Salisbury has cabled the British embassy here that a memorandum embodying the correction of minor clerical errors in the argument of the blue book on Venezuela will be forwarded for delivery to the United States government, adding that while the modifications are of no great importance, they materially add strength to the British statement.

Unqualifiedly False.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Regarding the story from Syracuse that the American Tobacco Co. has purchased the right, title and interest of the National Cigarette Co. for $5,000,000, officials of the former company said it was unqualifiedly false, and declared that it was circulated solely for stock-jobbing purposes.

Prohibitory Questionable Transactions.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The re-elected committee, passed the house bill prohibiting certain questionable transactions on the bourse, and fixed the date of its going into operation on January 1, 1897.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Encouraging Features Found in Missouri and Neighboring States.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

General trade throughout the United States for the first quarter of 1896 is disappointing. When the improvement in industrial and commercial lines between March and September, 1895, is recalled, occurring as it did, two years after the panic of 1893, reason would seem to have been behind the confidence that the current calendar year would bring a general revival. But the most favorable reports at this time are those which declare the volume of business only equal to what in a few instances, in excess of the like total one year ago. The fact that interior merchants are paying more freely in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and parts of Nebraska, where the snow and rain have prepared the soil for the crops, constitutes almost the only favorable announcement for the week. In almost all other parts of the country east of the Mississippi, stormy weather has tended to check the volume of business and still further restrict mercantile circulation, which has been exceptionally slow for more than a month.

The unusually large number of business failures taking place during the first quarter of the current year has been a serious matter. The total for the current week throughout the country is 320, or 18 more than last week, 48 more than in the like week of 1895, 107 more than in the corresponding week of 1894, and 98 more than in the third week of March, 1893.

There is a sharp decline in total exports of wheat, and a corresponding increase in the costs of the United States this week, the total amounting to only 1,522,000 bushels, against 2,491,000 last week, 2,688,000 in the week one year ago, 343,000 in the week of March, 1894, and 2,763,000 in the like week of 1893. This is the smallest grand total of exports of wheat (four included) since the last week of July, 1893. Exports of Indian corn this week amount to 1,825,000 bushels, against 1,738,000 last week, 485,000 in the week a year ago, 1,119,000 two years ago and 934,000 three years ago.

A POSITIVE DENIAL

Of a Report Sent Out in regard to the Venezuela Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Secretary Mallet-Prevost, for the Venezuelan commission, has issued the following statement:

"During the past week reports have been industriously circulated to the effect that the commission has reached a decision with reference to Venezuela. This is untrue. The report has been circulated in another form and it is now asserted that while the commission, as a body, has reached no such conclusion, the commissioners individually entertain the views referred to. It must be evident to all that so long as anything remains to be examined and considered the commissioners are not in a position to form an opinion respecting the merits of the controversy. As a matter of fact, neither the commission nor the individual commissioners are as yet in possession of all the evidence. The papers presented by Venezuela are but a part of what has been promised. The blue book of the British government, while remarkably full and detailed, does not include all the documents which may be added in support of its contentions. The commission has not and will not limit itself to the consideration of what two governments may present. It has been engaged upon independent lines of inquiry and will continue to follow those lines until all its sources of information shall have been exhausted. Then, and not until then, will it be in a position to form any opinion or to make any report."

THE WRONG WOMAN

Killed by a Revengeful Italian in Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 21.—Mrs. Rosalind Vida, an Italian woman, 40 years of age, was murdered at her home on Mechanic street, by Jas. Di, who lives in the adjoining house. He was arrested. His real name is Giugino Comatino. It is said that the shooting was a mistake, and the woman he had intended to kill was Mrs. Guggino, wife of the victim of Capriano, who was recently sent to Auburn for life. What Di's motive was in seeking to kill the Guggino woman has not been learned.

A SOCIAL SENSATION

Created by the Quiet Marriage of a Cleveland Heiress to a Wealthy Prussian.

CLEVELAND, O., March 21.—Miss Daisy Everett, daughter of Sylvester T. Everett, one of Cleveland's wealthiest citizens, was quietly married last Tuesday to Adolph Oppenheimer, of Berlin, Germany. The affair is only now made public, and it created a social sensation. The bride is an heiress to several millions and a favorite in exclusive society. The groom is said to be a scion of one of the wealthiest and most influential families in Prussia.

Gave the Campana a Close Tug.

QUARANTINE, Staten Island, March 21.—The American line steamer New York arrived at quarantine at noon, just after the Cunard liner Campana. The Campana signalled the New York 150 miles off Sandy Hook at 3:15 a. m., and during a long chase, the New York managed to keep up a good rate of speed and was beaten only by a small margin of 30 minutes.

Milliken Not Guilty.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—When the jury in the Milliken case came in and announced that after 24 hours' deliberation they had reached a verdict, the crowded court-room was in silent expectancy. The announcement of not guilty was met with an outburst of applause from the spectators that shook the east end of the dingy old courthouse.

On the Verge of Starvation.

HALIFAX, N. S. March 21.—A dispatch from St. Johns, N. F., says that 60 families living in and around Brigus are reported to be in a desperate condition and on the verge of starvation. Their condition is said to be heart-rending.

A Venerable Churchman Dead.

LONDON, March 21.—The venerable George Anthony Denison, M. A., archdeacon of Taunton, in the Anglican diocese of Bath and Wells, is dead. He was 91 years of age, and was created archdeacon of Taunton in 1851.

DONGOLA EXPEDITION.

The British Government Will Not Show Its Full Hand.

'TIS NOT WHOLLY A NEW IDEA, HOWEVER,

But One that Has Been Held in Abeyance Pending the Arrival of the Opportune Moment, Which Has Now Come.

LONDON, March 21.—Friday night's debate in the house of commons added nothing to the meager information that the government deems it prudent to reveal regarding the expedition that is to go to Dongola, and perhaps farther, in an attempt to reconquer the Sudan. The statement made by Mr. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, that the advance of the expedition would be regulated by the extent of resistance offered by the Dervishes, seemed either designed to beguile the house or to convey the idea that the government had no definite plan of campaign. The sensational rumors with which the British press is usually rife deal with the expedition as a sudden decision of the government of the fact that it was to be dispatched, being unknown to the khedive. The facts are that the expedition was projected last autumn, when Gen. Kitchener, of the Egyptian army, was in England. Though the date of the campaign was not then known, Gen. Kitchener made no secret of the fact that some big scheme was being hatched.

Speaking at Lexington, Wednesday, Earl Russell stated that he had personal knowledge that the expedition had long been decided upon, but that it had been postponed until the defeat of the Italians at Adowa afforded the government an opportune excuse. He added that, according to the plan originally decided upon, Gen. Kitchener's first objective point was to be Dongola, and then Berber, by a simultaneous advance from Suakin, on the Red sea. A railway was to be built to link Dongola and Berber before a march was made upon Khartoum. There was no reason to suppose that this plan had been altered, but it was probable that it would develop more slowly than some of the Cairo telegrams indicated. According to the Times, Dongola may be reached in three or four weeks. The military authorities at Cairo, however, calculate that that place will not be reached before June. The main Egyptian force is now put at 10,000 men, of whom 4,000 will be Sudanese, who are real fighters. They will not reach the first line of advance before the end of April. The march upon Dongola will then depend upon the strength of the Dervishes, whose concentration. Doubtful reports place their number at 10,000.

THE BAYARD RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Bayard Will Take No Notice of Them Unless the President Does.

LONDON, March 21.—Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, United States ambassador, had not received official notification of the vote of censure passed upon him by the United States house of representatives when seen by a reporter of the United Press. It is understood that Mr. Bayard will take no notice of the matter, but will wait and see what action, if any, the president takes on it.

The London Globe's Comment.

LONDON, March 21.—The Globe admits Mr. Bayard did not keep a degree of restraint upon his tongue befitting an ambassador, but it says the sharp and sweeping censure of the house of representatives was clearly the outcome of party spite and need not disturb Mr. Bayard's mental composure.

What Is Said in Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Secretary Olney and state department officials decline to converse as to the probable outcome of the passage of the resolutions censuring Ambassador Bayard. except to say that Mr. Bayard will not be officially notified by the state department that the resolutions were adopted.

BOTH FOUND GUILTY.

Verdict Against W. J. and J. G. Weber for Conspiracy to Kill E. V. Hamlin.

CHICAGO, March 21.—The jury in the case of W. J. Weber and his brother, J. G. Weber, charged with conspiracy to kill E. V. Hamlin, secretary of the Killmar Bale Tie Co., returned a verdict of guilty against both men. After the court had given both men undetermined sentences W. J. Weber was stricken with paralysis and fell to the floor unconscious. During the illness of Secretary Hamlin, W. J. Weber took the latter's position and it is claimed, hired his brother and Richard Moloney to murder Hamlin for $30 each, so that W. J. Weber could retain the position permanently. Moloney turned state's evidence.

THE MANITOBA QUESTION.

An Effort to be Made to Settle It Amalgamically.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 21.—While the remedial bill is being proceeded with in parliament, the government has decided to make every effort to induce the government of Manitoba to settle the question. Accordingly two members of the Dominion government, Hon. Messrs. Dickey and Dasjardines, have been delegated to proceed to Winnipeg to commence negotiations with Premier Greenway.

A Victim of Paralysis.

Hudson, Mich., March 21.—Rev. T. G. Colton died from the effects of a paralytic stroke. He had been ill three months. He was 73 years of age, and was a distinguished Congregational divine. He graduated from Yale in 1844 with high honors. He had occupied important pulpits in the New England states, Wisconsin and Michigan.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

Charged with Uxoricide.

Henry Patterson, a young farmer of Hall county, Ga., is in jail, charged with the murder of his wife. His arrest is the result of an examination made of the body of his wife, which was exhumed by order of the coroner. A physician found that the woman's skull was crushed in the front and behind as if by an ax, and there were no wounds that could possibly have been made by shot from a gun. The examination was conclusive that the young wife had been most brutally murdered, and that after dead had been shot in the forehead with a gun that contained only wadding, the latter making the scorched wound on the front of the forehead. Patterson claims that he slipped out of his house to shoot a chicken thief and that his gun missed fire. He returned to the house, and while adjusting a cap the gun exploded accidentally, killing his wife.

No Sunday Trains in North Carolina.

The railroad blue laws, which have been on the statute books in North Carolina for a long time, but have never been enforced except in isolated cases, are to be enforced in Charlotte, and an order from Mayor Veldington to that effect has gone into operation. Hereafter no railroad company will be permitted to run any car, train of cars or locomotive on any railroad on Sunday, except such as may be run for the purpose of transmitting the mails of the United States, with or without baggage. Trains in transit, having started on Saturday, in order to reach the terminus, may run until nine o'clock Sunday morning, but not later, nor for any other purpose than to reach such terminus or shops, under penalty of a fine of $500 for each offense.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

A terrible explosion occurred at McLurkin's mill, near Caledonia, Wilcox county, Ala., the other day. The explosion was caused by an imperfect safety valve. The boiler crashed through the mill and sped along close to the ground for 400 feet and buried itself in the ground. Sim Watts, a farmer, Alexander Gracie, laborer at the mill, and Allen Hollinger, fireman, were killed. P. I. Defoe, a farmer, had a leg broken and was internally injured. His recovery is doubtful. The owner of the mill was the only person on the premises who escaped serious injury.

Suspected Assassins.

William Gotier and Albert Hinton were arrested at Clarksville, Tenn., charged with being the assassins of William Villines, of Orlando, who was called from his house into his yard several nights ago and riddled with shot. After being wounded Villines accused Gotier of being one of the assassins, and also implicated Hinton, both of whom were his neighbors. They were caught in Portland and lodged in jail in default of bail.

Reunion on Shiloh Battlefield.

On Decoration day, May 30, there will be a reunion on the Shiloh battlefield of the survivors of that battle. Prominent speakers from the north and south will deliver addresses. A feature of the programme will be the dedication of a monument by the members of the Ninth Illinois infantry at the national cemetery in honor of their comrades who fell at Shiloh, they having lost 365 men in killed and wounded at the battle.

Tramp Eats a Square Meal and Dies.

A strange man called at the home of Col. T. H. Rosser, near Dallas, Ala., and asked for something to eat. His wants were supplied and, after eating his fill, the man left. The next morning his body was found cold and stiff 40 yards from the house. The man was evidently a tramp and had the appearance of having been on a spree. He was buried at the expense of the county.

Practical Joker Shot.

For some time James Beasley, of Clarksville, Tenn., has been troubled with unknown persons of the regulator order. The other night he was visited by William Saunders, a friend, who had masked himself to frighten Beasley. Refusing to answer to Beasley's inquiry after knocking, prompted Beasley to shoot, the bullet entering Saunders' bowels. Beasley was exonerated.

Worry Will Cause Death.

Mrs. Sarah Short, of Lexington, Ky., while dressing herself to attend court, was stricken with heart trouble and died. She had brought suit for $10,000 against B. R. Jones, of the Lexington business college, for false arrest and imprisonment, and her friends attribute the cause of her death to her worry over the trial, which was to begin that morning.

Found Dead in a Hovel.

James O. Smith, alias James Cox, was found dead in a negro hovel at Lexington, Ky., the other night. He was 77 years old, and was once a member of Co. B, Fifteenth New York cavalry, in the Union army, acquiring a fortune after the war, and after years of drink landing in the Fayette county poorhouse.

Strange Request.

John Walton, colored, sentenced to be hanged at Birmingham, Ala., requested the jailer to see how much he could get for his body from the doctors in order to provide himself with delicacies before the hanging.

Leaves a Wife and Child.

Henry Hudson, white, aged 33, having a young wife and child, was drowned in a stream in Warren county, Tenn., while trying to board a boat.

Dropped Dead.

J. T. Klyce, a broker at Corinth, Miss., who represented quite a number of commercial houses in other cities, dropped dead on the streets.

For Miscegenation.

At Marshall, Mo., a white man and his dusky bride were arrested for violating the state law against miscegenation; penalty, penitentiary.

SPOILED THE BROTH.

There Were Too Many Cooks to the British Blue Book

UPON THE VENEZUELAN CONTROVERSY,

And In Consequence Lord Salisbury is Trying in Vain to Locate the Responsibility for the Blunders in Its Concoction.

LONDON, March 21.—Lord Salisbury has requested the leading permanent officials of the foreign office to make a report explaining how the errors occurred in the statement of the British case relating to the question of boundary between Great Britain and Venezuela as embodied in the blue book recently presented to parliament. There has been a violent discussion within the department as to who is to blame for these errors. The foreign office had practically nothing to do with the preparation of the case, which was entrusted to the colonial office, the foreign office assigning an official, who was supposed to be versed in the whole history of the case, to assist the colonial office officials. This official visited Spain and Holland and searched the archives for correspondence and documents bearing on the question. The material he collected was confused and ill-arranged. Sir Frederick Pollock was retained to put the material into proper shape. He, in turn, drew upon the resources of the Royal Geographical society. Next the result of Sir Frederick Pollock's labors, with the material of his predecessor, was submitted to a committee from the colonial and foreign offices, with Sir Richard Webster, the attorney-general, to supervise the law aspects. Such a crowd had a finger in the business that it is impossible to place the responsibility for the blunders on any one particular person. It is a case of too many cooks spoiling the broth.

FATALLY BURNED

In a New York Tenement House Fire—A Black Panle.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Five colored persons were burned in a fire caused by the explosion of a lamp at 126 West Twenty-sixth street. One of the five, Mrs. Lucy Wilkins, was so badly burned about the face, neck and hands that she died several hours later at the New York hospital. The others are suffering from burned hands and arms. There was a big fright while the fire was on, nearly a hundred colored persons being in the tenement, a five-story brick building, and leaving their rooms and swarming out on the landings, all shouting and screaming. All reached the street in safety, however. The fire was extinguished with trifling loss.

EIGHT THOUSAND LIVES

Were Sacrificed in the Recent Massacre at Orfa.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 21.—Sir Philip Currie, British ambassador, has received a telegram from British Vice-Consul Fitzmaurice, stating that 8,000 persons were killed at Orfa in the recent disturbances at that place.

Another Massacre Imminent.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 21.—It is reported that an agitation of Albanians is in progress on the frontier of Montenegro, and a massacre of Christians is feared. The Montenegrin government has forwarded a note to M. Melikoff, Russian ambassador here, calling Russia's attention to the situation.

WILL TRY CONFISCATION.

Gen. Weyler Cuts a New Club for Absentee Cubans.

NEW YORK, March 21.—A letter from Havana says:

"The patriots who have escaped to the United States are not to go unpunished. Gen. Weyler is about to issue another proclamation, which it is admitted in official circles, is to threaten Cubans who have left the island and are now domiciled in the United States, with the confiscation of their property here (in Cuba) unless they return at once to their homes. This measure, according to the official apology for it is to punish 'those conspirators against the cause of Spain, out of the country as well as within it.'"

A Canadian Protest.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 21.—Hon. G. E. Foster, minister of finance, has given notice in the house of commons of a resolution protesting against the permanent exclusion of Canadian cattle from the United Kingdom on the ground of the existence of pleuro-pneumonia in Canada and claiming that pleuro-pneumonia has not in the past and does not now exist in Canada.

Fatal Collision.

St. Louis, March 21.—William Graneman, a dray driver, was killed a little before noon at the terminal crossing at Eighth and Poplar streets by a locomotive striking his wagon, which was loaded with flour. Henry Peters and Garry Schoenfeld, who were riding on the load with Graneman, escaped with slight bruises.

Will Instruct for McKinley.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 21.—The Hennepin county republican convention elected 116 delegates to the state convention, and unanimously instructed them for McKinley. The delegates in the county convention will form the congressional convention, and will instruct the delegates to St. Louis for McKinley.

Examining Ex-Gov. Flower.

NEW YORK, March 21.—Atj.-Gen. Moloney of Illinois began the examination of ex-Gov. Flower in the proceedings instituted under the laws of Illinois against the Chicago Gas Co. The hearing, which is private, is being held at No. 44 Wall street.

JOE M. SPENCER.

THE ORIGINATOR AND LEADER OF LOW PRICES,

Presents to his readers this week this Mammoth advertisement instead of the little Bulletin of two weeks ago. My space was too small to tell you all I wanted to say of the good things I have in store for the wide-awake cash buyer.

Therefore I have adopted this method of getting my goods and prices before the people. Appreciating the hard times and scarcity of money I determined at the beginning to give the people goods at living prices. How well I have succeeded I leave for you to decide. Ever since I started in business, I have been in the lead of all others with

THE BEST GOODS FOR THE LEAST MONEY.

My would-be imitators are following in the rear, two or three years behind the procession, in fact some of them have just begun to realize that the war is over. My success from the start has been phenomenal, due simply to one fact,

EXTREMELY LOW PRICES!

I am getting the cream while the other fellows get skimmed milk. I have never sold so many goods at this season of the year. And why? Simply because I have upset old moss-covered trade laws. Instead of offering an accumulation of old RUBBISH AT WAR PRICES, I am selling

NEW, FRESH, CLEAN, BRIGHT AND STYLISH GOODS AT PRICES THAT SIMPLY PARALYZE THE OLD TIMERS.

AND HERE THEY ARE FOR THIS WEEK:

GROCERIES.	HARDWARE.	NOTIONS AND SHOES.
25 lbs best Rice for..... $1 00	Best poney plows $1 85	Men's dress shirts' - - - - - 50c
20 lbs best White Sugar for 1 00	" double bit axes 90c	Ladies' fine hemstitched handkerchiefs - - - 5c
10 lbs best cream cheese for 1 00	" plow points 25c	Ladies' fast black seamless hose - - - 8c

Onion sets 25c gal	" coffee mills..... 25c	Ladies best glove grain button shoes - - - $1 00

MILLINERY.

In this department my stock is the Largest and Handsomest ever shown in this place. MISS FANNIE LONGSHORE, a lady of rare taste an extensive experience, has charge of this department, and it goes without saying that she can suit you in anything in that line. Remember, that in order to make low prices we exact the cash in every instance.

Every day I am adding new attractions to my already handsome and attractive stock. You will find my house brim full of bargains in every line, and at prices never before heard of. Some of the old croakers say I am selling goods for less than cost and that I am not doing a legitimate business. This I leave for you to decide, but one thing I will say, that I am not in business simply for my health. I am after the almighty dollar just as they are, and I intend to get it if LOW PRICES and FAIR DEALING count for anything. I am the only one who has displayed nerve enough to put his prices in cold type.

Thanking you for the very liberal patronage you have given me, and asking a continuance of the same,

I Am Yours to Please,

JOE M. SPENCER.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce J. S. Farrell as a candidate for Treasurer of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR TAX COLLECTOR.

The friends of W. L. Davis authorize The Chronicle to announce him as a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Shelby county, subject to the action of the county democratic convention.

FOR TAX ASSESSOR.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce J. H. Hammond as a candidate for re-election to the office of Tax Assessor of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR SHERIFF.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce Amos Daniel as a candidate for Sheriff of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR COMMISSIONER—FIRST DISTRICT.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce Hosea Pearson as a Commissioner of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

W. A. Weldon, of beat 8, paid our office a pleasant call Tuesday.

Maj. T. J. Peter, of Brierfield, was in attendance upon court this week.

J. S. Falkner spent Saturday and Sunday with home folks at Sterrett.

Miss Eva Weaver is a guest of her sister, Mrs. L. W. Bailey, in Calera.

Misses Hellen Oliver and Naldo Christian, of Shelby, were in town Tuesday.

Maynard Pond and wife, of Shelby Springs, spent a few hours in town yesterday.

A. D. Smith, of Vincent, exhibited his snail-egg countenance in our sanctum yesterday.

Mr. Farmer, our L. & N. agent moved his family into the Jones' house on Depot street Monday.

Mon. W. B. Browne made a flying trip to Montgomery Tuesday, returning home yesterday.

A. H. Avery, one of Shelby's substantial business men, was an appreciated caller in our office Monday.

W. A. Gorman, of East Lake, a student of Howard College, was in town yesterday, and paid us a short call.

Mr. and Mrs. James Evans spent Saturday and Sunday in Wilsonville, guests of John W. Millstead and family.

W. C. Denson, of Pelham, made us happy Tuesday by depositing with us the amount of $100.00, and a half's subscription to The Chronicle.

J. P. Adams has embarked in the restaurant business, and is occupying a portion of the Elliott building. He has a word for you in another column.

E. W. Chapman has the neatest, prettiest barber shop in Central Alabama, and he is still the one of the most skilled artists in the state. Look his ad over and call on him.

N. N. Mosteller, a substantial farmer from a town in this county, by that name (Farmer) gave us a dollar request, in the "Supplement" fund—the little Chronicle supplement.

Dr. J. S. Hill returned Tuesday from a week's visit to his family at Clayfield. He expected to bring his wife back with him, but on account of measles in the family she was unable to come.

Several of our young Wilsonville friends came over Tuesday evening to hear Rufus Sanders' lecture. They were a number of intelligent, well-behaved, jolly crowd, and whenever they feel disposed to visit us again, we assure them our gates are always open to them.

The "Pauline Dubose Society" of the Presbyterian church will have a supper on next Friday (tomorrow) evening at the residence of Rev. W. J. Shurt. Doors open at 7:30 o'clock, and everybody, men, women and children are invited to come and bring their guests (25).

The Woman's Missionary Society of this place held memorial service last Sunday evening in the Methodist church to commemorate the death of their worthy secretary of foreign missions, Mrs. D. H. McCavock, of Nashville, Tenn. The programme was appropriate, well rendered and very interesting. The collection amounted to $7.32.

Amos Daniel, of Wilsonville, a pure and unadulterated democrat, desires to be sheriff of Shelby county, as will be seen by reference to the columns of announcements. Amos is thoroughly competent, has been a faithful laborer for the party, and has many warm friends in all portions of the county who would rejoice at his nomination. He is deservedly popular, and his record is above reproach.

Circuit court convened Monday noon, Judge G. S. Brewer presiding. The grand jury was empaneled and put to work, with J. R. White as foreman. The machinery is running smoothly with Judge Brewer at the throttle to regulate the motive power and to apply the oil at points where the friction is lively. He is a fair and impartial judge, and his conduct of the court is giving very general satisfaction.

J. S. Farrell, a true and faithful democrat, a resident of beat 8, announces this week his candidacy for the office of treasurer of Shelby county. Mr. Farrell is one of the very few "live at home" farmers of our county. He has made a success in his chosen calling, has always worked and worked for the democratic ticket, and has for many years been a member of the county executive committee. He is well and favorably known throughout the county.

He died, at Avondale, Saturday, March 21st, Robert Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. McLean. The many friends of this bereaved family deeply sympathize with them in their loss, and it is hoped that the young man, so full of promise and life, will be able to help the family in their bereavement.

As a rule little importance is attached to the office of county commissioner, perhaps from the fact that the salary is small, but this is a serious blunder, and it should be corrected. The commissioners are the counties' financiers, and should be level-headed, successful business men. Why successful? For the very good reason that if they have made a failure, in conducting their own business, we would have grounds upon which to base a belief that they could do any better for the county than they have done for themselves. Mr. Pearson, of beat 2, is a candidate for this important office. He is a sound democrat, a good citizen, and a successful farmer.

Rufus Sanders, "the sage of Rocky Creek," delivered a lecture to a large and appreciative audience at the court house Tuesday evening. His subject was: "Us Boys." He pictured the ups and downs, the joys and sorrows, and misdeeds of a tow-headed country boy, his trials, temptations, etc., while traveling the long and dusty road leading to manhood, occasionally interweaving a bit of his own experience while venturing his way along this rugged road. His lecture was both pathetic and humorous, and was well received. His plea for the plain, unsophisticated, human boy was superb. If they were given a man's chance they would in almost every instance come out on top somewhere down the road. He illustrated this by a story of a crowd of bad boys went over to a negro church one night to break up the meeting, having no other object in view but to have a little fun. They broke out the window panes, shot out the lamps, and soon had the meeting in a terrible "confusion." The old negro preacher, nothing daunted, knelt down and began to pray something after this wise: "Oh Lord, come down tonight in thy mighty power and seize Mark Rufus by the nape of his neck and the seat of his breeches, and hold him over the rugged edge of hell and shake him until he repents and quits his devilment, but please, Lord, don't drag him." Rufus said that a boy may be bad all over in spots as big as a house blanket, and you may have to sub him up considerably, but don't "drag" him. Give him a man's chance and he will pull through somehow.

A negro with a razor and a little mean whisky is a combination to be avoided, if possible, unless you have a Gatling gun, but unfortunately for our friend C. R. Elliott, of Vincent, he had nothing but a pistol last Saturday night when attacked by a burly negro, armed as aforesaid, consequently he had no show, an eagle of badly backed up. The negro called him out of his house at about 10 o'clock at night. Charles had a pistol, but the negro began to talk to him and when off his guard, grabbed his weapon. Having him completely in his power, the negro used his razor with fearful effect. He cut his throat from ear to ear, but fortunately the blade did not penetrate deep enough to make the wound fatal. Another stroke of the keen blade laid his cheek open and split his ear, and a third made a deep cut from his mouth to the cheek bone. The negro thinking he had killed his victim disappeared and so far has not been apprehended. Vigorous efforts, however, are being made to capture him. Charles is badly cut, but he will recover, and barring the scars, will be as sound as ever. We hope the cowardly scoundrel who did the dastardly work will be caught and severely punished.

Tuesday evening last Rufus Lester was sitting by a cozy fire at home, surrounded by his wife and two brothers, taking life easy and awaiting the hour to retire. Suddenly he started up, listened intently for a moment, made a rush for the door, telling his brothers to follow him, as he was certain a man had been foully dealt with somewhere near by or he could hear distinctly the labored breathing of a man who must be in deep distress. They all went out into the front yard, and finding no one, stopped again to listen. They could hear the noise still more distinctly, in the direction of the school house, and the person in distress seemed to have laid his throat cut in a way that told that his whelp-pipe had been severed by the gurgling, sickening sound. They started to go at once to his relief, but upon a moment's reflection they decided they might get into a difficulty as the murderer might still be lurking near, so they went over to Dr. Page's. Here they were joined by the doctor around with a shot gun, a file knife and a pair of brass knaves. Jamison Vandiver, who was spending the night with the doctor, and his son Will, they did not hasten to the scene of the tragedy, which had finally been located in the rear of the school house, every one intent on relieving the spot first to steeple the unfortunate man. A few rods back of the academy the relief party suddenly came to a halt. They lay down on the right spot. It was a ditch, about half filled with water in which half a dozen or more large, healthy, full grown frogs were holding a jamboree.

For further particulars apply to Dr. Page, J. L. Vandiver or Rufus Lester.

Miss Bessie Nimmo visited Columbian Tuesday.

J. F. Pope visited Vincent Tuesday.

Frank Wilby and wife, of Atlanta, Ga., are spending several days with relatives.

Miss Tallafiero Wallace, of near Harpersville, was in town last week.

It was a pleasant surprise to us Sunday morning to see Chas. Hilton, of Aniston, step from the train for the first time since resigning his position here as agent for the railroad company.

Mrs. J. F. Pope and daughter, Parule, attended the wedding at Vincent last week.

Messrs. Kidd and Lyde, of Vincent, visited Mr. Pope's family last week.

John Weldon and sister, Mattie, have returned to East Lake to resume their studies at the Howard college.

Quite a crowd of young people indulged in a stroll to the big spring Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Wellington and son left Thursday for Hot Springs, Ark., where they will spend several months with friends.

A. A. Daniel has returned from his visit to Calera and Selma.

We are very sorry to hear of the accident Mr. Elliott, of Vincent, happened to last Saturday night.

A very comical scene was enacted on our streets last week. Jack Millstead was endeavoring to ride a very stubborn and bucking goat. By enquiring we found that he was, practicing for another degree with the Masons.

We understand some of the young ladies are enquiring as to where the other foot of spring is. We would say to them if they will inform us where the other foot of a mountain or state, we will then we will tell them where the other foot of spring is. We were not speaking of pretty little feet like yours or Tully's.

Boys talk will not organize a ball team, neither will prepare a ground; let's get this matter in motion. The prospects are better this season for a first class ball team than they have been for several years.

The "regular Sunday afternoon drivers" strolled northward Sunday. After having driven about six miles one of them was so fortunate as to break a shaft, consequently a miniature blacksmith shop was in operation for a while which rendered sufficient assistance to enable them to return safely.

We all had an idea that measles had entirely subsided. It is true that the lecture man, the about-shares his part in this community. But the doctors have pronounced that the hoos are now following suit, and that the outbreak of the above mentioned disease many have died in the past three months.

The young ladies were because it was impossible for them to attend the entertainment given by the young people of Columbian last Friday night, and of course the young men of this place were in great sympathy with them, and more especially after having attended the party. The pleasures that they enjoyed are more than could be explained in this column. Refreshments were immense, the music simply grand, and the recitation brief but very sweet. We find that the young ladies of Columbian are beautiful and beautiful, and we are happy to say that we have the promise of their attending an entertainment at any time that we should notify them to that effect.

According to an exchange this is how a high school girl passed the sentence. "He kissed me." "He," she began with a frown, "lingering over the word which brought the crimson to her cheeks, "a pronoun, third person, singular, masculine, nominative, a gentleman and pretty well fixed; universally considered a good catch. Kissed is a verb, transitive, to do much so regular every evening, indicative mood, indicating affection; first and third persons, plural number, and governed by circumstances. Me—Oh, well, everybody knows me. And down she sat." BETCH, JR.

Rev. C. D. Messer and William Garrett, Esq., of Millerville, Ala., paid W. A. Weldon's family a welcome visit Saturday and Sunday last.

J. B. Nixens, who has been in the country for more than twelve months, died at his home near this place the 18th inst. He called his family and friends to his bedside and told them he had to die, afterwards had them good bye and passed away peacefully and quietly. Mr. Nixens was 50 years and 3 days old at his death. He joined the Missionary Baptist church at the age of 22 years. His daily deportment has been that of a true christian up to his departure. He told his friends he was prepared and willing to die, and was glad to go to that rest prepared for him. He was an affectionate husband and father, and a kind friend to all in the time of need, ever ready to help the needy when called upon. He leaves a wife, several children, and a host of friends to mourn his loss. The waiting hearts tenderly sympathize to the bereaved family and relatives.

Guardian's Settlement

State of Alabama, Shelby County.

Probate Court, 9th day of March, 1896.

This day came Mrs. D. R. Cromwell, guardian of the estate of Josie, Jasper, Virgie, Wallace and Henry Cromwell, minors, and filed her account, vouchers, evidences, and statement for a final settlement of the same. It is ordered that Monday, the 30th day of March, 1896, be appointed a day for making such settlement at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.

D. R. McILLAN, Judge of Probate.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of one fi. fa. issued from the Circuit court of Shelby county, and to me directed, I will proceed to sell in front of the Court House, in the town of Columbiana, on the 4th day of April, 1896, within the legal hours of sale, to the highest bidder for cash, all the interest, title and claim of said Defendant to the following described property, to-wit:

One roan mare, one black mule cow, one yoke of oxen, one thimble skin wagon, one set of blacksmith tools, one lot of farming and carpenter's tools, about 25 bushels of corn, and about 438 pounds of fodder.

The said goods are the property of Lewis Horton to satisfy said fi. fa. in my hands in favor of Shelby Iron Company.

This 20th day of March, 1896.

H. W. NELSON, Sheriff.

Probate Notice.

E. H. Sawyer, Deceased, Estate of.

Probate Court, Shelby County Alabama.

Special Term, March 4, 1896.

Robert L. Sawyer, the former administrator of said estate, in said court, having died without making settlement of his said administration, this day came E. H. Sawyer as the administrator of the estate of said Robert L. Sawyer, deceased, and filed a statement, accounts, vouchers and evidences for the purpose of making a settlement of the administration of the said Robert L. Sawyer, deceased, upon the estate of said E. H. Sawyer, deceased; and the court having examined, stated and reported the same for settlement. It is ordered by the court that Monday the 30th day of March, 1896, be set for said settlement, at which time and for such purposes all persons in interest can appear at my office and contest said account and settlement, and have such other relief as the law permits in such cases.

D. R. McILLAN, Judge of Probate.

Sour

Stomach, sometimes called waterbrash, and burning pain, distress, nausea, dyspepsia, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. This it accomplishes because with its wonderful power as a blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla gently tones and strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, invigorates the liver, creates an appetite, gives refreshing sleep, and raises the health tone. In cases of dyspepsia and indigestion it seems to have a "magic touch."

"For over 12 years I suffered from sour with severe pains across my shoulders, and great distress. I had violent nausea which would leave me very weak and faint, difficult to get my breath. These spells came oftener and more severe. I did not receive any lasting benefit from physicians, but found such happy effects from a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I took several bottles and mean to always keep it in the house. I am now able to do all my own work, which for six years I have been unable to do. My husband and son have also been greatly benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla—for pains in the back, and after the grip. I gladly recommend this grand blood medicine." Mrs. Peter B. POLITICAL "PINTERS."

The Sage of Rocky Creek Goes to School.

Learns a "Whole Lesson"—How Jerry Rutherford Beat the Livin' Crooks Off Gus Crittenden—"The People Ain't Gone Nowhere."

"If it ever does come to pass that you might take up a fool notion and pitch in and run for congress, Rufus," says Aunt Nancy Newton to me one day whilst mother was out tendin' to the chickens and lookin' after the kitchen physic, "come down and see a body."

"Now, mind you, I am nothin' of a politician myself, and none of my folks never did wade so very deep into the business," she went on, "but if in case you let your general habit of servin' the people and savin' the country get the under hold and kinder hunker into a rate like that, naturally, of course, I would love to see you swing down under the wire first. You know I am just one of these plain-talkin', flat-footed, old-fashion, stay-at-home-and-do-as-you-please sort of women, and it is my own private opinion that when a man goes to nussin' and dabbles himself in politics he must be right tolerable low down in the world, or either powerful hard up for somethin' to do. But I reckon it is none of my business what the men folks do so long as there ain't no particular one blewin' and swellin' and struttin' and bossin' around me."

"Wastlin' with the Boys."

"I reckon of course you have no doubts heard of how Jerry Rutherford wiped up the face of the earth with Gus Crittenden and got elected to congress from our district," Aunt Nancy went on presently. "Well, that is what I put in to tell you about. Whilst Jerry ain't as old, and neither as good looking as you, Rufus, yet still at the same time he has got there and been there, and if I don't dismember mighty bad you are always preachin' forth the doctrine that the man which knows the woods is the man to blaze the way. Now I'll be pleg took if Jerry don't know the woods. I reckon by this time he knows every man, woman and child—every cross roads and every fork—every pig path and every cow trail in the whole entire district."

"You see, Rufus, the honorable Augustus Crittenden he had a heap of the go when Jerry come out on the track. As everybody knows Gus Crittenden he is what you might call a standin' candidate for most anything that comes in reach, but congress in particular. So in that way he had got the go and had the inside track, and whilst Jerry beat the livin' socks off of him when votin' time come he had to stay out mighty late and get up mighty soon and play a rattlin' fast game in orderment to make things come his way."

"Gus Crittenden can put up a terrible high-flyin' speech and make a splendid show with himself in company, cause you must recollect that he is a strappin' likely man, but he can't hold a light for Jerry Rutherford when it comes down to wallowin' over the woods and wastlin' with the boys that do the votin' in a general election."

"Now, just in orderment to give you a little private notion of how easy it is for one man to drop a vote, and another one to come along and pick it up, I will tell you what come to pass at our house one night, which will likewise show you what made Dink Ashcraft turn out to be a wild and woolly Rutherford man along towards the tail end of the race."

"Dink he was over to our house spendin' the night with us, and about first dusk he should ride up to the horse rack but Gus Crittenden. To be certain we ask him to light and come in and make himself at home, and he want the least bit meally-mouth about doin as he was told."

"Well, that night we had to put Gus with Dink in the company room, so they both slept in the same bed together. It looked perfectly all right and agreeable at that time, cause Dink was then lettin' the grass run away with his crop so he could ride up and down the big road and preach Gus Crittenden as the onlyest man that was fitten to go to congress from our district. But I took notice the next morning that Dink want talkin' any politics to speak of. He didn't say much one way or the other, but you could see that somethin' had rubbed the hair the wrong way."

"Soon as after breakfast Gus called for his horse and lit out for the Flat Woods, and we didn't hardly wait for him to get out of sight before we got around Dink and put in naggin at him to find out what had got up between him and his favorite for congress. After so long a time he come out with it like a man and told us that Gus Crittenden slept in a gown."

"I never would of thought it in the created world," says Dink, "and if anybody had told me so I wouldn't of believed it, but dabbled him, I have seen it with my own eyes, and seen it believin'."

"No Female Garments in 'Hicn."

"I wonder in my soul if that is a general fool way with all the candidates for office," Dink went on, talkin' sorter half way to himself. "If it is, then I can just simply count Dink Ashcraft out of the game. I will now take it on myself and make it my business to nose around till I find out whether or no Jerry Rutherford sleeps in one of them durn things, and if he does, that also settles his hash with me henceforward and forever."

"Two or three weeks after that Jerry Rutherford come around to the circuit, and, bless gracious, it so happened that he went to the Ashcraft place and put up for the night. Dink couldn't give in no good excuse to sleep with Jerry, but he set up till late bedtime, and then watched his man through a crack in the wall. He saw Jerry pull off and go to bed with his underclothes on like the common run of men would do, and from that time on he was the wildest and most craziest Rutherford man to be found anywhere in our end of the district. The folks in general are still wonderin' how in the thunderations Dink Ashcraft made that tremendous sudden flop, but knowin' in the circumference of the surroundin' like I did, Rufus, everything was plain and natural as a new meetin' house to me."

"By Hook and Mererook."

"It is all in the family anyhow, Rufus, and I don't mind tellin' you that Dink Ashcraft is just a lee-the-bit shaky in regards to his church relationships and the settlement of his store account. But when it comes to politics, and standin' by his friends in times of trouble, he will do to count on. He showed that by the way in which he stuck to Jerry Rutherford through the heat and burdens of the fight."

"Now, in them days, tolerable soon after Dink had made his famous flop, it come to pass that there was a meetin' of three or four men in the Panther Creek settlement, but what was out and out for Jerry Rutherford. One of the seatin' few was old man Sandy Cowlin, and presently Dink and Jerry they went in together and fixed up a private scheme to pull him around in line. So by hook or mererook it happened that Jerry was puttin' up at Dink's house one day, with his horse hitched at the rack, when old man Sandy come along on his return back home from a trip to the river country. They hailed him as he rid by and he made out like he was in a monstrous hurry, but he finally at last got down and went in. Now presently of course Jerry he went down into his saddlebags and come forth with his bottle. He ask old man Sandy to jine him, and the old man was more than willin'. They talked along about the weather and the crops and the like of that till Jerry and the old man had changed their breath three or four times without sayin' a word to Dink. It was and if I don't dismember mighty bad he could treat it out accordin' to his own way. Dink he looked mad and said nothin' and took the slight as best he could till Jerry and old man Sandy had nibbled at the bottle four or five times, but toterly he got up and shook his fist at Jerry, and told him there was the front gate and out yonder was the big road."

"You can't come right here in my own house, Jerry Rutherford, and fling your insults in my face without hearin' the news from me," says Dink. "If you think you can treat all your whisky away on Sandy Cowlin right here before my face and never say turky to me, and still git my vote on election day, you are simply barkin' up the wrong tree. I would see you dead and buried face down, so when you scratched out you would be at home, first. Your horse is hitched at the rack, and the sooner you head him away from my house the better it will be for everybody."

"Well, of course Jerry he couldn't do nothin' but git up and go. But by this time, you understand, old man Sandy had bit off several plugs of Jerry's whisky, and whilst he want no Rutherford man to start with, he was now just about ripe enough to pull."

"Let the game stand right there Jerry," says old man Sandy. "If Dink wants to quit let him quit, and by gattins where he takes out I will come in. When you lose one voter you win another. Sandy Cowlin ain't gone nowhere."

"And old man Sandy took Jerry home with him and made him stay all night, and right along there is where the little private scheme got in its work. When election day rolled in Sandy Cowlin voted for Jerry Rutherford. So did Dink Ashcraft. And old man Sandy couldn't tell you till this day how the thing turned out the way it did."

A Man Amongst Men.

"As I told you in startin' out, Rufus, Jerry Rutherford is a man amongst men and a politician from long tack," that dear, delightful old soul went on to say. "He works over all the ground and works it close. You will notice he most in generally always cuts his cards so as to get mixed up with the men that are for the other fellow. He went to spend the night with Dink Ashcraft on the grounds that Dink was one of the mainest bellweathers in that Beat and dead square agin him. He has got a mighty way of pickin' out the men that are on the other side and can hurt him. Then he will make it his pressin' and partiular business to go and see them very men, and talk pleasant to the women, and make much of the children, and break bread with the family. And in that way he is so natural and homelike and sociable till them that ain't for him can't have the heart to do him no harm."

"If Jerry finds out a strong leadin' man of the pulp he don't mind courtin' some of the women folks and gettin' himself engaged to marry in orderment to bring the old man over on the right side of the fight. Why, they tell me that he is right now engaged to about two-thirds of the young women in the district. They say he went so far with Fannie Jo Wiggins, one of old man Charlie Wiggins's daughters, as to buy her a fine finger ring and settle on the weddin' day. I reckon the rascal would of courted me by this time but for the fact that all the men folks of our family was for him anyhow."

"I don't see how Jerry could marry all the women he has courted if he wanted to. A man that is forever ruinin' around huntin' office ain't got no business tryin' to raise a family anyhow. It ain't much probable, Rufus, that Jerry and Fannie Joe will ever git married when the pinch comes. But all the same old man Charlie Wiggins and his six boys all voted for Jerry, and a man by the name of Rutherford goes to congress from our district."

No man can save his country till he knows the lay of the land. And the people ain't gone nowhere.

WELL-GROOMED WOMEN.

Now Realize the Amount of Time They Must Spend in Beautifying.

Being well groomed is not a mere matter of expense. It also implies a goodly amount of care and time.

The well-groomed woman always looks neat in every detail and is suitably dressed for every occasion.

Her hair has a satin gloss, her boots and finger-nails also. Her gloves are invariably fresh and well-fitting, and her bonnet and hat are irreproachable in style and finish.

The secret of being perfectly groomed lies in having the taste to select becoming wearing apparel, the knowledge as to when and how to wear it and the willingness to give much attention to even the most petty detail. The well-groomed woman is not exaggerated in style, for that is bad taste, and her taste is always above reproach. She is sure to have in her wardrobe one perfectly correct dinner gown, a ball gown that is simple but elegant in cut, a tailor gown for street wear and a variety of fancy waists for theater and negligee jackets for house and morning wear.

Her street boots and gloves are manish in style, and her house shoes and gloves dainty and dressy in the extreme. Her wraps are always richly lined, and her favorite dress-lining is a good quality of silk. Her skirt bindings are fresh and absolutely free from soil; her buttons, hooks and eyes, ribbons and bows are firmly set in place, and a loose thread or frayed button-hole is an unknown quantity to the girl who is well-groomed from a matter of principle and not by a lucky chance.

All this sounds very onerous to the woman who were not one or several habits at her disposal. But in reality it is not so serious a matter. If she will study the wisdom of the old motto: "A stitch in time saves nine," she will have a fair start, for any amount of slovenliness in appearance is not so much due to lack of time as it is the result of that variety of laziness that neglects the little things.

See that things are brushed and in order before being put away. No matter how great the love of sleep in the morning never neglect the cold bath before dressing. Manicure the nails while resting, or looking over the morning paper. It takes but a minute to wash the hair, and while it is drying, read, or sew, or plan the marketing and shopping for the day. It is quite possible for a woman to achieve much in the matter of being well-groomed by simply utilizing all the idle minutes during the day.—N. Y. World.

OLD MAGAZINES.

Various Ways of Turning Them to Good Use.

"What shall we do with the old magazines?" is a question in nearly every household. In these days of cheap current literature they accumulate so rapidly that bookcases and shelves are full to overflowing. Years ago when a family considered itself fortunate to be able to subscribe to one or two monthly magazines they were treated more carefully. Usually they were bound in volumes containing five or six numbers each, and were considered a desirable addition to the library. Now a first-class magazine can be bought for ten cents, and instead of two there are often six or eight brought into the house every month, until it is a question of how to dispose of them. Of course, they can be sent to the hospitals and asylums, but it is often inconvenient, and one of those things one is always going to do, but seldom ever does. Besides, there is often a story or a picture in a magazine that is worth keeping.

An attractive and unusual book can be arranged by cutting out all the desirable stories and having them bound. There is sure to be no other like it, and it would show the taste of the person who made the selections, besides preserving good short stories which do not appear in book form. In order to do this successfully it is necessary to draw out the wire at the back of the magazine which holds the leaves together. It is easy then to remove the pages that are wanted, and then there is sufficient margin for the book-binder.

A collection of pictures cut from the magazines and nicely arranged in a scrapbook is another means of saving those of interest. In this case it is a good plan to classify them and arrange them according to subject.

It is hard to find a book a child will enjoy more than one of this kind—with a selection of appropriate pictures. It is something that cannot be bought, and no other child will have one like it.

The funny pictures sometimes found among the advertisements would make a good collection, and one that would interest and amuse everybody.

With a little time and patience the old magazines can be disposed of very profitably, and in their place will be something worth keeping.—Chicago Tribune.

Raisin Cake.

For two loaves use a generous cupful of butter, two of sugar, one of milk, four generous cupfuls of flour, five eggs, one gill of brandy, two nutmegs, half a teaspoonful of soda and one quart of boiled raisins. Put the raisins in a small stewpan, and cover them with cold water. Cook slowly for half an hour; then drain and cool. Beat the butter to a cream. Beat the sugar into it; add the brandy and nutmeg, and beat a little longer. Add the yolks of the eggs, well beaten. Dissolve the soda in the milk, and add this to the beaten ingredients; then add the flour. Stir in the well-beaten whites of the eggs. Spread the batter in thin layers in two large cake pans, and sprinkle raisins on each layer. Continue until the materials are all used. Bake for two hours in a moderate oven. This is a cake that keeps well.—Boston Herald.

An Artistic Bonnet.

Undoubtedly the most artistic bonnet of the season is the small poe, but whether it will obtain here as it has in Paris remains to be seen. A particularly pretty one is of white chip, with an inner facing of rose-colored velvet. On one side, standing up high, but pointing toward the front, are two large pink roses, with their stems and foliage, while twisted around the crown is a scarf of soft pink chiffon. Pale pink ribbon ties, at least three inches wide, are on the bonnet and must be looped in rather a prim bow just under the chin. In brown straw with corn flowers upon it, in gray with white or pink roses, in dark blue with mignonette, or in yellow with blue forget-me-nots the poke shape is seen and is admired.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Thousands Rejuvenated in 1895—Remarkable Vitalizing Power of the Famous Magnesia-Lithia Water Baths.

INDIANA, Massachussetts, Ind., Jan. [Special]—During the year 1895 a large number of physicians from all over the country have personally investigated the remarkable natural combination of cures found here for rheumatism, kidney and nervous diseases. This treatment, consisting of the Magnesia-Lithia Water and Magnesia Baths, taken in connection with the drinking of Magnesia-Lithia water, has been found by the profession to be the most remarkable and successful remedial power as yet discovered. The end of the year brought reports from many eminent medical men, a number of whom have discussed and recommended the cure in the leading medical journals.

Since the accidental discovery of the virtues of Magnesia-Lithia water, four years ago, this little valley has become world-famous. A big hotel has been built with all modern improvements, electric light, steam heat, and a great variety of a large bath-house especially constructed for the requirements of Magnesia-Lithia Water Baths. People in search of rest, health and pleasure from all over the United States have come in numbers to tax the capacity of the establishment, and have gone to help spread the fame of the cure.

The proprietors, the Indiana Springs Co., have opened offices at 108 Hudson St., New York City, and 45 Randolph St., Chicago, where all detailed information can be obtained on application, whether personal or by letter.

GREATER New York will have an area of 359 square miles, making it the largest American city and nearly three times the size of Philadelphia. But London spreads over 688 square miles. The consolidation will advance New York to the position of the world's second city, and as its rate of growth is nearly double that of London it should be the first before the end of the coming century.

AN unpublished letter from Gen. Grant upon the Monroe doctrine was found a few days ago among the records of the war department. It was written to President Andrew Johnson some time before the United States government demanded the withdrawal of French troops from Mexico. Gen. Grant, as the letter shows, was in favor of extreme measures to overthrow Maximilian and to sustain the republican cause in Mexico.

THE government of New Zealand has drafted a bill for the exclusion of consumptives from that colony. It imposes an extremely heavy penalty upon captains of ships bringing consumptives to a port, whether knowingly or unwittingly. The law, if passed, will compel the captains as a matter of self-defense, to require all intending passengers from American, English or Asiatic ports to provide themselves with medical certificates showing that they are neither consumptives nor exhibit any tendencies of being afflicted.

THE announcement that President Cleveland will soon extend the civil service rules so as to embrace all clerical employees of the government is not surprising, the Indianapolis Journal says. At present nearly 90 per cent. of all such employees are under the rules, and it is but logical that the rest should be placed on the same footing. Every president and head of department who has held office since the civil service law was passed has become a convert to its operation, and public opinion has finally accepted it as a distinct improvement on the old spoils system.

THE senate committee on elections recently reported an amendment to the constitution for the election of senators by direct vote of the people, but the prospects that the amendment will be made are small. In order to have it submitted to the people a two-thirds vote of the senate is required, the prospect for which is rather improbable. Should the senate decide to submit the question, it would be necessary to have the amendment ratified by three-fourths of the states, either by a vote of the legislature or by the voice of a convention called for the purpose.

COL. GEORGE W. BAIN, of Kentucky, addressed the Women's Christian Temperance union at Washington recently and made the statement that one of the causes of our recent depression was the spending of $1,000,000,000 in 1894 by the American people for liquor and tobacco. "Do not say that our finances are exaggerated," he said, "until congress gives us a committee of inquiry to prove that they are wrong. If the workingmen of Chicago had saved the money they spent in one day for liquor during the Pullman strike they could have bought the Pullman plant."

THE IOWA LAUNCHED.

The Monster Battleship Takes Water Gracefully

AFTER TAKING A DOSE OF CHAMPAGNE.

The Christening Performed by Miss Mary Lord Drake, Daughter of the Governor of Iowa, in Presence of an Immense Throng.

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—The battleship Iowa was launched from Cramp's ship yard at 1:30 p. m. When she slipped into her cradle and dipped her virgin keel in the waters of the Delaware, Uncle Sam's new navy received the most powerful fighting vessel afloat.

There has never been a more successful launch. Federal, state and municipal governments were represented by high dignitaries. Miss Mary Lord Drake, daughter of the governor of Iowa, named the big naval baby. The bottle she broke on its great iron prow contained champagne, and not water from either the Des Moines or the Schuylkill rivers. When Miss Drake christened the ship her father stood beside her, and near at hand were the members of his staff, and a party of other distinguished Iowans.

Secretary of the Navy Herbert was there, with prominent attaches of his office, and so were the chiefs of the different naval bureaus in Washington and members of the house and senate committees on naval affairs. Gov. Hastings represented Pennsylvania and Mayor Warwick Philadelphia. A mighty host of citizens saw the event.

It was shortly after 1 o'clock when the last tie piece holding the monster to the ways was knocked off and the tremendous hull gave a preliminary quiver. The commanding figure of Miss Drake, standing on a little raised platform, was drawn up. Under Henry W. Cramp's direction, she rested one shoulder against the hull, and then as it began to glide away, she swung her right arm and smashed the bottle squarely on the vessel's nose. She nervously murmured: "I christen thee Iowa," but nobody heard her, because at that moment the factories and steamboats let loose their car-splitting whistles and the multitude gave vent to its frenzied roar of enthusiasm. And the racket kept up until the Iowa had gracefully acknowledged the tribute in mid-stream, swinging round and cast anchor.

Then everybody on the bow platform shook hands with everybody else there, and they went into the long midloft for luncheon and more felicitations. The western party included Gen. F. M. Drake, governor of Iowa; W. M. McFarland, secretary of state; C. G. McCarthy, state auditor; John Herriott, state treasurer; the governor's military staff, with aides.

The ladies were Miss Mary Lord Drake, Mrs. D. M. Shonts, Mrs. Ed. Gosse, Mrs. Martha Farr Nutting, Miss Mary Carpenter, Miss Fannie McFarland, Mrs. F. M. McFarland, Mrs. Col. Robt. Rae, Mrs. John A. Drake, Mrs. F. E. Drake, Miss Clarice McCarthy.

The following stirring poem by Maj. S. H. M. Byers, of Iowa, was read, each stanza being enthusiastically applauded:

The Launching of the Iowa.
Wake, giant of oak and steel,
Asleep by the yellow sand,
And give to the sea thy keel,
And bid farewell to the land.
At the touch of heavy arms,
At the words that shall bid thee move,
At the hand that dips thee,
And give to the sea thy love.
Sail, sail, O ship that is ours,
New warrant that peace shall be,
With the flag that floats above thee,
O ship of the western sea!
To every land of the earth,
To seas that are fair and far,
Bearing the message of worth
That peace is better than war!
And guard thou ever our fame,
From gulf to the utmost bay,
And keep forever thy name
As fair as the cloud that lowers,
O ship of the western sea!
To every land of the earth,
To seas that are fair and far,
Bearing the message of worth
That peace is better than war!
And guard thou ever our fame,
From gulf to the utmost bay,
And keep forever thy name
As fair as the cloud that lowers,
O ship of the western sea!

Then wake, O giant of steel,
That sleeps by the yellow sand,
Arise from thy dreams and feel
The voice of a man's hand!
Sail, sail to many a main,
Strange lands and trackless ways,
But ever come back again,
New crowned with the victor's bays.
Your colors already we know—
The colors our hearts adore,
The sea-waves white, and the wine's red glow
And the blue sky bending o'er.
Sail, sail, O ship,
But come to us at the last,
If from the battle, or from the gale,
With the old flag at the mast.

There was no speech-making as the crowd in the room where the lunch was served was so great that the formalities had to be abandoned.

After the luncheon the Washington party returned to the capital in their special train.

BIG DAY FOR BLAZES.

An Expensive Conflagration at Waterbury, Conn.

AN EXCITING BLAZE AT ST. PAUL, MINN.

Fires at Other Points, in Some Cases Involving Loss of Life—Half a Million Dollar Fire at Bradford, England.

An Expensive Blaze at Waterbury, Conn. WATERBURY, Conn., March 28.—That part of Waterbury known as the lumber section, and bounded by Cedar and South Willow streets and the freight yards of the New England Railroad Co., has been burned. The loss will be fully $300,000. The fire started in some unknown manner in the boiler room of the City Lumber and Coal Co. and spread rapidly to the adjoining property.

The principal losers are the City Lumber and Coal Co.; Valentine Buhl, wholesale meats and produce; Lilley, Swift & Co., meat and produce; Seeley & Upham; builders; D. E. Carroll & Co., provisions; I. A. Spencer, provisions, and the New England Railroad Co., which loses several freight cars upon its tracks.

The lumber and coal continued to burn through the day in spite of the efforts of the fire department. Fifteen horses, the property of the lumber company, were burned to death.

An Exciting Fire at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 28.—At 3:30 a. m. Yerkas Bros' grocery, corner Seventh and Cedar streets, was completely gutted by fire in less than 20 minutes. The fire started in the fifth floor, where several occupants, including United States soldiers, were asleep. They were brought down on ladders, one woman unconscious and others suffering from smoke inhalation. All have been accounted for.

W. E. Ryder, of Hose Company No. 8, was severely injured about the neck and shoulders, but not fatally.

Yerkas' loss is about $25,000, fully covered by insurance. Origin of fire unknown.

Fatal Fire at Geneva, N. Y.

GENEVA, N. Y., March 28.—The Ridley hotel, a frame structure, situated on Sherrill street very near the Lehigh Valley station, was burned about 1 a. m. One boarder, Thomas Danton, a fireman on the Lehigh Valley work train, was burned to death. Engineer Spangler and brakeman Cogswell were badly burned about the hands and face, but will recover. E. C. Young, a sales agent, barely escaped with his life, only saving the scanty wearing apparel he had on. Corsetine lost $400 in currency, which was consumed with his trunk. The building was insured for $4,000, and the contents for $1,500.

Burned to Death in Her Home.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 28.—Mrs. F. E. Dorning, wife of a city employee, was burned to death at her residence on Fort street. She got up to pacify a crying child. This accomplished, she went to the kitchen, where her clothing ignited from the stove. Her screams awoke her husband, who smothered the fire but not in time to save the life of his wife.

Fatal Fire at Spring Valley, Miss.

SPRING VALLEY, Miss., March 28.—The home of Jacob Ruhl was burned at midnight. John, a 14-year-old son, and Charles Osborne, were burned to death. Mrs. Ruhl was so badly burned she may die, and another son was badly hurt in jumping through a window when there was no time to raise. Lightning caused the fire.

Fire at Lockport, N. Y.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., March 28.—A fire, which started in Churchill & Co.'s dry-goods store, swept away all the warehouses on the east side of Water street from Churchill's store to the post office. The schooners Three Bells and Jersey Lily, lying at the wharves, caught fire, and were somewhat damaged.

Bonded Warehouse Burning.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 28.—One of the large bonded warehouses of the Pleasure Ridge Distilling Co., a few miles south of the city, is on fire. Engines have been sent out by special train.

Fire at Somersworth, N. H.

SOMERSWORTH, N. H., March 28.—The Watson, Dixon and Pray blocks, in High street, were burned. Loss, $35,000; insurance partial.

Fire at Dubuque, Ia.

DUBUQUE, Ia., March 28.—Fire at Volga City this morning destroyed the Stone block. Loss $30,000; insurance partial.

Fire at Bradford, England.

LONDON, March 28.—The large warehouses of Hollings, at Bradford, were burned this morning. The loss is $100,000.

WHILE LOOKING AT A FIRE.

A Spectator Killed by the Unexpected Discharge of a Shotgun.

TOPEKA, Kas., March 28.—George Austin, of Kingman county, met death in a peculiar accident Friday. He had rushed to the home of his neighbor, David Stohl, which was on fire, to assist in saving the household effects. The heat was too intense to enter, and as Austin stood looking at the burning building a double-barreled shotgun, hanging on a rack in the house, was discharged by the heat, the contents of both barrels entering his head and body.

Twenty-Two Bodies Recovered.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 28.—Twenty-two bodies have been recovered from the mines at Brunner, in which an explosion of fire damp occurred a few days ago, killing five persons outright and hopelessly entombing 60 others.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Trade Generally Remains Dull and Unsteady.

New York, March 28.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

The week has brought more favorable weather, which tends to create a better feeling. But trade, except at Baltimore, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago, and to a moderate degree at other points, remains dull and unsteady. The most encouraging feature is the advance in prices of wheat, Indian corn and Bessemer pig iron, the latter being based on the higher value placed on lake ore. While there have been larger sales of good choice, hardware, iron and leather at Chicago, business in other lines continues slow. The check in demand for groceries and provisions at the south is due to southern planters having raised larger food crops last year.

One of the most unpleasant features is lack of improvement in mercantile collections. This, with the commercial calm at many of the more important trading centers, points to some of the effects of a prolonged period of withdrawal of capital from enterprises in the United States, and to the unwillingness of accumulated domestic capital to seek new ventures at present.

Exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from Canada, of the United States this week are only slightly heavier than last, amounting to 1,741,000 bushels, compared with 1,582,000 in the previous week. One year ago the corresponding weekly aggregate was 2,022,000; two years ago it was 2,069,000; three years ago 2,875,000, and in the corresponding week of 1892 it was 2,567,000.

Only 275 business failures are reported in the United States, compared with 300 last week, but an unusually large proportion of them are of comparatively heavily capitalized concerns. There are 41 business failures reported from the Canadian Dominion, compared with 40 last week, 49 in the week of a year ago and 27 in the fourth week of March, 1894.

IN MEMORY OF LOVEJOY.

Work on the Monument to the Anti-Slavery Editor at Alton, Ill.

ALTON, Ill., March 28.—The Lovejoy monument association has now available $30,000 with which to erect a monument at the Alton cemetery to Elijah P. Lovejoy, and Gov. Altgeld has requested that the work be completed within the next nine months. When the appropriation of $25,000 was made by the state for the monument, the governor stipulated that the people should raise by popular subscription an additional $12,500 before the $25,000 should be placed in their hands. The citizens have succeeded in raising $5,000, and the governor has instructed them to go ahead with the $30,000 in hand. The monument will overlook the Mississippi from the east bluffs of the city.

SAMUEL P. LANGDON

Restrained from Disposing of His Property.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 28.—Samuel P. Langdon, who is in custody under suspicion that he is responsible for the death of young Annie J. McGrath, was visited by Deputy Sheriff Smith, of Clearfield county, who served upon him, as president of the Altoona & Philadelphia Connecting Railroad Co., an injunction issued by Judge C. Gordon, of that county. The action was brought by George W. Dickey and five other persons, who are creditors of the company, and who applied for a writ to restrain Langdon or any of the officers of the company from disposing of or incurring the property.

THREE HUNDRED KILLED.

Chinamen Blown to Atoms by the Explosion of a Magazine.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Three hundred Chinese were blown to atoms by the explosion of a magazine attached to the fort at Kiang, in China, on February 24. The disaster, according to the mail advices received by steamer, was the work of mutinous soldiers, who were preparing to join secret society rebels in the attack on the adjacent town, but whether through carelessness or intention, is not known.

FARMER JOHN ARNEY

Went to Adjust a Difficulty and Has Been Found Murdered.

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—A Press special from Canton, O., says the body of John Arney, a farmer aged 53, who has been missing since Sunday last, has been found in the woods in Sugar Creek township, near his home. The left eye is missing, and it seems to have been taken out by a pistol shot. When last seen Arney was on his way to adjust a difficulty with some relatives. It is suspected that he was murdered.

A NEGRO'S REVENGE.

Killed the Daughter of the Man Who Sent Him to Jail and Himself.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—About 8 a. m. Philip Kaner, a negro cook, cut the throat of a 14-year-old girl named Meyers, the daughter of respectable people, and then cut his own throat, dying instantly. The girl died a few hours later. Kaner some time ago robbed a saloon owned by the girl's father, and served six months' imprisonment for the crime.

In Favor of Women Delegates.

WICHITA, Kas., March 28.—At the Southwest Kansas Methodist Episcopal conference, a vote was taken on the Baltimore-Colorado proposition to admit women to the general conference, and it was adopted: Yeas, 84; nays, 8.

A Change of Location.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 28.—By direction of the office of the uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, the arrangements to hold the national encampment in Minneapolis have been declared off, and Cleveland has been selected as the place for the coming event.

Post Office Robbers Sentenced.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 28.—In the United States district court, Friday, the bandits indicted for robbing the California post office, James Carter, Pat Clifford, Mike Ryan and Barney Burns, were convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for five years.

In a Critical Condition.

GREENSBORO, Ala., March 28.—Ex-Gov. Thomas Seney is in a very critical condition. He is unconscious, and death is likely to occur at any moment. He has been suffering from grip for some time.

HARRISON-DIMMICK.

Arrangements Completed for the Wedding Easter Monday.

WHILE IT WILL BE A VERY QUIET ONE,

There Will Be Some Notable Features, the Floral Decoration of the Interior of St. Thomas Church in Particular.

NEW YORK, March 28.—On Easter Monday, at 4 p. m., Mrs. Mary Scott Dimmick, will be married to ex-President Harrison at St. Thomas church. The arrangements for the wedding have been made with secrecy and it was only Friday that the final details were fully settled.

The spirit of Easter will pervade the ceremonies. While the wedding will be a very quiet and small affair, to which only the relatives and intimate friends of Gen. Harrison and his future bride will be invited, it will be one of the most beautiful in point of ceremony. Thoroughly has been given charge of the floral decorations, which will be arranged under the personal supervision of Mr. Humphreys.

The church will be like a field of lilies with palm trees waving above them. The massive oaken reredos will be curtained with palms, laden in an exquisitely delicate arabesque, shaded with purple and gold and warm crimson from the stained glass windows. Quantities of white azaleas flashed with pink will form a dado for this altar hanging, with here and there bits of deeper rose color, as though darkened by shadow. The altar rail will be hidden by lilies which will be tied with garlands of bride roses looped with ribbon, and the choir will be completely hidden behind lilies broadcast, as it were, in graceful sprays against a background of tropical foliage.

Those who are in Mrs. Dimmick's confidence say she will have no bridesmaids, as widows seldom, if ever, have attendants except the ushers. The latter have been selected, as has also the best man, but their names are to be kept secret until Gen. Harrison returns to New York next Friday.

Rev. John Wesley Brown, rector of St. Thomas' church, will perform the ceremony, and an elaborate musical programme will be rendered by the quartette choir, supplemented by the large chorus of mixed voices, all under the direction of Dr. Warren, who will preside at the organ.

THE MATABELE UPRISING.

The Defection of the Native Police Commanded—They Took Their Arms.

LOXON, March 28.—Sir Hercules Robinson, governor of Cape Colony, has reported to the colonial office that the reports of the murder of Police Inspector Jackson and the desertion of the native police to the Matabeles is confirmed. The native police took their Martini rifles with them. Gov. Robinson also says that Laigars around the market in Bulawayo is greatly in need of arms and ammunition.

The dispatch says that Mabel, son of the late Matabele king, Lobengula, who was banished in 1893, has returned to Matabeleland and that it was he who incited the uprising.

The Situation Very Grave.

CAPE TOWN, March 28.—A dispatch from Bulawayo, under Friday's date, represents the situation as being of the gravest character. A thousand women and children burned a store 40 miles out from Bulawayo on Thursday and performed a dance around the flames. Many murders of whites of the most fiendish character are reported. Cecil Rhodes is expected to arrive at Salisbury on Sunday. It is learned that the native police induced the Matabeles to revolt and joined them with 750 rifles and a large quantity of ammunition.

Matabeles Defeated.

CAPE TOWN, March 28.—A force of British troops, under command of Capt. Spreckels, defeated a large body of Matabeles on Thursday, killing a large number of them. The British force lost no men.

THOMAS BYRNES.

Ex-Chief of Police of New York, Going Into Business for Himself.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Former Chief of Police Thomas Byrnes, is positively announced, has leased a suite of offices in the Wall street district, where he will preside over a private detective bureau. The business to be conducted by him will be international in scope.

While on his recent trip abroad the ex-chief corralled some new ideas on the subject of running such an institution, engaged agents in different European capitals and made arrangements with correspondents. He has returned from his visit to Hot Springs, relieved of his rheumatic troubles. He will begin business in about six weeks.

Mr. Byrnes has declared, so a friend states, that under no circumstances, no matter what the salary might be, will he consent to be the head of a metropolitan police department of the greater New York.

Infected Cows.

KANKAKEE, Ill., March 28.—The state veterinarian has been examining the milk cows at the state asylum for the insane at this place, and reports that many are dying with tuberculosis or consumption. He has condemned 33 of them and expects to find more before the entire herd of about 200 cows is examined.

JOE · M. · SPENCER.

THE ORIGINATOR AND LEADER OF LOW PRICES,

Presents to his readers this week this Mammoth advertisement instead of the little Bulletin of two weeks ago. My space was too small to tell you all I wanted to say of the good things I have in store for the wide-awake cash buyer.

Therefore I have adopted this method of getting my goods and prices before the people. Appreciating the hard times and scarcity of money I determined at the beginning to give the people goods at living prices. How well I have succeeded I leave for you to decide. Ever since I started in business, I have been in the lead of all others with

THE BEST GOODS FOR THE LEAST MONEY.

My would-be imitators are following in the rear, two or three years behind the procession, in fact some of them have just begun to realize that the war is over. My success from the start has been phenomenal, due simply to one fact,

EXTREMELY LOW PRICES!

I am getting the cream while the other fellows get skimmed milk. I have never sold so many goods at this season of the year. And why? Simply because I have upset old moss-covered trade laws. Instead of offering an accumulation of old RUBBISH AT WAR PRICES, I am selling

NEW, FRESH, CLEAN, BRIGHT AND STYLISH GOODS AT PRICES THAT SIMPLY PARALYZE THE OLD TIMERS.

AND HERE THEY ARE FOR THIS WEEK:

GROCERIES.	HARDWARE.	NOTIONS AND SHOES.
25 lbs best Rice for $1 00	Best poney plows $1 85	Men's dress shirts - - - - - 50c

— MILLINERY. —

In this department my stock is the Largest and Handsomest ever shown in this place. MISS FANNIE LONGSHORE, a lady of rare taste an extensive experience, has charge of this department, and it goes without saying that she can suit you in anything in that line. Remember, that in order to make low prices we exact the cash in every instance.

Every day I am adding new attractions to my already handsome and attractive stock. You will find my house brim full of bargains in every line, and at prices never before heard of. Some of the old croakers say I am selling goods for less than cost and that I am not doing a legitimate business. This I leave for you to decide, but one thing I will say, that I am not in business simply for my health. I am after the almighty dollar just as they are, and I intend to get it if LOW PRICES and FAIR DEALING count for anything. I am the only one who has displayed nerve enough to put his prices in cold type.

Thanking you for the very liberal patronage you have given me, and asking a continuance of the same,

I Am Yours to Please,

JOE M. SPENCER.

A FOOLISH MAN

Is he who declares he never pays any attention to state-ments made in newspaper ad-vertisements. What other way have I of attempting to con-vince you that I can show your horse in up-to-date style, and at a price so moderate that you will be ready with the cash the moment the job is done.

Repair Work

a Specialty.

Nothing but good, honest work turned out of my shop. Can sharpen a plow while you wait. In fact I do any and all kinds of work that any blacksmith or woodworkman is supposed to do; and, further, I will appreciate your patronage.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce W. A. Thompson as a candidate for re-election to the office of Treasurer of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce J. S. Farrell as a candidate for Treasurer of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR TAX COLLECTOR.

The friends of W. L. Davis authorize The Chronicle to announce him as a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Shelby county, subject to the action of the county democratic convention.

FOR TAX ASSESSOR.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce J. H. Hammond as a candidate for re-election to the office of Tax Assessor of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR SHERIFF.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce Amos Daniel as a candidate for Sheriff of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

FOR COMMISSIONER—FIRST DISTRICT.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce Rosa Pearson as a Commissioner of Shelby county, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

Remember the municipal election Monday.

Miss Agnes Avery, of Shelby, was in our city Saturday.

J. F. Pope, of Wilsonville, spent a few hours in town Monday.

E. B. Nelson transacted business in Birmingham Monday.

Miss Lann Jackson is a guest of her sister, Mrs. Rufus Lester.

Col. E. W. Pettus, of Selma, is in attendance upon court this week.

Dr. T. G. Nelson and wife, of Harpersville, are on a visit to relatives here.

Robert Borden, one of Calera's cleverest young men, was in town Tuesday.

Hon. T. J. Martin, of Harpersville, was a welcome guest of our town yesterday.

The grand jury adjourned yesterday morning. The report is published elsewhere.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Rufus Lester has fully recovered from her recent illness.

Messrs. Fred Hardy and A. B. Scott, of Calera, favored us with a pleasant call yesterday.

I. D. Mason was absent two or three days last week in Jacksonville, attending district conference.

Mrs. Lizzie Bell, who has been on a lengthy visit to relatives in Atlanta and Dalton, Ga., returned home Friday.

Don't fail to cast your vote Monday for the school ticket. It's election means a great deal to Columbiana and vicinity.

A very large crowd was in town all of last week, the largest we have seen for years, and the hotels and boarding houses did a land office business.

Don't overlook the very important election to be held in this place next Monday. Every man within the corporate limits of the city, who has the interest of the school at heart, should vote the school ticket headed by Hon. W. B. Browne.

We are under lasting obligations to our Wilsonville correspondent for his recent article on there's no disputing the fact that immediately after its publication the weather began to warm up. It is the poetry of this week will restore peace in Cuba we will publish his announcement as a candidate for the legislature free of charge.

H. Fox informed us Monday that he had leased the Pigeon brick store and would occupy it about the first of September. It is his purpose to fill the new store with a complete stock of dry goods, notions, clothing, etc., and he will also keep the store he is now in for heavy groceries, furniture, etc. The Columbian Mercantile Co., seems to be in a flourishing condition.

It is a source of gratification to us to know that the business men of Shelby county are rapidly finding out that it is useless to send to any city for job work. A gentleman from Calera gave us a nice order yesterday for stationery, and he said to us that he had been getting his work done in Birmingham, but our prices were cheaper, our work better. Give us a trial order, and see if this statement is not true.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY.

STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY.

To the Hon. Geo. E. Brewer, Judge of the 7th Judicial District:

We, the grand jury, empaneled, sworn and charged at this term of court, beg leave to submit the following report.

We have examined the county jail and find it neatly kept. We would recommend that the commissioners purchase a steel cage for the lower left-hand cell, as it is insecure in its present condition and usually is the only one in which female prisoners can be kept.

We would further recommend that the commissioners discontinue the payment of $3.00 per month to the night watchman employed by the city of Columbiana, as we do not deem it necessary.

We have examined the fee-book of the probate judge, the sheriff's account with the state for feeding prisoners, the books of the county superintendent of education, the condition of the county treasury, and find these various books and accounts properly kept and the legal fees charged.

The county treasurer shows a cash balance in vault of $3,393.32, and outstanding claims against the line and forfeiture fund of $8,841.00.

We have inspected the county poorhouse and find it in a nice condition, the inmates number twenty-five which are well clothed and report having been kindly treated and well fed.

We have examined the bonds of the various officers and would recommend that the following persons be required to strengthen their respective bonds, viz: J. E. Adams, Justice of the peace, beat 1; John B. Hargis, Justice of the peace, beat 2; John B. Hargis, Justice of the peace, beat 3; N. A. Graham, notary public and ex-officio Justice of the peace, beat 4; H. W. Nelson, sheriff.

The public roads throughout the county are reported as being in good condition.

We have investigated fifty cases, examined 171 witnesses and returned 28 true bills.

We desire to express our thanks for the liberal charge given by your honor, and for the efficient assistance rendered by the clerk.

And now having completed our labors, we ask to be discharged.

J. B. WHITE, Foreman.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. M. Brown went to Montgomery on business last Wednesday.

Dr. J. B. Boyer was called to Columbiana on business last Friday.

Capt. J. W. Bolin went to Selma on business last Friday.

Frank Wilby and wife visited relatives in Selma last week.

G. W. McGowan and wife visited conference at Jacksonville, Ala., last week.

Rev. W. L. Shinnott preached a very interesting sermon at the Presbyterian church last Wednesday evening.

O. W. Tinsley made a business trip to Talladega Springs, last week.

Rev. J. W. Cary attended the Methodist conference at Jacksonville, last week.

Miss Ora Hammond, of Columbiana, was the guest of Misses Helen Boyer and Rosa Graham, last week.

Wm. Finney and son, Will, visited relatives in Columbiana, last week.

H. L. Sanders visited friends and relatives in Columbiana and Calera, last week.

A new schedule which went into effect last Sun. ay on the Southern road, does not effect our passenger trains very much. The north bound train will arrive and depart the same as heretofore; the south bound will be three minutes later.

But Edwards has resigned his position at Mr. Butler's saw mill and has entered school here.

A. A. Daniel went on a pleasure trip to Birmingham last week.

Amos Daniel visited a young negro here last week, answering the description given by Messrs. Latham & Co. of Montevallo, of a negro that burglarized their store some time since, and very gallantly escorted the young gentleman down to Montevallo. We are sorry to say that he was not made a prisoner.

Mrs. J. C. Jackson, of Tallapoosa, La., is here visiting relatives.

We are glad to see our friend, Amos Daniel, announced for sheriff. It would be impossible for the office to be filled by a man of more ability than Amos. He is a staunch democrat, has a record of being a straightforward, upright, and honest gentleman that is unexcelled. He deserves the vote of every true democrat in Shelby county.

The hay-ride was seemingly enjoyed by all who participated in "the latest mode of travel." The morning was pleasant and so were the girls; consequently the three young men accompanying them were "happy on the way" if they were compelled to comb the hay seed from the head of one of the young men, plant it and grow a crop of hay before the wagon would be filled. We would enjoy the opportunity of taking this trip weekly, if we could only hear Rufus Saunders lecture on any of his chosen themes.

Accident—A young man, while resting at all ease, lying on a bench at the Methodist church in line of service last Sunday evening, was surprised by the force of gravity drawing him to the floor. He must have thought that the buoyant force of his breeze that evening would equalize and overcome the power of gravitation.

The Social Purity Literary League met at the residence of Mr. J. F. Pope, last Friday night. We had a larger attendance than we have had since the organization of the society. The program was well and beautifully delivered. The quartet:

"Come where the lilies bloom," sung by Miss Georgia Pope, soprano; Miss Rosa Wallace, alto; Claude Jackson, bass; and Will Tinsley, tenor, was something to be admired. We think it met the heartiest approval of every one present. The "Current News" was interesting, indeed, especially the "accident" column. We have not been very much inclined to believe what prophets say, but the "prophecy" was so attractive that it almost reached the heights of sublimity, therefore we are compelled to admit that we have been partly convinced that they know, and can foretell many things that would have never entered the minds of this young generation. After the finale the society was so fortunate as to have the pleasure of giving an attentive ear to the voice of Miss Rosa Wallace, of Harpersville, accompanied by her grand performance on the piano. She is a charming young lady and we would rejoice to know that she could arrange so as to attend our League regularly. The presiding officers elected for the future session are as follows: President, Claude Jackson; Vice-president, Miss Katharine Gwin; Secretary and treasurer, O. W. Zimney.

THE CRY OF WAR.

Papers are raging with the cry of war. Oh how can we think of it thus? Even the thought of the battles of yore, Are 'nough to be thought of by us.

The civilized home we now occupy, Its name so glorious to me, And for her own rights brave soldiers have died, And left us our flag floating free.

The star spangled banner floats in the air, The old song "Dixie" sounds so brave; They may be mocked or driven to despair, But the proud floating flag we'll save.

Be patient, be patient, be not nonplussed, God'll watch over our own loving homes; Old Spain may boast and may threaten and fuss, But soil of Cuba never own.

How sublime the thought of leaving our homes, To the battlefields far away, Know not today where tomorrow we'll roam, While in the grand battle array.

The swift flying bullets, the brave fighting men, Each minute expecting to fall; Oh may this battle with us ne'er begin, But peace, goodwill, be with us all.

Peace, peace, the dearest friend on earth you know, Rejoice in this land of ours so free; And now can we think of war anymore, In this sweet land of liberty.

Items from Creswell.

Mrs. Bates and Miss Jennie Bates were in Sycamore several days last week visiting sick relatives.

Mrs. G. W. Butts, of Odessa, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. G. V. Wallis, this week.

Miss Vesta Blanchard, of Sycamore, after spending several days with relatives here, left Monday for Childersburg, where she will spend a few days.

Misses Willie Lipsey, Arabella Baggett and Lizzie Green visited Miss Jennie Bates last week.

Mr. R. P. Hoacock, of Sylacauga, was over last week and rented out his place, which is all in woods, and will be put in cultivation next year.

W. S. Hibbey and family, of Vincent, visited relatives here Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Warren, of the Presbyterian church, on account of sickness, failed to fill his appointment at the Baptist church on the third Sunday. There was a large congregation out and we were disappointed at his not being here. He has an appointment the third Sunday in April and will probably continue through the year.

Some of the boys are having to attend court at Birmingham on the white line business. I do not wish any one any harm, but we hope the authorities will succeed in removing this pestilence from our midst. These "lifers" have the largest, brightest eyes we ever saw to be blind.

Miss Lizzie Green left Monday for her home in Tallapoosa county. She has spent several months with relatives here in an excellent community, and has made many warm friends who regret to see her leave. But our best wishes go with her, with the hope that she will visit us again soon.

Young people, we need a literary club. It would not only be profitable but would afford amusement much to be preferred to a great deal of the amusement now indulged in.

Christian people, we need a Sabbath school. Can't you see the importance of children being raised up in a good Christian school? We all go to work to have a Sabbath school, and that at once.

We need, we need, we need just what to say we need. But some of the young men should be more careful how they get drunk and curse in the presence of young ladies or we will need an extra session of the grand jury. Boys, look out.

Young ladies, we need your influence to stop the young men from getting drunk and cursing in the presence of young ladies. If you will do as a young lady did at the party the other night you will soon stop it or stop something. It is astonishing how they will become so inebriated that they will go staggering in the presence of their sisters and young lady friends uttering the vilest oaths. You have it in your power to stop such ungentlemanly conduct and you can do it by saying, "If you are not drunk?" It is commendable.

CHOCOTAW.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle. CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proved to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 189 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dread-ful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of the medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. DRINKS OF MANKIND.

Tea, which rivals coffee in favor, is a native of China, where it has been grown for over 1,000 years. Peppermint leaves having drank it in 1660, showing that it was then a novelty.

Ale, which is more used in England than in America, is a heavier malted liquor than beer, and contains a small proportion of hops. It was a favorite drink of the Anglo-Saxons and Danes. Coffee, the drink more highly regarded to-day than any other, was first used in Abyssinia in 875. Thence it was brought to Arabia, A Greek first introduced it to England, and made himself famous by the act.

Whisky, which is more democratic than wine, is distilled from various grains, from potatoes and from malted barley. It was named by the Celts in Ireland and Scotland. Brandy, a drink not so universally used, is distilled from wine.

So-called beer was made in England a long time ago by tapping spruce, fir, birch, maple and ash trees and using their juices. This process is still kept up in England and in this country where homemade beers from roots are much used.

Probably there is nothing that interests land owners more at this time of year than fenology. They want to secure the very best article they can for the purpose they desire to use it, and at the cheapest price going. While this is good business, price should not take the place of quality. In building a smooth wire fence you do not build it for temporary use but expect it to last for years, and to get this kind of an article it requires a certain amount of good material to make it. The De Kalb Fence Co., of De Kalb, Ga., has the largest and most complete line of smooth wire fencing of any plant in the country. They desire particularly to call your attention to their goods. Write them for a catalogue, which they will mail you free. No line of goods has grown so rapidly in demand or given such general satisfaction as the fencing manufactured by this company. Their steel web picket fence for lawn and garden purposes; their cabled and hog fence for farm use; their cabled and poultry, garden and rabbit fence are all they claim for them. You will hardly do yourself justice if you do not thoroughly investigate their lines before placing your order.

"Tremendous Confusion" in the Rocky Creek Settlement.

Old Miss Hasseltine Went A-Fishing and Caught a Human Skeleton—A Town Man on His "Wheel" Leaves Death and Ruination.

It aint very frequent in this day and generation that the Rocky Creek settlement turns herself loose for a high heel time. But when the day and hour have come to pass, and she does slip the bridle, you can stand from under and watch the fur fly. There will be blood and hair in the greatest plenty, and the ground tore up as with a bear fight for miles around.

White people, there was trouble last week, and the most loveliest strip of country on the broad bosom of the earth went heels over appetite into the most gendyest confusion about you can hear tell of on read about perceptive. It would seem like everything come crooked and went twistin'—feet foremost, catwompsed and wrong side up with care.

Terrors of a Tight-Eye Thicket.

In the beginning to start with, bright and early Monday mornin old Misses Hasseltine took up a fool notion all of a sudden that it was best about her time of year to go a fishin. Consequently she went down behind the garden and dug some earth worms and caught a few cicklets and put em in her gourd and lit out for Caney Branch.

I was out to the lot tendin to the stock that mornin when the old lady come by our house, with her fishin pole in one hand and her bait gourd in the other, burnin the wind and splittin the big road wide open for Caney Branch. She was in such a tremendous big hurry to give them fish a chance to bite till she didn't even slow up at the front gate.

"The early worm fetches the fish, Rufus," says she, in pecthes by, "and I told the girls to have the grease hot when I return back home."

It was then three days and nights that I never laid eyes on Misses Hasseltine, but in the main time before the sun went down that day everybody in the whole settlement had heard the news in regards to her fishin trip down on Caney Branch, and the great gobs of sorrow and confusion which filled that poor old lady's cup to the brim.

From general appearance and all the surroundin circumstance of the case, it would seem like the old lady got a bite when she want lookin for it and caught somethin which she didn't need in her regular business. In fishin and foolin around she had finally at last worked her way and wedged herself into a tight-eye thicket in the most lonesome place on Caney Branch. And now presently it come to pass that she got her hook hung where as she set back and pulled and pulled till she pulled out a human skeleton. The thing was as natural as death, and every bone was there from skull to toes.

Well, to be certainly of course old Misses Hasseltine didn't go away off down there on Caney Branch by her lone self fishin for the bones of dead men, and she didn't need any human skeleton to speak of on her string. Whereas, she throwed down her fishin pole and dropped her bait gourd on the spot and tore out of there. And she didn't fool off no time pickin her way out neither. She jest naturally hit the grit, and hit it a movin. There was that tight-eye thicket all around, a big canebreak on one side of the branch and a great mass of bamboo briars on the other. But old Misses Hasseltine she tore out of there.

A Plain Case of Pisheney.

About the next news we got from the old lady Hasseltine she come up powerful sudden and unexpected like at the Buckalew place—the first settlement on this side of Caney Branch. And from what I can hear and pick up around amongst the women folks, she had left the mainest part of her clothes down there on the branch—hangin around promiscuous in that terrible tight-eye thicket, the canebreak and the bamboo briar patch.

Of course, that was nothin' to me and none of my business, but mother told that that Sallie Wiggins told her that the poor old soul had one shoe on when she come up at the Buckalew place. And Bunk Weatherford was in the crowd which went down there after over there the next day to comfort and console with her as best we could.

"I had ketches three mud cats, four red perchies, seven hornysheads, one skeleton, Rufus, and it was then high time for me to take out and quit," says the old lady to me, and right then she went sweatin great drops of perspiration as big as your fist. "I had ketches everything in the waters of Caney Branch, from a speckled trout to a blunt-tail moccasin, but up to that day I never had pulled on the line and came forth with a human skeleton, and it was jest simply one too many for me. Of course, I knowed it wouldn't bite nor sting, but the looks and the thoughts of the thing, Rufus, was more than I could stand. Naturally, of course, I tore out of that place. It was a plain case of pisheney, Rufus. I was bleeded to come out from there."

I don't make out like it was right, you understand, that that funny thoughts in time of sorrow and of trouble, but old Misses Hasseltine put me in mind of Sol Eddins and his dog that day. The last time I was out in Texas I went down to Hood county to see the Eddins folks, which Sol and me had come up as boys and girls together back here in the states. In them days Sol had a tremendous fast dog, and he went on to tell me of how that dog jumped a jack rabbit and made him take a sycamore tree.

"The rabbit couldn't find no holler, Rufe, and he jest naturally clum that sycamore tree," says Sol to me.

Now, as everybody knows, a rabbit couldn't climb a scrubby black jack, and hit bendin, to say nothin of a slick, slim sycamore, and I give out the facts accordin to Sol.

"That mought sorter do with regards to the common run of rabbits and dogs," says Sol. "But in this case that dog of mine was so close in behind the rabbit and heatin the ground so scandalous hot till the rabbit was jest naturally bleeded to clum that tree."

"Earth on Earth, Dust to Dust."

But in the main time the skeleton hit went gone nowhere. The posse of citizens in charge of the case finally at last come to the conclusion that old Misses Hasseltine had caught the mortal remains of a certain colored individual by the name of Jule Turner, which he had come up missin one night last year, about the time that Ben Chris Weaver's ginhouse got burnt up mighty strange and peculiar like.

Andy Lucas was plum certain that once upon a time them bones had held Jule Turner in the flesh, cause he had one game leg which had been kicked by a mule, and there was the seat on one shish bone of the skeleton.

Old Misses Hasseltine couldn't say what was what in regards to color, but she knowed it was the skeleton of a nann. The old lady was so bad rattled from the general shock till I raley don't think she knows anything for certain.

But, at any rates, the skeleton was turned over to the colored population, and they put in and had a big funeral the next day over at Pinetop church wherein there was some tall weepin and waillin and smashin of teeth. Jule Turner's widdie she was there, and when the procession driv up with the skeleton she fell into a trance and didn't wake up no more till some time that night.

The Reverent L. M. Butler, colored (Long Term Butler, as most everybody calls him), made a few scattering remarks from the text: "There will be a mighty rattlin in this valley of dry bones." He didn't preach nobody's funeral for certain, but out the sermon so it would fit anybody's skeleton in a loose, general way.

Then they sung a song and went out

"Confusionment" Confounded.

But that want all that come to pass in the settlement last week—not by a whole tremendous big lot.

A town man come through the settlement ridin of a wheel as he called it, and scatterin death and ruination everywhere he went.

Old man Mart Mayo was goin to town in his ox wagon when he met the thing down there in the old stage road. And bless gracious his oxen broke loose and run away and spilt seven dozen eggs, four bushels of potatoes, eight pounds of fresh butter and one man. When old Mart recovered and come back to his senses sufficient to seek that which was lost he found the remains of his wagon three miles down the road, and when he caught his oxen the next day they had hid out in a canebreak way over the Murder creek.

Old Misses Simpkins she was out milkin the cows that mornin when the town man rid by on his wheel, and about the next thing she knowed she didn't know anything at all scarcely. She got to the bars ahead of the storm, but there she fainted and fell over on it, and when the cows had all passed over and they picked the good old lady up she was more dead than livin. The doctors are still tendin on that case.

Little Bunk Weatherford was plowin in his new ground when the wheel man come whizzin by, and from the general sign of destruction it is my private opinion that him and his mule both got skeered and run away. They tore down 14 panels of new fence comin out of the field, and Misses Weatherford maintains till yet that Bunk came to the house runnin neck and neck with his mule.

On his return back late that evenin the town man stopped off at the Cross Roads to let the crowd see his wheel. Andy Lucas was there as usual, and tanked up on "white ink" to about six bits in the dollar. And nothin would do Andy but he must ride the "durn thing." So up he got and down he went. The "durn thing" bucked, and when the natural-born horse trader picked himself up he was catin dirt and spittin blood at the same time.

But it would take more time and patience than the law allows to write out all the storms and troubles that come to pass in the settlement last week. So I will close for this time in the best of health and spirits, hoping that this will find you enjoyin the same general blessings.

RUFUS SANDERS.

A New Orchestra Without Men.

Prof. J. B. Schalkenbach, formerly the organist of the Polytechnic institute of London, has recently invented and constructed an electrical orchestra, which is very effective. An organ with two keyboards and a number of stops is connected by electric wires with a large number of musical instruments, which are distributed over the space usually given up to the orchestra, and kept in place by various stands. While a chair is located next to each instrument, the only man in the entire orchestra is Prof. Schalkenbach himself, who takes a seat at his organ, from where he conducts, so to speak, his mysterious musicians. Although it is utterly mechanical, and that electricity is the agent doing all the work in this orchestra, a sensation of timidity, and even awe, is felt by many visitors. The electric orchestra is now exhibited in a Vienna concert hall, and surprises even professional musicians through the extraordinary combinations of sound brought out by Prof. Schalkenbach, who has great musical talent, and is an excellent electrician. —Current Literature.

Secession in Germany.

The German emperor has made Prince Luitpold, the regent of Bavaria, a field marshal. There are hints that within the next two or three months Luitpold will be proclaimed king, in place of the poor imbecile Otto; and that that will mark the beginning of active resistance on the part of Bavaria to the present policy of the emperor, which exalts Prussia at the expense of the other states. It is even intimated that Bavaria, and Baden and Wurtemberg with her, would not hesitate to secede from the empire should good occasion come. It may be that the emperor has these things in mind, and is trying to guard against them by bestowing this field marshalship upon the prince who would be the natural leader of such a revolt. —N. Y. Tribune.

As long ago as 1878 the silk industry in Italy employed 16,000 men, 120,000 women and 70,000 children.

TOO FLY FOR THEM.

Wh Jay Traveler Gives the City Sharks a Big, Bold Blow.

He came out of the Polk street railway station. His overcoat was buttoned around his neck, he carried a valise and on his head was a white hat with a broad brim.

Because he wore a white hat the other passengers were neglected. The white hat suggested the railroad man and the "bank roll," perhaps a miner who had come east to indulge in riotous living.

In some parts of town the white hat is as welcome as a rainbow of promise or as a blooming oasis would be to parched travelers in the desert. The white hat seems to be associated in memory with liberal payment for calls, frequent invitations to drink and a constant desire to "go against" any gambling enterprise that can be offered.

Therefore, when the man with the Bill Cody hat came out in the sunshine of Polk street, two cabmen, the driver of an express wagon and four other men, who made a business of welcoming strangers and showing them the sights, closed in and began to make friendly overtures.

The traveler saw that he was wanted, so he set his valise on the sidewalk, between his legs, and remarked, pleasantly: "Well, boys, let's have it out right here."

"Carriage, sir?" asked a driver with a crimped nose.

"No," replied the stranger. "It's about three miles from here to the Union station, ain't it?"

"Well, it's quite a distance."

"I s'pose it ought to be worth four dollars to take me to the North side?"

"I'll do it for three dollars," said the second cabby.

"I can see that you're on the level," said the man with the hat. Then he turned to one of the reception committee and asked: "Do you know any saloon near here where I could shake dice for one dollar a throw?"

"I might find you one," replied the "roper," in a puzzled way.

"Has the tunnel caved in to-day, killin' seven or eight people?"

"Not that I've heard of," and the "roper" gave a suspicious glance at his fellow-worker.

"How about that new monument on the lake front? Could I get a good man to take me down there and show it to me?"

"There ain't any new monument down there," said one of the cabmen, confidentially.

"Could I break into a game of poker somewhere around here?"

"I don't know," replied the roper, gloomily.

"Is there any gentleman present that wants a check cashed?" asked the western man, elevating his voice a little.

No one replied. The men who welcome strangers sidled away, and the cabmen sauntered back to their stands.

"Where I came from," said the stranger, gathering up his valise, "we play nothin' but sure things. I was on Stony Island avenue for three months when you had the fair here, and if there's anything good in town let me know."

Then he walked over and boarded a street car. —Chicago Record.

WHEN PRAISE ISN'T MONEY.

It Is Quite a Different Thing to Be an Amateur and Then Make Sure.

"If you wish to cure a girl of conceit," said a woman who knew what she was talking about from experience, "let her try to earn her own living. As long as she does not ask to be paid, everybody will praise her work, but let her try to sell her services and then see!"

The speaker had been reared in luxury. She was a bright, accomplished girl, whose great failing was self-conceit. Her little gifts had been so well cultivated in an amateurish way that she believed herself able to compete successfully with professionals. She was always ready to sing a song, or recite a poem, or paint a picture, and as she was a society girl and had a rich, prominent father, her little doings were often favorably noticed in the local papers. Then the change of fortune came and she was thrown upon her own resources without a moment's warning. She had to earn her own living or starve. The scales fell—she was rudely pulled—from her eyes. No woman can become self-supporting without some mortifying experiences, and the more conceited she is the more of these experiences she has, because she attempts things preposterously beyond her power. This poor girl who had held her head so high was snubbed and told the truth with brutal frankness, and in time learned her lesson. She went from the extreme of thinking she'd do anything to that of believing she'd do nothing of value, and finally did the one thing she could do well at the outset, which was to keep house, and then because she had a moderate talent for drawing she learned slowly and through much tribulation the engraver's art, and ten years later earned a competency by it. —Philadelphia Press.

Gen. Sherman's Grandson.

Gen. Sherman has a grandson and namesake resident in Boston. William Tecumseh Sherman Thorndike is a very young gentleman, still in kilts, but possessed of remarkable plainness of speech and not at all inclined to lisp or use any babyish circumlocutions when he marches upon any difficulty. His mind has been the battlefield of a problem, evidently, of late. He has been assailed in his mind even in his nursery and he put the question to the touch the other day in prompt military fashion, determined to possess himself of an unprejudiced outside opinion, entirely uninfluenced by parental or nurse's notions. He appeared beside his mother, Gen. Sherman's daughter, in her drawing-room while a visitor was present and exchanged courtesies of introduction politely, with a manner most distinguished for infantry. Sherman sat regarding the visitor in silence for a few moments, then he leaned a little forward and with the distinctness of a diplomat enunciated his question: "Should you be mad at me if you saw me suck my thumb?" —Boston Transcript.

What Ailed Goslin.

Trivet—Goslin is quite sick. Dicer—What ails him? It can't be overwork.

Trivet—No, it isn't overwork. About a week ago I heard him confess that he had an idea, and I am inclined to believe that he has overthought himself. —Judge.

HOME NOTES.

Always fold a dress skirt right side out for packing, as it will not wrinkle so much.

Half a teaspoonful of sugar will nearly always revive a dying fire, and it is always a safe thing to use for this purpose.

Kerosene oil is the best of furniture polishes. It cleanses, makes a fine polish and preserves from the ravages of insects.

Fat will not burn if it has something to do, so if it has to be left idle for a few minutes put a crust of bread or a slice of raw potato into the kettle.

Yellow stains left on white cloth by sewing machine oil can be removed by rubbing the spots with alcohol wet with ammonia before washing with soap.

A few drops of tincture of benzoin in a bowl of water is an admirable tonic for the face. The benzoin whitens the skin and prevents it from wrinkling.

A tablespoonful of the best whisky added to a cup of beef tea for an invalid is an excellent way to give a stimulant. This is especially good for anyone recovering from grip.

Do not put a coat or dress away with dust in the folds or plaits. Shake the garment well and brush with a soft whisk broom, for dust is never so easily removed as at first.

Chemists say it takes more than twice as much sugar to sweeten preserves and sauces if put in when they begin to cook as it does if the sugar is added after the cooking is done.

Soap used on the hair is apt to make it brittle. If any is to be used, tar soap is the best, and after using rinse the hair in several waters in which a little powdered borax has been dissolved.

SCARLET FEVER SETTLED IN THE BACK.

An Operation Was Unsuccessfully Performed.

The Patient Was Finally Restored, After Eighteen Years.

From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.

About 15 years ago, when Mrs. Annie Dale, of 83 Bruce street, was a bright, merry school girl, she was taken ill with scarlet fever. She recovered, but she was a very different girl from a physical standpoint. She was cured of the scarlet fever, but it left her with a affection of the back. As she grew older the pain seemed to increase. Her sufferings were intensified by her household duties, but she never complained, and with one hand pressed tightly to her back she did her work about her cozy home.

"I was fourteen years old when I was attacked with scarlet fever, and have now suffered with my back for eighteen years."

"Night and day I suffered. It really seemed as if I must succumb to the pain, and then to make matters worse, my head ached so badly that I could scarcely see at times. Finally I went to St. Michael's Hospital, at the corner of High Street and Central Avenue, and there the surgeons performed a difficult operation on my back, but it did no good; it was like everything else. I was told at the hospital to return for another operation, but the first had left me so weak I could not go home. Then again I had become discouraged and my three children needed my attention and care at home. The pain became harder to stand and my back was almost broken. It seemed as though I would never know what it would be like to be well again when I was told to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. With many doubts, a faint heart and an aching back I went to get the pills, and little dreaming that they would prove the elixir of a new life to me, I began to take them. Only a short time elapsed before I began to improve. Could it be possible that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done what every thing else had failed to accomplish? I asked myself the question many times and before long I was enabled by my improved condition to answer the question with an emphatic 'Yes.' Now the pain of almost twenty years is cured by these Pink Pills in a few months. I have no pain of any kind now, but I have got some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and while I do not think it will ever be necessary to use them again, I shall certainly never be without them in the house."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of what ever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

THE problem in regard to a bank currency is reported to be receiving almost constant consideration by the house committee on banking and currency, but there will probably be no banking or other legislation affecting the currency at the present session of congress.

DURING the present session of congress, so far, 7,613 bills have been introduced in the house and 2,683 in the senate, and the total by the time of adjournment will probably be about 11,000. Many of them have no importance and will never receive any serious consideration.

MISS HELEN M. GOULD has recently added to her magnificent collection of rare palms a species of that plant called the Ravenala Madagascariensis. This palm is a little over 32 feet in height and nearly three times as many years old. The price paid for it, rumor said, was about $35,000.

A SWISS statistician has taken the trouble to count the number of steps he took in walking during the whole year. The number he finds to have been 8,760,000, or an average of 26,740 steps a day. He also declares that over 600,000 of these steps were taken in going up and down stairs.

REV. DR. SO WELL satisfied has Boston been with high license as the best regulation of the liquor business that it is about to show its faith in the principle by increasing the cost of the license far above what it is in any other place. Hotel bars are to be charged license fees of $2,000 and the ordinary retailer $1,000.

THE iron and steel industry, first in point of importance in America, is now in the absolute control of a few men, who are banded together by the strongest bonds of common interest, and who have, at a conservative estimate, not less than $900,000,000 at their disposal. The men in the immense combination are in a position now to say how much iron ore shall be converted into iron and steel and at what price it shall be sold.

A RECENT Washington dispatch said that the American Protective association had taken offense at the order of the navy department directing that all torpedo boats, rams and like craft be painted green instead of white, and threatened to secure the impeachment of Secretary Herbert unless some other color was substituted. Protesting petitions had been sent to the department ever since it became known that Assistant Secretary McAdoo had signed the order on St. Patrick's day.

THE Madrid newspapers speak in terms of angry ridicule of the resolution introduced in the United States senate by "that madman Call," as they style him. The enterprising Catalan even goes to the length of seriously offering to raise a corps of 12,000 volunteers if the government will arm, equip, carry them across the Atlantic and land them on any coast of the United States, where the editor promises to make a raid into the interior and sustain his guerrillas directly Cuban belligerency is recognized.

JAMES V. McDONOUGH, of Chicago, who, according to the records in the United States patent office, was the first American to make a practical telephonic receiver and transmitter, has recently perfected a process by which natural colors are photographed. The evidences of this important fact are actual photographs of landscapes, men, women and paintings, taken with an ordinary camera, developed and printed by every-day processes, but differing from ordinary photographs in that the colors, as well as the lines, lights and shades, are present.

A unique question for the pension department has been raised at Kokomo, Ind., by John Herberman's complete recovery of sight. Herberman was made blind by injuries received in a fire in 1885 and in 1888 congress passed a special act awarding him $75 a month and a snug sum as back pay. A short time ago sight returned mysteriously, suddenly and completely to the old soldier, and the question now arises, will his pension be discontinued. In the opinion of lawyers at Kokomo, a special act of congress will be necessary to deprive Herberman of his sine cure.

NUMBER 40.

STEVE ELKINS' BILL.

To Protect American Shippers Against Foreign Competition.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILROAD CO.,

Mr. Elkins Says, is the Natural Enemy of the Transportation Interests of the United States, and Should Have Its Wings Clipped.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—In the recent discussion of the proposed subsidy to the Oceanic steamship line, in the post office bill, Senator Elkins made a speech in regard to which he has since received many letters and telegrams. It was in advocacy of a measure he introduced some time ago and now known as the Elkins bill, to place a discriminating duty of ten per cent. ad valorem on all goods imported to this country in vessels not sailing under the American flag. This proposition was incorporated in the Senator Steve Elkins.

Massachusetts republican state platform last week and Mr. Elkins is urging its adoption as a plank of the St. Louis platform. In his speech Mr. Elkins paid his respects to the Canadian Pacific railroad as follows:

"The Canadian Pacific railroad is the natural enemy of the transportation interests of the United States, and stands today as our greatest commercial antagonist. It violates our interstate commerce law with complete indifference; it cuts rates, and it takes freights from our Pacific railroads in which the United States has a direct interest. It hauls more cheaply from St. Louis and other points in our country, by way of Canada, to Oregon and San Francisco than the Pacific roads can do, though the distance is much shorter. It is a sharp competitor now for business with all the Pacific roads from and to California. For 2,000 miles the Canadian Pacific traverses a non-productive country, one not able to support a railroad. It lives off its subsidies and the business it takes from the railroads of the United States."

Intimating that a lobby in the interest of that road was here, Mr. Elkins continued:

"The agents of the Canadian Pacific Railroad Co., I am told, are now in Washington about this capital. I suppose they are here to make cut rates to Halifax, Vancouver, Hong Kong and Shanghai, and working against any aid being given American steamship lines. This cutting of rates, this violation of our interstate commerce law, this invasion of our trade, should be stopped, and we can do it; we have the remedy in our own hands. All we have to do is simply to discontinue the bawling privilege, under which they carry goods in bond, starting from Vancouver, to Europe and points in the United States. I would suggest that we stop every car and break every consular seal at our frontiers beyond Chicago and the Soo. This would throw the trade from Asia to San Francisco and pass it over the Pacific railroad lines. It would break up in part, or largely, the violation of the interstate commerce law and put a stop to the giving of rebates and the cutting of rates."

"To oppose this active, open and oppressive hostility to American trade, American steamships and American railroads by England and Canada is the kind of Monroe doctrine that I favor, and I am sure it will have better results to our people and their interests than a dispute with England over an obscure boundary in a foreign country over 3,000 miles away. The United States, in my opinion, should at once withdraw this bawling privilege to the Canadian Pacific."

Mr. Elkins' time was short and he gave notice that at some future day he would again discuss the bill to impose these discriminating duties and give the senate additional facts and figures.

A MYSTERIOUS PATIENT.

A Supposed Fugitive From Justice at St. Mary's Hospital, near Chicago.

QUINCY, Ill., April 4.—Lying at St. Mary's hospital, in this city, in a dangerous condition, with a bullet in his thigh, is James Hamilton. He came to the hospital two weeks ago, stating that he had been accidentally shot eight weeks prior to that time, near Fowler, Ill. Investigation proves this story false, and it is now believed that Hamilton, the name he gives, is a fugitive from justice. He is concealing his identity carefully. The officers now believe that he is from Chicago. He is about 37 years of age and genteel in appearance.

Congratulations to an American Artist.

LONDON, April 4.—Mr. George Henry Boughton, the American artist who was recently elected a member of the Royal Academy, has received a great number of congratulatory letters and messages from the United States. His principal picture, which will be hung at the approaching academy exhibition, is called "Cannock Water." It is an exquisite bit of Scotch burn and hillside.

John Rees, a carpenter, working on the first ball, and yet he did not get the nomination, and made no perceptible headway. The combination against him was too strong.

At the best, I do not see how McKinley can get much over 350 votes on the first ballot. There are 930 votes in the convention, and that makes 435 necessary to a choice. McKinley will not, I think, make any headway after the first ballot. In the convention of 1888 John Sherman had 329 votes on the first ballot, and yet he did not get the nomination, and made no perceptible headway. The combination against him was too strong.

According to tables printed, many votes are listed as McKinley votes which are still problematical. I find that many of the western states will go to the convention unpledged, and those from Utah, Nevada, Colorado, Montana and other silver states will demand and try to have a free silver man nominated. That all complicates matters, and it remains to be seen whether there will be enough votes left for McKinley to be nominated on the first ballot. In case that he is not, and the lines are tightly drawn, Senator Allison is just the man for the republicans to nominate. He can unite all factions and will do much to settle the differences. Everyone knows that he is able and he will be the best available candidate."

Col. Naff, the government inspector, supposed to have been drowned in Rainey Lake river, has turned up alive at Crookston, Minn. He and one other escaped.

Mrs. Nancy Weibel, widow of Jacob Weibel, one of the oldest and most honored residents of Pana, Ill., died very suddenly Friday of a grippe, aged 73 years.

Reports from Booneville, Ky., say the cloudburst on Little Sixteen and Buffalo creeks did more damage than at first reported. Instead of four, 16 persons were drowned.

James A. Scott, a prominent farmer near Alamo, Ill., committed suicide by shooting. He was sick and had recently lost his hearing, which rendered him despondent.

The report of Cashier D. H. Hays to Postmaster Carlisle of St. Louis for the year ending March 31, 1896, shows a gain of 11.2 per cent. in the receipts over that of the year 1895, ending March 31.

There is a rumor in New York society circles of a pending alliance between the Whitney and Vanderbilt families. Harry Payne Whitney is said to have won the heart of Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt.

INFECTED COWS.

Thirty-Seven Killed at the Eastern Illinois Hospital for the Insane.

KANKAKEE, Ill., April 4.—Thirty-seven cattle worth $2,000 were killed Friday, and their flesh will be rendered for soap, as the result of State Veterinarian Trumbower's examination of the milk cows on the farm of the Eastern Illinois hospital for the insane. Nine others are condemned because they, too, are supposed to have tuberculosis or consumption.

To be Created Duchesses.

LONDON, April 4.—It is reported that Queen Victoria has arranged with Lord Salisbury, at Nice, for the creation of her daughters, Princess Christian, Princess Beatrice and Princess Louise, as duchesses in their own right. It was reported shortly after the death of the husband of Princess Beatrice, Prince Henry of Battenburg, that the queen would make the princess duchess of Kent.

To Recover Money Received as Commissions.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 4.—Gov. Bradley has employed ex-Gov. John Young Brown to bring suit in the name of the state against ex-Auditor Luke Norman and ex-Auditor's Agent Max Barker, of Louisville, for $18,000, or more, which the latter received as commissions during the past four years, "paid," it is alleged, "without warrant of law."

Ohio Wheat in Bad Condition.

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—The first crop report of the year was issued by the state board of agriculture today. It shows that the growing wheat crop in this state is in a bad condition. The report is based on township reports, and the summary of the wheat it is that the condition is 57 per cent. of a full average.

Black Plague in Yokohama.

YOKOHAMA, April 4.—Two deaths from black plague have occurred in this city, and the authorities have knowledge of another case of the disease, which will result fatally. Both of the men who died were Chinese.

THE ALLISON BOOM.

Gen. James S. Clarkson, Who is Allison's Lieutenant, TAKES A BRIEF SURVEY OF THE FIELD.

If McKinley Cannot Develop Sufficient Strength to Capture the Nomination Off Hand Then Allison's Strength May Develop.

New York, April 4.—James S. Clarkson, manager of the Allison boom, and member of the Republican national committee from Iowa, has just returned to New York after attending the meeting of the sub-committee of the Republican national committee in St. Louis. Mr. Clarkson is never a remarkably talkative man, but when McKinley's lead was mentioned Friday, he showed unusual reticence. Mr.

Clarkson looks tired and worn out, and he says that he feels that way. He is so he said, just as he felt about Allison's chances as ever, but when it came to counting noses, so far as delegates were concerned, he seemed to prefer to deal in generalities. Mr. Clarkson said, in speaking of the situation:

"I find that the McKinley sentiment is grossly exaggerated. After a thorough canvass of the situation I find that it is hardly likely that McKinley will come within 100 votes of securing the nomination on the first ballot. If not nominated on the first ballot it does not seem to me that he will be nominated at all. The combination against him will be too strong."

At the best, I do not see how McKinley can get much over 350 votes on the first ballot. There are 930 votes in the convention, and that makes 435 necessary to a choice. McKinley will not, I think, make any headway after the first ballot. In the convention of 1888 John Sherman had 329 votes on the first ballot, and yet he did not get the nomination, and made no perceptible headway. The combination against him was too strong.

According to tables printed, many votes are listed as McKinley votes which are still problematical. I find that many of the western states will go to the convention unpledged, and those from Utah, Nevada, Colorado, Montana and other silver states will demand and try to have a free silver man nominated. That all complicates matters, and it remains to be seen whether there will be enough votes left for McKinley to be nominated on the first ballot. In case that he is not, and the lines are tightly drawn, Senator Allison is just the man for the republicans to nominate. He can unite all factions and will do much to settle the differences. Everyone knows that he is able and he will be the best available candidate."

THE BALLINGTON BOOTHS.

Return to New York From Their Visit to Buffalo.

New York, April 4.—Commander and Mrs. Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers, returned from Buffalo Friday full of enthusiasm over their reception there.

A meeting has yet been arranged between the commander and his sister, Mrs. Booth-Tucker, and no messages have been exchanged between the rival headquarters.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth and Maj. Mantz were busy Friday getting ready the first number of their official organ, "The Volunteer Gazette," which will appear on April 11. It will consist of 16 pages and be issued weekly thereafter. The initial number will contain a statement from Ballington Booth's side of the troubles that led to his desertion of the Salvation army. The Gazette will also print this paragraph: Remember that any volunteer speaking against the Salvation Army shows:

1. A lack in the quality of volunteer spirit.

2. A lack of sufficient volunteer work to absorb his time.

At the Salvation army headquarters Friday Commissioner Booth-Tucker was busy studying the details, legal and executive, of the American administration.

TO CONCEAL THEFT.

Mrs. C. E. Wright, of Oxford, N. H., Arrested and Confessed to Arson.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 4.—Mrs. C. E. Wright, who has been prominent in church work at Oxford, N. H., was arrested Friday at White River Junction, Vt., on a charge of arson. She made a full confession. Mrs. Wright burned recently an unoccupied house in Oxford, owned by Mrs. Pratt. She confessed that she fired the building to conceal the theft of $30,000 worth of valuables, and that after the crime was committed she consigned the booty to her brother, A. E. Gage, of St. Johnsbury, Vt. Gage has also been arrested.

Black Plague in Yokohama.

YOKOHAMA, April 4.—Two deaths from black plague have occurred in this city, and the authorities have knowledge of another case of the disease, which will result fatally. Both of the men who died were Chinese.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session)

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Under consideration by unanimous consent the following measures were passed by the house:

House bill authorizing the New Orleans Pacific Railroad Co. to take wild land, in lieu of lands in its grant settled on by about a hundred settlers in Louisiana.

Concurrent resolution authorizing the printing of 2,500 copies of commercial relations and 10,000 copies of the commercial review of the world.

Mr. Hitt (Ill.) called up the conference report on the Cuban resolutions, and Mr. Adams (Rep., Pa.), one of the members of the committee, took the floor. He devoted his remarks to a consideration of the statement made yesterday that sentiment had changed with respect to recognizing the belligerency of the Cubans since the passage of the original resolutions in the house. He denied this.

The house resolved to debate the Cuban resolutions the rest of the day and at a night session, and take a vote on them immediately after the reading of the journal Monday.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

The Steel Combine is the Feature of the Week.

New York, April 4.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

Stormy weather at the northwest continued the distribution of staple merchandise and unsatisfactory mercantile collections continued to be the leading characteristic of general trade. The conspicuous change is in the quotations for steel billets and steel for ton for Bessemer pig iron. A corresponding stimulus is given to quotations for other forms of iron and steel.

The leading market for metals and minerals is depressed and activity is now reported, with a prospect for further advances. This must naturally tend to stimulate kindred industries. Additional favorable features are reported. At Baltimore, the quarter's general trade has been the best for years; there has been a slight increase in the volume of business at Pittsburgh. City distribution of general merchandise is fair (but commission houses admit being overrun with country consignments, which are slow of sale), and demand for dress goods, at autumn delivery, has been sufficient to stimulate manufacturers to buy material more freely.

Exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week aggregated 1,683,000 bushels, against 744,000 bushels, last week, 1,853,000 in the same week a year ago, 2,778,000 in the week two years ago, and compared with 3,263,000 bushels in the like week in 1893. Exports of Indian corn have increased and amount to 2,149,000 bushels this week; three times what they were in the like week a year ago.

The first quarter of 1896 presents the largest list of actual commercial and industrial failures in business in the United States (those for which liabilities exceed assets) ever reported for a like period. The total (including financial institutions) is 4,512, or 100 more than in a like period of 1895, and 1,894 and 1,418 more than in the first quarter of 1893; increases of 18.11 and 47 per cent. respectively. The largest percentage of these failing this year amount to $2,513,000; an increase of 30 per cent. as compared with a year ago, 57 per cent. as compared with the first quarter of 1894 and 60 per cent. as compared with the first quarter of 1893.

Business failures in Canada number 781 for the first quarter, against 581 in the first quarter of 1895, with total liabilities of 5,573,000 against $4,250,000 last year.

THEY GOT NOTHING.

Thieves Broke Into Senator Quay's Committee Room in the Capitol.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Thieves entered the capitol some time Friday night, broke open the door entering the committee room of Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, and ransacked the office and desks in search of papers which they evidently wanted to find. When the senator and his clerks made a careful investigation nothing was found to be missing.

Senator Quay believes the thieves were looking for his private correspondence. The file case, which has always during the day been open, bore several inscriptions, marked "Presidential," "Senatorial," "Pennsylvania Legislature," etc., and these may have aroused the cupidity of some one. The experience of Senator Quay has proven to him that the capitol is no safe place in which to leave private papers. For this reason only this week he removed to his residence all his private correspondence and papers.

BRIGADIER FIELDING.

Resigns From the Salvation Army and Joins the Volunteers.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Edward Fielding, brigadier in command of the north-west division of the Salvation army, and, with the exception of Commissioner Booth-Tucker, the most prominent officer in the forces in America, has resigned his commission and will join the forces of Ballington Booth's Volunteers. The majority of his staff officers go with him, and the blow is conceded to be the most severe which has been suffered by the Salvation army since the recall of Commander and Mrs. Ballington Booth.

SPANIARDS LOST 800 MEN.

Battle in Finar del Rio Between Suarez and Maceo's Forces.

TAMPA, Fla., April 4.—It is rumored here that in the battle which occurred on Tuesday in Finar del Rio between the forces of Maceo and Gen. Suarez Valdez, the Spaniards lost 800 men. The insurgent loss was also heavy. No details of the battle are given. Gen. Suarez Valdez was seriously wounded.

For the Defense of Bulwago.

LONDON, April 4.—Advices from Capetown say that 900 men have been secured for the defense of Bulwago against the attack by the Matabeles, and that all the outlying districts have been relieved except Bellingwe and Gwanda. Offensive preparations against the Matabeles are rapidly being made.

GAGGED BY BURGLARS.

A Bootless Attempt to Rob a Bank at Whitinsville, Mass.

"HANDS UP," SAID FOUR BOLD ROBBERS.

They Gagged the Watchman and Then Proceeded to Blow the Safes, but Left Without Securing Any Money or Valuables.

WHITINSVILLE, Mass., April 4.—An exceedingly bold attempt was made by two men to burglarize the Whitinsville national and savings bank, located in the central part of the village. Just after 1 a. m. Joseph Beauregard, who is night watchman at the Whitinsville cotton mill and the Whitinsville Spinning Co., as well as the bank, left the repair shop of the cotton mill to go to the spinning company's plant. As he went out of the door of the repair shop four men accosted him with the warning: "Hands up."

Beauregard drew his revolver and discharged one cartridge, but with no effect. The men succeeded in getting Beauregard's revolver, and then bound and gagged him. The gag was a large one and nearly choked the guard, and he was placed in an out-house and was not discovered till 6:30 a. m. when the mill people went to work. There appears to have been five men in the party. They broke into the bank building by forcing the door. The national and savings banks are located in the same room where there are two safes. An attempt was made to blow the two safes, probably at the same time. They succeeded in blowing open one of the safes which contained only the books, but the other safe was not badly damaged and no injury was done to the contents.

The books were thrown over the floor. A complete set of burglars' tools was left strewn about the floor, also a large file, which was probably used. The gag that the watchman was secured with was tied with wire. The party left town with a stolen tool and rig. The Whitinsville national and savings banks have never been established about 35 years, and never before has an attempt been made to rob them.

The post office has been broken into twice in a year, but no booty was secured either time. The would-be robbers seem to have had poor luck in securing anything for their trouble. The bank has offered a large reward. Four of the five men were dress suits.

FUGITIVE ADAMS.

Held for Extradition Proceedings in the Bow Street Police Court.

LONDON, April 4.—Matthew Adams, aged 52 years, was arraigned in the Bow Street police court, charged with having embezzled the sum of $10,000 in Denver, Col., and was remanded pending extradition proceedings. Adams was arrested in Southampton upon his arrival from America. He had in his possession tickets to Capetown for himself and wife and servant, who accompanied him. He also had a large sum of money, which was taken from him by the authorities in Southampton. Adams said in court that it was his desire that his wife should return to Denver. Mr. Hodgson, of the United States embassy, said he did not believe that there would be any objection to the surrender of sufficient money to enable Mrs. Adams to return to Denver and the magistrate accordingly directed the detective who made the arrest to get enough money from the Southampton police to enable the lady to get back to Colorado Springs. Adams was then sent back to jail. It is understood that Adams has acted in the capacity of clerk of several courts in Colorado.

SUDEN DEATH.

Mr. Seaton Munroe, a Well-Known Washington Club Man, Found Dead.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Mr. Seaton Munroe, a well-known clubman, was found dead in the lavatory of the Arno hotel in this city at 1 a. m. Munroe had been in the cafe of the hotel for some time prior to midnight, and those in charge did not recollect seeing him go out. A search was made and the dead body found. The cause of death has not been determined, but apoplexy is probable.

Mr. Munroe was about 55 years of age, and the son of Columbus Munroe and of the daughter of Mr. W. W. Seaton, an editor of the old National Intelligencer. He was a graduate of Harvard law school, and was regarded as quite a brilliant lawyer, although he has not practiced for many years. He was a member of the Metropolitan Club, and had the entire to the houses of Washington's oldest families.

THE LOSSES.

By the Fire in the Arcade Hotel Building at Springfield, O.

COLUMBUS, O., April 4.—The losses by fire in the Arcade hotel building at Springfield, O., are as follows:

On building owned by O. S. Kelly, $4,000, no insurance; furniture owned by Landlord Henry Rockfield, $7,000, fully insured; Louis Evans, furniture, $500, uninsured; J. H. Lord, canned store stock, $2,000, no insurance. Total loss, $13,500. Crossed electric wires caused the loss. Two years ago the hotel was destroyed by fire.

The "Volunteer Gazette."

New York, April 4.—Ballington Booth has decided to name his paper the "Volunteer Gazette." It is to contain 16 pages of three wide columns, and will make its first appearance on Saturday, April 11.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION.

It is with intense gratification that we announce the election of the entire school ticket, headed by Hon. W. B. Browne, at the municipal election Monday. The majority was simply overwhelming, only lacking a fraction of being 8 to 1. It is also gratifying to us to be able to state that the school ticket received the warm support of a very large majority of the better element of both the white and colored citizens.

The colored population of our city are to be congratulated, and we commend them heartily for the good sense and patriotism displayed by them, and we are more than willing to let the results within the next year determine for them the wisdom of their course. We firmly believe the gentlemen whom they helped to elect will treat them with the utmost fairness and consideration. If they intertain any doubts on this line, they will be in a better position to determine as to whether or not they made a mistake Monday.

The success of our school is now assured. The last barrier that stood in the way of its triumphant progress has been swept away, and now that we have a clear track ahead, we predict that its progress will be little short of phenomenal. The power the law bestows upon our board of mayor and aldermen can and will be used to the fullest extent to foster and build up this our grandest enterprise, and we feel sure the board will have the hearty co-operation of almost the entire community without reference to politics. But we will have more to say on this line later on. For the present suffice it to say our school is booming now, but its usefulness is not yet begun.

We give below the result of the election as shown by the official count:

SCHOOL TICKET.

For Mayor: Hon. W. B. Browne, 161. For aldermen: W. W. Albright, 152; I. D. Mason, 161; E. B. Nelson, 153; J. H. Page, 151; J. R. White, 155.

POPULIST TICKET.

For Mayor: A. P. Longshore, 23; For Aldermen: A. W. Strickland, 24; W. A. Tallant, 24; T. W. Timney, 22; B. L. Moore, 11; W. E. Holcomb, 10. The colored ticket received only two votes.

The sale of 10,000 tons of Pittsburg steel rails to Japan and the entering of Alabama pig-iron into England in such quantities as to alarm English producers, indicate, says the New York Mail and Express, that the iron and steel industry of this country is upon the eve of an unusually active and prosperous period.

The young ladies of the Epworth League at Bessemer took charge of the Bessemer Weekly last week, and issued a most interesting and creditable paper. The editorial page was particularly bright. We copy in full the opinion of these ladies on "Woman at Her Best." It is well worth the reading.

THE CHRONICLE quotes this from The Peoples' Party Paper, edited by Tom Watson, for the benefit of The Atlanta Constitution: "There is no fault to be found with the doctrine of the Atlanta Constitution prior to the meeting of the nominating conventions. Up to that time its doctrine is broadly and deeply populist."

TOTAL coinage for the month of March—gold, $1,540,555; silver, $1,683,530; minor coin, $48,817. And yet these silver agitators tell the "dear people" that this is a gold bug era and silver has been dethroned.

A BYCICLE which is propelled by gasoline has been invented. Now let some clever genius invent a plan to prevent the blamed things from bucking and we will buy one at once.

MR. CLEVELAND has prepared a letter in which he states that in no case will he become a candidate for another term.

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON and Mrs. Dimmick were married in New York Monday evening.

Now, my good man, you say you are a sound money man and opposed to the free coinage of silver, purely on the ground of principle, but think that Johnston ought to be nominated for the sake of harmony. Don't you see you stultify, for Johnston and his followers make no concessions to you for the sake of harmony. On the other hand, Captain Johnston's organ, his accredited mouthpiece, has unequivocally declared "that gophers will be worth a thousand dollars apiece and tadpoles cease turning to frogs, ere he will give up one iota of his free silver principles." Yet you propose to give up and gulp down, for the sake of harmony, every principle you hold dear in order to support a man who so boldly declares that his cry of harmony is a humbug, and he will not harmonize except on his own terms.—Brundidge News.

THE river and harbor appropriation bill reported to the house, appropriates nearly $1,000,000 to the improvement of Alabama streams, as follows: Alabama river, $400,000; Black Warrior from Tuscaloosa to Daniel's creek, $400,000; Warrior and Tombigbee to Tuscaloosa, $115,000; Tombigbee, $50,000.

A CLARING INCONSISTENCY.

It is one of the stock arguments of the free silver agitators that the present financial policy has destroyed or depreciated one-half of the values in this country. Congressman John W. Kendrick, of Kentucky, thus unanswerably meets the argument:

The free silverites claim that by coming to the gold standard the value of property in the United States has been depreciated at least one-half. Who owns the great bulk of the United States? The free silver advocates say it is owned by the gold bugs. Here then is a glaring contradiction that even a child should be ashamed to make—that is, that sensible men should be ashamed to pursue a policy which would decrease the value of their property at least one-half. But they say that it increased the purchasing power of the dollar. That proposition is just as ridiculous as the first, because when you come to count all of the absolute dollars in the United States it will be found that there are less than two billions of them all told, belonging to all the people, while the absolute value of the property amounts to over ninety billions of dollars. So that the proposition would have the business men of the country engaged in the idiotic scheme of reducing the value of over ninety billions of property in order to increase the value of two billions of money which could only be theirs for a short time, as it must necessarily circulate from hand to hand to do the business of the country. They forget when they make this flimsy catchword argument that money, to be of any substantial value, must be like the atmosphere, constantly circulating, and if its purchasing power is increased for one, it must be for all.

"STOP MY PAPER."

Every man has a right to take a paper or to stop it (provided subscription is paid up), for any reason or no reason at all. But at the same time there is a certain responsibility attaching to all actions, even to so trivial a one as stopping a paper because the editor says something one does not agree with. There is complaint that editors lack fearlessness and honesty; that papers are too generally mere partisan organs that disregard the claims of truth and justice when certain interests are at stake. There is too much truth in the charge; but let us ask how it is possible for a fearless, honest, outspoken journal to live if every man is to cry "stop my paper" whenever he reads something that does not accord with his views? The men who insist that the paper they read shall never say anything contrary to their views are the ones who are in a large measure responsible for the cowardliness and weathercock propensities of modern journalism. One of two things is absolutely necessary: Either a paper must be a namby-pamby sheet that has no opinions whatever about important events, or else its readers must make up their minds that a difference of opinion is not sufficient reason for stopping the paper. If all the readers insist upon it that everything said must accord with their views, then the editor must say nothing except on the one subject on which they all agree, and the public must be left for light on current events to bitter partisan papers. In a community composed entirely of these "stop my paper" people, true independent journalism would be an impossibility. Don't stop a paper that you believe to be honest, courageous, enterprising and clean, simply because its editor has written his own sincere views instead of yours or somebody else's; for if you do, you are putting a premium on insincere journalism and serving notice on an editor that the way to succeed is to write what he thinks will best please his readers, instead of what he honestly believes to be the truth.—Exchange.

Constitutional Convention.

From the Selma Journal.

The white voting population of Alabama, according to the last census, numbered 184,059, and the blacks 140,763, showing a clear white majority of 43,296. The white majority is much larger than this now, as the inflow of white immigrants has been constant since the census was taken, and there has been rather an outflow than an inflow of negroes. The moral of this statement of facts is that Alabama ought to have a constitutional convention as quick as the legislature can order it.

THE BATTLE IN ALABAMA.

From the Philadelphia Times.

There is a fierce struggle in progress in Alabama between Representative Clarke, of Mobile, and Captain Johnston, of Birmingham, for the democratic nomination for governor. The convention will be held early in April, and the parties have just begun to hold conventions for the election of delegates. Representative Clarke is squarely in favor of honest money and against the free coinage of silver, while Captain Johnston has been advocating the wildest cheap money schemes, and hopes to win the nomination by appeals to the necessities and the cupidity of the people.

Both Representative Clarke and Captain Johnston are men of admitted ability and character. No individual objections could be urged against either for the high position of governor of the state, and so highly is Captain Johnston respected in Birmingham, where he resides, that until quite recently the friends of honest money were disposed to support him regardless of his demagogic money theories. But when Johnston took the stump and advocated the election not only of state officers but of legislators devoted to the free silver cause, the friends of sound money at his own home were compelled to take issue with him, and he is now confronted by formidable opposition in Birmingham. The Evening News, of that place, that has heroically advocated honest money, started out in the contest to support Johnston for the office of governor independent of his heretical financial ideas, but within the last week it has been compelled to cut loose from the free silver leader and make the issue of honest money paramount.

The battle in Alabama is especially important because it will be the first expression of any democratic state convention in 1896 to forecast the attitude of the party in the selection of national candidates at Chicago. If Alabama shall declare for the free silver cause, it will be notice that the whole South is demoralized on the issue, and that it will be next to unanimous in the democratic national convention in favor of the free coinage of silver and the destruction of national and private credit. The contest between Representative Clarke and Captain Johnston is thus one that rises to the dignity of national importance. If Alabama shall declare for honest money by the nomination of Representative Clarke, with Kentucky and Alabama in the forefront for a sound financial system, it is quite probable that most of the southern states would follow, and thus enable the democratic national convention to save itself from the disgrace of a cheap money platform, that could result only in defeat from which there could be no resurrection.

It is idle for political leaders from North or South to close their eyes to the fact that no party can hope to win in 1896, or to have a hopeful future, that does not declare with emphasis in favor of honest money. The issue has become so sharply defined that no party can escape it, and if the democracy shall yield to the demands of the cheap money freaks, it will not carry five states in the union for its candidate for president, and could have no hope of rehabilitation thereafter. It was the old party of 1892 that declared unqualifiedly in favor of honest money, as it demanded that gold and silver coin should be of equal "intrinsic value," and any departure from that deliverance would be notice of the demoralization that is the forerunner of death. Alabama may do much to save or to annihilate the democracy of the nation by its verdict for or against honest money in the coming April convention.

A PLAIN CASE.

From the Selma Times.

Politics make strange bed-fellows, and for the free silver populists to hug to their bosoms, in fusion, the goldbug republicans, is not only strange, but a little mysterious to the ordinary observer; but when the X rays of common sense is turned on, the casual observer cannot fail to see that the leaders of both the contracting parties are in for the boodle of office at whatever cost to their so-called principles, and the people—the common mass of their following—are hoodwinked by the cries of honest elections, more money and greater prosperity.

Said Mr. Lincoln: "You can fool all the people part of the time, part of the people all the time; but you cannot fool all the people all the time." That saying holds good for all time, and "a part of the people" are waking up and soon none of them will be so blind as not to realize that there is "something rotten in Denmark," and call for an accounting from their leaders, which will be very embarrassing to say the least.

Puzzled.

From the Chattanooga Times.

Please somebody, work out this little "sum" for us! If Mexico flourishes on a currency of $5 a head, and the United States goes to ruin on a currency of $25 a head, how much ought the United States to reduce—no, enlarge—no, cut down—confound it, we can't get it right—anyhow, what ought to be done to 'em, or both, to make 'em consist, so to say?

The Escape.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

She—What did you mean by saying that I had a face that would stop a clock? You need not deny saying it. He—I know I said it, but I didn't get to finish. I meant that even a clock would pause to hold its hands up in admiration when it saw your lovely countenance.

SOUND MONEY THE ONLY HOPE.

From the New York World.

Democratic National Committee-man Wall, of Wisconsin, proved himself in the great and successful campaigns of 1890 and 1892 one of the best politicians in the union. It was under his management that Wisconsin was carried by the democrats in both those years.

Asked in Washington yesterday what he thought of the democratic chances in the approaching presidential campaign, Mr. Wall said: "All depends on the handling of the money question. If the republicans fail at St. Louis to adopt a strong, sound plank, and the democrats have the good sense to grasp the opportunity and adopt one at Chicago, we shall win."

This corresponds exactly with what the World said on Monday in its historic review showing that sound money—hard money of the highest standard—is the traditional democratic policy and that the party has always succeeded when true to this principle, and has always been defeated when false to it. The democrats cannot carry a single eastern or middle state on a free silver or a dubious platform.

Mr. Wall further expressed the opinion that there will not be a split in the national convention on this question. "Party ties are very strong," he said, "and are not dissolved so easily as many people suppose." This view is confirmed by the special dispatch to the World from St. Louis stating that while the delegation from Missouri to the national convention will be for free silver, its leaders will not bolt, should their views be rejected by the convention as they were in 1892.

How can they? Each of the democratic free silver champions in the south and west must ask himself, as Daniel Webster did in Faneuil hall: "Where am I to go?" They cannot become republicans. They can hardly join the populists. If it were possible to take any action that would throw the election into the house the republicans would inevitably elect the president. The money question is not the only thing that concerns democrats. There are other important questions at issue. And as sound money is the traditional policy of the party and adherence to it holds out the only chance of success, the duty of the convention, and of all democrats who love their party and cherish its principles, is very clear.

The standard to be raised at Chicago must be that of Jackson, Benton, Tilden, Manning and Cleveland. The democracy will then have honor and right on its side and can afford to abide the result.

PRICES IN 1848.

From the Greenville (S. C.) News.

Looking over a file of the Greenville Mountaineer for 1848, we were astonished to find in its market reports from Hamburg, cotton quoted at 4 to 5¢ cents a pound, flour $4.75 to $5 a barrel corn and meal 50 cents a bushel, bacon 6 to 6¢ cents.

Referring then to the Latham, Alexander & Co., cotton statistics, we found that cotton was selling in New York in 1839 at 13.36 a pound. In 1840 it dropped to 8.92; in 1841 it rose to 9.50; in 1842 it was 7.85; in 1843, 7.25; in 1844, 7.73; in 1845, 5.66; in 1846, 7.87. In 1848, after a sharp rise, it was down to 8.03; in 1849 it fell yet further to 7.55. These are New York prices. At Hamburg, which was then the market for this section, prices seemed to be from a cent to two cents lower.

Thereat we marvelled much. We supposed from Coin's Financial School, Joe Johnston, the Anderson Peoples' Advocate, the Spartanburg Herald, Ben Tillman and other way up yonder free silver authority, that the "crime of 1873" had brought down prices. Yet we find that fifty years ago, during the time of free and unlimited coinage of silver at 15 to 1, prices of farm products were very much as they are now, the chief difference being that cotton is a little higher and bacon a little cheaper now than they were then.

Now, we will be glad if the Anderson Peoples' Advocate, the Spartanburg Herald and the rest of them will tell us what caused the low prices and sudden falls from 1839 to 1849 while we had, as they claim, the silver standard, while the silver dollar was the unit, as they claim, and not the "token" they say it is now.

We would also like them to explain—if the alleged demonetization of silver is the cause of the fall in prices—why it is that cotton dropped 14 cents a pound, from 31 to 17 cents, in six years, from 1867 to 1873, while from 1873 to 1883, ten years after the "crime" it dropped only 6¢ cents—why it lost nearly 50 per cent in six years before the "crime" and not quite 33 per cent in the ten years after the "crime." And when they have finished that let them tell us why, if England became the richest country on earth with the gold standard and all the other countries got in debt to her with their silver or mixed standards, it would not be good policy for us, if we desire to be rich and money lenders instead of money borrowers, to try England's system awhile?

BROTHER, SISTER, LISTEN!

Perhaps I can put you on to a scheme. You know this is a progressive age. Old moss-grown methods are rapidly playing out. I propose to keep up with the procession. Life is too short to continue longer in the old ruts. New methods bring new results, also new goods and likewise new customers. I have too pretty a stock of goods to keep them hid from the world. Therefore I now proclaim to the world at large, and to the people of Shelby county in particular that I have almost anything they can call for, and having bought these goods in large quantities, I can offer many bargains to cash customers. Here is one for a starter:

100 Pieces Standard Prints 4 1-2c.

Now that's pretty smooth, ain't it? Just so; but let me tell you before I forget it, that is only a sample. There are plenty of bargains in my store just as attractive. Seeing is believing. Come and I will convince you. One more bargain.

Big Lot Challies Spring and Summer Shades 4c.

Spring is here and summer is almost within sight, and of course you want straw hats. Don't mention it. I've got 'em, more than you ever saw in one store before in your life. Big, little, old or young, come and get supplied.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Frank Spears, of Shelby, was a visitor in our city Monday.

Amos Daniel, of Wilsonville, spent Tuesday with friends here.

E. C. Parker, of Howard college, spent Easter with home folks.

Commissioners court was in session the first three days of the week.

J. R. Hill and Will Parker, of Calera, were visitors here yesterday.

Mrs. C. J. Christian, of Bessemer, is a guest of her father, W. R. A. Milner.

Mrs. Green is spending awhile with her daughter, Mrs. Roe, at Crosswell.

W. A. Walburn and little son Fred, of Saginaw, are on a visit to relatives here.

Profs. Fritchard and Williams, of Aldrich, were in town Saturday on business.

Miss Lottie Duran, of Calera, was a guest of relatives in our city Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. John Spencer and children are on a visit to her mother, Mrs. Campbell, in Montgomery.

Mrs. I. D. Mason and Pierce are visiting John Edward's family in Childersburg this week.

L. W. Hartsfield, of Sterrett, came up last week and added his name to our growing list of subscribers.

Capt. W. H. Bell, one of Shelby's cleverest and most substantial citizens, was in town a few hours yesterday.

Henry Fallon, of Birmingham, spent two or three days in town this week, and left yesterday for New Orleans to visit relatives.

Prof. J. B. Kilpatrick, of Wilsonville, found time while in town Saturday to call on us and drop a word of encouragement.

Mrs. Ruth Lawler, of Birmingham, has moved into our community in order to give her children the advantage of our excellent school.

Will O'Hara, a most promising young minister, now attending Howard college, gladdened his many friends here by spending Saturday and Sunday in town.

The boys and younger men of our town are actively engaged in organizing a ball team. We hope they will give us several good games during the season.

Easter Sunday was a bright, beautiful spring day. Appropriate services were held at the Presbyterian church, large congregations being present.

Elders Adelbert E. Cranney, of Logan, Utah; and David Hubbard, of Almo, Idaho, Mormon missionaries, gave us a call Tuesday. They will be in our country several weeks.

Jolly Walter Merrell, of Shelby, dropped into our office Monday, his face wreathed with smiles and his pocket full of money, which he divided with us very liberally. He is still happy and we are happier still.

Capt. J. P. Christian, the genial superintendent of the Shelby Iron Co., was an appreciated caller in our office yesterday. He is a Clarke man of the most approved pattern, and is confident he will be the choice of the democracy of the state.

S. W. Nelson is an aspirant for the office of sheriff of Shelby county, his announcement to that effect appearing in another column. Mr. Nelson's democracy is unquestioned, and he has always been a faithful and zealous worker for his party. He has ample experience, is well qualified and would doubtless make an acceptable official if he receives the nomination.

Hon. H. C. Reynolds, of Montevallo, was in town yesterday. He is still an enthusiastic worker for the Girls' Industrial School, and expressed himself as confident that the appropriation of mineral lands asked from congress would be given, and that, of course, would put the school in splendid trim from the start. He expects a great deal of the school, and it is our earnest wish that his fondest hopes may be fully realized.

Judge Brewer is contemplating holding a special term of circuit court some time during June or July. The docket is badly crowded, and it is his desire to dispose of a number of the most important cases, and thereby put the docket in condition to be easily handled in future. He will decide definitely within a few weeks, and when he does our readers will be given full particulars as to the date and the cases to be tried.

Saturday, the 11th, is the day fixed by the county democratic executive committee to hold mass meetings, beat meetings or primaries, as the committeemen of the several beats may elect, to choose delegates to the county convention which will be held here next Wednesday. As all are doubtless aware no nominations for county officers will be made at said convention. A convention for that purpose will be held later on. Delegates to the state convention will be chosen next Wednesday, and such other business transacted as the good of the party demands.

"Tell me ye angelic host, ye messengers of love Shall swindled printers here below have no redress above?"
The shining angel band replied: "To us is knowledge given, Delinquents on the printer's list can never enter heaven."

C. B. Elliott, who was recently badly cut by a negro at Vincent, arrived here yesterday at noon. He has not fully recovered as yet, and is still very weak, but in a week or two will be himself again. The negro who did the cutting has been captured at Goodwater, and will likely be brought here at once. He richly deserves severe punishment, and, doubtless, will get it.

Call for a Beat Meeting.

There will be a beat meeting held Saturday, the 11th, to select delegates to the county convention ordered by the democratic executive committee for April 15, 1896. Columbiana will be entitled to 11 delegates and Shelby 7. The beat meeting will be opened at this place and Shelby, and the entire delegation be voted for at both boxes.

An Explanation.

EDITOR CHRONICLE.—Allow me to say through your paper that the clause in the school petition now being circulated over the county for signatures, mentioning 100 children and 10 months, is used only as a guide for the commissioners court by which they may be governed in raising the funds. In no way does that petition propose to govern the location of schools in the county or to say how many children must attend such schools. That matter is left, and should be left, entirely in the hands of the county superintendent and town ship trustees just as it is now.

J. H. HAMMOND.

Reunion United Confederate Veterans, at Richmond, Va.—Reduced Rates via Southern Railway.

For the occasion of the 6th Annual Reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, which occurs at Richmond, Va., June 30-July 2, 1896, the Southern railway will sell tickets to Richmond, Va., and return at very low rates.

Tickets from points in Georgia and Tennessee, north and east of Atlanta and Chattanooga, will be sold June 27 and 28, and from points south and west of Atlanta and Chattanooga, and east of the Mississippi river, tickets will be sold June 26, 27, 28 and 29. Final limit on tickets from all points will be July 6, 1896.

From points south and west of Atlanta, the Southern Railway is the short and quick route to Richmond, Va., via the "Piedmont Air Line," and the service is peerless. From Knoxville, Tenn., to Chattanooga, Tenn., and points west thereof, the route of the Southern Railway is via Asheville and through the scenic "Land of the Sky." The service of this line is unexcelled.

Call on any agent of the Southern Railway for further information or E. J. Martin, T. P. A., Columbus, Miss.; J. L. Meek, T. P. A., Knoxville, Tenn.; W. H. Doll, T. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.; L. A. Shipman, T. P. A., Birmingham, Ala.; J. C. Andrews, S. W. P. A., New Orleans, La.; W. A. Turk, G. P. A., Washington, D. C.; S. H. Hardwick, A. G. P. A., Atlanta, Ga.; C. A. Benscoter, A. G. P. A., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Items from Lewis.

Easter was enjoyed by all, especially by two of our young ladies, who had their old fellows come to see them.

Mr. J. S. Jackson, accompanied by Miss Myrtle Jackson, attended services at Mt. Olive Saturday.

Messrs. Jno. Kytte and Arthur Riddle, of Helena, spent Saturday and Sunday with relations and others.

Tommie Walton, Esq., was a welcome guest of Miss Florence Adams Sunday eve at this place.

Miss Minnie Deshazo, of Vincent, was the honored guest of Miss Myrtle Jackson last week. She returned home Sunday, much to the regret of Nero. Come often, Miss Minnie, you will find welcome by all.

Mrs. J. L. Riddle is quite sick at this writing, but we hope nothing serious will be the result.

Revs. Armstrong and Lyon preached very interesting sermons at Four Mile Sunday.

R. A. O'Hara, the third party candidate for treasurer, has been canvassing and we have been informed that he got a little off, and found himself in Jefferson and St. Clair counties.

Corn planting is the order of the day among our farmers.

Mrs. Hargrove, after several week's visit in this community, has returned home, Mt. Olive.

NERO.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. F. Pope made a business trip to Vincent last Wednesday.

Miss Emma Millstead, of Columbiana, visited relatives here last week.

Dr. W. S. Dulose, of Columbiana, was called by Dr. Edwards last week to assist him with Mr. Fowler's child.

J. H. Wilder, of Vincent, was in our city on business last week.

Mrs. Taylor visited relatives in Sylacauga last week.

W. A. Williamson, of Uniontown, Ala., has secured a permanent position with C. Butler. We understand that he will move his family here soon. Our best wishes are extended for his success.

Messrs. J. F. Pope and Jack Taylor attended services at Shelby last Sunday.

We understand that a number of the Columbiana young people are anticipating a visit to our city next Friday night. We extend to them a hearty welcome, and will be very badly disappointed if they fail to show up.

The surprise party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Jackson last Friday night, afforded us a great deal of pleasure. The time was occupied in a charming manner. There was nothing more attractive than the Easter sleeves, angel wings or something similar thereto.

The Easter egg hunt was quite an interesting amusement. The eggs were hidden in a new garden; and on them the fortune of the finder was written. If this fortune telling be true, one of our prettiest young ladies of Wilsonville, will be the bride of a "coalman." We beg leave to congratulate her in advance, and wish her a long and happy life.

Some of the young people who participated in the singing by the choir at the Methodist church last Sunday, have come to the conclusion that we need a choir practice, and the oftener we practice the better.

The young men and ladies enjoyed a pleasant walk to McGowan's Ferry last Sunday afternoon; later in the evening we caught the echo of three other couples who had been driving the larger part of the afternoon. We all congregated there and the pleasures that we witnessed are unexplainable.

The time for primary election of governor has again presented itself to view. Our city will be honored with a telegraphic bulletin service containing the required information from all parts of the state.

The original and only Chas. N. Arnold, Esq., was on our streets last week in the capacity of a crockery drummer; at least that's his title with the business men of our city and elsewhere, but in Wilsonville society he is known as "Witty Charlie" and with a certain young lady as—let's see—"what was that." Oh, I tell you, ask her and if she don't tell you it's on account of her being extremely embarrassed.

Spring is upon us in her infancy. Old winter, with her silvered hair and wrinkled brow, still lingers to catch a glimpse of beautiful spring as she makes herself known to the welcome world. She will bring fragrance of sweet wild flowers to perfume the air. When the dogwood blooms the angler will stroll by the side of the rippling brook, where pretty little fish splash hither and thither in the clear warm water returning thanks to our God for such a blessing as spring.

TO THE CHRONICLE.

The Chronicle our county news,
We love so well to read;
When comes the time that you are due,
You're sent for in great speed.
Sometimes we are disappointed,
By your being delayed;
And this delay seems like a week,
Although 'tis but a day.

But when you come you're shining bright,
With all the news therein;
We look you over with great delight,
With gladdened hearts again.

You tell us of surrounding towns,
For many miles away;
By you we get good news abroad,
The latest of the day.

You show us where there's goods to sell,
In all the ads contained;
Just come to Pope's and you'll do well,
He'll then your trade maintain.

We only ask you one thing, sir,
And this we want to know;
Where "Nellie Bly" and "Pansy" are?
Who wrote sometime ago.

The very tone of words were sweet,
In the "Warbling" column;
Their faces true we long to meet,
If we can find them.

You are a friend to us so dear,
Forget us not no never;
And may your columns gain the crown,
A crown to wear forever.

BUTCH, JR.

The May Number of The Delineator is Called the Commencement Number.

Its forecast of summer styles in dress and millinery is complete, including, beside the usual monthly display, a number of commencement gowns and a chapter on the latest ideas in attire for bicycling. The varied methods of dressing the hair now in vogue are illustrated and described, and a New York dentist discusses the proper care of the teeth. Not less practical and useful to women are the first of a series of papers on interior decoration by Mrs. Genevieve Wigfall. A. B. Longstreet's article on recent culinary inventions, one on domestic sanitation and the usual review of the markets and talk about cookery, the spring dainties receiving due attention. Among the general reading a very entertaining article is contributed by Mary Caldwell Jones, Mildred Conway tells about a novel poster party, and Carolyn Halsted describes the origin, organization and objects of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Witherspoon's tea-table chat, notices of new books and illustrated descriptions of the latest designs in embroidery, knitting, tatting lace making, etc., complete a magnificent number.

The Better Half.

From the Mobile Daily Screech.
Quizzicks has worked it out that the 52-cent silver dollar is of the feminine gender and is the wife of the 100-cent dollar, for says he, isn't 52 cents the better-half of a dollar?

WOMAN AT HER BEST.

Any thoughtful reader of the newspapers and magazines of the day, must be impressed with the widely divergent criticisms of the new woman, that have been offered to a long suffering public, criticisms favorable and otherwise, ranging from the most facetious and unkind remarks to the most effusive and exaggerated expressions of praise.

When from this mass of opinions advanced by scholars, ministers, editors, novelists, actors, statesmen and reformers, we try to sift the wheat from the chaff, we turn helplessly away with a mind bewildered and a heart disturbed and the new woman still remains to us an unsolved problem, inasmuch as we cannot classify, condemn or commend her. People who have passed the half century mark judge her by the old standard of excellence in woman handed down to them by their parents and grandparents. The younger generation declare that you cannot judge the new woman by an old standard. Times, they say, have changed, likewise manners, customs and conditions.

We turn from the one to the other in our bewilderment and the result is that half of us have no settled opinions one way or the other.

Some one says: "Did you see (or hear) Miss Blank on such and such an occasion?" Some one replies: "O, she is a new woman you know,"—we shrug our shoulders, raise our eyebrows and smile indulgently. There are, however, as many people may have observed a class of men, who, in a discussion of the new woman, keep silent and when pressed for an opinion smile bitterly and turn away with the remark: "O, it is none of my business. They seem to like it." Here is food for thought.

Whether we speak of the woman of the past, the present, or the future, there are certain attributes that we feel she must possess if she be a true woman. Gentleness, kindness, modesty and refinement are essentials, not under any circumstances to be dispensed with, and that "new woman," who, no matter what her fads or foibles, possesses these qualities, can hurl defiance at her critics. She must be gentle because man is not, and the world needs gentleness; she must be good because it is right to be good; she must be modest because modesty is the sweetest pearl in all her diadem; she must be refined because God intended she should be and a coarse, unfeminine woman is an abomination in the sight of all good men.

Now, to be gentle, good, modest and refined—is it to dress like a man, to wear bloomers, to hob-nob with men at the polls, to run for office and do your own canvassing, to talk loud in public places, not to be afraid of anything? Are there not some things of which it is well for women to be afraid?

Is it to let the people on the streets see more of you than members of your own family? Is it to hold advanced ideas or views on religion and the proper sphere of woman? Is it to read the modern "realistic" novel and discuss it unblushingly with whoever you will? Is it?

To be gentle, good, modest and refined—is it—to be a devoted wife and a careful, loving mother, to keep your home sweet and attractive for some good man, to keep your mind bright and clear by reading good books, to keep your body strong and well by taking systematic exercise in modest clothing? Is it to fill the place it was intended you should fill and let the men fill theirs?

Times and customs have changed, it is true, but man's reverence and respect for all that is sweetest and best in womanhood, will never change.

Sometimes the "new woman" is like a caged bird set free, that flies into dangers it knows not of, and dies through its own destruction, and sometimes she is like a bird that soars glad and free from old restraints, it is true, but far above all that is petty and hard and unworthy. Then it is that the "new woman" is at her best.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A clerk and his country father entered a restaurant Saturday evening, says an exchange, and took seats at a table where sat a telegraph operator and a reporter. The old man bowed his head and was about to say grace, when a waiter flew up, singing: "I have beefsteak, codfish balls and bull heads." Father and son gave their orders, and the former again bowed his head. The young man turned the color of a blooded beet, and touching his father's arm, exclaimed in a low, nervous tone:

"Father, it isn't customary to do that in restaurants!"

"It is customary with me to return thanks to God wherever I am," said the old man.

For the third time he bowed his head, and his son bowed his, and the telegraph operator paused in the act of carving his beefsteak and bowed his head, and the journalist pushed back his fish ball and bowed his head, and there wasn't a man who heard the short and simple prayer that didn't feel a profounder respect for the old farmer than if he had been president of the United States.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

Non-Resident Notice.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY. Ann E. Perry, Complainant, vs. William T. Perry Defendant.

In Chancery Sixth District North-Eastern Chancery Division. In this cause it is made to appear to the register by the affidavit of J. E. Holmes, that the defendant, William T. Perry, is a non-resident of Alabama, and resides in DeKalb County, Texas; and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered by the register, that publication be made in the Chronicle, a newspaper published in the county of Shelby, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said William T. Perry to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 5th day of April, A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him. Dated at office in Columbiana, this 3rd day of March, A. D. 1896. GORDON DROUSE, Register.

Notice of Election.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the court house, in the town of Columbiana, Alabama, on Monday April 7, 1896, for the purpose of electing a mayor and five aldermen for said town of Columbiana. W. B. BROWNE, Mayor. Feb. 25, 1896.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS.

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

Corn

is a vigorous feeder and responds well to liberal fertilization. On corn lands the yield increases and the soil improves if properly treated with fertilizers containing not under 7% actual Potash.

A trial of this plan costs but little and is sure to lead to profitable culture.

Our pamphlets are not advertising circulars boasting special fertilizers, but are practical works, containing latest researches on the subject of fertilization, and are really helpful to farmers. They are sent free for the asking.

RUFUS SANDERS.

Sage of Rocky Creek Tells About the Hill Country.

Julie Nabors and Steve Goodman Make a Trip to Siloam—See Simpkins' "Blue Jeans Breeches."

Once upon a time old Misses Stringer told me that she had been perusing around in this vain and foolish world high on to 30 years.

"And I have always taken notice, Rufus," says she, "that along about this season of the year we most generally always have some sort of weather."

Well, the longer I live and the deeper I go into this vale of years and tears the more plain I can see wherein the good old lady was right, to wit, in the great question of weather. We have had some sort of weather—in fact, we have had all sorts of weather here lately—and as usual the fruit crop got caught out in the cold snap.

They "telt" the Wrong Man.

Along with that general wave of trouble and confusion in the Rocky Creek settlement—which I couldn't write it all up in my last letter—Julie Nabors he got tied up at the Crazy Siloam.

By this time no doubt you will recollect two or three things concerning Julie Nabors. He is one of the most unhappy and down trodden citizens in the round created world. He is forever and eternally at outs with the general government on the common grounds that the "rich git richer" and the "poor git poorer" as the days are going by, or words to that extent. But the mainest trouble with Julie Nabors is that he is crippled under his hat. Understand me now, I don't throw no heavy blame on the man for that. He didn't lose the job of makin' himself, and the good Lord don't make no mistakes in His business. But to the best of my recollection, the whole entire Nabors generation never was afflicted with any brains to speak of. And as to Julie—well, he don't know anything for certain. He can't even tell what is the matter with him when he is hungry. He will go to bed for sick and take medicine and send for the doctor, when all he needs in the round world is a square meal of vitamins.

The naked, unwashed truth in regards to the Nabors family is that they are too monstrous fresh from the hill country. They first moved their wash into the Rocky Creek settlement some seven or eight years ago, and they come from somewhere in the neighborhood of a place they call Possum Trot—way back there in the hills, where the women folks are still knittin' socks for the confederate soldiers, whilst the men are still votin' for old Hickory Jackson for president every four years as regular as the time rolls around.

Now along in the Christmas, you understand, Julie Nabors put in his bid on the contract to carry all the crazy people off to the Siloam, and blamed it if they didn't give him the job. So consequently when Steve Goodman let his head gettin' jump a cog and went blind staid crazy, it was Julie's business to take him to the place prepared for crazy people. But in orderment to soft-soap and hornsoggle Steve into makin' the trip, they told him that Julie Nabors had lost his wife and went plum crazy and that he (Steve Goodman) would have to take the ravin idiot to the Siloam. Steve loved her want no candidate for the job, but he didn't see how he could go back on his old friend Julie Nabors in times of trouble and of sorrow, and on them grounds he would go.

So that was the general circumstance of the surroundings when they got on the cars and went off together. Julie was takin' Steve, and Steve he was takin' Julie. And by the twelve epistles, when they got there the general manager of the Siloam turned Steve out and kept Julie in. Naturally, of course, Julie Nabors come up missin' for several days, but the people in the settlement didn't know what in thunderations had went with him till he wrote a letter home givin' out the facts and callin' for help. The county board then had a called meetin' and sent the papers on to the Siloam, tellin' the general manager that he had bet the wrong man.

It was the last of the week before Julie returned back home. Then the gang put in and give him such a scandalous draggin' about his crazy scrape till now, bless gracious, he won't even travel the big road for fear he will meet up with somebody that has heard the news.

The general manager of the Siloam writ back in a letter that he tried his level blandest to find out which one of the men was the most craziest, and finally at last on general principles, and from general appearances he had to hold the man which give his name as Julie Nabors.

In the meantime Steve Goodman had hit the grit and hit it a movin'. In givin' his accounts to the county board Julie reported "all present or accounted for but one, and he is out and gone."

Now, if they ever find Steve Goodman and bring him back to the settlement—which I reckon they will—and he is still a fittin' candidate for the Crazy Siloam—Julie Nabors will give up his job and retire back to the pleasant shades of private life.

"Them Same Blue Breeches."

Amongst other things that come to pass in durin' that stormy week was a quick and sudden weddin' match down in the Flat Woods.

Old man Sol Simpkins has now been married three different times since the war, and once before the old soldiers stacked arms under the famous apple tree. His first wife carried the wool and spun the thread and wove the cloth, and made him the most loveliest pair of blue jeans breeches ever saw perhaps. And from that time till now old man Sol has stood up and got married three times with them same blue breeches on. The next day after the weddin' he always pulls his marryin' breeches off an puts em away in the old family chest. And there they stay till another funeral comes off at the Simpkins place, and the next weddin' day rolls around.

It was alone in the first windy days of this year when the old lady Simpkins took down mighty sick and was presently gathered up to her fathers, as it were. She was number three, you understand, and most more Sol Simpkins was left a "pure lonehearted widder" in this cold and naughty world below.

So consequently it wint no ways surprisin' to me that mornin' when the old man come ridin' along by our house with them same blue breeches on, I light then at that time I couldn't say fer certain where old man Sol was goin', but I knowed good and well what he was goin' after.

"Yonder goes old man Simpkins with his blue breeches on," says I to mother as he rid by. And by gracious, she got so foam'n, fightin' mad with the whole he division of the human race till I thought in my soul she would jump on me.

"It's a pluperfect scandalation on the settlement," says she, "The green spring grass ain't so much as sprouted on his last wife's grave. I'll lay you could go over to the Simpkins place this mornin' and find Aunt Mill's track out in the cow pen and eroid the potato bank. And yet here he goes—the wicked old scapegrace—with his blue breeches on, so bad off to git married. I'll he could taste it with his eyes shut."

Well, I didn't have anything in particular to say right along there. Mother is a woman, you understand, with all of a woman's soft and gentle and tender ways. She never has learnt one cold and stubborn fact, which is that when a man as old as Sol Simpkins takes up a notion to git married, it ain't the right time of year for him to weep and wail and grit his teeth over the sad and buried dead.

Anyhow, it turned out that the old man was on his way down to the Flat Woods to the Widder Watkins. It likewise also come to pass that when Sol Simpkins returned back home the next day he had them same blue breeches on, and the widder she went with him.

"Nothin' But a Man."

But finally at last we are all plain, human flesh and blood and bones—weak and wayward worms of the dust—with the regular human proneness to stray and struggle off into forbidden grounds and out of the forbidden fruit. And it raley ain't so tremendous strange that somechin' comes to pass now and then in the Rocky Creek settlement.

Once upon a time—in the dead hours of night—I landed in the town of Texarkana—which is either in Texas, Arkansas or Louisiana. The next mornin' there was a regular drove of boys hangin' round the boardin house where I had put up to pass off the time.

In bruisin' around the town that day I saw a yearlin' boy, with a red head and a freckle face, come chargin' down the street, screamin' with every jump at the top of his voice:

"O, maw! m-aw! m-a-w!"

A fine-looking lady run out on the front steps and wanted to know of the boy what in all the round created world was the matter with him.

"I have saw Julie Sanders!"—says the boy—"I have saw Julie Sanders! He ain't nothin' but a man, and not well dressed at that!"

Maybe the boy didn't know it at the time. But right then and there he spoke forth a great gob of human truth and soberness. When I returned back home I sent him a pocket knife that had three blades, with my double-breasted compliments.

RUFUS SANDERS.

A HISTORIC BUILDING.

The Old Post Office at Charleston Has Seen Famous Men.

"Among the quaint old structures of Charleston our old post office building takes the lead in historic interest," said Mr. James S. Murdock, a leading wholesale merchant of the Carolina metropolis. Mr. Murdock is here with a delegation of his townsmen to ask congress to make a modest appropriation so as to donate the aforesaid antique edifice to the city.

"The old post office," said he, "was built of brick imported from England in 1767 under the direction of a committee of the colonial assembly. Its leading members were John Rutledge, Henry Laurens and Thomas Lynch, who later took a prominent part in the formation of the republic, and whose names will be found among the signers of the Declaration of Independence. During the occupation of Charleston by the British it was used as a prison, and between 60 and 70 of the best citizens were confined there before their removal to St. Augustine, Fla. In the number was Col. Isaac Haynes, of the celebrated family of that name. In revenge for the execution of Maj. Andre Haynes was taken out from prison and suffered the death penalty by orders of Col. Hailford, then in command, without the formality of a trial.

"In 1790, when Gen. Washington visited Charleston, it was the same old building that he was entertained, and a splendid ball was given in his honor by the wealthy planters of the state, cooperating with the town people. With such historic associations surrounding it our people naturally take a deep interest in their old post office, and the idea is to keep it in its original condition as a sacred memento of the past."—Washington Post.

BRIDES AND FLOWERS.

Objection Is Made to Blooms with Strong Odors.

"In the matter of perfume," said a florist, "I have learned the importance of what seems a trivial thing by catering to the tastes of brides. When a woman is going to be married she is strung up to a high pitch of nervous excitement, and an extra whiff of perfume will sometimes cause her to faint. 'Don't put in any flower with an odor,' is frequently the instruction I get for a bridal bouquet. This is the cause of the great demand for orchids, expensive as they are, for brides' flowers. Even the subtle, hardly noticeable perfume of the lilies of the valley, which are charming for a shower bouquet, is objected to by some. In Paris orchids, and orchids alone, are used for a bride's bouquet, but such a bouquet as they make there, duplicated here, would cost over $100. We generally manage to put in a little spray of orange blossoms in every bride's bouquet, unless expressly desired not to do so, but the chief place in which orange blossoms are used now are in the newspaper accounts of weddings. The reporters conclude that brides ought to wear orange flowers, if they don't. Brides, even, white and scentless, are popular for bridal flowers, but lilies of the valley, unobtrusive and delicate, slipping out of their little green sheaths, with a few orchids grouped with them, to give the whole form and character, are in exquisite taste."—N. Y. Tribune.

PROTECTING THE BIRDS.

Stringent Laws Enforced Would Result in Financial Profit to the Farmer.

The pleasures of the companionship of birds of all sorts, their presence in the highways and hedgerows, their inspiring songs and delightful trillings and warblings, ought to be sufficient reason for protecting and encouraging them even though no benefit were derived from their residence among us. But the birds are the friends of the farmers, the farmer and the fruit grower, albeit all of these people have waged relentless war upon them. Nature understands thoroughly how to produce and maintain a proper balance, and when let alone there is very rarely a plague of insects of any description. But for amusement, or because the birds destroy a little fruit, there is a fierce onslaught made upon them and entire colonies are swept away regardless of the protests of those who know that birds are absolutely necessary to the prosperity of the agriculturist.

In many localities the robin was almost a stranger for many years. It is only of late that it has begun to return again, and few home-coming voyagers have been more cordially welcomed. The Jay, the woodpecker and various birds of their sort have been sacrificed to the folly of the sportsman or the cruelty of those who destroy these friends of ours for the sake of adornment.

The consequence is that entire localities have been deprived of the grateful shade of some of the finest trees in the country. It is said that the withered and leafless elms are simply monuments of the memory of dead birds, and that crop failures, entire fields devastated by injurious insects, and cornfields rendered unproductive by worms, are nothing more or less than rebukes to those who have wantonly slaughtered nature's sentinels that she has set to guard the products of the soil.

Of course, it is possible that birds might increase so as to become a nuisance to the farmer, but this is not at all likely to occur for some time to come; indeed, it is suggested, and with a good show of wisdom, that it would pay the farmer in quality of product if he planted an extra acre of grain and put out a few special fruit trees to keep the birds in provender. They would destroy insects that injure crops, and the net results would be most decidedly in favor of the agriculturist's profit.

The most stringent laws should be passed for the protection of birds, and not only this, but they should be enforced in the most thorough fashion. It would be worth while to experiment for a year or two in a systematic manner and note the results. It would take but a little while to convince the farmer that birds were good things to have around. Financial results are what tell in the farmer's mind, and frequently no other argument avails anything.—N. Y. Ledger.

GRIZZLY KILLED HIMSELF.

How a St. Louis Man Narrowly Escaped a Horrible Death.

Mining men, like fishermen and hunters, generally have a fund of stories, and are very willing to tell them, but it occasionally happens that they have one which they do not want to tell. This is the case with a St. Louis mining man—that is a mining-stock broker, as he is very much in evidence as a tenderfoot when he gets into the mining country. He was recently in the wildest part of the Wood river country for a season.

One morning, shortly after his arrival in camp, he covered a rifle and announced his intention of going out for a hunt. He was warned not to go far from camp and to keep a sharp lookout, as signs of grizzlies had been seen. He laughingly replied that he would like nothing better than to meet a grizzly and take its skin home. He got farther away from the camp than he had intended, and was beginning to feel lost, when he suddenly heard something crashing through the undergrowth in the timber.

He waited just long enough to see its nose. He didn't know just what it was, but he dropped his rifle and proceeded to climb a tree. He hadn't practiced climbing since he was a boy, but he made such remarkably good time that the animal, which had come with a rush, could not reach his feet with its paws. It was a grizzly. He could see that, and at once made up his mind that he was in for a sore fight of it. He reached a branch, and settled himself as comfortably as possible, and then began to wonder whether grizzlies were much on the climb.

The bear, on its part, provided around the tree, occasionally looking up at the meal he had missed. Finally he began nosing around the rifle, pushing the muzzle of it with his snout, as if trying to upend it. By some lucky chance the trigger caught against a twig or a root and the gun was discharged, the bullet passing through the bear's head. The beast tumbled over and soon ceased to move. He even then the St. Louis man was afraid to move. He remained until a searching party from the camp came in sight. They pronounced the bear dead, and he descended. He brought the skin home, but he never tells how his former owner committed suicide.—St. Louis Republic.

The Coffee Plant.

Coffee plants are usually raised from seeds sown in beds upon the mountains, where the thermometer varies from 55 degrees (Fahrenheit) in winter to 80 degrees in the height of summer. When they are two years old the small shoots are set out in rows six feet apart each way. In three years they begin to yield. They are increasingly fruitful for 15 or 20 years, and live for a century. The trees bloom in February in Guadeloupe, the fruit ripens from August to December, but bloom and green fruit and the ripened berry may be sometimes seen at once during the latter part of the year. The berry is red, of the size and color of a cherry; the coffee is made from the kernel or seed, which is divided into two hemispheres. This seed goes through a variety of processes before it becomes the coffee of commerce, and is prepared for use in the delicious beverage which is known all over the world. Most of the coffee of the French islands goes naturally to France, but it is not so cheap as the South American product, and its cultivation is encouraged by governmental bounties. The coffee and the sugar interests do not conflict; for the former occupies the highland and the latter the lowland.—N. Y. Observer.

HARMONY AND UNITY

The Keynote of Wm. C. Whitney's Conference with Democrats.

THE ONLY SALVATION OF THE PARTY.

The Alleged Withdrawal of Senator Cullom From the Presidential Race—The Senator Will Neither Affirm Nor Deny.

New York, April 11.—A Washington special to the Herald says: President Cleveland entertained former Secretary Whitney, Secretary Carlisle and Secretary Lamont at dinner Friday night. The affair was entirely informal, and, it can safely be said, had for Ex-Secretary William C. Whitney. His main object, a thorough discussion of the political situation as it affects the democratic party.

The participants will not even admit that there was a dinner in the White House. It is well known, however, that Mr. Whitney's visit to Washington is entirely political in its character, and it is not doubted that his call upon the president was in furtherance of his purpose in coming to Washington.

One of the objects of the leaders is so often as much as possible democratic criticisms of the administration and attempt to shape matters that by the time the Chicago convention is held the party will be ready to endorse the administration and adopt a platform in line with the policy President Cleveland has carried out.

Mr. Whitney said to a friend yesterday that he believed the prospects for the democracy were growing brighter every day, and if democrats could unite among themselves and go into the campaign in complete harmony they would have an excellent chance of winning.

Harmony and unity will be the text Mr. Whitney will discuss in all his conference with democrats, and if he can bring the leaders of the opposing factions to an understanding to the necessity of following his advice the party will go into the campaign in good condition.

Senator Cullom has written a letter withdrawing from the presidential race. When Reed and other anti-McKinley men heard of this Friday night they hastened to Senator Cullom's house and urged him to reconsider his action. The result is that the letter will not be published as soon as was originally intended.

Senator Cullom said that he had not withdrawn his name as a candidate, and might not do so at all, and that he had not written a letter of withdrawal for publication. When questioned as to whether he had written any such letter he gave an evasive answer.

The withdrawal of Senator Cullom, politicians here believe, means McKinley delegates from Illinois.

COL. JOHN A. COCKERILL.

Death of the Well-Known Newspaper Man at Cairo, Egypt.

New York, April 11.—Col. John A. Cockerill, soldier, editor and recently war correspondent of the New York Herald, died suddenly Friday night in Cairo, Egypt. Death was due to apoplexy. Col. Cockerill was stricken in the harbor shop of Shepherd's hotel at 7:30 p. m., and remained unconscious until shortly after ten o'clock, when he expired.

Col. Cockerill's letters from the far east during the Chino-Japanese war attracted a great deal of attention because of their excellence and breezy style and when the African war began he was sent to Cairo, temporarily, as the war correspondent of the Herald.

In fact, Col. Cockerill was en route home to assume the editorial management of the Herald at the time of his death.

A DIRECT DENIAL.

That Secretary Olney Has Sent Any Message to Spain Proposing Mediation.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The statement from Washington published in a number of newspapers, purporting to give an outline of a dispatch alleged to have been sent by Secretary Olney to the United States minister at Madrid, proposing mediation on the part of the United States in the Cuban insurrection, has no foundation in fact. The most positive and direct denial that can be put in words can be applied to the story.

These statements are made on an unquestionable authority, and in such terms as to justify an explicit repudiation not only of the whole tenor and phraseology of the alleged synopsis of the administration's attitude, but a statement of equal positiveness that no such dispatch was transmitted to Minister Taylor. Undoubtedly the president and Secretary Olney, if not the other members of the cabinet, have discussed the Cuban situation with a view to determining what policy this government should pursue with reference to it, but whatever negotiations, if any, that may have been initiated on the subject they have not been put on paper in any shape.

Acquitted of the Charge of Murder.
CHICAGO, Mo., April 11.—Valentine Sherill was acquitted of a charge of murder in the first degree in the circuit court here Friday. He shot and killed Joseph Bleck in 1893 while attempting to arrest him in the capacity of a township constable.

Jealousy and Murder.

SIX HUMAN LIVES

Lost by an Explosion of Powder in a Montana Mine.

ELEVEN HUNDRED FEET UNDER GROUND.

Two Men Were Undoubtedly Killed Instantly and the Others Suffocated by the Accumulation of Foul Air and Dust.

BUTTE, Mont., April 11.—By an explosion in or near the magazine on the east 1,100-foot level of the St. Lawrence mine, about 4:30 a. m., six men lost their lives. They are:

Con G. Lowney.
John Quinlan.
Ed Shields.
James Dwyer.
John McVeigh.
Patrick O'Rourke.

None of the men, as stated at the mines, were married.

Lowney and Quinlan were shift men, and were due to come off shift about 6:45. The other four men were working in the level beyond the magazine, and were off shift at 4:30.

The magazine is situated 150 feet east of the shaft. Lowney and Quinlan, it is supposed, had gone to the magazine to make their primers. Just how the explosion occurred is not known, as the only ones in the vicinity at the time are dead. Lowney and Quinlan were undoubtedly killed instantly by the explosion. The other four men were probably suffocated by the foul air caused by the explosion. It is possible that the men were coming off shift and were passing the magazine, or were near it when the explosion took place.

The exact situation in regard to this will not be known until the bodies are reached, which will not be for some time. For a distance of 45 feet from the magazine toward the shaft the lagging was blown down, together with large quantities of rock and earth, so that it is impossible to get nearer than that point at present.

A large force of men were put to work at once. The wreck must be tunneled before the bodies can be reached.

With the hope that there might be some show for the four men supposed to have been working beyond the explosion, air pipes were sent down and fitted and the compressors started to work. It is not thought, however, there is any chance of them being alive. They were working somewhere within 150 feet east of the magazine on the 100-foot level, and the explosion either brought down tons of rock on them or choked them by foul air and dust. There was no outlet whatever from the place they were working except by the way of the magazine, and the wreckage there would shut them off.

The men at work trying to get to the place could hear no replies to their calls, so that there is no longer any doubt but that all six men are dead. Quinlan, one of the victims, is a young man and came from Michigan. Shields was an old Nevada miner. O'Rourke is a young man and unmarried.

EXAGGERATED STORIES
Sent Out of Bloodshed in St. Landry Parish, La.

NEW ORLEANS, April 11.—Advices from St. Landry parish report all quiet there. The Chicago Associated Press sent out an extraordinary story from Lafayette, in Vermillion parish, to the effect that 25 negroes were killed and two white men wounded near Mallet, in St. Landry, Thursday, by Dr. Martin's militia; also that Dr. Martin himself was wounded. The sole basis for this wonderful story was the fact, as stated in these dispatches three days ago, that there was a body of men under Dr. Martin, near Mallet, whose purpose was to overawe the negroes by a display of armed men and prevent them from registering, and that a negro had been shot and wounded and his horse killed in a shooting scrape, provoked by a negro. The wounding of the only negro which has occurred in St. Landry recently, but this slight occurrence was magnified by the Chicago association into 25 dead negroes and two whites wounded. Dr. Martin was returned to his home in Arnaudville, as things have quieted down and agreement has been reached whereby the white leaguers disbanded. The Washington artillery will probably be ordered home in a day or two.

BUTOHERED BY A JAP.
William Truesdell and Mrs. Alexander Miller Carved Up by We Frank.

DENVER, Col., April 11.—The dead body of William Truesdell and the dying body of Mrs. Alexander Miller, were brought to Denver. They had been butchered during the night by a ferocious Japanese cook named We Frank. The murderer was employed on the Miller ranch, 12 miles from this city. Friday evening he quarreled with young Truesdell, a boy of 14. Taking up a huge knife, a foot and a half long, the Jap plunged it into the boy's heart, killing him instantly.

Mrs. Miller, the boy's aunt, was coming to her nephew's aid, when the Jap attacked her ferociously, slashing off her hands and plunging the knife into her head, sides and hip. Then he ran off and is still at large.

The bloody spectacle met Mr. Miller, when he arrived home from Denver, toward midnight. The country is being scourged for the murderer and threats of lynching are made.

GIBSON CITY, Ill., April 11.—W. A. Bicket, coroner of Ford county, died at his home at Sibley Friday. Mr. Bicket had been manager of the Hiram Sibley estates in Ford and Livingston counties, which consist of 22,000 acres, valued at $1,500,000, since 1888.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session.)

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senate joint resolution was passed directing the secretary of war to transmit to congress a plan and estimate for the improvement of the Nebraska side of the Missouri river at Sioux City.

The house then went into committee of the whole to further consider the "filled cheese" bill.

An amendment by Mr. Cannon to make the wholesale dealers' tax $300 instead of $250 was lost.

The retail dealers' tax, on motion of Mr. Grosvenor (rep., O.), by instruction of the ways and means committee, was reduced from $40 to $12 a year.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Several Encouraging Features Noted For the Week.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

While there is no general increase in business, there are several encouraging features. First, the advance in prices of flour, wheat, corn, oats, pork and sugar, together with that for steel billets and beams and other iron and steel products, including No. 2 foundry pig, and for tin plates.

The advance in wheat has continued so much longer than expected that the trade is again discussing the likelihood of this being the beginning of the long advance for cereals which they believe must come after the extreme depression of the last few years. Unfavorable crop reports from central western states, confirmation of previous short crop reports from Argentina and Australia, small supplies in Europe and abroad, therefore, but, about all, a revival of speculative interest in wheat, are underneath cereal prices.

Exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States amount to 1,764,000 bushels this week, compared with 1,593,000 last week, 2,521,000 in the week last year, 1,855,000 in the week two years ago, and with 2,948,000 in the corresponding week of 1893. Indian corn exports amount to 1,391,000 bushels this week, compared with 2,169,000 last week, and with 2,140,000 in the week one year ago, and 2,640,000 two years ago.

Business failures in the United States this week number 231, compared with 226 last week, 225 in the week two years ago, 221 in the week last year, and with 165 in the first week of April, 1893.

Thirty business failures are reported throughout the Dominion of Canada this week, compared with 42 last week, 29 in the week a year ago and 38 two years ago.

COMMERCIAL UNION
Of the British Colonies Doesn't Receive Unanimous Approval.

LONDON, April 11.—The Statist has sent letters to the various colonial leaders asking their opinion of the recent speech of Mr. Chamberlain, colonial secretary, advocating a commercial union of the colonies. In reply to this letter Mr. J. Hofmeyr, leader of the Afrikaner party, has been cabled from Capetown expressing his opinion that the proposal embodies an excellent idea, but fears that fiscal reasons will render it impossible at present in South Africa and many other colonies.

Mr. C. C. Kingston, crown advocate of South Australia, cabled merely that the subject ought to be courteously and carefully considered, and Prime Minister Turner of Victoria declined to express an opinion.

The Australian press are generally hostile to the proposal.

EX-CONSUL WALLER
Arrives at New York on the Steamship New York.

QUARANTINE, Staten Island, April 11.—In the second cabin of the New York, which arrived at Southampton this morning, was John L. Waller, late United States consul at Tamatave, Madagascar, who was convicted of treason by the French court and sentenced to 30 years' solitary confinement and transported to France, where he was imprisoned until February 20, when he was released through the intervention of the state department at Washington. Waller freely discussed his imprisonment with the United Press reporter, who boarded the steamer at quarantine. As to the merits of his case and the alleged irregularities in his trial, he preferred not to speak until he had conferred with his friends here.

BABY FARMERS
Arraigned for Child Murder in England and Remanded.

LONDON, April 11.—A woman named Dyer and a man named Palmer were arraigned in the police court at Reading in connection with the discovery of the bodies of a number of infants in the Thames, five of which were found to have been strangled with tapes. All of the bodies were weighted with bricks so that they should sink to the bottom of the river. The murder of the babes was ascribed to baby-farmers. The prisoners were remanded for further examination.

GIVE ME HORSES!
Gen. Weyler Wants Five Thousand Cavalry Immediately.

MADRID, April 11.—Capt. Gen. Weyler has asked for the immediate dispatch of 5,000 cavalry to Cuba and the minister of war is arranging to send them at once. The war office is also considering the question of employing balloons in the military service in Cuba.

The naval squadron at Ferrol has gone to Vigo to begin maneuvers.

Hoping for a Short Session.
WASHINGTON, April 11.—With the fortification bill reported to the house the only general appropriation bill remaining to be submitted to that body for passage is the general deficiency bill. Members feel confident that the so-called long session of the Fifty-fourth congress will adjourn by May 15, and thus prove one of the shortest sessions on record in the past 20 years.

A CHICAGO SEED FIRM

After Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton

WITH AN EXCEEDINGLY SHARP STICK.

A Congressional Inquiry May be Required to Find Out the Inner Workings of the Letting of the Seed Contracts.

CHICAGO, April 11.—A Washington special says:

Secretary Sterling Morton has been made the target of sensational charges preferred by the Chicago seed house of the Northrup, Braslan, Goodwin Co. The trouble grows out of the recent contract for the delivery of seeds.

The contracts just awarded were to Landreth & Sons, of Philadelphia, for vegetable seeds, the price being $70,000, and to L. L. May & Co., of St. Paul, for flower seeds, at a contract price of $5,000.

Before these contracts were let it is alleged the secretary had in his possession the bid of the Northrup, Braslan, Goodwin Co. to furnish both the flower and vegetable seeds for the gross sum of $60,000.

The contracts with the Philadelphia and St. Paul houses were signed the last day of March, and April 2 the Chicago firm telegraphed the secretary inquiring why the contract should not have been let to the lowest bidder.

The only satisfaction they got was a telegram stating the contract had been signed.

The next day the Chicago company telegraphed that they were prepared for and proposed to support charges against the department, and April 4 they received the following official telegram:

For identification please place your firm's name on each package of seed. They will be thoroughly tested as to veracity, purity of purpose and power of growth. The department hopes that it may soon be formulated and given to the country. No one here seems scared up to date.

(Signed) J. STERLING MORTON, Secretary.

The Chicago people at once wired back regretting that a cabinet officer should answer an earnest request for a hearing facetiously and sarcastically, and thereupon proceeded to file voluminous charges at the department.

There are a number of charges in the counts, but it is stated that the real reason that Northrup, Braslan, Goodwin Co. did not get the contract was because of the ill feeling of the secretary and his assistant, Charles Dabney, entertained toward the corporation, because it had been instrumental in securing the passage of the joint resolution directing the purchase and distribution of seed.

In addition to the formal charges filed at the department the complainants have engaged John A. Baldwin, of Council Bluffs, and A. S. Worthington, of Washington, as attorneys to begin suit for $100,000 damages against Mr. Morton individually, because in a New York paper he stated the Chicago seeds were of an inferior character and the company a mere commission house which could not perform its contract.

It is thought the charges will lead to a congressional investigation of the manner of letting the seed contracts.

CHAIRMAN HARRITY
Receives a Certified Check for $20,000 Towards the Expenses of the Democratic National Convention.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The members of the sub-committee of arrangements for the democratic convention, headed by Chairman Harrity, took the suburban express on the Illinois Central at 10 a. m. for the purpose of inspecting the progress of operations on the mammoth coliseum, where the presidential nominating convention is to be held on July 7. The members of the committee expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the result of their observations, and after making a few suggestions, returned to the city. In the afternoon they attended a luncheon at the Iroquois club, at which a certified check for $20,000, one-half of the Chicago expense guarantee, was handed to Chairman Harrity.

Before leaving to inspect the coliseum the sub-committee held a brief meeting and selected Col. John I. Martin, of St. Louis, as the sergeant-at-arms of the democratic national convention. Col. Martin is a well-known politician, and very popular in St. Louis democratic circles.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

Florida's Only Gentleman Dead.

Samuel Benlisa, the most remarkable character in Florida, died at Jacksonville of consumption, aged 63. He was born on the island of St. Thomas, his parents having emigrated there from Morocco, where his uncle, Moses E. Levy, was prime minister to the sultan. Years ago the family came from St. Thomas to Florida. Moses E. Levy married in Florida and became the father of David L. Yulee, once United States senator from Florida. Samuel Benlisa inherited a large fortune, which he used gratifying his eccentric tastes. All his wearing apparel was made in London. He claimed to be the only man in Florida who knew how to dress. He was said to be the best educated man in the state. He once wrote a pamphlet entitled "I Am That I Am," and gave it to Robert Ingersoll, and it is said the latter admitted the pamphlet was the most powerful reply ever made to him. Benlisa was the one man chronicled in the directories of Jacksonville as "gentleman." To intimate he would work gave deadly offense. He claimed ability to trace his ancestry back to King David. He was proud of his Hebrew lineage, but was a Christian. The bulk of Benlisa's property was in land, and of late years he has used the land as currency. He met his bills by giving deeds to land.

A Jealous Lover's Awful Crime.
Miss Sallie Emma Owen, a beautiful and wealthy young lady of Talbotton, Ga., was shot and instantly killed in the parlor of J. H. McCoy's residence by Dr. W. L. Ryder, a dentist.

A. P. Persons, a candidate for congress, was standing beside Miss Owen when the fatal shot was fired. He was also shot, but received only a flesh wound.

Dr. Ryder was a lover of Miss Owen, and it is presumed that she refused to marry him and that he was frenzied with jealousy at the existing friendship between Mr. Persons and the young lady. Miss Owen was a graduate of Wesleyan female college, belonged to one of the wealthiest and most aristocratic families in Georgia, and was a social favorite wherever she was known.

Ryder was captured by a posse a few miles from town. He had made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide by cutting his throat.

Mr. Bankhead's Narrow Escape.
Congressman John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, had a narrow escape from drowning while crossing the Tombigbee river at Fairfield Ferry, Ala. Mr. Bankhead has been stumping the state for free silver and in the interest of his candidacy for the United States senate. He was en route to Pickens county to speak, and was crossing the Tombigbee on a flat, when the horses attached to the buggy became frightened and backed into the river. Mr. Bankhead and the driver jumped from the vehicle just in time to catch the flat, and were saved. Mr. Bankhead lost his valise containing his personal effects and a number of valuable documents.

Gave Poisoned Meat to Children.
Robert Williams, a negro employed at a meat market at Opelika, Ala., was sent to deliver some beef, and having to pass the house of another negro, John Williams, against whom he had a grudge, he poisoned the meat and threw a piece of it to Williams' dogs, who began fighting over it. Williams' children ran out and took the meat away from the dogs, and the negro then turned over all the meat he had to the children, telling them they could have it. They carried it in the house and cooked it, and as a consequence they were made very ill. The dogs are dead. The affair aroused much indignation.

Kentucky Confederates.
The Confederate Veterans' association of Kentucky met at Lexington and considered the proposition of Charles Broadway House, a New York millionaire, who has offered to contribute $100,000 to the confederate battle abbey at New Orleans if the ex-confederates will raise a similar amount. A number of speeches were made endorsing the scheme and resolutions adopted pledging one dollar each for all members of the association. The ladies of the confederate association have also taken the matter up, and they will assist in raising the necessary amount.

Sentence of Lynchers Affirmed.
The case of the State vs. Joseph Jowers and John Edwards, from the circuit court of Elmore county, has been affirmed by the supreme court of Georgia. This is the case in which the two defendants and six or eight other white men went to the house of a defenseless negro in Elmore county at midnight last year, and taking him into the woods, whipped him unmercifully, and finally shot and killed him.

Population of St. Louis.
The late city directory of St. Louis fixes the population at 611,268. In 1890 the total population, according to the estimate of the directory publisher, was 466,200. The United States found 451,770 inhabitants. At the present rate of increase the population of the city in 1900 will be 725,000, in round numbers. This does not include suburbs, that are essentially a part of the corporation, except that they are not in it.

The Chronicle is authorized to announce A. S. Liles as a candidate for the office of Constable of Bent No. 1, subject to the action of the democratic county convention.

The Senate is delighted.

GRANDMA can now prepare to eat her dish of crow.

HERE'S to red-headed Joe, Alabama's next governor.

IT is now Congressman Clarke, if you please.

GOOD-BYE, Mr. Clarke. You made a gallant fight, but got licked like blazes.

JOHNSTON WINS.

Joseph P. Johnston, of Jefferson county, will be the democratic nominee for governor of Alabama. A large majority of the people have so declared, and that settles it.

The Chronicle was an humble supporter of R. H. Clarke, because he represented our views on the money question, and, further, because he was an administration democrat. But he got left and so did we. However, we have no tears to shed, neither have we any crow to eat. On the contrary we propose to support Mr. Johnston just as earnestly and as loyally as we would have Mr. Clarke had he been the victor.

We recognize the right of the majority to rule, and we intend at all times to abide its decision. And we can support Mr. Johnston very cordially, too. He is a democrat; there is no questioning that, and he has been a zealous, hard-working democrat, always ready to respond to the commands of his leaders. The only crime we know of his ever being charged with was that he wanted to be governor, and we don't think even that is so serious but that he can outlive it. At any rate we are going to be found whooping it up for Johnston, Jefferson's red-headed champion, from this out.

Our motto is "democratic at all times and under all circumstances." That means cheerful acquiescence in the rule of the majority, and as Joseph P. Johnston represents the majority, we are for him heart and soul. Now, boys, the die has been cast, and it is time to line up. No squirming or kicking; we haven't time for that. And don't stop to explain how it was done, either. It was done fairly and honorably, and because we are on the losing side don't make it otherwise. But here is a grain of comfort for you. In August we can have the pops hunting to see where they were struck, and who struck them and how it was done. Then, boys, the thing will look different to us. As Gov. Cobb said yesterday in the convention, "it makes a decided difference who furnishes the corpse."

THE COUNTY CONVENTION.

The democratic county convention assembled here yesterday, and it was as fine a body of men as ever assembled in this county, or any other county in the state for that matter. A casual glance over the delegates could not fail to impress one with that fact, barring the writer, of course. They were democrats, every one of them, democrats of the true stamp. They came here with but one object in view, to promote the interest of the democratic party. A full account of the proceedings will be found in another column. All conceded that Shelby county is overwhelmingly for Clarke, and it was but natural and we think perfectly just that he should have the entire delegation to the state convention. We are free to admit that a pro-Clarke in all the counties in the state would have been the fairest and most accurate method of ascertaining the wishes of the people, but as this rule was not adopted and with the knowledge that in every county in which Johnston had a majority he would get the solid delegation to the state convention, it would have been an injustice to have prorated in this county where the Clarke forces were so largely in the majority. These are our candid views, and we are decidedly of the opinion that the convention did nothing more nor less than its simple duty.

We were highly gratified at the unanimous endorsement of the administration of President Cleveland and Governor Oates, and the enthusiastic awakened showed the loyalty of Shelby county's democracy to our leaders.

Our forces are in excellent trim for the fight this summer. There are no scores to heal nor factions to conciliate, but they are a unit, solid and invincible. Two to one we will whip the combined opposition this year easier than we did four years ago.

COST OF BAD ROADS.

From the New York Recorder.

According to statistics collected by the office of road inquiry of the department of agriculture, the amount of loss each year by bad roads of the country is almost beyond belief. Some 10,000 letters of inquiry were sent to intelligent and reliable farmers throughout the country and returns were obtained from about 1,200 counties, giving the average length of haul in miles from farms to markets and shipping points, the average weight of load hauled and the average length per ton for the whole length of haul. Summarized, it appears that the general average length of haul is twelve miles, the weight of load for two horses 2,002 pounds and the average cost per ton per mile 25 cents or $3 for the entire load.

Allowing conservative estimates for tonnage of all kinds carried over public roads, the aggregate expense of this transportation is figured at $496,414,600 per annum. Those in a position to judge calculate that two-thirds of this or nearly $331,000,000, could be saved if the roads were in reasonably good condition. At $4,000 per mile a very good road can be constructed, and if an amount equaling the savings of one year were applied to improving highways, 157,000 miles of road in this country could be put in condition. The effect of this would be a permanent improvement and not only would the farmer be astonished in the sudden reduction in his road tax, but he would also wonder at the remarkable falling-off in the cost of transportation. He would also find that he required fewer horses and less feed for them. He could make two trips to market a day instead of one, when ability to get his goods there at a time when high prices are ruling is a matter of great consequence. Farmers are beginning to apply a little simple arithmetic to some of these matters and it is not too much to expect that in the near future we shall see a decided revolution in the condition of our rural highways.

TRIBUTE TO CLEVELAND.

A Deaf and Dumb Tramp Printer Gives His Views.

The following are the views of a deaf and dumb tramp printer who works in the office of a North Alabama country paper on Grover Cleveland: "Cleveland is a great president. The misfortunes of his last administration are the logical result of twenty-five years of republican legislation. Yet Cleveland, whose powers as president are limited by the constitution, is blamed for all the sins and transgressions of the past twenty-five years, which have brought us down to the verge of bankruptcy. There never was a party or a king or emperor in the world's history that was so unpatriotic, sectional and avaricious as the republican party during the last twenty-five years. That party looked only to its own interest and not to the interest of the country at large. Cleveland has had to combat this partisanship at Washington in all its forms, besides having on his hands a refractory democratic congress. Cleveland is too big a man for most men to size up. When the clouds clear away and fifty years years roll by men will get the true perspective of one of the greatest men in our history."

Ten Good Citizenship Commandments.

The great truth is ever the simple truth. The ten simple good citizenship commandments enunciated by Rev. William G. Clarke, D. D., of Chicago, at the Boston convention, contain the genius of the whole uprising for civic purity, says the Golden Rule:

1. Thou shalt be an intelligent citizen.
2. A virtuous citizen.
3. An active citizen.
4. Thou shalt employ thy voice and thy pen as well as thy vote.
5. Thou shalt cast thy ballot at the caucus, the primaries, the convention, if you are sent there, and at the polls.
6. Thou shalt be an inveterate foe of political corruption.
7. Thou shalt resist the forces of lawlessness.
8. Thou shalt not be the slave of any party.
9. Thou shalt protect our American institutions, our free ballot, free schools, free press and freedom of worship.
10. Thou shalt battle against the tyranny and infamy of our liquor traffic.

The following, from an exchange, is a striking example of the effects of extravagance: "We have recently heard of a man who mortgaged his farm to buy his wife a pair of diamond earrings. The wife took in washing to pay interest on the mortgage, but on the first job she lost one of the 'sparks' in the suds, whereupon she tried to hang herself in the barn, but the rope broke and she fell on a jersey cow worth one hundred and fifty dollars and broke its back. Her husband undertook to shoot the cow, to put it out of its misery, but the cow burst and destroyed both his eyes, and the wife then ran away with a lightning-rod peddler. The mortgage is still on deck and bids fair to live to a ripe old age."

Moral—Always keep a good, strong hemp rope in your barn."

GOVERNOR OATES

Writes a Letter—Wants the National Convention to Settle the Money Question and All Democrats Look to Success of the Ticket.

Gov. Oates writes a letter to the Birmingham State Herald to correct an error made by that paper, and the concluding paragraph is as follows:

When I stated that "We never had a law authorizing the free and unlimited coinage of silver," I was in error. There has been such a law, but the amount of silver coined during its existence was so small that it was infinitesimal compared with the amount coined by the government under the Bland-Allison act which limited the amount. And when coinage was declared free with a small charge for exchange, or mintage, the amount of silver in a dollar was worth as much, and sometimes more, than a gold dollar; but free and unlimited coinage of silver dollars at a ratio of 16 to 1 now when the silver dollar is worth in the market only 52 cents would indeed be a new and untried experiment in this country." As long as the metal in a gold dollar and a silver dollar when melted were of the same commercial value the free and liberal coinage of both was highly beneficial to us. Now the gold dollar, whether coined or melted, is worth a dollar in every country in the world, while the silver dollar, if melted, is worth but 52 cents. In its coined state it passes as a law dollar and a commercial dollar, only so far as people have confidence that the United States will maintain its law of parity and make all our dollars exchangeable. But the silver dollar, when melted, ceases to be either a law dollar or a commercial one. It is then a lump of silver bullion worth all over the world 52 cents and no more. Such a change in our coinage laws as you advocate would indeed be a new and untried experiment. The free coinage advocates honestly believe that free coinage by this country alone would raise the price of silver bullion all over the world to $1.29 an ounce, and thus make the silver dollar of equal commercial value to gold. If I believed this, I would vote and work for free coinage at 16 to 1. But apply the test of the melting pot and the result is as above stated. If the theory be true, let us put two and a half dollars worth of gold into a coin and stamp it as five dollars. What will it then be worth in the markets of the world? Five dollars? No! It will be worth but two and a half and the free coinage of it by this country and stamping it for double its commercial value would not raise that metal throughout the world to double its commercial value. It is equally impossible to double the commercial value of silver.

But that which gives me most concern now is the success of our ticket at the polls in August. Let us all resolve to accept in good faith the settlement of the silver question by the national democratic convention at Chicago next July and pull together for the election of our state ticket.

A LIST OF DON'TS.

Don't think that any medicine will take the place of right living.

Don't persuade yourself that lying in bed late in the morning will make up for keeping late hours. One hour's sleep before midnight is worth three after midnight.

Don't fret; whatever else you do, don't fret; don't scold; don't worry; keep calm and even tempered. This will preserve your face from wrinkles, your body from infirmities, your mind from unrest and friction, and prolong your life in peace.

Don't use any device to preserve beauty, such as paints, powders, dyes or bleaches; the only thing that will really preserve or procure beauty is good health. A clean and healthy body and a sound and active mind are the only beautifiers known to man.

Don't wear anything tight—neither tight hats, like some men do, nor tight shoes, like some women do, nor tight shoes, like both men and women are apt to do.

Don't expect any medicine to cure you of a disease in two or three weeks which you have been many years in acquiring. Old bodily derangements do not leave quickly.

Don't get ashamed of your natural station in life. Don't get ashamed of your business. Don't get beyond your generation. Don't get too big for your clothes. Don't get too proud for your purse.

Don't allow anything to sour or mold about the house or allow any room to remain unventilated, dark and damp for any length of time.

Don't be afraid of sun and air when you are sick. The best disinfectant in the world is sunlight. The best invigorator known to man is fresh air.

Don't be afraid to confess a fault or apologize for a wrong act. True courage is always willing to make amends. Don't judge of a man's religion by what he says; wait and see what he does.

Don't judge of a woman's virtues by her public graces; first learn what her every day conduct is at home.

Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than make good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. CASTORIA for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.

BROTHER, SISTER, LISTEN!

Perhaps I can put you on to a scheme. You know this is a progressive age. Old moss-grown methods are rapidly playing out. I propose to keep up with the procession. Life is too short to continue longer in the old ruts. New methods bring new results, also new goods and likewise new customers. I have too pretty a stock of goods to keep them hid from the world. Therefore I now proclaim to the world at large, and to the people of Shelby county in particular that I have almost anything they can call for, and having bought these goods in large quantities, I can offer many bargains to cash customers. Here is one for a starter:

100 Pieces Standard Prints 4 1-2c.

Now that's pretty smooth, ain't it? Just so; but let me tell you before I forget it, that is only a sample. There are plenty of bargains in my store just as attractive. Seeing is believing. Come and I will convince you. One more bargain.

Big Lot Challies Spring and Summer Shades 4c.

Spring is here and summer is almost within sight, and of course you want straw hats. Don't mention it. I've got 'em, more than you ever saw in one store before in your life. Big, little, old or young, come and get supplied.

Yours for business.

Marvelous Results.
From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimendale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church, at River Junction, she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

J. L. Peters paid the Magic City a visit yesterday.

Mrs. Charles Sparks, of Shelby, visited friends here Tuesday.

W. S. Cary, of Montevallo, was in town Friday and Saturday.

Frank Jackson, of Kymulga, was among his friends here Sunday.

Miss Guelma Green left yesterday for a visit to friends at Mallory's.

James Evans and family spent Sunday with relatives on Yellow Leaf.

Mrs. C. C. Elliott, of Vincent, is spending awhile with relatives here.

Mrs. J. L. Elliott, of Vincent, was a visitor in our town two days this week.

J. D. Mason left yesterday for Selma to attend the state Sunday school convention.

Joe Spencer and E. B. Teague transacted business in Birmingham last Saturday.

Miss Florence Farrell, of Yellow Leaf, is on a visit to her friend, Miss Ida O'Hara.

Mr. and Mrs. McMillan, of Calera, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Green Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Seybrooks, of Childersburg, spent Friday and Saturday with her mother, Mrs. C. N. Pitts, who has been quite sick.

A. B. Milner is at home on a short visit. We are always glad to see "Ak" but guess there is a "sweetlassie" who is quite delighted.

Judge McMillan and family will leave tomorrow for Monroeville, the old home of the Judge, and will return in about a week.

Miss Sadie Williams, who came home from college several weeks ago on account of delicate health, left Monday for Bailey Springs to take up her college course again, having fully recovered her health.

J. K. Milner, the Anniston tornado, who occasionally varies his program and develops strong cyclone methods, gave our community a call this week. He reports trade fair only, but says he continues to draw his salary with an accuracy, precision and regularity that delights his employers.

We received a very encouraging letter this week from our old friend and subscriber J. M. Tate, now of Farmerville, Texas, but for many years a resident of this county. Better still, he was thoughtful enough to enclose presents to run his date ahead on the paper. Mr. Tate is a democrat of the old school, and wants his brethren here to know that he is still in the harness.

Gold bugs, silver bugs, greenbacks, everybody are figuring how far to make a dollar go. We have solved the question. All you have to do is to bring a gold dollar, a silver dollar, a greenback, eggs, chickens, corn, potatoes, to our store. We are the statesmen. We have solved the question, everybody is pleased. How did we do it? We will pay you highest price for what you have to sell; we will sell you what we have to sell at the lowest price. So don't worry, but come to the Columbiana Mercantile Co's store at Columbiana, Ala. Mr. H. Fox is secretary of the treasury and will fix you up so that when you leave his store he will have the money, you will have the cheapest goods and the financial question is solved. Come quick and see H. Fox.

As we remarked only a few weeks since under somewhat similar circumstances, that good or bad luck (call it anything you choose) usually over-whelms the victim when it once gets fairly started, we give another striking illustration to support our theory. Our esteemed mayor is the victim. Scarcely had he regained his equanimity after having been "almost unanimously" chosen as the official head of our municipality, and was on last Saturday engaged in canvassing the official returns of said election preparatory to declaring the result, when a messenger entered his office to convey the joyful tidings that he was the proud father of another girl. He had recovered sufficiently by Wednesday to be able to preside as chairman over the county democratic convention, but he is still a trifle nervous.

On Sunday morning last, April 12, 1886, at the Davis infirmary, Birmingham, Ala., the gentle spirit of Constantine P. Caldwell took leave of this earthly tenement to be with God, aged 28 years. The deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Caldwell, of this place. He was born and reared here, where he was well known, and his many virtues appreciated. Mr. Caldwell was a young man of great promise. When about twenty he removed to Birmingham, where amidst many great temptations he lived a pure and blameless life, establishing a well deserved reputation as a business man, and left an unsullied character. Though surrounded by numerous temptations, so alluring to the young he lived a pure, christian life. His last days were days of great suffering, which he bore with great equanimity and christian resignation, being sustained by the all-powerful arm of Him in whom he trusted. To his afflicted brothers and relatives we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

Rev. Geo. Mason and wife left yesterday for their daughter's home near Talladega Springs, where they will spend the summer.

Mr. A. S. Liles is a candidate for the office of constable of beat 1, as will be seen by reference to our column of announcements. He says he has always been a democrat, has never scratched a ticket, and as he has never before asked for a reward of any kind, he concluded to start at the bottom of the ladder and merit promotion. He is an active democrat, and would do the work of the office with a vim. No grass grows under his feet.

Proceedings of County Democratic Convention.

Convention was called to order at 12:45 o'clock p. m. by T. J. Martin, chairman of the county executive committee. After prayer by Rev. T. M. Wilson, Mr. Martin nominated as temporary officers of the convention, W. B. Browne chairman and C. C. DuBose and E. S. Lyman secretaries. Mr. Browne thanked the executive committee for the honor conferred on him and counselling harmony in the further proceedings declared the convention temporarily organized. On motion of D. R. McMillan the various delegations handed in to the secretaries their credentials and lists of delegates. On motion of W. R. Oliver a committee of nine was appointed by the chair on credentials as follows: W. R. Oliver, W. H. Bell, W. S. Cary, N. X. Mosteller, R. W. Cobb, J. E. Ruffin, C. L. O'Neal, M. H. Fowler and W. W. Wallace. On motion a recess of ten minutes was taken. Upon re-assembling the committee on credentials reported no contests and that the lists as handed in to the secretaries were correct, showing full delegations from every precinct except No. 14 which was not represented. The report was adopted unanimously. On motion of J. H. Gunn, the temporary officers were made permanent. On motion of C. C. Oliver, the chair appointed a committee of nine on resolutions as follows:

C. C. Oliver, J. R. White, D. R. McMillan, J. T. Leeper, J. P. Spencer, J. P. West, W. S. Cary, J. F. Pope, B. S. Rowe. W. R. Turman was added to the committee on motion. The following resolutions were offered respectively and referred to the committee on resolutions.

By J. F. Pope:
RESOLVED, That the delegates from Shelby county to the state democratic convention be instructed to cast five votes for R. H. Clarke and two votes for J. P. Johnston for governor.

By N. A. Graham:
RESOLVED 1st, That this convention heartily and cordially endorses the able, wise and patriotic administration of our national chief executive, Grover Cleveland, and in behalf of the democracy of the county of Shelby returns thanks to him for the courageous stand he has always taken and continues to maintain for a sound financial system.

RESOLVED 2nd, That this convention heartily commend the wise administration of our state affairs by the present governor, Hon. Wm. C. Oates.

By T. J. Martin:
RESOLVED, That the delegates selected by this convention to represent the democracy of Shelby county in the state democratic convention, which is to meet in the city of Montgomery, on Tuesday, the 21st instant, be, and they are hereby instructed to cast Shelby county's solid vote for Hon. Richard H. Clarke for governor.

J. E. Ruffin moved that a committee of nine be appointed to nominate delegates to the state convention. Motion, that this lay on table till committee on resolutions shall have reported was adopted.

The committee on resolutions reported the following:

RESOLVED 1st, In recognition of the wise and statesmanlike administration of our national affairs by that ideal democrat, Grover Cleveland, we in convention assembled do hereby attest our endorsement and further, declare our acknowledgement of the wise and patriotic services he has rendered the people of the United States during the perilous conditions that have threatened our country during his incumbency and award to his name an equal right to be placed along with that illustrious triumvirate of American presidents, Washington, Jefferson and Jackson.

RESOLVED 2nd, That this convention heartily commend the wise administration of our state affairs by the present governor, Hon. Wm. C. Oates.

RESOLVED 3rd, That the delegates selected by this convention to represent the democracy of Shelby county in the state democratic convention, which is to meet in the city of Montgomery, on Tuesday, the 21st instant, be, and they are hereby instructed to cast Shelby county's solid vote for Hon. Richard H. Clarke for governor.

After discussion the resolutions as reported were adopted.

Dr. J. H. Gunn renewed the motion that the chair appoint a committee of nine to nominate delegates to the state convention. The following were appointed by the chair:

J. H. Gunn, W. H. Bell, E. S. Lyman, D. R. McMillan, J. H. Weldon, E. V. Caldwell, J. H. Wilder, G. E. Abbott and J. R. White and the following were reported by said committee as delegates and alternates viz: Delegates: T. J. Martin, John Avery, W. R. Oliver, W. B. Browne, W. S. Cary, J. E. Ruffin and W. R. Turman. Alternates: J. H. Weldon, C. T. Lee, S. H. Gist, Dr. W. S. DuBose, N. A. Graham, C. C. DuBose and C. L. McRoney, which report was received and adopted.

On motion of Hon. R. W. Cobb the present county executive committee was continued until the county nominating convention and authorized to fill vacancies in the same.

On motion the convention adjourned sine die.

Spring, sweet spring with its bright flowers and singing birds has come. Welcome, thrice welcome you are.

Amos Daniels was around to see the dear people last week. He has all of the "gaits" of a candidate and will make a good run in this beat.

Dr. Tommie Nelson has his tendency about completed and has almost any kind of a foul imagination, but he is not contented and he now wants two sheep and a goat. The sheep to get wool to make his winter socks and the goat to drive to his buggy.

The Harpersville school will close in three weeks and Prof. Florey is preparing for a grand exhibition of which all will be given due notice and respectfully invited.

Dr. Nelson threw his doors wide open and raised his windows up to the young people of Harpersville last Friday night, and a pleasant time was reported.

We extend to the good people of Columbiana our congratulations in their victory last Monday and are glad to know that the 260 Tallapoosa lawyer was not in it.

Tom Davis did his first courting last week. I don't mean the girls. He just simply went down to assist Judge Brewer at Columbiana.

Col. E. V. Caldwell came home a few days ago from Birmingham, where he has been serving as a United States petit juror. He says that the United States court is a big thing, but nothing to be compared with Harpersville supreme court.

Prof. C. H. Florey went down to Womack Hill last week to be at the marriage of his friend, Prof. O. W. Elliott, and Stella Posey conducted the school during his absence. Prof. Elliott taught school here in 1894, and gave general satisfaction as a teacher, and we wish for him and his bride, who was a Miss Ruby Bowlin, a long and happy life and may a bright light ever illuminate their pathway.

A. A. Logan and Miss Emma Bradford were married on the 6th inst. It was quite a surprise to the community. Mr. Logan gave an entertainment at the residence of his brother-in-law, D. W. Sharbutt, pretending it was upon his departure to California. But Monday morning he took Miss Emma in the buggy and went to Talladega, accompanied by J. R. Gorman and Miss Scottie Logan, and were married, Rev. F. G. Mullen officiating. They returned about 8 o'clock in the evening and were present at the entertainment. May you have just clouds enough over your lives to cause a glorious sunset, and may your journey through life be of perfect, unalloyed happiness, your joys be as deep as the ocean and your sorrows as light as its foam is the wish of your sincere friend, Dr. Boyer visited Columbiana Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jackson returned to Tallapoosa, Ga., last week.

J. R. Sommerville made a business trip to Selma last week.

J. F. Pope made a business trip to Birmingham Thursday.

H. A. Jackson went to Anniston on business last week.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara, of Columbiana, spent several days with friends and relatives in our city last week.

W. H. Hutchings has finished his school in Coosa county and is here dealing in politics and fish.

Some of the young people made a trip to Shelby last Monday evening to witness the wonders of the Shelby furnace.

The Social Purity Literary League met at the Wilsonville Institute last Friday evening. Quite a large crowd was present. It seems that the larger place we have for meeting the larger congregation we have. The programme was beautifully delivered. The society adjourned with the enrollment of four members. We were somewhat disappointed at the non-arrival of more of our Columbiana friends.

The fishing party from here last Saturday afternoon were compelled to leave some of the young people on account of their conveyance being so heavily loaded, which caused some misunderstanding that we hope will be smoothed over. The party report a pleasant trip and say the bites were numerous as well as injurious.

Rev. J. M. McCord's regular appointment last Sunday was filled by Rev. O'Hara, of Howard college. It gives us pleasure to have him with us. He is a well polished gentleman and seems to be fully prepared to enter the theological world.

The young people of our city look forward to next Friday evening with anticipations of a very pleasant time. The ladies of the Baptist church will give an ice cream supper at the residence of J. F. Pope. The management is under the direction of Miss Georgia Pope. This alone is sufficient to prove that it will be a success. Both old and young are most cordially invited.

THE EASTER SLEEVES.

The sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves.

The ladies wear today;
They make me think in olden days,
Of little stacks of hay.

The sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves.

Worn on the ladies dress;
Carry me back to childhood days,
Amongst the hornets' nests.

The sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves.

Are on a mighty boom;
One pair I saw last Sunday eve,
Looked just like two full moons.

The sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves.

The sleeves the girls now wear;
And then to cap the whole climax,
They scorch and friz their hair.

The sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves.

Worn by the young and old;
Made of satin and silk and lawn,
And all the cloth that's sold.

The sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves.

So tall and broad you know;
But few can sit in one church pew,
For two makes quite a row.

The sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves, the sleeves.

They are much in the way;
We think the arm is there somewhere,
But where we cannot say.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama, Shelby county.

Probate Court, April 1886.

Estate of Joseph T. Dorrough, Deceased.

To Lydia M. Dorrough, who resides somewhere in Texas, but at what particular place is unknown; William D. Dorrough, who resides at Cumberland, Miss.; John C. Dorrough, of Middleton, Ky.; James W. Dorrough, of Columbus, Ga.; and all non-residents of Alabama.

This day came W. F. Thetford, Jr., as administrator de bonis non of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath, praying for an order of sale of certain lands described therein, and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of division, upon the ground that the same cannot be divided equitably without a sale thereof. It is ordered that the 25th day of May, 1886, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same, if they think proper.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

FROM OLD ROCKY.

The Man with One "Gallus" Has the Floor.

The Motto "Peace on Earth" Causes a Church Row—A Buxom Widow in the Settlement—Deacon Joiner's Unsuccessful Love Suit.

There is nothing like religion in this green and wicked old world we live in, and nothing better unless it maybe might be a little more of it. And when I say that I don't mean this rainy day, long-faced, Sunday-go-to-meetin religion. I mean plain, old-fashioned religion, that which will stand by and stay with a man every day and every hour, and be a prop and a pillow and a comfort through all his trials and struggles and temptations, and triumphs and troubles and tribulations.

"Peace on Earth." It aint for me to say for certain whether they have got any religion to speak of down at old Flat Rock church. But from general appearances it would raley seem to me as if they must have a monstrous strange and sorry and peccurios article of it.

Last Sunday was a week ago they put in, they did, and had the most scandalous church rumpus down there that has ever come to pass in all this short of the woods. It looks like they have had two wings to that church for the longest—the Tomlin wing and the Skinner wing. The Tomlins they wanted to do the floppin, and likewise also the Skinners. It was pull Dick, pull devil, who should and who shouldn't as between the two wings, and consequently it was mighty scarce and seldom that they would flop together peaceful and unanimous in the kindred ties of church fellowship, as it were. For two years past every time I had went down into the Flat Rock neighborhood seems to me like I could see a thin skim of smoke on the air and smell somethin burnin as from afar off. But last Sunday the fire broke out and bust loose right, and Flat Rock church went to pieces in the general smashup and confusion.

Now, you might not believe it if I didn't tell you so, but the one little thing which brings on that tremendous church rumpus was a motto with the words—"Peace on Earth." The women folks had went to work and got up a glorious big Sunday school celebration. The church was trimmed up rich and promiscuous from floor to rafters with flowers that bloom in the spring. Man, sir, there was flowers all around and flowers everywhere, and that dear old meetin house was a delightful sight to see. But in the general fixments you could shet one eye and see where the two wings of the church—the Tomlin wing and the Skinner wing—had tried their level blandest to see which could flop the hardest and fly the highest. Presently a covey of girls all dressed in white came in bearin the big banner, with the words—"Peace on Earth." Sister Tomlin riz up and said they would hang the banner on the left hand wall. But Sister Skinner lowed they would do nothing of the sort—they would hang it on the right hand wall. Well, sir, from that the two wings got to floppin fast and furious—one on the right side and one on the left. They got madder and madder and hotter and hotter, till finally at last the whole shootin match went into rough and tumble fight to settle the question as to which was which and who was who. Of course it was a plum scandalation on the country for miles around, and I wouldn't tell it if I didn't know the news would leak out somewhere else, but bless gracious in the general scrap and scramble they pulled and snatched and ripped and tore till they made doll rags and strings out of that glorious banner, with the motto and the words—"Peace on Earth."

Mind you, now—"I don't even make out like they haven't got plenty of religion, such as it is, down there at Flat Rock church. But it raley don't look to me like they have got very much of that good, old-fashion sort which brought the sunshine of peace to a lost and ruined world.

Sombody Had to Suffer.

Whenever two white men by the name of Andy Lucas and Blev Scroggins shake hands and lock arms and put their heads together to "make the time pass pleasant," as they are wont to say, somethin is more than probable to drap, and somebody will have to suffer.

Consequently Deacon Joiner is now "off of his feet" and "dead on his legs" and laid up for repairs. Blev and Andy they throwed out a trot line for the deacon. They baited the hook with love and moonshine and foolishness, and the deacon he bit like a natural-born sucker. Then the boys they cut the strings and let that poor old man float off, hopeless and helpless, down the snaggy fork of Salt river.

Year before last a buxom, fine-lookin widder by the name of Misses Logan moved into the settlement from somewhere down in the stump hills. You maybe might not think it jest to look at her, but the widder has got five boys at her house and they are all grown in a manner. But she don't even sorter half way look it. She is as handsome as a right young girl, and spry and action as a cat. She powders and primp and dresses clean out of sight, whilst the ribbons and the laces, the silks and the satins jest naturally whistle as she walks along the big road.

Fifteen years ago the hand of sorrow and affliction was laid rough and heavy on the Joiner place, and the deacon he was left a sad and lonely widower in this wicked and weary old world here below. After that the deacon never did recover until about the time when the Widder Logan moved her washin into the settlement. But henceforward from that time the deacon put on his best Sunday clothes reglar and constant, got his hair dyed black and brown in spots, wore a small flower garden on his manly chest, dispensed with poetry to anybody that would listen, and cut the pigeon wing around the buxom widder to beat creation.

Anybody and everybody could see with one eye shet that the widder wouldn't give four bits a dozen for Deacon Joiner. No doubts but what she had her line out, you understand, and hit well baited, but yet still she want fishin for second-hand deacons any to speak of this spring.

If you haven't lived long enough to find it out, I have lived long enough to tell you that the blandest, outdoinest and most gonyest biggest fool that ever left his footprints on the broad bosom of the earth is one of these old fools when he takes up a fool notion that he must go and git married. And that was Deacon Joiner to a nat's heel—all around and all over. He didn't bruce up like a man and ask the widder if he might call in passin and then let nature take her course. The deacon he had the spring disease. He had a scandalous bad case of it. He had it so bad till he could mighty nigh taste it. But he didn't have the necessary grit in his craw to go on and take the medicine—kill or cure.

Now, in the main time the general facts in the case had leaked out promiscuous in the settlement when Blev Scroggins and Andy Lucas went a fishin for Deacon Joiner, and the deacon he bid more free and quicker than any speckled trout ever gobbled a blue-tail fly.

The Deacon Takes the Bait.

So in them days it came to pass—on a Saturday and late along in the shank of the evening—that Blev and Andy and the deacon all met up together on the road from town. The weather hit was "jest simply amphibious," as Andy tells it, with the flowers bloomin and the birds singin and the sun shinin and the bees hummin.

"Ef I was playin your hand, deacon," says Blev as they rid on together, "by gattins I would play it to win, or I would throw down the gards and quit the game. Why don't you jest fiddlin and foolin and fluttrin around the edges and go on and marry the widder, and let the agony blow over?"

"Them's my sentiments, deacon," put in the great horse trader, "if a horse can run and won't run, somethin ought to pull his shoes off and turn him out for cowbait."

"Well, now, boy," says the deacon, "you all know and everybody knows that I am more than willin to proceed with the proceedings if I could only get but for certain when to come in. But, dad blame it, the widder is so overlastin high-headed and coltish—she pulls on the bits so constant and so hard, till, by gracious, I don't know where to break through or how to start."

"I know what is the matter with you, deacon," says Blev; "blamed if you aint skeered."

"No, I aint skeered," says the deacon. "I have seen more women than one in my day and generation, boys, and the rustlin of a bunch of calico, with a few silks and satins throwed in for good measure, don't jar my hand a blessed bit."

"Well, if you aint skeered, I can tell you where to break in and how to take hold," says Blev. "Climb into your best Sunday riggins to-morrow and go up there and catch the widder and hold her and kiss her. Don't go to foolin and fummelin around till you lose your nerve, but sail right in and nail her on the spot."

"Then you can tell her that you didn't have your right mind—that you had sich a monstrous bad case till you raley didn't know what you was doin," says Andy by way of a bracer.

"Don't you do nothin of the sort, deacon," says Blev. "You tell her that you jest naturally loved her so hard, and so fervent, and so reckless till you gattins you couldn't help it."

"Dadburned if I don't do it," says the deacon, which by this time the boys had worked him up to the stickin pint. "Shink or swim, hit or miss, right or wrong, survive or surrender, I will go and kiss the widder."

The Storm Broke Loose.

On their return back home from town that night Blev and Andy come to our house to let me know that the "old hen was on, with a full settin of eggs and every egg full of devilment," and she was more than probable to come off the next day.

So, consequently, it want no ways surprisin to me when Deacon Joiner rid by the next mornin, dressed in an inch of his life and headed for the Widder Logan's. The deacon had on his "double-action Winchester" coat, or Aunt Nancy Newton would call it, and cinnamon drops on his hair till blamed if you couldn't smell him comin for 300 yards.

Deacon Joiner he rid on up there to the Logan place. He hitched his mule at the horse rack. He went bustlin into the house. He saw the widder. He caught her. He held her. He kissed her.

Then the storm broke loose. Everything that goes up must come down. The widder, she screamed. She fainted. She fell down in it. Then the Logan boys come into the game. They saw the deacon. He had lost his nerve and was burnin the wind for the horse rack. They went out after him. They caught him.

No, we didn't have no first-class funeral pursuant to adjournment. But when them Logan boys got through with Deacon Joiner and left him out there in the big road, me and Blev and Andy had to hook up a tender horse wagon and go and pick him up, tender like and gentle and haul him back home. The widder she has now went and got a warrant out against Deacon Joiner for assault with intent to murder. And the deacon says, by all that's good and bad, if he ever lives to git up from there he will be forever done with at least two men and all the women in creation.

But somebody had to suffer. Of course it was wrong. Everybody knows it was wrong, and I wouldn't even sorter half-way make out like it was right. But the good Lord made Deacon Joiner and Blev Scroggins and Andy Lucas. But after he made them three he never did make any more exactly like them.

Hat Raising by Machinery.

The commissioner of patents has granted a patent to James C. Boyle, an eccentric citizen of Spokane, Wash., for what he calls "a saluting device." When attached to the ordinary head it lifts the wearer of the manual labor of lifting his hat when he meets an acquaintance and his hands are otherwise engaged. All he has to do to accomplish this is to nod slightly. The motion starts the machinery, which is in the interior of the tile. The hat is suddenly hoisted about one foot above the head on an apparatus like that attached to a self-dumping coal cart. Then, after remaining at rest for a moment, it describes a semi-circle as it settles back upon the cranium,

MR. GLADSTONE AT WORK.

A Busy Man with a Passion for Saving the Minutes.

Three writing tables stand in the Hawarden castle library, and not one of them is for show. At one table Mrs. Gladstone writes many of her letters; the second, standing between two windows, is Mr. Gladstone's political desk. It looks now too neat, too tidy, by far, for the taste of any Gladstonian politician; the blotting pad has an unused air about it; the pen-wipers, racks, knives and other appurtenances stand about with a mathematical precision which means want of use, and there is neither note nor letter to be seen. The political desk, at all events for the present, must be numbered among the unemployed. But turn to the third, the literary writing table in the niche by the window, which is the most peaceful corner in that place of peace. You may there at any time during the day see a sight that will make your heart rejoice, and that will linger in your mind while pictures linger there at all.

The whole desk is covered with reference books of all shapes and sizes. They form a wall around three sides, and there is only an opening in the front of the desk just wide enough to allow Mr. Gladstone to place the sheets of foolscap on which he writes. There at this desk the G. O. M. sat lately all day long, with very short intervals, absorbed in "Hishop Butler," the man whom he gives a place among the best of men who have ever lived. The number of volumes required by Mr. Gladstone for reference is almost endless; he has often to search through one bulky tome after the other for some chance paragraph that may help him to elucidate a dark place in the "Analogy." There he sits, absorbed in his work; now writing rapidly and eagerly for some minutes; now throwing down his pen and dipping into one of the books with which he has surrounded himself. Sometimes a specially favored artist has been admitted to take Mr. Gladstone's portrait, but it is on express condition that the "sitter" shall not in any way be distracted from his work. Not once does Mr. Gladstone's attention flag, though you may perchance be sauntering about the room in company with a member of his family, or be privileged to have a chat with Mrs. Gladstone as, in loving pride in all her husband's doings, she points out to you this, that or the other of the objects in the library to which attaches a special interest for him. Not that Mr. Gladstone is altogether indifferent to violent interruptions. In fact, he objects to them strongly, and he does not hesitate to say so. But when it happens that he himself has invited you to "come into my room," he forgives you if you appear while he is at work, and works on, undisturbed by your presence or your voice, with an absorption in his occupation which is nothing short of marvellous. Whatever the work may be which he has in hand, it takes hold of him so entirely that he has to be aroused from it as most people are roused from sleep. Mr. Gladstone does not, as a rule, care to talk of his idiosyncrasies, since he holds the sincere opinion that he is very much like the rest of the world. But he acknowledges that his faculty of concentration is his special gift, the one by which he is distinguished from other people.

Another reason why Mr. Gladstone gets through so astounding an amount of work is his extraordinary habit of using up odds and ends of time. One day, not long ago, he was going out for a drive into Chester after luncheon. His pudding was very hot, so he went away from the table, changed his clothes, got ready for the drive and came back and finished his pudding, thus saving the ten minutes during which his pudding cooled!

From ten a. m. to luncheon time Mr. Gladstone spends regularly in the library, hard at work. But when the gong sounds he puts down his pen, for promptness in everything has become a second nature to him, and he is probably in the dining-room before anyone else arrives. Petz alone, if that little creature can arrange it so, is as prompt as his master, for his two ruling passions—love for his master and love for his dinner—come into play at the sound of the luncheon gong.—Westminster Gazette.

AN ABSENT-MINDED MAN.

Why He Thought His Sandwich Was Dry and Tasteless.

The absent-minded man took his seat at the restaurant table, and, as usual, buried his face at once in a newspaper. A waiter placed a bill-of-fare, a napkin and a knife and fork in front of him and stood two or three minutes unnoticed before asking: "What shall I bring you, sir?" "What's that?" said the absent-minded man, starting up suddenly, not remembering what it was all about.

"What do you want for lunch, sir?" the waiter asked again.

"Oh, yes," said the absent-minded, trying to collect his wits. "Bring me a cup of coffee and a ham sandwich."

The waiter supplied the order and put a large pasteboard check for it down on the table, the absent-minded man continuing to read his paper. The waiter went away to attend to the wants of other people, and about 15 minutes later came back.

"Do you wish anything more?" he asked, politely.

"Yes," snapped the absent-minded man, somewhat viciously. "Go and get me a fresh ham sandwich. The one you brought me was as dry as a bone."

"Why, here is the sandwich I brought, sir," said the waiter, pushing the plate toward him. "You've eaten the check."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; and cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Syrup of Figs

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

MORE than 20,000,000 people of the United States chew gum persistently at an annual cost of $20,000,000. Five big factories, to say nothing of many smaller concerns, are needed to supply the increased demand for gum, one company alone selling more than $5,000,000 worth—a sum greater than we pay for the support of home and foreign missions. For this variety of jaw exercise we pay $2,000,000 more than we do for the maintenance of our army and all its denominations. The amount expended last year for colleges, charities and churches about equals what was paid for chewing gum.

The gutter forms a conduit for the water and makes it easy for the wheels to enter or leave the track. Such a double track railroad, filled in with broken stone of macadam size, costs about $6,000 per mile, as against $7,000 for a macadam roadbed of the same width.

Matabeles Massing Men Near Bulawayo.

ENGLAND WILL SEND TROOPS

To Cape Colony and Natal to Crush All Opposition—An Interview with Kruger—What the Willy Boer is Afraid Of.

The Matabeles Massing Men. CAPE TOWN, April 18.—Advices which left Bulawayo by coach have been received here stating that the Matabeles are massing men to the north-east of that place and sending out small looting parties. The hostile Matabeles are within half an hour's march of the town.

Bulawayo is in Danger. CAPE TOWN, April 18.—No official statement from any source is worth considering for a moment if it takes the ground that Bulawayo is not in danger. Bulawayo is in great danger. In fact, ere this the town may be in the hands of the Matabeles.

The latest advices received here from Bulawayo have increased the anxiety for the safety of the place. Military men, scouts, Dutchmen and Englishmen, civilians of all classes, veteran troopers and government officials concur in the statement that the governor of Cape Colony, Sir Hercules Robinson, has not told the truth if he has notified the home government that Bulawayo is in no danger. It is evident to everybody here that the British at Bulawayo are in a most critical position.

It has been stated that Bulawayo is held by 1,000 men. This is not correct. The number of fighting men there is under 900, and of this small number, compared with the 15,000 Matabeles in the vicinity of the town, 300 are reported to have been dispatched to hold Mangwe pass, which is a steep defile, with angular turnings, and can be rendered impregnable.

England Means Business. LONDON, April 18.—The statement made in the house by Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, that the government has decided to immediately replace the troops who were going into the interior of Africa from Capetown by a battalion of infantry and a body of mounted men only skirted the truth. A much greater movement of troops has been decided upon than was indicated in the statement of the colonial secretary. At a conference held Thursday between the marquis of Lansdowne, secretary of state for war, Mr. Chamberlain, commander-in-chief, Lord Wolsey and Gen. Sir Redvers Buller, it was arranged to gradually pour enough troops into Cape Colony and Natal. This measure is taken in direct opposition to Sir Hercules Robinson, governor of Cape Colony, and British high commissioner in South Africa, who has advised the government that the reinforcement of the British troops now in South Africa will excite the Matabeles and hinder the prospect of peace with the Transvaal. Gov. Robinson states that President Kruger has sent a communication to him declaring that the negotiations between the Transvaal and Great Britain will be hopeless if troops are sent to Cape Colony.

The Globe and other unionist, and also many liberal, organs protest that the government ought not to show timidity before the Boers and submit, while the Transvaal is arming itself to the teeth, to keeping the British forces on a mere police level. The Globe suggests the dismissal of Gov. Robinson for being too subservient to the government of the Transvaal, and in this it certainly voices conservative feeling.

Kruger On to Their Game.

PRETORIA, April 18.—Barney Barnato and the representative of Kimberly in the Cape parliament had an interview with President Kruger on April 16. Barnato declared to Kruger that a vast majority of the Uitlanders were satisfied with the present form of government, but would continue to agitate for redress of internal grievances. President Kruger admitted the existence of grievance, but the chief difficulty in the way of their redress, he said, was to convince the burghers, since the recent raid, that the Uitlanders did not want to upset the government.

That Awful Baby Farmer.

LONDON, April 18.—The developments in the case of Mrs. Dyer, who was arrested at Reading in connection with the discovery of the bodies of a number of infants in the Thames, are horrifying the country. It has been proved that since Christmas 20 children were entrusted to Mrs. Dyer's keeping, and that only four are living. The others have vanished. Prior to Christmas many other children who had been placed in her charge disappeared. The woman has for a long time practiced a wholesale system of infant murder. It is suspected that she has caused the death of over 40 children. She lived in Reading, where she had the reputation of piety. The police are tracking her accomplice.

Millions Said to Be Missing.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 18.—In a statement issued by the Baltimore committee on reorganization of the Baltimore & Ohio railway it is asserted that from 1888 to the present there was an unwarranted increase in the floating debt to the amount of more than $12,000,000, and the many valuable securities belonging to the company were sold without these transactions finding a place in the published reports of the operations of the company.

OTHERWISE UNNOTICED.

Rev. Smith Goodin, aged 77, died suddenly at Muncie, Ind. Mrs. J. Harley Stewart, for 50 years a resident of Bloomington, Ill., died at Los Angeles, Cal., aged 74. John Stetson, the theatrical manager, died in Boston, after an illness of four days with pneumonia.

Among the ordinances passed at the last session of the old city council of Charleston, Ill., was one ordering all business places except hotels, boarding houses and restaurants (these being allowed to serve only regular customers), to be closed on Sundays.

The Massachusetts legislature has side-tracked, after a hot fight, the bill to erect a statue of the late Benjamin F. Butler on the statehouse grounds. The committee on ways and means, in giving its reasons, objected to incurring the expense at present and said: "We believe that a true regard for art and economy requires further deliberation."

The United States secret service officers have arrested Wm. Westmeyer, a well-known resident of Newport, Ky., for having on his premises an illicit still with a capacity of 20 gallons. Westmeyer had fallen behind in his rent, had been sued, and when a constable entered the house he detected a strong odor of whiskey. This led to an investigation.

Suspected of Being a Spotter.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 18.—Early this morning Starling Savage was taken from his bed at Irving College, Tenn., seven miles from McMinnville, in Warren county, by a mob of masked moonshine whiskey men and hanged to a tree. The moonshiner was suspected of being a "spotter" for the United States internal revenue.

A Noted Indian Dying.

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis., April 18.—Chief Blackhawk, now 100 years old, is dying in his wigwam, nine miles south of Fairchild. He is the last of his race, being a direct descendant from Blackhawk, the noted chief of the war of 1812. The dying warrior has ruled the paramount of the once powerful Winnebago tribe for the last half century.

Col. Cockerill's Remains.

NEW YORK, April 18.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Cairo, Egypt, says: A brief ceremony was conducted yesterday by the clergy of the American mission, prior to sending the remains of the late Col. John A. Cockerill to New York, and was attended by the American colony. The khedive was officially represented.

California's Gold and Silver.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The director of the San Francisco mint has forwarded his annual report to the department at Washington. It shows the gold output of California for the year 1895 to be $15,334,317.09, as compared with $13,863,281.80 in 1894. The silver output for 1895 was $509,789.70, against $293,331.55 for 1894.

Four Rook Miners Killed By a Falling Stone.

FATALLY BURNED IN A TENEMENT FIRE.

Fate of a Young Girl Who Was Taking a Bicycle Ride—A North Carolina Man Who Preferred Death to Going to Prison.

Four Men Killed.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 18.—Falling rock in the Eddy Creek shaft at Olyphant killed four men. The victims:

Ralph and James Abbott, brothers, who lived at Throop. John McHale, of Olyphant. William Harvey, of Priebeburg.

The men were known as rock miners, and were driving a tunnel from one part of the mine when a rock fell and killed them.

A Bad Tenement House Fire.

CINCINNATI, April 18.—In a tenement house fire at Klotter and Baymiller streets, at one o'clock this morning, Mrs. Mary Shafer, aged 48, was fatally burned. Mrs. Freda Wagner, 27 years old, was frightfully burned about the face, shoulders, arms and feet. Her infant daughter was also burned, but not badly.

A Young Girl's Fate.

WORKSTER, Mass., April 18.—Rosie Chabot, aged 17, was killed while riding a bicycle. Miss Chabot had borrowed a wheel for the afternoon, and in company with three friends, started for a short ride. She was not an expert rider, and in endeavoring to pass a heavy cart, loaded with gravel, she rode into the gutter and in attempting to get back into the road lost control of her wheel, which struck a stone and threw her under the wheels of the cart, which passed completely over the girl's body and head, crushing her terribly. She died on the way to the hospital.

Kept His Word.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 18.—John Tillman, a distiller near Roxboro, committed suicide by taking strychnine. There is an indictment in the United States court against him for violation of revenue laws, and he had said he would die before he would go to court.

The Story Told.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 18.—Joseph Dougherty, who, last night, shot and killed his wife at Lititz and shot himself, died early this morning. The tragedy is believed to have been caused by Dougherty becoming intoxicated. His previous reputation was that of a sober and industrious man.

FLOODS IN THE DOMINION.

Many Villages and Towns Under Water, and Many Bridges, Mills, Farm Houses, Etc., Carried Away.

MONTREAL, Can., April 18.—Reports which are reaching here show that as a consequence of the extraordinarily warm weather of the past few days melting the snow, which during the past winter had fallen in unprecedented quantities, the rivers and streams in all parts of the province have become swollen to an extent unknown in 30 years, and great damage is being done to property along their shores.

Many villages and towns are reported wholly or partly under water, the inhabitants being compelled to move about in boats and on rafts. Dozens of bridges, including some of the largest in the province, have been carried away, together with numerous mills, farmhouses and other buildings, as well as logs, lumber and movable property of all kinds.

Railway traffic is greatly interrupted by washouts and the carrying away of bridges. The water is dropping slowly now, but it is feared that when the ice, which holds in some of the rivers and lakes, gives way further and, perhaps, more serious damage will result.

Floods at Sherbrooke and along the St. Francis river for a distance of 50 miles south and north of that town still continue, and fears are entertained that the worst is still to come, the ice in St. Francis lake not having started yet.

The Quebec Central railway bridge over the St. Lawrence river, half a mile from Sherbrooke, gave way in consequence of the pressure against it of enormous quantities of heavy blocks of ice. It comprised two spans of about 300 feet in all.

Harrison Disenters.

PUTNAM, Conn., April 18.—William Harrison Taylor, editor of the Home Journal of this city, sent the following telegram to ex-President Benjamin Harrison on the day of his recent marriage:

"Hearty congratulations. May 'at home' mean 'White House' in November. On Thursday Mr. Taylor received the following letter from ex-President Harrison, dated April 14:

"Thank you for your telegram of congratulations and good wishes—so far as they relate to my domestic concerns—but I beg to enter a dissent from your political suggestion."

The Tariff Question in Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 18.—Mr. Foster, minister of finance, said, in the Dominion house of commons, he had been urged to make numerous changes in the tariff, but owing to the shortness of the session he could not see his way clear to recommend any of them. The only proposal he had to make was to extend for another year the privilege of admitting free into Canada such mining machinery as is not manufactured in Canada.

Sympathy From Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 18.—The Dominion house of commons has passed a resolution sympathizing with the Christian population in Asiatic Turkey.

THE REVIEW OF TRADE.

A Better Feeling Caused Everywhere by the Admittance of Warm Weather—Improvement in Wholesale and Retail Trade.

NEW YORK, April 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The sudden change from sleighing to mid-summer heat, with fair sides in most cities, has tested the prevalent idea that weather only was needed to bring general improvement of business. Everywhere there has been more retail buying, and in some branches, better demand at wholesale and retail. The works have resulted, but not as yet in most lines. There is no abatement of the almost universal disposition to deal with unusual conditions, and to anticipate future wants, and this has been especially conspicuous where combinations have been formed or prices advanced. The comparative infrequency of serious failures, with money less disturbed since gold exports began than might have been expected, helps to give encouragement, but does not kindle speculative fires; so that such improvement as appears is mainly of a healthy sort.

To many interested in iron and steel, steel billets, Bessemer pigs and various forms of steel, it may be disappointing that forming of combinations and fixing of prices have not started again the rush to buy ahead of needs, which made last year so memorable. But it is not easy to forget the lesson which the last year taught, and to anticipate future wants, and this has been especially conspicuous where combinations have been formed or prices advanced. The comparative infrequency of serious failures, with money less disturbed since gold exports began than might have been expected, helps to give encouragement, but does not kindle speculative fires; so that such improvement as appears is mainly of a healthy sort.

The greatest consumers of lake ore have not hastened to make contracts at advanced prices and the output of coke is stationary. The tin-plate makers are meeting, and some propose to produce steel for their trade at plants of their own. Unsold stocks increased in March 15,888 tons more than was reported last week. At the west almost every town seems to want steel for some building, and good orders have been placed for bars by implement and car makers. Heavy production of copper defeats heavy exports, and $10.75 is quoted for lake, and spotter has broken to $4.00.

Shipments of boots and shoes from Boston in April thus far have been 8 per cent. less than last year, though larger than in previous years. Textile works are less fortunate. The Silk association states that 40 per cent. of the machinery and hands in the country are idle, partly because of increasing Japanese competition. Several more woolen mills have shut down, and some have reduced wages 10 per cent., while many are working only half time, but recent advances by appraisers not only disclose heavy undervaluations in the past, but tend to check future imports. The demand for goods does not improve, and sales of wool for two weeks of April at the three chief markets have been only $5,611,000 pounds, against $11,559,300 last year and $10,182,500 in 1895.

Somewhat more demand for staple cottons has been aroused by bargain prices, but the closing of many mills for a time is urged as necessary, and one of the largest and oldest mills, the Lawrence, abandons production of heavy goods and turns to hosiery.

Wheat rose about five cents last week, met some reaction, but closed a shade higher than a week ago. Later accounts are more promising as to winter wheat, and western receipts in two weeks of April are 3,000 bushels, against 2,334,302 last year, while Atlantic exports for the same weeks have been only 3,301,917, four included, against 3,718,880 last year. The small exports so late in the season and western receipts proving that the yield last year much exceeded any estimates have left little confidence in predictions of scarcity. After remaining unchanged for many days, rumors either way having no effect, cotton rose 1-16 of a cent on Thursday. Heavy commercial and mill stocks hindered most buyers, and possibilities of injury to the coming crop retarded sellers at current prices.

Failures for the last week have been 233 in the United States, against 21 last year, and 33 in Canada, against 31 last year.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL CLIP.

A Decrease Beyond All Precedent Reported for 1895.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—A decrease beyond all precedent in the Australian wool clip for 1895 is reported to the state department by Daniel W. Marratta, United States consul general at Melbourne. For several years past the clip has been falling off. In 1891, when the down grade commenced, the number of sheep in New South Wales, for example, was 61,831,416, while last year they numbered 47,433,332. Between 1894 and 1895 alone the decrease was 9,500,000 sheep, a greater number than in any previous year. The decrease during the drought of 1892 was less than 4,000,000, and even the great drought of 1884 left New South Wales with only 6,250,000 fewer sheep. The decrease during 1895 resulted from two causes, a disastrous drought in many districts, and the fact that the clip of 1894 was unduly augmented by the great shearing strike of that year, which, by delaying shearing, gave the clips of many stations too much growth.

Mr. Marratta says that the very heavy losses in sheep can not fail to direct attention to the possibility of a further decrease of the 1896 yield compared with the attenuated clip of 1895.

Valuable Hens Burned.

LExINGTON, Ky., April 18.—The $10,000 barn of Thomas C. Jefferson, two miles from town, on the Harrodsburg pike, was destroyed by fire; insurance, $5,000. All of Jefferson's horses, save six, were in paddocks, and the grooms had no difficulty in getting the six out.

TWENTY THOUSAND SPANISH SOLDIERS

Guard the Trocha from the North to the South Coast—Spain Endeavoring to Induce European Powers to Make Common Cause.

The Supreme Question.

NEW YORK, April 18.—A morning paper has the following cable from Havana:

The one supreme question now is whether Maceo and his host can force a passage across the 25-y Spanish trocha of earthworks, trenches and barbed-wire barriers. This trocha stretches across the island from Mariel on the north shore to Mojanga on the south coast, and is guarded by perhaps 20,000 troops. It begins about 25 miles west of Havana.

At least 30,000 Spaniards are on the other side of the trocha to-day, attempting to force the rebel leader to make a stand with his exhausted men. Spanish troops are still out in pursuit, and the force grows larger.

To-day Maceo was in the mountains of Lechuza, north of Candelaria. He is said to be hard pressed for food and ammunition. The Spanish forces came into skirmish touch with the rebels at several points yesterday and to-day. A crisis is near. Gen. Weyler is profoundly absorbed in this critical movement.

The attorney-general reports that the health of the army is good. There has been a smaller percentage of deaths in Havana hospitals since January 1 than in the Spanish hospitals.

A Report That Maceo Has Crossed.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The Havana correspondent of a local paper writes:

It is asserted that Gen. Maceo has recrossed the military trocha, and is now once more in Havana province. This important information has not yet been published officially, and will cause a sensation here when it becomes known. The military trocha between Mojanga and Mariel was supposed to be as solid as an iron wall.

Spain and Other European Powers.

NEW YORK, April 18.—A Madrid special to a New York paper says:

The foreign ambassadors, chiefly those of Great Britain, France and Germany, have had long conferences with the duke of Tetuan, in the first place, then more recently with Senor Canovas del Castillo. It is understood that the basis for negotiations was the declaration that the European powers have the same territorial, political and economical interests in America, and therefore a common political action is convenient. The danger of United States supremacy menacing the expulsion of Europeans is also taken into account. There were misgivings regarding the attitude of Germany, whose relations with Spain have been very strained since the Spanish parliament rejected the commercial treaty which the reichstag had passed only through the personal exertions and even menaces of the emperor. The rejection of this treaty by the cortes infuriated the kaiser, who swore he would have no more dealings with Spain, and subsequently profited by opportunities in making himself disagreeable.

THE POPULITE CONVENTION.

The populites of Shelby county met in convention at noon Wednesday in the court house. The attendance was noticeably smaller than in the past, and if there was any great amount of enthusiasm on hand it was corked up and saved for some other occasion. The counting of the vote of the primary was the first thing to be disposed of in order to ascertain who were the nominees. It was urged by some that the vote be counted in open convention, but that aroused stubborn opposition because the very small vote polled in the county would necessarily be exposed. It was finally decided to select one delegate from each beat, and these having been selected they were sent into one of the jury rooms to count the votes and report. This committee did as instructed, and about 3 o'clock they came in with their report. The nominees are as follows: A. P. Longshore, representative; E. F. Vest, sheriff; John S. Pitts, tax assessor; W. A. Tallant, treasurer; and J. E. Dyke, commissioner. They took particular pains, however, not to announce how many votes each candidate received, or to state the total number of votes cast.

A committee of five was selected to draw up a platform, a set of resolutions, and set forth the demands which they proposed to enscribe on their banner. The following is the result of their labors:

PLATFORM.

In the midst of profound peace, possessed of the richest and most fruitful country on the face of the globe, with a succession of bountiful harvests, having an industrious and enterprising population, with inexhaustible resources of soil, minerals and staple productions, and a form of government the most simple and propitious for the spread of universal happiness and prosperity, we find at this time the people of Alabama and the whole country environed with conditions that threaten destitution, misery, suffering and want, never before known in our country's history; confidence destroyed, tramps filling our highways, men from necessity growing sordid and selfish. The moral and religious foundations of our civilization are being undermined with a dangerous spirit that substitutes vice for virtue, and greed for power and wealth for honor and morality to such an extent that civilization is threatened, and believing that these conditions have been brought about by the agencies of the money power, the peoples' party of Shelby county in convention assembled, sets forth the following platform of principles:

RESOLUTIONS.

RESOLVED 1st, That we denounce the demonization of silver in 1873 and the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law in 1893 as destructive of the industrial masses.

RESOLVED 2nd, That we condemn in unmeasured terms the issuing of bonds by the present democratic administration as unwarranted in law and an outrage upon the wealth-producers of this country.

RESOLVED 3rd, That the resolution of the recent democratic convention of this county in placing the name of Grover Cleveland beside "that illustrious triumvirate Washington, Jefferson and Jackson" is an insult to the intelligence of the voters of Shelby county.

1. We demand a free vote and an honest count.

2. We demand the free coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1.

3. We demand the abolition of national banks.

4. We demand a sufficient circulating medium consisting of gold silver and paper, to do the business of the country.

5. We demand an economical administration of the affairs of the state and national governments.

6. We demand a graduated income tax.

7. We favor more liberal educational facilities for the masses and a better and more efficient administration of the school laws.

We notice nothing unusual in their platform, resolutions and demands, as they conform very closely with the stereotyped forms, except that they are rather more conservative than they have been. This is a good indication if it means nothing more than the laying aside of passion and prejudice, and a willingness to abide the decision of the voters of the county, rather than to carry their ticket through by force of arms, as has been advocated by leaders of the Dr. Crowe type. We were amazingly gratified also to learn from A. P. Longshore's speech of acceptance that all democrats are not ballot box-stuffers. He even went far enough to say that many of them are fair-minded men and not disposed to countenance rascality at the polls. This encourages us to hope that the day is not far distant when a man can be a democrat, and still be honorable (in the opinion of Longshore.)

But had you noticed that only about half the ticket was nominated? Well the other half miscarried. In other words the co-operatives didn't co-operate. They were here, quite a number at least, but they didn't show up with their part of the ticket as per agreement. Consequently at this stage of the proceedings a motion prevailed that on the second Saturday in May they again meet in convention to fill out the ticket.

STEEL is now being used for purposes never thought of heretofore. It is now being used in Ohio for wagon roads. These roads consist of two rails made of steel the thickness of boiler iron, each formed in the shape of a gutter five inches wide, with a square perpendicular shoulder 1 1/2 inch high, then an angle of 1 inch outward slightly raised. The gutter forms a conduit for the water, and makes it easy for the wheels to enter or leave a track. Such a double track steel railroad, 16 feet wide, filled in between with broken stone, would cost about $6,000 per mile, but the cost of a rural one-track steel road would be only $2,000 per mile. It is claimed that such a road would last much longer than stone, and that one horse will draw on a steel track twenty times as much as on a dirt road.

We regret that it is impossible to give a synopsis of the proceedings of the state convention this week, but we could not do so without holding the paper back another day. Joseph F. Johnston is of course the nominee for governor, and he will make the race on a free silver platform. The balance of the ticket is as follows: Geo. W. Ellis, treasurer; W. S. White, auditor; W. C. Pitts, attorney general; John O. Turner, superintendent of education; I. F. Culver, commissioner of agriculture. Comment later.

THE New York World says that at the beginning of this year the silver coins and silver certificates in actual circulation in the United States amounted to $450,700,000. There were also in circulation treasury notes of 1890 representing silver bullion purchases to the extent of $115,725,760. Thus we have a circulation of $575,427,029 based directly on silver, as against $534,684,985 in gold coin and gold certificates. Isn't this a pretty practical bimetalism?

AN unfortunate tragedy occurred in Montgomery at an early hour Tuesday morning, in which Sheriff Kennedy, of Dallas county, armed with a shot gun, fatally wounded Percy Wood and shot Mardis Wood seriously if not fatally. Percy died a few hours after the shooting. The trouble grew out of the alleged intimacy of Mardis Wood with the wife of Sheriff Kennedy. The way of the transgressor is usually thorny.

HARD TIMES HOWLER HIT.

From the Birmingham News.

The statement contained in the budget presented to the house of commons by the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Bench, furnishes an indication of returning prosperity not only to England, but to the United States as well, and holds out poor hopes to the calamity howler. The year 1895 was one of unexampled revenues to England. The extent of the increase in revenue receipts is so remarkable that, despite the appropriation of over $100,000,000 for the strengthening of the navy, the surplus is the largest ever known and the amount devoted to the reduction of the national debt is larger than that ever made in recent years.

A further evidence of the general prosperity and the general elevation of the masses is in the increase in the importation of tea, coffee and sugar, the importation of tea amounting to not less than $10,000,000.

A greater proof of the vast improvement of the general business of the world, however, is found in the fact that for the first six months of the year the imports amounted to only $37,655,000, while the amount for the last six months was $141,140,000, or more than four times as large.

"These last figures," the St. Louis Republic argues, "demonstrate beyond all question that the period of depression experienced in Great Britain and in this country is rapidly giving way to one of confidence and activity. And the condition of things in England has necessarily a reflex action on the condition of things in the United States, since the commercial relations of the two countries are so close and so vast. All the signs of the times indicate that we are on the eve of an era of business prosperity which the gloomy prophecies of the populists cannot obscure, and which their direst lamentations cannot prevent."

These comments coming from a free silver paper, the Republic holding to that idea of finance, are very discouraging to the hard time howler.

APPALLING STATISTICS.

Dr. Andrew D. White, former president of Cornell University, has been dealing in some bloody statistics of late. He put the problem of crime before the people of the United States in appalling form when he declared that 10,000 people in this country are doomed to die violent deaths at the hands of their fellows in the next twelve months. His declaration was supported by statistics. The homicides in 1889 in this country numbered 3,567. In 1895 they numbered 10,500. The hangings in these same years averaged respectively one in forty-five convictions. He said if the murderers for the last six years were in prison there would be 40,000 of them. The eleventh census shows that there are but 7,351 in prison.

He put the case in this form: "Today, this 10th day of April, 1896, I announce to you that there are doomed to death in the United States, in the year which begins this day, 10,000 persons, who will be executed mercilessly, cruelly, without opportunity to take leave of those they love; without opportunity to make provision for those depending upon them, and all of this multitude of persons, who have committed no crime, will be put to death without the slightest regard for the fearful distress and sorrow, and, in many cases, beggary of their families. Fully two-thirds of these murderers will be due to the easy-going, maudlin sentiment in the community at large, misallied mercy, but really most fearful cruelty."

The Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph, in discussing the subject, concludes that if the 10,500 persons who were murdered in the United States last year had fallen victims to some secret band of assassins organized for the purpose, with what unanimity would the people rise to exterminate the criminals; but because the crimes are isolated comparatively little attention is paid to them outside of the neighborhood in which they are committed. The murderer is a hero rather than a criminal. Look at the striking example of this in the "Bat" Shea case, it argues, where 3,000 people followed the body to the grave and $6000 was spent in floral offerings. More than 25,000 persons signed the petition to the governor for a pardon, notwithstanding that numerous witnesses testified that they saw Shea kill Robert Ross.

Dr. White ascribed the increase of crime largely to the "carelessness, culpable and criminal exercise of pardons" by the governors of the various states. He denounced particularly ex-Governor Taylor, of Tennessee, who in the four years of office ended in 1892, pardoned 801 convicts, many of them murderers, and ex-Governor David B. Hill, of New York. He showed that Governor Hill pardoned fifteen criminals in his last month of office, two of whom were murderers, serving life terms. He argued against imprisonment for life as punishment for murderers, pointing out that the average length of imprisonment for even the worst criminals is only ten years.

Cure for Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headache yields to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only fifty cents at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

WOULD MAKE A GOOD WIFE.

Any Woman Who Can Answer the following in the Affirmative.

Every woman, old or young, goes through life with the pleasing theory that it is in her power, the opportunity occurring, of course, to render some man supremely happy. Few women probe their inner consciousness sufficiently to learn in what vital respects they may be lacking the elements of success. The woman who can truthfully answer the following questions in the affirmative is prepared to make a success of married life:

Can she cheerfully endure the monotony, after the first eight weeks of adoration, of the daily allusions to her inferior intellect?

Is she sufficiently "meek in spirit" to hear her pet charities regularly alluded to as "feminine nonsense?"

Has she solved the burning question of how "to keep servants in their place" and retain them in their places?

Can she refrain from defeating her husband with logical argument on a matter about which she chances to be well informed?

Has she the wisdom of a serpent and more particularly the gentleness of a dove in dealing with the question of monthly expenses?

Is she enough of a philosopher to appreciate the fine distinction made in cigars as a necessity and new bonnets as a luxury?

Can she carry with her in her matrimonial venture a patent, indestructible, well-regulated smile, warranted to outlive every variety of mood that the masculine disposition is heir to?

Is she thoughtful enough to study the comfort of her lord and master in every detail of her household arrangements and clever enough to expect a daily acknowledgment of the fact?

Has she attained to a degree of moral elevation where she can make much of her husband's out-of-town maiden aunts on a visit when her invitations have just been issued for a swell dinner party?

Is she intelligent enough to manage all her domestic affairs with judgment and discrimination, and discreet enough never to mar the serenity of the dinner hour with allusions to her executive ability?

If servants are out of the question, can she be her own cook, keep up her piano practice, do her own sewing and continue to present the same winning, attractive appearance to her husband she had during their courtship?

THE COUNSELS OF FOLLY.

From the New York World.

Those professed democrats who insist upon the adoption of a 16 to 1 free silver plank at Chicago desire bimetalism. They cannot hope to secure it by committing their party to a doctrine which must inevitably result in that party's defeat. Moreover, we have now the most perfect and most equitable bimetalism that exists anywhere in the world.

Some countries use silver sparingly and only as a subsidiary currency. Some, those of the Latin Union, still make their largest silver coin a full legal tender, but they have forbidden its further coinage, though its supply is relatively much smaller than that of our silver dollar. Still other countries give free coinage to silver, but these without exception are silver monometallic countries in which gold neither circulates nor is used as a measure of values.

The only bimetallic country in the world, the only country in which gold and silver are used in nearly equal amounts as full legal tender money, is our own.

We have of gold coin and gold certificates $618,000,000, of silver coin and silver certificates $779,000,000. Great Britain has of gold $580,000,000, and of silver (subsidiary only) $115,000,000. The German empire has of gold $325,000,000, and of silver $105,000,000. France has of gold $550,000,000, of silver $430,000,000. Austria-Hungary has of gold $140,000,000, and of silver $120,000,000. India and the Latin American countries have no gold.

It thus appears that while maintaining the gold standard, and so keeping our country and its securities of every sort in good standing in the financial world, we have "done more for silver" than any other country. We alone among commercial nations are using it as largely as we use gold for currency, and at the same time we are keeping it at par with gold, as no free coinage country in the world has done or can do.

Is it not folly, then, for silver democrats to insist upon democratic defeat, the loss of all that democracy stands for, and the inauguration of an orgy of McKinleyism, under the pretense that it is necessary to work all this ruin in order to compel the doing of something for silver? Is not our sound money, gold standard policy the very best one possible even from the silver point of view? Is it not today doing more for silver than could be done under any other policy? Consider facts. Reflect upon results. Then say whether or not democracy should invite defeat by declaring for a change of monetary policy.

BROTHER, SISTER, LISTEN!

Perhaps I can put you on to a scheme. You know this is a progressive age. Old moss-grown methods are rapidly playing out. I propose to keep up with the procession. Life is too short to continue longer in the old ruts. New methods bring new results, also new goods and likewise new customers. I have too pretty a stock of goods to keep them hid from the world. Therefore I now proclaim to the world at large, and to the people of Shelby county in particular that I have almost anything they can call for, and having bought these goods in large quantities, I can offer many bargains to cash customers. Here is one for a starter:

100 Pieces Standard Prints 4 1-2c.

Now that's pretty smooth, ain't it? Just so; but let me tell you before I forget it, that is only a sample. There are plenty of bargains in my store just as attractive. Seeing is believing. Come and I will convince you. One more bargain.

Big Lot Challies Spring and Summer Shades 4c.

Spring is here and summer is almost within sight, and of course you want straw hats. Don't mention it. I've got 'em, more than you ever saw in one store before in your life. Big, little, old or young, come and get supplied.

Yours for business.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Cailloute, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

Walter Moss, of Calera, spent Sunday in town.

N. A. Graham, of Calera, paid our city a visit Monday.

Clem Creek, of Anniston, is with home folks for a few days.

C. J. Christian, of Bessemer, is on a short visit to relatives here.

W. R. A. Milner made a business trip to Birmingham Tuesday.

Hon. W. B. Browne is in Montgomery as a delegate to the state convention.

Mrs. Mattie Mooney, of Jemison, is on a visit to the family of E. W. Chapman.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Browne, of Talladega, visited relatives here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pond, of Shelby Springs, spent part of Saturday in our city.

Rev. T. P. Roberts and wife, from Easonville, are spending the week here.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hallmark, on Monday, a boy. Good luck, brother.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Stamps, of Irondale, are visiting the family of A. D. Wortham.

W. H. Thomas, of near Ashby, visited the family of E. W. Chapman this week.

Miss Nannie DuBose, of Courtland, Ala., is a guest of the family of Dr. W. S. DuBose.

Earnest Averyt with his interesting sister, Miss Agnes, were visitors in our town Sunday.

Mrs. Fain and Mrs. Upshaw, of Atlanta, are on a visit to their sister Mrs. A. D. Wortham.

The Columbiana Mercantile Co. have a few prices in this issue of interest to all. See their new ad.

Rev. W. I. Sinnott left Monday for Bessemer to attend the meeting of the North Alabama Presbytery.

Lyman Clardy arrived yesterday from Talladega with a force of hands, and is getting the yard in trim preparatory to making brick for the Page building.

E. W. Chapman, our clever tonsorial artist, moved his family here from Shelby last week, and is occupying the Cromwell residence on Depot street. We extend them a cordial welcome.

The usual summer schedule went into effect Sunday on the Southern road. The north-bound mail train now reaches here at 11:43 a. m., and the south-bound at 3:17 p. m. This is quite an improvement.

At a recent meeting of the city council (the new board) John T. Cromwell was elected city marshal. Mr. Cromwell has from the first been a warm supporter of the school, and we feel sure he will fill the position very acceptably.

Dr. J. E. Berkstresser, of Sylacauga, was in town two days of this week exhibiting a very ingenious patent, of which he is the fortunate originator, to attach to vehicles for controlling unruly horses, and where that is not possible to effect their easy release from the vehicle. It is a good thing, and we hope the doctor will realize a fortune on it.

Wanted—Every Sunday school teacher of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches to attend the teachers' meeting which will meet at Mrs. L. Armstrong's Friday night. The Sunday school committee organized at this meeting, hoping great good will result therefrom. Let each teacher attend feeling a personal interest in this work.

Captain J. P. Christian, of Shelby, comes out this week as a candidate for sheriff. Mr. Christian has for many years held the responsible and lucrative position of superintendent of the Shelby Iron Co., and is a gentleman of character and ability, and has all the qualities requisite to make a good officer. He is a life-long democrat, and has always been a faithful worker for his party.

The Columbiana Free School has recently taken a long leap forward. Since the late city election, which beyond doubt removed all fear as to its permanency, the wide-awake teachers of the school have been fired with new zeal, and today it is with no small degree of pride that we impart the information that we have a first class graded school. Starting with the little fellows in the primary department, the course of study has been divided into eleven grades, each of which ordinarily represent a year's work for the pupil. Upon the completion of the course a certificate of graduation or diploma will be given the graduates. All will readily concede that this plan will prove far more effective than the former method. Each grade gives ample time for thorough and systematic work, and the pupils are not rushed indiscriminately through the different departments with the usual result that they know little more than when they began and are absolutely certain of nothing. We have started in to have a school in every sense of the word, and nothing short of the very best will satisfy us. Aren't we rapidly approaching that standard?

A Card.

WILSONVILLE, ALA., April, 19, 1896.

EDITOR CHRONICLE—By your kind permission I hereby express my gratification concerning the late services held by Rev. C. W. O'Hara and myself at Liberty church, near Weldon post-office. How grand the singing! How profound the attention! What a fine congregation! These were thoughts that crowded into the mind of the preacher at every service. "Blessed are the people whose God is the Lord." Thank God for the precious burden we daily carry to the throne of his grace, viz: A score of sin-burdened souls, men and women at their request, near Liberty church. Brethren, God bless you all for your great love for the Sunday school and church work, for your punctuality, for your hospitality, and your liberality. Yours in Christ, J. BUNYAN KILPATRICK.

Shelby Siftings.

On last Thursday evening the closing of Miss Stoughton's school took place in the shape of an entertainment at the Congregational church. In many respects it was interestingly novel and unique. Unlike most affairs of a similar character, viz: the routine of presenting a program with songs, recitations, etc., from promiscuous authors—the entire list of exercises were taken from the pen of that versatile author, Eugene Field, poet, journalist and author. At 8 o'clock the audience had well nigh filled the church and were in waiting for the opening song. The rostrum was beautifully bedecked with spring's floral greetings. From the wildwood had been gathered the white spangled dogwood, while the towering form of the calla intermingled its blossoms to shed a halo of innocence upon the tender forms of the children who were to participate in celebrating the memory of their "poet" hero. Rare exotics placed with skillful hands, heightened the lovely scene and added a cheerfulness to the surroundings that made the occasion fit for the worthy object. Thoughts suggestive could not be expressed as one would gaze upon these beautiful flowers entwined with such exquisite taste and wreathed with such loving hands upon memory's brow—and think how soon they must wither and fade—like the life of him to whose genius they were offered. No poet is better known or appreciated anywhere by children than Mr. Field. It was verified on this occasion in the manner in which they spoke his lines. They seemed to catch the inspiration that impelled him to repeat the impressions of his childhood with so much vividness. They seemed to realize the very dreams which made him tell them of "seen" things and they could be amused by having him sing of "the big tin trumpet and little red drum, marching like soldiers the children come."

Along with the rendering of the evening's program which was highly entertaining, there was some little interruption which was hardly unavoidable. We allude to it by way of diversion as it was so marked that nearly every one present noticed it. Never before on such like occasions have we ever noticed such a prevalence of spring colds. From every quarter of the building ever and anon there would break forth a cough, coughs of the de profundo type and from that to the running of the whole gamut of cacophony until they died away in the gentle hack of the clearing of the throat. Basso coughs, treble coughs and falsetto ones—suppressed and unsuppressed. It was in vain some tried to restrain themselves, the paroxysm was irresistible, and when one would break forth there would be set up a chorus of bronchial vociferations. Under such surroundings one would put our hand behind our ear to catch the words of a speaker when koo choo would be blurted out and the word or words en passe would be knocked into smithereens.

Notwithstanding this ludicrous episode we must in justice say that every feature of the evening's entertainment was highly commendatory and was appreciated as several have since testified. Such a departure as Miss Stoughton instituted is worthy of repetition. Our authors and writers should be studied with greater thoroughness. We should not be content with isolated selections from their works. A whole evening's study should be devoted to the life, character and work of such a man as Eugene Field. The celebration of Field Day was, therefore, very appropriate, for he loved youth and particularly childhood. He reveled with them in their sportive glee. He rollicked with them in their games. He has marvelously described his shooting with his air gun the bird that sang fiddle-de-dee, and in lively spice given us the duel of the gingham dog and the calico cat. Long may his verses, songs and lullabies live to retell the happy dreams of childhood, for he stands without a peer as the "child" poet.

As this class, Miss Stoughton's, closed as a school teacher in our midst it is our pleasant duty to speak in the highest terms of her sojourn here. She is in every way capacitated to perform the responsible duties incumbent upon an instructor of childhood and youth. In the discharge of service here she has instituted some of the best methods of advancing her pupils in scholarship as well as literary studies. She has induced them particularly to study poetry and its authors. The honor of being the first accomplishment to awaken thought, fire patriotism and to preserve the history of our race belongs to poetry. We certainly bid her adieu with much regret.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Messrs. A. A. Daniel and G. E. Weldon attended preaching at Harpersville Sunday.

Messrs. J. F. Pope and W. J. Tinney made a trip to Montgomery this week. Miss Edna Galloway was the pleasant guest of Miss Ella Brown last week.

The indications now are that we will have a first class string band soon. The boys have just completed the organization and have practiced several times.

Miss Cora Smith has returned from her visit to Talladega.

Miss Juddie Kilpatrick visited Miss Janie Wallace, of near Harpersville, Sunday.

Miss Maude Williamson visited Miss Kate Bradley, of near Harpersville, Sunday.

Two of our most gallant young men treated the young ladies to a nice drive Sunday afternoon.

A certain young man in company with a certain young lady ran away last Sunday afternoon. Perhaps I am mistaken, it was the horse that ran away and the fellow and his girl simply rode away. The harness broke descending a hill, which frightened the horse nearly to death, and had a tendency to make him believe death, a train of cars or a buggy was about to run over him. I never saw a horse turn so pale in all my life. Everything stopped alright with the side up that was marked, "This side up with care." No one injured except the harness.

The new schedule which took effect last Sunday on the Southern, puts our south-bound passenger train by at 2:50 p. m.; north-bound at 12:00 p. m.

The cry for "water" has ceased at J. C. Jackson & Sons' planing mill. After five days struggle with mother earth toward the center of gravitation they came in contact with a large vein of water which will far excel the supply required. The well is five feet square and seventy three feet in depth. In twelve hours after having opened this vein the water had risen forty-three feet.

The S. P. L. League will meet next Friday evening at the Wilsonville Institute. Quite a nice program has been arranged, and we anticipate a pleasant evening. We extend a hearty welcome to those desirous of attending, and will do all in our power to see that they have a pleasant time.

There is recorded on the Wilsonville social record now one of the most brilliant affairs known to our society. Last Friday evening the ladies of our city entertained a very huge crowd of young men, young ladies, old men, old ladies, kids and babies, with one of the nicest and most perfectly conducted ice cream festivals we ever witnessed. The towns of Shelby, Vincent and Harpersville were well represented by a crowd from each place. Cream, lemonade, ice tea and lunches were dispatched by the beautiful waiters in such manner as to make the professionals envy them. We lingered until the wee small hours of the morning, each one dreading the hour of departure. The remembrance of this entertainment is indelibly stamped on the minds of each and every guest. All things have their finale, so did this entertainment. All we can now do is to think and talk of the pleasures we derived from it and look forward to the time when our society will again put forth an effort to gain a star for its crown. Amount realized will be used to make an addition to the Baptist church and furnish it with a new carpet.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION.

Some were for Johnston, some for Clarke, Which caused a little fun; We watched the trains from morn 'till dark For latest news to come.

The time passed on with us in doubt, Of whom was nominee; At last one day the news came out, Reporting Johnston free.

It may be better or may be worse, We none can ever tell; If he should be our governor, I hope he may do well.

Mister Clarke has been o'powered, With those primary votes; I trust from this he'll not be saured, But let his banner float. If ere he runs for this again I'll surely do my part; I'll be a straight-out democrat And vote for Mister Clarke.

BUTCH, JR.

Harpersville Echoes.

The farmers are progressing finely with their work.

The health of our community is exceedingly good.

Rev. W. S. Henderson preached at the Baptist church Saturday and Rev. B. F. Giles Sunday.

The populites had their primary here Saturday. Longshore, Vest, O'Hara and Pitts were in the lead.

We were pleased to see on our streets last Saturday Mr. J. H. Martin, of St. Clair county. He was a warm supporter of Clarke before the primary, but of course he is like all other true democrats now, and is an enthusiastic worker for Johnston.

There were several of our young people attended the supper at Wilsonville last Friday night and all report a pleasant time.

Mr. Buck Daniels, of Wilsonville, attended church here last Sunday, and judging from his actions he is a full fledged candidate for matrimony on the democratic ticket and is sure to be elected.

There were several young people from Wilsonville attended church here Sunday. Come again, young folks, Harpersville extends to you a cordial welcome.

Mr. Sam McClellan, an old and highly esteemed citizen and a staunch democrat, of Easonville, died on his way home from the St. Clair county convention last Wednesday of heart failure. He was chairman of the convention and an earnest worker for the party, besides being a good and influential citizen. A good man has fallen, and Easonville sustains a great loss as well as the democratic party.

There are a great many people in this country who are church members, but never take time to go to church or give anything to its institutions, but just let a political meeting or a public speaking be announced and they are there by a big majority. It does seem to us that if our churches would get rid of such members that the churches would prosper and revive and religion would not be at such a low ebb.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Seales, of Kelleys Creek, were among their many friends here last Sunday.

Mrs. John Kidd and Miss Floyd, of Vincent, came down last Sunday to hear Mr. Giles preach.

Thurston Darby, Esq., left here this, Monday morning, with a drove of milk cows for Birmingham.

Spring hats, spring bonnets, spring suits and spring dresses were all the go last Sunday.

Pomp Moore received one vote here last Saturday for treasurer.

T. J. Martin has gone to the state convention.

The populites held their primary here last Saturday in M. M. Robertson's coat pocket.

W. B. Hubbard paid Easonville a visit Sunday.

It is very probable that we are going to have some fruit again this year.

Captain M. W. Borum paid Birmingham a business trip one day last week.

There is some disease among the horses here, from which several have died during the last few days.

JAKE.

HORRESCO REFFERENS.

We publish below a beautiful poem from the fascinating pen of Mrs. H. C. Reynolds, of Montevallo, a lady of rare culture and accomplishments: From what source came the walling?

'Tis said from Kamah, of old; A picture drawn from our village, Makes a story, sad when told.

There just outside his doorway, a barroom keeper stands,

"Come in, young men,"—he clasps them with his strong and brawny hands;

Hands which God has given for honest manly toil,

Able to sow the golden grain and till the goodly soil.

Through the window casements his lamps send forth their light.

He offers many vain allurements; temptations day and night.

If you pass on any errand, or to the House of God should go,

Breezes waft the whiskey perfumes from behind the barroom door.

You can hear the tinkling glasses when the early liquids flow,

Telling many tales of sorrow, many tales of woe;

At last he seizes on a victim as a vulture would a bird,

Then comes the bitter anguish often felt; not always heard.

'Tis at home in the heart of a mother as she prays for her darling boy.

Lead him from the paths of evil, bring him back, my pride, my joy.

'Tis at home in the heart of a sister, who weeps a tear and sighs.

As she sees her brother's footsteps, ah so sadly in disguise.

See! a poor deserted woman, little children at her knee.

Tattered clothes and shrunken features; a heart-rending sight to see;

The widow and the orphan sit lonely in their cot.

Who dealt out the poison to hasten on their lot?

Alone the young wife sits and waits, keeps the fire burning bright.

He promised when he went away he wouldn't stay late tonight.

The time drags drearily on and on, 'till the hour of midnight past.

She strains her ear to listen—she hears his step at last.

Not sounding with ready quickness, once filling her soul with pride,

Up to Heaven a prayer she murmurs, 'Hide me, O my Savior, hide.'

That voice which once with music of sweetest strains to heart.

Now with profane and harsh tones fall on her wearied ear.

Look! look! into these homes and hearts, see the mother, sister, wife,

Can money ere repay you for wrecking human life?

I'd rather stand by the anvil and earn my honest bread,

I'd rather turn the plowshare than my loved ones could be fed.

Than to deal out deadly poison, saddening homes and hearts so dear.

What will be your answer when the Master's voice you hear?

"They that turn many to righteousness"—can this of you be true!

"Blessed is the comforter,"—can this be said of you?

Out! out with the whisky traffic; it is doing more today,

To wreck a useful manhood in its dark and downward way,

Than all the books of infidels; than all that has been tried,

Since Christ was born in Bethlehem—since Christ was crucified.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

Spring Medicine

Your blood in Spring is almost certain to be full of impurities—the accumulation of the winter months. Bad ventilation of sleeping rooms, impure air in dwellings, factories and shops, over-eating, heavy, improper foods, failure of the kidneys and liver properly to do extra work thus thrust upon them, are the prime causes of this condition. It is of the utmost importance that you

Purify Your Blood

Now, as when warmer weather comes and the tonic effect of cold bracing air is gone, your weak, thin, impure blood will not furnish necessary strength. That tired feeling, loss of appetite, will open the way for serious disease, ruined health, or breaking out of humors and impurities. To make pure, rich, red blood Hood's Sarsaparilla stands unequalled. Thousands testify to its merits. Millions take it as their Spring Medicine. Get Hood's, because

A SHINING EXAMPLE of what may be accomplished by never varying devotion to a single purpose is seen in the history of the McCormick Harvesting Machine Co., Chicago. For 65 years they have simply been building grain and grass-cutting machinery, and while there are probably forty manufacturers in this line, it is safe to say that the McCormick Company builds one-third of all the binders, reapers and mowers used throughout the entire world.

RUFUS SANDERS.

Two Homely Stories from the Forks of the Creek.

Old Miss Watson and Her "Little Steve"—Jeems W. Stagger Went a-Fishin' and Got Snake Bit—Easy on Man.

White people, do you know what it means and how it feels to be a country boy, and the only-est boy on the place at that? If you don't know, all the preachers and poets and philosophers and politicians in the whole wide world can't tell you, but I remember—by jingo, I remember like it was yesterday—how infernal handy a cotton-headed, batchet-faced, shirt-tail boy is around a farm.

Little Steve Was Dead.

It takes a whole passel—of one stuff and another—to make me sorry about anything. I am so tremendous glad and light on my natural-born self, till it is mighty hard for me to find anything in this green and bloom-in old world to feel sorry for.

But the old lady Watson—which the Watsons they have been livin' down there in the forks of Long Creek for years and years—she come by our house one day last week and made me sorry. I was sorry when she come, and sorry when she went away, and I am sorry till yet. I doubt mighty serious if I could tell you what I am sorry about and who I am sorry for. But, at any rates, I am sorry.

"A pore old broken-hearted, God-for-saken woman, with her gray head bowed down in sackcloth and ashes, has come to mix her tears and share her sorrows with you," says Miss Watson when she first driv up to the horse-rack, and hit a run. Then me and mother we went out and told the old lady to light and come in and take a chair and make herself at home till the shower passed over. And she went with us.

"Little Steve is dead, Rufus," she went on to say, between her sob and tears. "Little Steve is dead and gone," and with that she broke down and turned loose and cried and cried as if her heart was split wide open. By this time mother she had been hit in a soft spot, and the tears rolled down her pretty cheeks as fast and free as the rain drops from that April shower. But she braced herself up as best she could and put her arms around the tremblin and troubled old soul—soft and tender like and soothin as she could—and quoted some famillious Scripture and told her it would all turn out for the best somewheres down the line. It maybe might not look that way at onet, but some of these days she could see, where in it was all for the right and all for the best.

Finally at last, in her nervous, jerky way, the old lady told us about the sad and sudden death of her little Steve, and the general facts of which we had heard before.

So Handy and So Peart.

"He was so handy and so peart, Rufus—but you all knowed little Steve," says she, and then it seems like she broke out in a fresh place and would jest naturally weep herself away. "It never was so late or so soon, so hot or so cold at what I could call on little Steve and he was right there," she went on, wringin her hands and rockin to and fro. He was such a help and comfort and a blessing to his poor old widdered mother.

"My other boy Bob—he is still with me in the flesh. But even when he was the right size Bob was never so peart and handy and ready and willin as little Steve. And then as to Bob—he has now come up to that pint in life where he aint fitten for nothin much but to loaf and swell and swash around durin the day and go gallin every night the good Lord sends. If Bob aint a man—with a few scatterin whiskers on his face and woman on his brain, he is fool enough to feel like one, which amounts to the same thing with his old mother.

"But little Steve—he was so nimble and so quick, so handy and so peart, Rufus. He could stay up later and git up sooner, and go faster and come quicker, and turn off more odds and jobs in less time than any boy that ever come to light amongst the Watsons. If in his love and wisdom the good Lord had but only took Bob I could stand it a whole heap better. But to see little Steve—my onliest little Steve—put in his coffin and toted out and hauled off and laid away to rest—it was too much for his pore old widdered mother to bear."

And with that the old lady let loose onet more, and wept and went on at such a tremendous rate till I thought in my soul she would faint on the spot. But mother she made a rush for the camphor bottle and her last year's turkey tail fan, and between the two we brung the old soul to her senses.

"How can I forget my little Steve, and how can I ever give him up? He was so handy and so peart. In summer heat or winter cold he could git up at the break of day and split the kindlin and fetch in the wood and make the fires and feed the stock, and draw the water and tote out the slops and drive up the cows and rope off the calves and churn the milk, and sweep the yard and hoe the garden and tend to the chickens and rook the cradle and nurse the baby. I reckon no doubts our little Steve is better off where he is—beyond this vale of sufferin and of sin. But he was the apple of his pore old widdered mother's heart, and I will never see the like of him no more. He was so handy, Rufus—so handy and so peart."

By this time that April shower had passed over. Then presently old Miss Watson she braced up sufficient to say good-by and driv on back home. And when that sad day till this blessed hour I have been rale sorry about some thin or other. To sary my life I couldn't tell you for certain what I am sorry about or who I am sorry for. But I am sorry.

A Stranger to the Lord. In the springing gentle Annie, when the dogwood blooms are bloomin—when you think about them old times, and the golden days you went through round about the old log schoolhouse—in them plain old days when people want so consounded pearticular as to keep two schools a term, one for the males and one for the females—when the boys made flyin Jennies, grapevine swings, seesaws, and sick like—when you boys and girls went rovin after chickypins and chestnuts, after heart leaves, after sweet shrubs—when the sap is bilin uparis and the bark slips on the hickory, and you feel like you would love to make some whips and flutes and whistles—anything to please the children—when you feel too daddurn lazy to do anything to speak of—

Well, that's the time for fishin. So it come to pass one day last week—the weather was so warm and dreamy like and peart—that Bunk Weatherford and old man Jeems W. Stagger they took their hooks and lines and bait gourd and went down in Murder creek a fishin.

Maybe you would love to know who in the thundersations is Jeems W. Stagger? You ask me ruther quick and sudden, but I will tell you all I know. He is a son of old Misses Stagers. In his own wild and wicked way, he is a right tolerable good man. But so far as I know, the pulpit and the amen corner never have been seriously threatened with his mainly presence. As to religion, Jeems W. Stagers never did even sorter make out like he had got any, and I reckon Aunt Nancy Newton was right when she put him down as "about the most wickedest man in this wide and wicked world." But the good Lord never blowed the breath of life into a better soul than old man Ebenezer Stagers, which he was a preacher of the word in his day and generation and the father of Jeems W.

No more of that. It leaks out now that Bunk and old man Jeems W. didn't have no tremendous big run of luck in regards to fish. But a man by the name of Jeems W. Stagers got snake bit, and that is what makes me tell you what I do.

"You see, Rufus, I had went down the creek, whilst Bunk he took up the creek," says old man Jeems W., in giving out the facts to me. "I was so scandalous and off for one good mess of fish, till I could smell the gravy, you understand, and consequently I didn't go down there lookin for snakes. But, by thunder, I found one, Rufus, and he found me. All of a sudden I stumbled over one of these big old rusty moccasins, and he nailed me on the calf of my left leg. Naturally, of course, I jumped up and down right there in the same place till the snake turned loose and I had stomped him to death. Then I laid down and holored for Bunk, and him a mile up the creek. So there I was, Rufe, way down there in Murder creek swamp snake bit, three miles from home, ten miles from the doctor, with my old leg swellin to beat six bits, and narry drop of sperits. Somethin had to be done. Rufe, right away immediately, and for the first time in my life I felt like I would love to pray. But, to be plumb honest with you, I didn't know how. Up to then, you understand, I never had seraped up any acquaintance with the Lord, and I felt like I was a rank stranger to Him. In the main time with Bunk Weatherford a mile up the creek. So at last I pitched in and told the Lord who I was and where I come from, and then prayed to the best of my feeble ability."

A Sad and Funny Sight.

From the way in which Bunk Weatherford tells the news, it must of been a sad and funny sight to see old man Jeems W. Stagers sayin his prayers for the first time down there in Murder Creek swamp.

"When I come up to where I could see Jeems W.," says Bunk, "he was lay in there on the ground flat of his back, wavin his hands on high and gesturin at a fast and furious lick. And to the best of my recollection, this is what I heard him say in a loud voice:

"Oh Lord, I reckon you don't know me. But I am snake bit. My name is Jeems W. Stagers. I am the wild and wicked son of old Parson Ebenezer Stagers, which I reckon you knowed him. He was a preacher of the Word according to the old school Baptists and a mighty good man. I am his onliest son, and snake bit at that. Oh, Lord, have mercy on my lost and ruin soul. Yours truly, Jeems W. Stagers."

That was a day of terror and of trouble, and no doubt Jeems W. thought his time had come. But by the blessings of Him with whom a thousand years are as a watch in the night the old man still lingers yet a little while in the border land. The doctors say he will recover and git well, and I do hope he will. Sometimes it takes a heap to bring a man to his senses, but it really looks to me like Jeems W. Stagers has now come up to the forks of the road.

For why? Well, the other day on my return back home from a trip down in the stump hill country I rid around by there to see how Jeems W. was comin on. In the general confabulation which followed, he went on to tell me how thankful he ought to be, and how he loved the name and recollections of his good, old father.

"And I never will feel plumb natural," he went on, lookin lovlinly down upon his snakebit leg. "I never will feel plumb natural and right, Rufe, till I can git up from here and slip off down to the lot and sing a few stanzas from that good and famillar old song: "'Amazin grace' low sweet the sound, 'Which saved a wretch like me.'"

Man, born of woman, is of few days and sorry teeth, and full of fool notions. But yesterday he was too big for his breeches. To-day he is small potatoer and few in the hill, with the rows six feet wide. To-morrow—the good Lord knows what not.

BOTH WERE HOMESICK.

Yellow-Feeling Made Kindred of the Clergyman and the Homeseick.

An American clergyman whose dream it had been to visit England crossed the ocean at last for his ten weeks' vacation. For a fortnight he enjoyed good about alone from place to place, seeing the sights, but he soon became lonely and then homesick. One Saturday morning he started out for a long walk, having no plan for the morning's recreation. He penetrated far into the wide reaches of the east end. There were crowds of men, women and children wherever he went, but not a face that he had ever seen before or would ever see again. Turning from the busier streets he found a narrow lane, and sat down on the stone step of a dreary tenement house. While he was sitting there he heard a child's sobbing voice from the open hallway behind him. Looking around, he saw a little wretch crying as though his heart would break.

"What is the matter, my little fellow?" asked the clergyman, in his gentlest tone.

"Homesick, sir," said the child; "since mother died I have no home. I don't seem to belong to anybody. I want some one to talk to."

"Well, lad, there are two of us. I am very lonely, too."

"But haven't you a home anywhere?"

"Yes, but it is a long way off, across the sea."

"Why don't you go back to it? If I only had a home I would never leave it."

The lonely minister, who had found his vacation in the awful solitude of London unutterably depressing, did not have an answer ready. But his heart went out to the homeless little wretch. He took the child out of the empty house, obtained decent clothes for him at a charitable institution, paid board for him at a lodging house, and finally carried him to America at the end of the vacation.—San Francisco Argonaut.

DRIED EGGS.

They Are Shipped in Barrels and Look Like Butter.

Both in England and Germany experiments have been made to preserve eggs by drying them, and to supply the market with this article as a substitute for fresh eggs. Inasmuch as the product is somewhat cheaper than fresh eggs at certain seasons of the year, while its nourishing value is said to be almost the same, the proceeding deserves some attention. In the factory which has recently begun operations at Passau, Bavaria, the process is as follows: The eggs are first candled in order to examine their quality. All good eggs are thrown into a very large, rapidly rotating vat, in which the centrifugal force separates the egg shells from the yolk and the white. The mixed fluid is taken out of this vat and dried by a process in which combined currents of air and heat are used. After its being thoroughly dried the product is packed in barrels, the finished article appearing like brown sugar. Experiments made with preserved eggs, which had been shipped twice across the equator, showed that omelettes and other dishes could be prepared tasting exactly as if made of fresh eggs. The Passau factory during the height of the season preserves from 8,000 to 10,000 dozen eggs per day. Several poultry farms have been started in the neighborhood but even these are not sufficient to supply the necessary quantity of fresh eggs for the factory, and agents sent out by them buy up all the eggs for miles around. The product of this factory has recently appeared in the German markets, and although the general public is a little suspicious of the offer of this substitute for fresh eggs, the excellent quality of the preserves has already made many converts.—Philadelphia Record.

How to Treat Lettuce.

When lettuce comes from the market immediately cut off the roots far enough to loosen the larger leaves. Wash it all thoroughly, spread out an old napkin, or, better still, a square of cheesecloth, and place the clean, wet lettuce leaves, as though they were all together again, in the center. Tie the corners of the cloth together like a peddler's pack, and place it on the ice. When time for serving arrives, though it be not for two or three days, the lettuce will be clean, crisp and perfectly dry. This is the very best way to prepare it, and does away with drying each leaf—a process sure to bruise the tender leaves. Celery should be treated the same way. Cut off the big tops, prepare it for the table, piece by piece, wrap it in a wet cloth and keep on the ice. At meal time there is nothing to be done but on the celeriac dish what is needed, and it will be clean, dry and crisp.—St. Louis Republic.

Voluntary Obedience.

Voluntary obedience, not compulsion, is what is wanted; and the parents that are even tempered, and the children that are teaching this lesson most successfully. A mother and father that have not learned self-control are not capable of controlling children. It is a burdensome thing to many to lead the child the way it should go, for it is very necessary that the parents follow the same path; we can't preach any more than we live, and the sermons from which the child draws his ideas take place in the home—no teacher or minister can do the parents' work. Your child has a body, mind and heart, all in your keeping; if you do your work well, when life's fitful fever shall have passed, for you, the memory of your children will go back to you, with gratitude that they were reared out in the world with sound bodies, cultivated minds and pure hearts.—Woman's kind.

Flower Bodies.

Many of the newest evening toilets show bodies liberally decorated with natural flowers, these usually fine, like half-blown roses, valley lilies, violets, lilacs, etc. A dinner dress of lustrous white satin, with sleeve puffs of turquoise blue velvet, had pale pink chrysanthemums and carnations of small size arranged around the entire edge of the half-long Reclamer bodice, with sprays of maidenhair fern festooned lightly from one flower cluster to the other. A white and gold brocade, trimmed with old lace literally yellow from age, was garnished on bodice and skirt with Gloire de Dijon roses and trailing rose vines arranged to fall en chateleine. A pale lemon brocade, with black velvet shawl puffs, was trimmed with jet and adorned with white lilacs and tea roses.—St. Louis Republic.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. AN AWFUL TRAGEDY.

An Indiana Man Kills Five People and Thon Himself.

HIS SISTER DIES SOON OF SHOCK.

Two Children His First Victims, Then Their Mother, Two Officers and Then Himself—He Was Once in the Asylum.

ROCKVILLE, Ind., April 25.—This morning at seven o'clock Peter Egbert, aged 23, shot and killed Mrs. Herman Hascke and her two children, Herman and Aggie, and Sheriff W. D. Mull and Constable W. M. Sveem. He then killed himself, and his sister, Miss Florence Egbert, who was lying very ill of typhoid fever, died shortly after the tragedy of the shock.

KILLING THE MOTHER AND CHILDREN.
About seven o'clock Young Egbert was sent into the back yard to saw some wood for family use. Shortly afterward, while Mrs. Hascke was out milking her cow, Egbert seized a double-barreled, breech-loading shotgun, and going into the Hascke house, which was next door to his home, shot the little daughter, ten years old, dead and wounded the boy, two years younger, who ran out on the porch, where Egbert shot him again, killing him instantly. The murderer then went out into the alley, and leveled his gun at Mrs. Hascke, who seeing his intentions, attempted to escape. He shot her, however, the charge taking effect in the top of her head, removing part of her skull. Mrs. Hascke lingered in an unconscious state for about two hours, when death ended her sufferings.

SHOOTING THE SHERIFF AND A CONSTABLE.
Having completed this work of butchery, Egbert shouldered his gun and walked up into the business part of the town. Sheriff Mull and Constable Sveem were planning a means of capturing the murderer. Egbert was walking across the north side of the square holding his gun in position with both barrels cocked, when he saw Mull and Sveem crossing the street towards him. He called out to them that they had better not come any nearer. The two officers then retired into a stairway in the national bank building for a moment's consultation, when Egbert turned, and coming upon them suddenly, shot and instantly killed both men.

THE MURDERER KILLS HIMSELF.
The murderer then started to run, taking a westward course towards the fair grounds, a number of citizens in close pursuit. He ran like a deer until, while crossing an open field just west of town, a shot from his pursuers took effect in his heel. This crippled him, and though he managed to scale the inclosure of the fair grounds, he was unable to run further, and crawling into a stall in the fair grounds, he shot himself in the right breast. The fire from his gun ignited his clothing, which was partially burned when he was found.

AN EXCITED TOWN—HE WAS INSANE.
News of the history of Rockville was excitement so intense. Business has been suspended and the people can think and talk of nothing but the awful tragedy. The dead are being prepared for burial, but no arrangements for their funerals have been made. Egbert was at one time confined in the insane asylum, but had been discharged as cured. The general belief is that insanity was the cause of the crime.

REVIEW OF TRADE.
How the Situation is Viewed By R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review—Business Favorable By Seasonable Weather, But All Great Industries Embarrassed By Lack of Adequate Demand—Speculation Making Little Headway.

New York, April 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Business has been favored by seasonable weather, and the distribution of products has made fair progress, not yet reducing retail or wholesale stocks far enough, however, to materially improve the position of industries. Those stocks have apparently been large ever since the fever of buying last fall and the actual buying for consumption has been smaller than has been generally realized. Hence all the great industries are embarrassed by lack of adequate demand, and, in some cases, the accumulation of goods in anticipation of demand has gone about as far as it can. Strikes of some importance are threatened in building and window glass trades, and the working force is lessened by stoppage of some factories, because orders are light. Again, prices of commodities are on the whole, lower than ever before, having declined about 2 percent, since April, and 7 percent, since July, 1890, or October, 1892. The fall in manufactured products is a little less than was April 1, but in farm products greater.

Speculation is swayed by trifling influences when markets are very narrow. The recent advance checked buying of wheat for export, and Atlantic exports for the week were 1,081,254 bushels, flour included, against 1,728,873 bushels last year, while western receipts were 2,004,007 bushels, against 1,357,403 bushels last year. Since July 1 Atlantic exports, including flour, have been only 72,900 bushels, against 87,500 last year; to date, though, western receipts have been about 177,000 bushels, against 129,000 bushels to date last year. With generally fair prospects as to winter wheat, the price has dropped about two cents, nearly half the rise based on gloomy reports early this month. Cotton receipts continue heavy and the price is a shade lower. A single enterprising buyer was able to push up the price of cotton eight-cent, though the progress of planting gives promise of a large yield, and the receipts continue on a large scale in 1893, thought to be about 386,000 bales larger for the year than last.

Cotton goods were bought less freely last week, and the northern mills have taken scarcely any cotton this month. The feeling is more hopeful, because retail trade is better. Failures for the week have been 238 in the United States, against 230 last year, and 41 in Canada, against 37 last year.

THE PEARL BRYAN CASE.

Will Wood, Scott Jackson's Former Chum, on the Stand—The Defense Beginning to Show Their Hand.

Newport, Ky., April 25.—Will Wood was on the witness stand in the Pearl Bryan murder case when court adjourned last evening.

He stated the intimacy of his friendship for Scott Jackson during his stay of nearly a year in Greencastle. He also admitted that he had introduced Jackson to his second cousin, Pearl Bryan, and that since Jackson's departure last October from Greencastle to Cincinnati he had kept up a correspondence with him, and that letters from Jackson to him personally were destroyed by him, according to Jackson's request. His testimony was to the effect that he knew that Pearl was in trouble, and that he received a letter from Jackson in Cincinnati requesting Pearl to go to Cincinnati to be relieved. He showed the letter to Pearl that day. She read it and asked witness:

"What would you do if you were me?"

Witness answered: "Decide for yourself."

The next day, which was Saturday, January 25, she told Wood she was going to Cincinnati on Monday, January 27. He saw her off on Monday, as she rode on the train, and that was the last he saw of her.

In the cross-examination the questions indicated that the defense had testimony from several men showing, in the form of depositions, that Wood had boasted to them of improper intimacy with Pearl Bryan. This questioning was to lay the foundation for the depositions of these persons in the defense. Wood positively denied every statement of the depositions.

Three important letters which Scott Jackson says are wanted in his defense are missing. They were written by Will Wood and were taken from Jackson's room by the Cincinnati police shortly after his arrest. The letters, it is claimed by the defense, will show what kind of a young man Wood has been.

Judge N. L. Bennett, of Campbell county, Ky., was put on the witness stand this morning and testified that he was at Locke's farm, where Pearl Bryan's body was found, the day after its discovery. The blood spots on the ground and portions of her person were still moist. A large part of the testimony was taken up with a description of the scene where the body was found. Besides Judge Bennett, Messrs. D. W. Weaver, Wm. Newell and W. S. Boyce testified on that point.

W. D. Pinkard testified to seeing a girl who looked like Pearl Bryan back of the Atlantic garden with Jackson and Walling the afternoon before the murder.

Mrs. Bryan was recalled and produced a lock of her daughter's hair and a photograph taken at the time she graduated from the high school.

Mrs. Plymouth Weeks, of Cincinnati, a spiritualist medium, testified that in the last week of January Pearl Bryan and Jackson came to her place, and that, in the course of her conversation with Pearl Bryan, Pearl told her who she was, and also told her her condition. The witness advised her to go home. The witness described the dress which Pearl wore, showing that she was not mistaken.

Mr. Fortmeyer, of Bellevue, Ky., told of Jackson and Walling, with a blonde woman, calling at his drug store in Bellevue, Thursday or Friday before the finding of the body, and asking for ferries to Walnut Hills.

Mrs. Kate Holmes, of Bellevue, testified to seeing this woman and two men at the ferry on the same day talking to Mr. Foster. Mr. Foster testified that he talked to these people, and that it was on Thursday or Friday, between 11 and 11:30 o'clock.

The Belting Sea Patrol.
PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., April 25.—H. R. M. fourth-rate protected gunboat Pheasant, Capt. Garfort, dropped anchor here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The visit is for the purpose of conferring with Capt. Hooper, of the American Hebrides squadron, in relation to plans for a successful and systematic policing of the northern seas against the ravages of pelagic sealers. The bulk of the work will fall upon the shoulders of Uncle Sam, who is sending six vessels north against the Pheasant, which, alone and unaided, will look after British interests during the closed season.

Trial Trip of the Massachusetts.
BOSTON, April 25.—The battleship Massachusetts left this morning on her official trial trip. She crossed the starting line at 1:15, and when she passed the first stake boat she was going at a great rate of speed. At 10:15 she passed the Katahdin, which is anchored at the second mark, 6.16 miles from the starting line. Her time between the two buoys was 25 minutes. The Indiana's time over the same course was 27 minutes.

Wild Chieftains Greeted Harrison's Name.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 25.—The Marion county republican convention met here to put a ticket in the field for the coming election. Temporary Chairman Bookwalter, in his speech, mentioned the name of McKinley, which was liberally cheered, but when he spoke the name of Gen. Harrison there was wild applause.

Will Wed a Wealthy Senorita.
NEW YORK, April 25.—At the opera last night was announced the engagement of Prince Albert Radziwill, well known in social circles here, and Miss Milmo, of the City of Mexico, whose brother, Patrio Milmo, is one of the wealthiest residents in the north of Mexico, and a partner of Mr. Kelly. Prince Radziwill is wealthy.

Sentenced to Hang.
CHICAGO, April 25.—Joseph Windrath, found guilty of the murder of Carey E. Birch, cashier of the West Chicago Street Railway Co., was sentenced this morning by Judge Morton to hang on May 16.

IN MEMORY OF GRANT.

The Union League Unveils Its Statue of the Renowned American.

HIS LITTLE GRANDSON LIFTED THE VEIL.

The Statue is a Beauty, Sixteen Feet High, Made of Bronze, and Weighs One Hundred and Ten Tons—Represented in Soldier Dress.

BROOKLYN, April 25.—The fine equestrian statue of Ulysses Simpson Grant, which the Union League club of Brooklyn has bought for presentation to that city, was unveiled with imposing ceremonies. The veil was lifted from the statue about three o'clock by the hand of little Ulysses Grant, grandchild of the general, and third son of Col. Fred Bent Grant, of New York.

The statue stands on Bedford avenue, at the corner of Dean street, just in front of the main entrance to the Union League club house. It makes an imposing spectacle.

The statue, reputed judges say, is a beauty of its kind. It is of heroic size, 16 feet high, made of bronze and weighs 110 tons. William Ordway Partridge was the sculptor. Its base is a square granite block, 33 tons in weight, supporting three similar blocks. The general is represented in soldier dress, his slouch hat drawn well down on his head and his overcoat on. The horse stands with his four feet firmly planted on the pedestal, head up, ears alert.

On the front of the base of the statue, in eight-inch raised letters, is the word:

GRANT
On the reversed side is this inscription:
PRESENTED TO THE CITY
BY THE UNION LEAGUE CLUB OF BROOKLYN
APRIL 27, 1893.

Aside from the unveiling the great feature of the celebration was the military parade. About 6,000 men were in line.

The veterans of Grant post, G. A. R., constituted the guard of honor about the statue. The guests of the club were gathered on the grand stand, built especially for the occasion. Many distinguished men were on the stand. The presentation exercises were begun with a prayer by Rev. Dr. A. J. P. Behrends.

Then, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford made a short speech, presenting the statue to the city. Mayor Wurster accepted the statue on behalf of the city. At this point the veil was lifted. Bishop John P. Newman delivered the edifying prayer. Gen. Horace Porter delivered an eulogy on Gen. Grant, and Bishop McDonnell pronounced the benediction.

The original plan was to unveil the statue on April 27, the general's birthday. The committee on arrangements learned, however, that Col. Grant had promised to be present at a Grant statue unveiling in Philadelphia on that day so they decided on April 25.

SALVATION ARMY AFFAIRS.
Items That Will Interest the Hallelujah Lads and Lassies and Those Who Admire Their Work.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Col. Edw. Higgins, who is to replace Col. Eddie as chief secretary to Commander Booth-Tucker, and who will be next in command of the Salvation army in the United States, has arrived. He carries important communications from Gen. Booth to his son-in-law and daughter. Col. Higgins said that Gen. Booth had not yet accepted as final the defection of his son Ballington. The colonel denied that he had brought any communication for Ballington Booth.

The colonel will be sworn in under the American flag at the Fourteenth street headquarters to-morrow night. At the same time Commissioner Eva Booth will say her farewell. She will sail for England next week for final instructions before taking command of the Canadian forces.

Commissioner Booth-Tucker made another tour last night of the slum posts of the Salvation army and conducted his investigation of the seamy side of life in the metropolis. He addressed meetings in the Albany street and Cherry street mission houses. Between meetings he looked in on some of the alleys and rookeries of the First and Fourth wards.

A big sign in front of the Fourteenth street headquarters yesterday attracted much attention. On one side, in big letters, was the notice: "THE DEVIL WOULD RATHER YOU WOULD NOT LOOK ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THIS BOARD." Of course everyone looked on the other side, and found an announcement of Sunday's programme.

Veterans' Law Declared Unconstitutional.
BOSTON, April 25.—The full bench of the supreme court has declared that the veterans' preference bill, passed by the legislature of 1893, is unconstitutional. The act permits the appointment of those who have passed a civil service examination, the veteran not being required to pass the examination.

Germany Has Trouble in Africa.
BERLIN, April 25.—The government has received information that war has broken out in German Southwest Africa between the Germans and the Sababils and Hottentots. A battle has been fought in which two German officers and six men were killed.

Killed By Lightning While Plowing.
LITCHFIELD, Ky., April 25.—Joseph A. Nichols, a farmer near Clarkton, was killed by lightning while plowing, he was 52, a widower, and leaves seven children.

Sweden and Japan.
STOCKHOLM, April 25.—The new commercial treaty between Sweden and Japan has been ratified.

The appellate division of the New York supreme court has rendered a decision which upholds the constitutional law of the Raines state liquor tax law.

Negotiations are under way in New York to erect a 14-story building to be devoted to clubs and societies for women. The structure will cost $1,200,000.

Abelheer Bishop, a widely known civil engineer, died in Petersburg, Va. He leaves three brothers, one of whom is Rev. William Frost Bishop, of Kansas City, Mo.

Frank Wilson, aged 14, caused the arrest of his mother in New York because she got drunk. He said he wanted to see her do right. The woman was sent to the workhouse.

The old rumor that Mr. Chauncey M. Depew is engaged to Miss Collium was revived in New York only to be contradicted by Mr. Depew. In accounting for the revival of the story Mr. Depew is quoted as saying that while in San Francisco a joss house Chinaman prophesied that Mr. Depew would be married within a year.

Mamie Hearn, 19 years old, while in a state of somnambulism, walked through the second-story window of 23 Bowery, New York, and fell through a hole of the fire escape, receiving a fracture of the right ankle. When the girl walked out of the window she was fully dressed and had on her hat, as if she was prepared for a stroll.

Mrs. Susanna Howells Jordan, a prominent artist and newspaper writer, well known on the Pacific coast, died in Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Jordan was a sister of William Hooper Howells, editor of the Newark (N. J.) Evening News, and a cousin of the novelist, William Dean Howells.

Nine-months old George Washington Baxter, of No. 637 Sylvester street, Philadelphia, was strangled by a strap in his high chair. His mother had tucked him in the chair and placed the leather strap in front of him, so that he could not fall on the floor. She went about her work, and returning in a few minutes found that the little fellow had slid down, the strap catching his neck and strangling him to death.

Mrs. Katie Peterson is seeking to break the will of her father, the late Adam Alday, of Moline, Ill., who was eccentric and wealthy. It is charged that his first wife became insane and he incarcerated her in his house for many years, and she was finally sent to Minnesota, where she died. An alleged will was left, leaving all the property to his second wife, and the plaintiff now seeks to have this will set aside.

Embezzler Adams Willing to Return.
LONDON, April 25.—Matthew Adams, of Denver, Col., who was arrested at Southampton upon his arrival from America about three weeks ago, charged with embezzlement of $40,000 in Denver, was arraigned in the Bow Street police court and the magistrate ordered his extradition. Adams said that his only desire was to return to Colorado, whither his wife, who was with him when arrested, had gone. He said that he did not intend to make any appeal from the decision of the court, but would go home and stand trial by his own countrymen.

Kruger Too Busy to Go to London.
CAPE TOWN, April 25.—Sir Hercules Robinson, governor of Cape Colony, has received and cabled to the colonial office in London President Kruger's reply to Mr. Chamberlain's invitation to the Transvaal president to visit London and discuss the situation in the South African Republic. President Kruger answers the invitation by saying that he can not at present proceed to England owing to the fact that his presence is required at home by the volksraad, the Transvaal parliament.

Killed by a Cable Car.
WASHINGTON, April 25.—Dr. S. S. Moffatt, a homeopathic physician of this city, was run over and killed by a cable car at nearly half past three this morning. The grim man saw the man lying across the track in the shadow of a tree just before the car struck him, but he was unable to stop the car in time.

Battle Between Italians and Derivishes.
STAKIM, April 25.—Advices received here say that part of the Italian garrison at Kassala, conjointly with a detachment of the Italian forces from Mokram, made an attack upon a force of 8,000 Derivishes, whom they defeated and pursued to Golsa. The Italians killed 500 of the Derivishes and lost 100 of their own men.

WHITELAW REID TALKS

His View of the Men Before the Republican Convention.

THE GREAT ISSUE OF THE CAMPAIGN.

He Has a Good Word to Say for All the Candidates, But Doesn't Believe "It is Anybody to Beat McKinley."

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—A special train carrying a morning paper from Phoenix, Ariz., says:

Whitelaw Reid, who has been living here during the winter, left for California last night. He is accompanied by Mrs. Reid, and they will be the guests of D. O. Mills, at Millbrae, San Mateo county, during their sojourn on the Pacific coast. It is Mr. Reid's present intention to remain in California two months, in which time he believes his health will be fully restored.

Just before his departure Mr. Reid gave a somewhat reluctant expression of his views on the political situation and the availability of the prominent candidates for the republican presidential nomination.

HIS PERSONAL PREFERENCES.
Asked his personal preferences, he replied with a laugh:

"I am heartily in favor of the nominee at St. Louis. Then seriously: 'I know and esteem all the candidates that have been mentioned thus far. With most of them I have had relations of cordial friendship for many years.'

"Allison, for instance, I saw sworn in for his first term in the lower house nearly thirty-five years ago, and I have known him since as one of the soundest and safest republicans."

"Four years ago all these candidates supported me, and with a good will and cordiality I can never forget, and my own desire now is to be in a position to give whichever of them may be chosen the heartiest and most efficient support in my power. As to which of the candidates named have the best chance," Mr. Reid continued, "anyone can answer that just as well as I, and the answer will be worth just as much."

McKINLEY SEEMS TO HAVE THE LEAD.
"McKinley may not be the man, but he certainly seems now to have a long lead."

"But the field is against him," was suggested. "It is anybody to beat McKinley."

"Pardon me," replied Mr. Reid, "it is hardly that. We may have had our prospects in the past, but this isn't one of them. A few gentlemen who intend to relieve the national republican party of the trouble of nominating a candidate by setting it among themselves may feel that way, but the delegates are of contrary opinions."

"Pennsylvania, for instance, will not doubt support Senator Quay in good faith as long as its delegates think he has any chance, but if they fail with him they will not then be hunting around for anybody else to beat McKinley—not a bit of it. As a matter of fact a number of them are too eager to vote for McKinley as soon as possible."

"The New Hampshire delegates gave a pretty good clew the other day in their state convention as to how they would feel in case they could not get Reed. Evidently they are not hunting for anybody to beat McKinley."

"Nobody can tell who is sure to be nominated until the convention has had a chance to express its own wish. I think that this is a perfectly evident fact that this is not a year in which the republican delegates from any considerable number of states are going to be massed by self-seeking bosses, in a compact column, hunting for anybody to beat somebody else."

THE GREAT ISSUE OF THE CAMPAIGN.
Mr. Reid was asked what he considered the great issue of the campaign.

"There is just one great issue," he answered, "which the people all over the country have in mind, and when the people of this country get on their feet, in their minds they are likely to have their way about it. Four years ago this people, under the rule of the party which had practically directed their government for 30 years, touched the absolute high water mark of prosperity recorded in the whole hundred years of their history. They then made a change. The next year every vote they gave showed they thought it was a mistake, and wanted to get back again to where they had been. Every election since then shows that they continue to feel the same way stronger and stronger. The one thing which overshadows everything else in their minds is the determination to undo the mistake and get back again to the rule of the party which had always given them protection and sound money. That's the issue, and no combination of politicians, or newspapers, or bankers, or cunning wire-pullers manufacturing foreign wars, can divert them from their purpose or make anything else the issue."

First Pistol, Then Swords.

VIENNA, April 25.—A duel was fought between Baron Fejrvary, Hungarian minister of national defense, and M. Bernath, a member of the chamber of deputies. The principals at first fought with pistols, with the result that neither was hit. They then fought with sabers, and M. Bernath was seriously wounded in the head.

A Turkey Hunter's Mistake.
SALEM, Mo., April 25.—John Dunlap and Bud Ball, neighbors, were out in the woods, turkey hunting, and Ball, seeing what he supposed to be a wild turkey, fired, but when he came to look for the game found that the contents of his gun had lodged in Dunlap's breast. It is expected that Dunlap will die.

CAPT. JAMES T. LOCKWOOD.

He Rescued the Crew of the Steamship at Bonacore Reef—Buried Near Panama.

NEW YORK, April 25.—There has been filed in the marine division of the customhouse a report from Victor Vilquian, United States consul at Panama, of the death of Capt. James T. Lockwood of the Pacific Mail Co.'s steamship City of Para. He died suddenly on his vessel in the bay of Panama on March 25, while preparing to go to Colon to take the steamship Financier for New York to obtain medical treatment.

He rescued the crew of the United States mail-war Kearsarge, when it was wrecked on Bonacore reef, and on that occasion contracted a cold which developed in consumption. He was buried in the American graveyard on Flamingo island.

Against the Evansville & Terre Haute.
NEW YORK, April 25.—The sheriff received an attachment for $139,415 against the Evansville & Terre Haute Railroad Co. of Indiana, in favor of John Dougan, of this city. The claim is for principal and interest due on 133 first mortgage bonds of $1,000 each of the Evansville & Richmond Railroad Co., which were guaranteed by the Evansville & Terre Haute Railroad Co., on which the interest has been in default since March 1, 1894. The attachment was served on the Farmers' Loan and Trust Co. and the National City bank.

Weekly Bank Statement.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

For Governor,
JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON,
Of Jefferson.

For Secretary of State,
JAMES K. JACKSON,
Of Lauderdale.

For Treasurer,
GEORGE W. ELLIS,
Of Montgomery.

For Auditor,
WALTER S. WHITE,
Of Colbert.

For Attorney-General,
WILLIAM C. FITTS,
Of Tuscaloosa.

For Superintendent of Education,
JOHN O. TURNER,
Of St. Clair.

For Commissioner of Agriculture,
I. P. CULVER,
Of Bullock.

STATE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

We, the democrats of the state of Alabama, in convention assembled, declare our continued faith in the old time and honored principles of the democratic party, and among these principles are the following:

1. The free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at 16 to 1 as the standard money of the country, without any discrimination against either metal and without the consent of foreign nations, as the United States coined silver and gold before the republican party obtained control of the government and changed the coinage laws of the country for the benefit of a class and to the injury of a great mass of the people.

2. The unconstitutional penalty of 10 per centum on each issue of state bank notes by any state or national bank, ought to be repealed.

It is our purpose to maintain a government in this state fair and just to all, under the control of the white men of Alabama.

The faith and credit of the state must be maintained unimpaired.

Our system of public education should be improved and extended so far as the state has the ability, without oppressive taxation.

We are in favor of honest and fair elections, and we recommend that laws be enacted under which primary elections and other party proceedings for the selection of candidates may be conducted.

We cordially invite all good citizens of this state, and especially all democrats who strayed from the party, to unite with us in an earnest and determined effort to maintain good government in the state of Alabama.

Let us preserve the dignity and credit and peace, and, if possible, the prosperity of our state.

"JOE JOHNSTON must be the next governor of Alabama; not because he is Joe Johnston, but because he is the nominee of the democratic party," says the Seale Register, one of the papers that urged his nomination. That is eminently the correct position. He is not an individual any longer; he is the appointed leader of the party. —Montgomery Advertiser.

The shortage of the sugar crop because of the Cuban war has caused an advance of 1-8 of a cent in refined sugar. The normal yield of 1,000,000 of tons of sugar annually in Cuba is cut down this year to 100,000 to 150,000 tons.

HON. JNO. B. KNOX, of Calhoun, was re-elected chairman of the democratic state executive committee by a unanimous vote. Hon. Thos. H. Clarke, of Montgomery, was unanimously re-elected secretary.

VICE PRESIDENT ADAM E. STEVENSON has consented to deliver an address before the alumni association of the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa at commencement in June.

BEWARE.

We understand that some emissaries of the "Mormons, or Latter Day Saints," are in the county, seeking to make proselytes and deem it our duty as faithful chroniclers to apprise the people of the faith and character of the Mormon church. The intelligent readers of our paper belong to a class that we presume need no warning in such cases; but there is unhappily a good deal of illiteracy among the people of the county and the uninformed are liable to be deceived and lured to their destruction by a sect who mix truth with error. A half truth is often more dangerous than unadvised error.

The Mormons accept the Bible indeed, but teach that new revelations have been, and are now being given in addition to the canon of Scripture. They hold that these revelations authorize polygamy. Their practice, as female victims escape from their ranks declare are horribly immoral. The orgies celebrate in their great temple at Salt Lake City, are infamous. Establishing a town at first, in Illinois, they were so corrupting the community that the people felt compelled to rise up and expel them from the country and destroy their city. They then retired into the wilderness of Utah, where they became very numerous. And so offensive became their practices, particularly polygamy, that congress felt constrained to interfere and prohibit polygamy by law. It is prohibited in the constitution of Utah, but believed to be secretly practiced still; certainly still one of their tenets. Let young females beware of their seductive talk and christian profession. We hope none of them will be unfortunate enough to be involved into their snares, and live to lament the consequences of unheeded warning.

We nail at our mast head this week the state democratic ticket. We favored the nomination of Mr. Clarke for reasons well known to our readers, but a larger majority of the party overruled us, and we cheerfully submit. We intend to support the ticket just as cordially and as earnestly as if we had secured our choice in every instance, and if every democrat will do likewise it's election will be a certainty. The ticket is a good one from top to bottom, and is a sure winner.

J. D. HARDY said in a speech here two years ago that his brethren (the republicans) need give themselves no concern about the populists, as he would eventually make good republicans of them. It seems he is no slouch as a prophet. His party has swallowed the pops boots and breeches. Verily, verily, for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain the poplite leaders are dandies.

Just as we go to press we learn that the outcome of the pop-republican conventions in Montgomery was a fusion ticket. In other words they will co-operate. Goodwin is the nominee for governor, and the republicans were given two representatives on the ticket. Great Scott, but won't we have lots of fun this summer.

From Dallas county the names of Gaston A. Robbins, Jno. F. Burns and Major Boykin are suggested in connection with the congressional honors of the Fourth district this year; and from Calhoun county the name of Dr. T. W. Ayers has been mentioned. Can't Shelby county furnish a candidate also?

THE NEWS, Selma's new afternoon paper, has reached our table. It is democratic to the core, wide awake, enterprising, full of advertisements, and is a hummer in every sense of the word. We hope it will meet with the substantial encouragement it merits.

JAMES E. COBB has been unseated from the Fifth Alabama district by a vote of 145 to 45 A. T. Goodwin, populist, being seated.

The encampment of the Third Alabama Regiment will be held at East Lake, commencing June 8th.

The Alabama state convention of democrats adopted a 16 to 1 platform by a vote of 343 to 161.

CAPT. JOHNSTON was nominated over Mr. Clarke by a vote of 354 to 147.

Do not fail to register if you expect to vote in August and November.

RAIN-DROPS.

BY MRS. H. C. REYNOLDS.
Not forever, not forever, will the rain-drops patter down.

Casting gloom upon the mountain, darkness in the vales around;
Falling heavy on the house-tops, splashing 'gainst the window pane,
Making O such music! such a melancholy strain!

While the falling rain-drops fill the mind with thought,
There's a heavier rain-fall—
'Tis rain upon the heart.

Not forever, not forever, will our eyes be filled with tears
Over what we can't accomplish, striving through long, weary years;
Watching, longing, ever hoping, catching at the faintest gleam,
Wherein seems our prayers are answered, but, alas! it is not seen.

While the falling rain-drops show the heart is tried,
The heart's in greater sorrow
When the tears are dried.

In the future, in the future, God will wipe the tears away,
Brighten up our dreary pathway into everlasting day.

And in casting back our glances o'er the road which we have trod,
We may see, in roughest places, blessings from the hand of God.

Just as the falling rain-drops gladden each leaf and flower,
May be heart-aches and tear-drops,
Will brighten each future hour.

IMMIGRATION TO THE SOUTH.

The Movement From the Northwest to the Southeast.

Written by M. V. Richards, Immigration Agent, Southern Railway.

The question of immigration from the northwest to the southeast is in no respect enigmatical, but in perfect harmony with the development of the age in which we now live. In other words perfectly natural. For the last thirty-five years we have been on the move. Every man who chose to become disposed to change his location, studied the problem of possibilities as to what section of country would best suit his convenience in every particular respect.

The movement still continued westward from habit and knowledge of the western country. The failures and distressing conditions of the country west of the Missouri river have so certainly and positively conquered and baffled the most determined men, as well as active agencies, who have, in common parlance, "lost their grip," that today we find the movement of people from the northwest to the southeast nearing the magnitude of the migration of people from the East to the West some years ago. Honest pioneers have become discouraged; they are looking elsewhere. Almost like an "ignis fatuus," the light dances about—everywhere in the South.

The railroads have made the beginning, special inducements were and are being thrown out and the people have started thitherward. In every instance men are seeking, first, cheap lands, then other conditions are considered. The high prices of land first started men from the central west, westward, until now low-priced lands are attracting the minds of men only, and that to the detriment of the West, from the fact that there is no portion of the United States in which lands rate above the actual values as in the northwestern states. Poor men and young, ambitious men are looking for cheap lands, and have learned and are still learning more and more daily where such lands can be had.

The facts are becoming generally known throughout the whole country that in the southeastern portion of the United States land can be purchased at prices which astonish everybody. Men begin to learn that this is no "booming" story. These statements, settled facts, decide the present status of land selling in all the northwestern country. They have the arguments well studied, and knowing they are well founded, no reasonable man can successfully combat their notions.

Advantages of markets, climatic preferences, fruit culture and fresh, clear streams of water, timber and game, all are themes they discuss. It is difficult to get many northern people to see the prime causes which put 'em and as low in price south as it is.

The explanation may be given, but they forget that which they cannot fully realize. They cannot understand that the inhabitants of the South have come up through different schools of education, and that the farms are simply not wanted by the former owners. They have lost the desire of farming for a livelihood, and never did labor and till the soil as the northern man.

When the northern farmer once fully understands this to be the true situation, he readily determines what his course shall be, as soon as he can sell his effects in the frigid climate, and is found on his way south. It is becoming plainer every day what the future will bring about in this great question of immigration to the South. There is no class of people on the earth so well calculated to shape themselves to the environments than the northern people. Generally well educated and industrious, look upon honest labor as the highest virtue, and having the will to do it, are always successful. They are going south, and there is no human power that can stop the current now moving.

The tenant farmer has become tired of high rentals; he cannot pay the price asked by owners, and he has the clear grit to refuse, and the result is readily seen. They are bound to seek more inviting locations. Let the truth and nothing but the truth be published regarding the South, "hurry slowly" in the endeavor, and it is only a question of a short time until the "enigmatical" problem will work out itself. The country south of the Potomac and Ohio will be alive in every valley and on every plain, and even the mountain tops will be utilized for every purpose that the genius of man can conceive. While the irrigation question is being discussed in and experimented with in the West, the South will settle up and become the happy home of teeming millions.

Anent the Whining Woman.

The following from an exchange may be read no doubt with interest and profit by some of our lady readers:

There are two things in a woman that the man of refinement admires equally as much as, if not more than, beauty, and those are a pleasant voice and a cheerful disposition. There is not a man in the world brave enough to cope with a woman who whines. He will put himself to any amount of trouble to avoid her. Fortunately, though, whining is going out of fashion. It is now considered, and rightly more womanly to meet the trials and troubles, both small and great, cheerfully.

If your trouble is a great one, however, you may risk telling it to your best friend, be he lover or brother, feeling sure that he will do his best to aid you, but never venture meeting him with a bundle of imaginary woes. With such you may be sure he will never trouble you, and why should a woman feel it her privilege to ask more than she can return, simply because she is a woman?

THE FREE COINAGE OF IRON.

Alex. P. Hall, in the Atlanta Journal.

Having been deeply impressed by the arguments of Judge Crisp, Bryan, Livingston and especially the Atlanta Constitution on the financial issue now before the people, and being deeply grieved, shocked and horrified by the stupendous loss entailed on the people of the South by the "awful crimes of '73," amounting to no less than $3,000,000,000 according to my friend, Mr. Jerry Goldsmith, in his able paper in last Sunday's Constitution, I have changed my views on the money question, and am ready to maintain the propositions following, either in joint debate or in newspaper controversy with all comers—I accept their argument, and agree with their proposed remedy as far as it goes—only I don't think it goes far enough. Let us have plenty of remedy, in fact enough to make debt and poverty things of the past, relics of the dark ages!

I am in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of pig iron at sixteen to one, and can produce undoubted authority for the proposition that such a course will "raise prices," put plenty of money in circulation and bring about general prosperity.

Now in the first place, it may be urged by some who do not understand the subject of standards of value that such an act of congress would not raise the price of pig iron to this level. To them I reply, "The stamp of the government" and its "legal tender qualities" would instantly make the bullion value of pig iron the same as the mint value. "For who would part with an ounce of this metal for anything less than the mint value?" (Bryan, Jones and Stewart).

Again, it may be urged that our mints would be overcrowded with pig iron. "I reply, "That the price of pig iron having been raised from $11.25 per ton to a ratio of 16 to 1 with gold the world over, no one would care especially to carry it to the mint, since all of his pig iron would bring that price in the open market anywhere." (Atlanta Constitution).

Next, it may be urged that gold and silver would go out of circulation. I reply, "First, this is a mere assumption of the tools of the money power, which they cannot verify" (Atlanta Constitution); second, "Suppose they did, isn't there enough pig iron to take their place and give the people plenty of money?" (Bryan); and third, that "such an assumption mixes up circulating medium and standard of value that gold and silver would still be potential money metals, even if not in circulation, and would help to raise prices and aid in the general prosperity." (Crisp).

Then again, it may be urged against the pig iron basis that wages would not rise in proportion to prices. The reply is "wages would be compelled to rise, since no man would be fool enough to work for a dollar a day, who could make $1,000 picking up old nails and horse shoes and carrying them to the mint for coinage." (Hall).

In addition, it may be urged by the money power that we could not alone go on a pig iron basis without an international agreement. "To such standards as dare to lay a limit to the powers of the American people to do what they please, independently of all nations, I hurl their cowardice and lack of patriotism back in their faces." (Bryan).

The "crime of demonetizing iron" took place about 2,000 years ago in Greece, when certain goldsmiths and silverites, in order to increase the purchasing power of their ill-gotten wealth, secretly got the demonetization act passed in Sparta, and prices have been going down ever since. To-day China is the only country on earth honest enough to still coin iron and there the happy laborer can carry home the wages of his honest toil in a wheelbarrow." (Atlanta Constitution).

I have calculated the losses entailed upon the honest people of this world on account of the demonetization of pig iron, and the ruinous fall in prices consequent thereon, but I fear to give the figures, lest a revolution follow. However, I'll give them and the people can act accordingly. The loss is exactly $13,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000. (J. W. Goldsmith).

In conclusion I insist that the free coinage of pig iron will do everything that is claimed for silver, and infinitely more. The people will be rich and prosperous. The once poor man can pay his debts with his old stove. The railroads can declare dividends on old rails, the small boy can pick up old nails and horse shoes to support his family. In fine, poverty and debt can no longer exist!

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Fitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Fitcher is on every wrapper.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

LEAP-YEAR AVOIDANCE.

From the Richmond Dispatch. "What is this 'old, old story,' Sir, Of which so much is said; And authors oft refer unto In books that I have read?"

Thus queried Miss Van Whinkle, When, One eve at tete-a-tete, She sat with Mr. Penny-pin Near the garden gate.

"The 'old, old story,' Miss," said he, With look uncommon sage; "Is that the spinster tells me she Is asked to give her age?"

H. A. Seale, of Selma, is on a visit to his children here.

W. B. Hubbard, of Harpersville, spent Sunday in town.

J. R. Hill, of Calera, transacted business here yesterday.

A. H. Avery and son Charley, of Shelby, were in town Tuesday.

Mrs. H. S. Nelson is on a visit this week to her son Frank in Anniston.

Mrs. W. H. O'Brien has been quite sick several days, but is now improving.

W. S. Cary, Esq., of Montevallo, transacted legal business here yesterday.

The brick yard started up Tuesday, and is now making 12,000 brick per day.

Mrs. Eula Adkins, from Gainsville, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. E. B. Nelson.

Hon. Cecil Browne and wife came down Monday to spend the day with W. B. Browne's family.

Mrs. H. W. Chester, of Riverside, Illinois, near Chicago, is visiting the family of Rev. W. I. Sinnott.

Judge McMillan and family returned yesterday from a visit to relatives at his former home in South Alabama.

Walter Lester, who has been here a month or more visiting his brother Rufus, left Sunday for home, near Welda.

T. L. Seale went over to Birmingham Monday and returned the following day with several fine horses which he will sell cheap.

Our jolly friend J. G. Parker intended to leave Monday for a ten days' trip to Texas, but was taken sick, and was forced to postpone his trip.

The school children will be given a holiday tomorrow, and they propose to have a picnic and spend the day on the mountain at the Weaver springs.

Dirt was broken yesterday morning for the Page building, and the foundation is being made for what will soon be the handsomest building in the county.

The Columbiana Mercantile Co., have purchased the vacant lot, adjoining the one on which the Page building is to be built. We hope these enterprising men will build on it this summer. It is too pretty a lot to be vacant.

Hon. W. B. Browne was honored by the state convention held last week in Montgomery, he being selected as the presidential elector from this, the Fourth district. A sounder or more capable democrat could not have been chosen.

The following delegates left here yesterday for Montevallo to attend the convention of the Shelby County Christian Endeavor Union: J. R. White, Henry Milner, E. B. Paul, J. W. Dyke; Misses Belle Huyett, Ethel Creek, Nellie Parker, Edna Nelson, Emma Wilson, Lula Wilson, Emma Millstead, Lucy Smith and Mrs. J. W. Johnston. They were joined here by quite a number from Shelby, whose names we failed to get.

Remember that there can be no voting in August without registration. That important work begins on Monday, the 4th of May, and continues for eighteen days, except in cities of 10,000 inhabitants and over, where it lasts for thirty days. Every democratic voter ought to qualify himself to discharge his duty at the August election and this cannot be done if registration is neglected. Register as soon as possible. Begin on the 4th of May, and don't postpone the duty to a more convenient season, for fear it may be overlooked. Many a vote is lost by neglecting to register in proper time.

W. M. Galloway, of Saginaw, gave us a pleasant call Saturday. Will enjoys the distinction of having more different kinds of luck in a given length of time than any man on the globe. Very recently he married a beautiful young lady. That was good luck and lots of it. But it needs must change to keep up his record. While standing near the mill a few days later, he was struck by a piece of timber 10x12, 22 feet long with such force as to hurl him across the yard. He was pretty sore for a few days with a dozen or more slight bruises about the size of a saddle skirt, scattered about over his anatomy, but he kept at work nevertheless. About a week later he undertook to make a coupling in the yard. The engine backed up with a crash, broke the bumpers and mashed Will flatter than a pancake, but a moment later he crawled out of the wreck slightly disfigured but still ready for business. He is good for a green old age. He can't be killed.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. F. Pope went to Vincent Friday. Porter Bradley, foreman in the Southern railway yard in Selma, visited relatives here last week.

Miss Kate Bradley is spending several days in Selma with relatives.

W. A. Williamson has resigned his position at Mr. Butlers' mill on account of his health, and has returned to his home.

W. J. Tinney and J. F. Pope have returned from their visit to Montgomery.

On account of the heavy clouds passing over us last Wednesday night, there was no prayer-meeting.

Rev. J. M. McCord filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church last Sunday and Sunday evening.

The Earnest Workers met last Sunday afternoon; the attendance was quite large.

Our city was honored by the presence of quite a number of young ladies from near Harpersville last Sunday. We should be pleased indeed to have them with us every Sunday and oftener if possible.

A. A. Daniels left our city for Birmingham last Monday, where he will spend several days.

J. W. Bolin made a business trip to Anniston last Monday.

Eddie Wellington and his mother have returned home after several weeks visit to Hot Springs, Ark. The smiling face of Eddie, that we have missed so much, can now be seen on our streets again.

The young people are looking forward to the closing exercises of the Harpersville school next Tuesday evening. This trip is contemplated by nearly every young man and lady of Wilsonville, and we trust that the weather will be fair and pleasant so we can attend. We are satisfied that it would be an untold pleasure to us.

I beg to ask the readers of this column, not to expect too much, as my time is limited as well as my words and expressions.

The string band ventured out on another serenade at a late hour last Saturday night. The places of performance were J. W. Taylor's and J. W. Bolin's. I cannot say much for the music made by our newly organized band; but can say emphatically, that the refreshments, together with the courteous treatment, is something that will long dwell in the minds of the serenaders.

The Social Purity Literary League met last Friday evening. The well arranged programme was fully carried out in a beautiful manner. I must express my gratitude to Miss Georgia Pope for her beautiful recitation and the manner in which it was spoken. I am sure that it met the hearty approval of every one present. The lovely bouquets were showered at Misses Georgia, Laura Weldon, Juddie Kilpatrick and Ella Brown complimenting the sweet melody of vocal music from their tender voices. We are glad to report having had the pleasure of enrolling the two young ladies that we have been contemplating their membership ever since the origin of the society.

THE CRY FOR RAIN.

I wish it would rain, And lay the flying dust; It sweeps through streets and lanes, And soils our finest dress.

I wish it it would rain, And cool the heated air; So dry and warm today, Rain, rain's the people's prayer.

I wish it it would rain, Upon the gardens now; The cabbage, peas and beans, Are withling in the row.

I wish that it would rain, Upon the wheat and rye; Without a season soon, The oats won't be knee high.

I wish that it would rain, And then be mild and warm; Revive the crops again, The cotton and the corn.

I wish that it would rain, 'Twould help the farmers so; To cheer them up again, While they thus plough and hoe.

I wish that it would rain, And wash away the filth; Clean out the drains again, And thus protect our health.

All nature cries for rain, From smallest herbs to trees, But one thing grows the same, And that's the ladies sieves

BOURGEOIS.

Harpersville Echoes.

Prof. H. J. Willingham, of Lineville, stopped over at Harpersville last Friday night and Saturday, while on his way to Birmingham.

Last week we stated that in all probability we would have some fruit again this year. It seems now that we are going to be mistaken for the apple and pear blooms have all turned black. The plums are very few and peaches are exceedingly sorry.

W. B. Hubbard is visiting Columbiana.

Rev. Mr. Roberts filled his regular appointment at the Methodist church last Sunday.

Dr. Penn, of Vincent, attended preaching here Sunday.

The Morgan bridge was partly burned up last week; caught from the woods.

Ex-Commissioner A. M. Jones, of Childersburg, was here last Sunday among his many friends.

The Methodist church at Vincent is to be dedicated next Sunday. Rev. T. K. Roberts, of Montgomery, is to preach the dedication sermon.

Dr. Chandler, the leading physician of Vincent, and his two charming daughters came down to preaching last Sunday.

The young people of Harpersville have organized a literary society and we expect great things from it, for "tall oaks from little acorns grow and large streams from little fountains flow."

The heaviest rain in twelve months fell here Sunday night, and low places are full of water and land is washed considerably.

The oat crop is very sorry and unless the seasons are very favorable from now on it will be almost a failure.

Our farmers report good stands of cotton, and some few will commence chopping this week.

The democrats of beat 10, want Col. N. A. Graham elected superintendent of education and also want J. E. Ruffin for representative. What say you, gentlemen?

Closing exercise of the Elm Hill High School, Prof. C. H. Florey, Principal. Tuesday, May 8th examination from 8 to 12. Debate in the afternoon by the young men. At night entertainment mostly by the little ones. Wednesday night entertainment by the larger ones. The patrons and public generally are all invited to be present on all occasions.

JAKE. Items from Creswell.

C. H. Smith and family, of Leeds, came down Sunday and spent the day with J. H. Coleman's family, returning on the afternoon train.

Rev. W. J. Ray, from East Lake, passed through Saturday going to fill his appointment at Goodwater. He returned Monday and stopped off to spend the night with his father and family. Will is one of our school-day boys and we are always glad to see his smiling face with us.

The young folks are preparing to have a May picnic down on the river near Scott Bradford's, the second Saturday in May. Let all lend a helping hand and make it a grand success.

Is it a fact that a certain candidate got so far off that he got across the line, even the river, down into Talladega county, about Fayetteville, and had it not been for a blind man he would have gone clear down into Coosa county?

The Columbiana Art Co., with J. F. Bates as general manager, has taken up camp at Easonville, after staying a few weeks with us.

Rev. Mr. Warren filled his appointment at the Baptist church the third Sunday, and preached an excellent sermon to a large congregation. We are glad to have him with us the third Sunday in each month through the year.

We were glad to see J. L. Judge come in Saturday to spend a few days with us.

After spending several months with relatives and friends here, Mrs. Lipsey returned to her home at Irondeau last Sunday, accompanied by her granddaughter, the charming Miss Arabella Baggett, who will spend a few weeks there. We miss Miss Arabella from our midst, but we are glad her stay will not be long, and hope for her a pleasant time.

Rev. E. G. Mullen preached an able and instructive sermon to a large and appreciative congregation at the Papist church last Sunday.

CHOCTAW. HOW COLDS ARE TAKEN.

A person in good health, with fair play, says the Lancet, easily resists cold. But when the health flags a little, and liberties are taken with the stomach, or the nervous system, a chill is easily taken, and according to the weak spot of the individual, assumes the form of a cold or pneumonia, or, it may be jaundice. Of all causes of "cold" probably fatigue is one of the most efficient. A jaded man coming home at night from a long day's work, a growing youth losing two hours' sleep over evening parties two or three times a week, or a young lady heavily "doing the season," young children over-fed and with short allowance of sleep, are common instances of the victims of "cold." Luxury is favorable to chills; taking; very hot rooms, feather beds, soft chairs, create a sensitiveness that lead to catarrh. It is not, after all, the "cold" that is so much to be feared as the antecedent conditions that give the attack a chance of doing harm. Some of the worst "colds" happen to those who do not leave their house or even their beds, and those who are most exposed to changes of temperature, and who by good sleep, cold bathing and regular habits preserve the tone of their nervous system and circulation. Probably many chills are contracted at night or at the fog end of the day when tired people get the equilibrium of their circulation disturbed by either overheated sitting rooms or underheated bedrooms and beds. This is especially the case with elderly people. In such cases the mischief is not always done instantaneously, or in a single night. It often takes place insidiously, extending over days or even weeks.

Sure to Be Effective.

From the Washington Star. "Sometimes," said the merchant, "I feel like the poet who wanted a lodge in some vast wilderness. I yearn for solitude and silence."

"Well," replied his friend, sympathetically, "it's an expensive taste to gratify. But you might start in by taking your advertisement out of the papers."

STILL PUZZLED.

From the Entaw Mirror.

Of late we have been at a loss how to describe a populist accurately. As a party, they have abandoned the Ocala follies and the Kansas City fallacies, and confine themselves to free, independent and unlimited coinage of silver, coupled with a farcical plank for fair elections and an honest count added to the main part, "cuss Cleveland." We had somehow arrived at the conclusion, that when a man deserted his party and voted for a bolter, as many did for Kolb, he was a populist. Now we are informed that we are mistaken and that the very best and purest democrats did that thing, and that it did not soil their political righteousness a particle. This, somehow, rattles our mentality. We can't understand it. We thought a populist was a man who voted for the great bolter Kolb, cussed Cleveland and Dick Clarke and held himself to be a thoroughbred democrat without guile or stain in all his being. We, somehow, could not make these things fit to a joint. Do our best, the crack would be like that of a very bowlegged man in a lane, trying to stop runaway pigs. We could not see how a deserter could be a good soldier, nor a sot a tototaller saint. They would not mix into a homogenous mass, do our best. We suppose, after hearing several claim that the followers of bolter Kolb were the very best and pink of democrats, that it was for want of sense on our part that we could not see as they saw. The Cathode rays might reveal a solution, but hanged if we can see it to this day.

Whats The Use?

From the Indianapolis Journal. "I have here," said the agent, "a little book that will show you how to be your own lawyer."

"Ef it would show me how to be somebody else's lawyer," said the man with the black beard that was gray at the roots, "I might buy it. But what is the use for a man to learn to rob himself?"

HE TALKS TO HIMSELF.

The Sage of Rocky Creek Gets Into a Contemplative Mood.

Foot Politics Make Fool People—Looking Backward—The Man and the Boy—At Peace with the General Government.

It was on a raw and gusty day in the windy mouth of March, and says I to myself, foot politics makes fool people. Down there on the old Jackson Trail road the other side of Panther Creek bridge I met up with old man Tobie Murray. He was driven a yoke of oxen to a covered wagon.

He had one cow and three dogs and all the rest of his family along with him. After passing the regular compliments in regards to the weather and the crops, I wanted to know if they were running away, or movin out west, or travellin around or jest naturally goin some wheres.

A Joyful Old Candidate.
"We have forever shook the sands of Panther creek from our unhallowed feet, Rufe, and we are now movin up to town," old man Tobie came back at me. "I have sold out in the old settlement, look, stock and barrel. I have rented a fine house in town with green bay windows and lightnin rods on it, and henceforward from now on old man Murray and his folks will keep company with the highstrider."

"You must recollect, Rufe, that I am the next high sheriff of the county," old man Tobie went on, "in warm and joyful as he went, 'and I thought I might as well move up to town and get ready for the business—git familious with the documents before I go up agin the gun, as it were."

"Of course the election aint come off as yet, Rufe, but Tobie Murray aint nobody's natural-born blame fool, and I don't have to wait forever to see which way the cat will jump. I have done been the rounds and counted the noses, and the people are most all for me. In all the rounds I didn't meet up with but a few scatterin votes that aint flat-footed for Tobie Murray for high sheriff. By golly, Rufe, I have got the thing in a sack and gone with it. All I have got to do is to wait till the returns come in and then proceed with the proceedings."

With that old man Tobie laughed and laughed till he laughed all over himself, so to speak, and then him and his folks driv on towards town.

"Foggy Up the Creek."
Now then, the primary election come to pass as usual one day last week. The weather was clear as a bell on election day, but as the returns came in and before the sun went down it was lookin tremendous foggy up the creek for old man Tobie. And when finally at last they swung down under the wire it was plain to a man on the grand stand that the candidate from Panther Creek was the kindest horse in the race.

Old man Tobie he got left. He likewise also got foam mad. But the other fellow got the votes.

The very next day old man Tobie lit out for the Panther Creek settlement. He wouldn't take a meal of victuals nor hit a lick of sleep till he ried the trade and got hold of his farm and farmin fixtures and went home. He is now ready to give up his town house and return back to the old lick log, where he belongs.

"I am plum satisfied with the way in which the democrats run and I am more than willin to quit the game as it now stands," says old man Tobie to me right after the storm. "But it really hurts me, Rufe, when I think about how many of my horny-handed fellow citizens are silver-tongued liars. Dad blame 'em, the woods are full of 'em!"

And that's what makes me say to myself, says I:

Foot politics makes fool people. Never count your chickens till the old hen comes off.

The mainest thing is the votes.

Looking Backward.
I do reckon about the most lonesomest thing in this world is a rale lonesome man. And as for me, when I git one these big lonesome spells on me I will stop mighty low down for company. I have seen the time when I was so hard run for company till I would talk in my sleep. Sometimes I go out and talk to the horses and the dogs. And then sometimes, when I can't do no better, I pitch in and talk to myself.

So the other day I was down in the orchard sunnin my old clothes, and watchin the bees hum and hustle, and listenin at the birds, and smellin of the apple blossoms, when presently I got to talkin and argifyin with myself at a scandalous rate. When I got back to the house, mother lowed I must be practicin for a stump speech or goin crazy. But I was neither.

Infus Saunders, says I to myself, these fine spring mornins are pleasant to look upon, but they have got a mighty fetchin way of startin a man's thinkin machinery off on the back trail, now aint that so? We can swell up and talk big about a man amongst men and havin a head as big as a hamper basket and the like of that. But, by jingo, when the apple blossoms bloom, and the birds sing sweet and constant, and it seems like every thing is breakin out in a fresh place—then your mind turns backward and goes pluggin off towards the old home down there in the old settlement. You couldn't catch by the tail with a steel trap big enough for bear and hold it back. Say, Rufe, how would you like it if we could all back these many years and be a boy once more? How would it suit you to dig some grub worms this mornin and go fishin over on Caney branch? The sap is up now—how would you like to run away and go swimmin in the old mill pond, or cut some hickory sprouts and make whips and whistles? Wouldn't it be bully times if a whole passle of us boys and girls could fling in together and hunt for honeysuckles and sweet violets, or play mumble peg, or build flyin Jennies?

But honest Injun, Rufe, comin right down to business and rock bottom, would the grown man love to swap places with the boy? Do we raley want to throw down the hand we now hold, and draw to others which we know not of? We haven't got so very high up I know, climb as best we could, but would it suit us to turn loose and drap back down the ladder and take another pull from the first round? Would it pay to spit on the old state and spill oil and start over? Take a good look at all the surroundin circumstance, Rufe, and see what a general, all-around spill out would mean for you and me. We have come over a long and rough and dusty road—sometimes up and sometimes down—and by how we ought to know that the time to count the costs is before you take the trip. We will stop right now and count up the costs of this business, and then I reckon we will turn around and come back before we start.

Stacking Up "The Costs."

Now, what would it cost the old man to spit oil and swap places with the boy? You wouldn't have a home with the old folks, but you wouldn't have a foot of land, nor a horse, nor a cow, nor a pig—nothin which you could call your own in your fill and proper name. You could play a little around the elges, as it were, but you would have to work a whole tremendous big lot. You would have to take bolt and turn off all the various and sundry odds and ends and jobs that would naturally fall to a peart and handy boy. And that wouldn't be so very infernal nice and pleasant, would it? Blamed if the very thoughts don't make me tired and hungry and sleepy.

But that aint all, by a whole lot. If we was to take and spill out for a new deal you wouldn't have mother and the babies. How in the round created world could you put up with that, you blasted old idiot? You hounst maybe comover the old trail and fall in love with the same girl and git married to the same. But there aint no tellin. Men aint quite altogether as skeere around Rocky Creek as they use to be. Some other youngster might pull in ahead and turn up Jack and blook your game next time. Then you might have to wiggle and worry through without mother and the babies. Nobody to smooth down the wrinkles, and pull out the silver threads, and let in the sunshine, and brush away the tears, and sew on the buttons, and darn the socks, and patch your Sunday breeches. Nobody to pout and cry for dolls, and picture books, and new shoes, and bear stories, and swings and playhouses and rocky horses, and the good Lord knows what not.

No more of that, Rufe, says I to myself. The spile bit don't go. It would cost too outrageous much.

You are a bloomin, beautiful old rooster to be raisin a rumpus with fast anyhow, I went on with myself. This world has been monstrous kind and good with you, Rufus Sanders. You have been young once, and now you are old, but we have never yet seen the rightest man around at the kitchen window beggin cold grub. You raley ought to spend half of your time readin the Scriptures and sayin Amen in Grace. We have been wild and wayward in our generation, and in spite of all that we said or think or wanderin feet have sometimes straggled out of the good and narrow way. But so far as the record runs we have never run up the white feather in a fight or took up with anything that didn't belong to us. We have met the enemy at the dead line, and no man ever come around by our house spilin for a fight but what he got accommodations. We have held up the good name and standin of the Sanders generation, and we have never yet got called when we couldn't show down. We have got a pleasant place to live, with clothes to wear and plenty to eat.

The time has now come, Rufus, when about the last thing we can do is to let the checkrein down and take a good, safe, steady gait. The faster a man goes and the higher up he climbs the worse it will be for everybody if somethin happens to slip and break his bolt. Sometimes, if you notice, the good Lord lifts a man up yonder in orderment to show he can fall the further and hit the harder when the grand smashup comes. It won't do to git too all-fired peart and proud and prosperous in your old age. Set the back band right. Take your time.

Me and the Government.
There is another thing, Rufe, for me and you to shake hands over and be glad about, says I to myself. We are movin along smooth and easy without kickin up any big dust to speak of with the general government. If the shebang aint agin us we are not agin the shebang. All we want is an open field and a fair fight—then let the best man win. Blessed be God, we are sprung from the aristocracy of simple homes and honest hearts and hard knuckles, and if we can't swim without a full set of government gourd around us, by jings we can stay out of the water.

No doubts you he heard tell of the big scheme of the candidates as fixin up so a man can borrow all the money he wants by puttin his farm producements in soak with the general government. We will be agin that move on general principles. They say Dunk Strickland has got a little one-eyed, siab-sided, wobbled-legged, razor-back steer, which he wants to put in soak for $50. He maintains if other people can soak their lands and their crops he can soak his steer, cause he aint got nothin else, and every man is free and equal in this great country. That would be a big thing for Dunk, you understand, but if we start the soaking business with the government nobody knows for certain where it would stop. As for us, we couldn't soak our corn and cotton and seed potatoes if we had done teen and run heels over appetite in debt, and so long as we don't owe nothin we can keep the stuff here at home, or sell it and put the money away in the family chest.

Consequently, says I to myself, if it ever comes to that pass where we can't make tongue and buckle meet without soakin somethin with the government, then I will move that we go and put our blame foot head in soak.

RUFUS SANDERS.

Parliamentary Compliments.

Talking of parliamentary success, there is a story that Mr. Disraeli once said to Sir William Harcourt: "He has the three essential qualifications for success in politics—a fine person, a loud voice, and no principles." This saying was repeated to Sir William Harcourt, who observed that, "leaving out the first two qualifications, it might almost be applied to 'Dizzy' himself."—London Saturday Review.

INDIGESTION.

As a Result of It, There Were Many Disorders.

The Disease Will Create the Symptoms of Heart Disease, Kidney Disease, Etc.

From the Standard-Union, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Few men have had a more miserable existence and lived to tell the tale than Mrs. Anna L. Smith of 313 1/2 Thirtieth St., Brooklyn. With all the comforts that money affords, with all the happiness that many loving friends can give, the joy of Mrs. Smith's life was blasted for years by the terrible ravages of indigestion. The story is interesting as told to a reporter:

"I was invalid for years, suffering first with one complaint and then with another. My case was truly that of a complication of diseases, due to an accident which I received some years ago. The time which caused me the most discomfort and made me offensive to my family was the worst case of indigestion imaginable. I made all around me miserable by my suffering, and was most miserable myself. I had the best physician I could find, and absolutely his general belief, and I was not better. But I became desperate, and started in to try remedies of which I read. Among them were the Pink Pills. Their appearance captivated me instantly, for I am a great believer in the beautiful. I took the pills and followed the directions to the letter, and before many days I began to feel like a different woman. For six weeks I took the pills regularly, and I can truthfully say after that time as well as any one in the family. This change for the better in my condition has caused my relatives and friends to take the pills. We buy them all at the drug store of Dr. Duggan, at the corner of De Kalb and Summer Avenues. I assure you it was impossible for me to oversee my household for three years. Now I visit my kitchen every day, do my own marketing and shopping; in a word, look after everything connected with my home and family."

"Oh, yes, I still keep taking the pills. I take one daily after dinner. Prevention, you know, is better and cheaper than cure. I really believe that if the women who are suffering from the ills which our sex are heir to would be up and well if they could be induced to give the Pink Pills a fair trial. I can testify to the fact that I feel hearty and feel grateful to the physician who put them on the market."

Mrs. Smith is a woman of some means and standing in the community and therefore, her testimony will be accepted with all question by all thoughtful people. The Pink Pills for Pale People contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., at 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk or by the dozen or hundred.

WHY HE SHAVED.

Senator Bacon Did Not Want His Whiskers.

There was a time when Senator Bacon, of Georgia, wore an ornate and lavish hirsute adornment like the famous whiskers of Mr. Peffer, and pictures taken at the time he was president of the Georgia senate so represented him. Now he contents himself with a simple mustache. How he happened to shear his beard was told by the senator himself recently.

"It was," he began, "when the roller skating craze broke out and invaded the best families in the south. It struck Bacon, and somehow I found a victim in me. Every body was going to the skating rink, and consequently I went. I soon acquired a remarkable degree of grace in gliding dreamily over the floor to the pulsation of exhilarating waltz strains and my company was in great demand by ladies who were still somewhat distrustful of their own skill. I shall never forget. I was acting as the guardian angel one evening of a lady whose main support I was in her feeble efforts to prevent a collision with the floor, and we were rather tremulously gliding hither and thither among the crowd, when an invalid on skates approached us from the opposite direction. I saw at a glance that the man had lost his compass, and nothing but a blind reliance in Providence was deferring his fall. That moment came when he crashed against me. The collision disturbed the center of gravity in my fair companion, while at the same time it has been the downfall of the other. Before I knew what was up the man, in order to save himself, grasped hold of one side of my whiskers, while the lady fastened her grip on the other half, and both held on for dear life while their feet were describing geometrical figures on the slippery floor. Considerations of gallantry prevented me from turning on the wretched being who was clinging to my beard like the proverbial stray on one side and there I was with two struggling fellow creatures in the stress of despair dangling on each side of my whiskers. That experience determined me to sacrifice the whiskers, and to circumscribe my indulgence in that line to a modest, unobtrusive mustache, which affords no comfort to unskilled skaters."—Washington Post.

Hints for the Family.

To Be Expected.

The "new woman" orator was becoming eloquent.

"Shall we permit man, our former tyrant," she demanded, "to flaunt in our faces forever that which shall serve to remind us of our days of docile servitude?"

Intense excitement and cries of "Never!" "Never!"

"Let us wipe out all that savors of that past life!" cried the orator. "Let us blot out the memory of it for all time!"

Cries of "Hear! hear!"

"Let us let the Goddess of Liberty in bloomers this very day!" shouted the orator, in conclusion, and the shout that went up nearly wrecked the building.—Chicago Post.

There Are Others.

Grand Musical Festival.

For the double purpose of creating an interest in this and other towns near, and the edification of the people, generally the second annual musical festival will be given at the Auditorium in Memphis on the evenings of May 13, 14, 15, 1895. It will include three evening concerts, for each of which a distinctive and very strong feature is provided, every program being entirely different, as follows: May 13, Haydn's mastery and delightful oratorio, "The Creation"; May 14, Symphonic and miscellaneous; May 15, Handel's sublime and immortal creation, "The Messiah." The festival will be under direction of the brilliant conductor, Mr. Alfred Ernst, who brings for the occasion his magnificent symphony orchestra of fifty artists. The vocal artists engaged for the festival have been selected with the greatest care from the ranks of the finest favorites the country affords, as follows: Mme. Corinna Moore-Lawson, soprano; Mr. R. F. Miller, tenor; Herr Conrad Behrens, bass; Miss Caroline Eckert, contralto; piano soloist, Mr. Mr. Georg Gerbig. Supplementing this exceptionally strong array of artistic talent, there will be a local chorus of 200 voices, including the foremost local singers, semi-professional and amateur, who have been studying the festival works for several weeks under the direction of Prof. Hermann Schulze. Reserved seats, $1.50; general admission, $1.00. Out-of-town orders for seats addressed to Benj. M. Stainback, secretary, Memphis, Tenn., will be given careful attention.

HOUSEHOLD BREVITIES.

Cream of tartar should always be mixed with flour, soda with milk.

An ounce of good gelatin is sufficient to a quart of liquid for any dessert.

A pinch of salt added to the white of eggs will make them beat up quicker and lighter.

Three ounces of sugar are sufficient to every quart of milk for custards of any kind.

White meated game should be very well cooked, while dark meats should be served rare.

Never use too much flavoring of any kind in baking, especially cinnamon or almond extract.

Keep the soup kettle always tightly covered lest the aroma of the soup escape with the steam.

All fresh fruit should be mixed with sugar before filling in pies. A little butter increases the delicacy.

A good Smyrna rug will stand hard wear for ten years—longer than the best carpet will present a respectable appearance.

Bread, rolls or biscuits, if washed with butter immediately after baking, will shine nicely and will be softer than if not washed.

Woodwork and floors are now stained with a color called forest green. It harmonizes with draperies and coverings of almost any color.

BITS ABOUT PEOPLE.

Susan B. Anthony is lecturing in California.

Rev. Minot J. Savage was given a dinner in Boston by a club named after him.

Mr. Kurino, the Japanese minister in Washington, expects to spend the summer in one of the resorts on the eastern coast.

The late Congressman William H. Crain, of Texas, was one of the best classical scholars ever sent to congress. It is said that he knew the "Iliad" and the Greek tragedies almost by heart.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

to the women who wash with Pearline (the name), when they see a woman washing in the old-fashioned way with soap—rubbing the clothes to pieces, rubbing away her strength, wearing herself out over the washboard! To these Pearline women, fresh from easy washing, she seems to "wear a fools cap unwares."

THE first practical application of the bicycle in war is to be made by the Cuban insurgents. On the steamship Arlancho, which cleared from New York a short time ago, was a supply of wheels, shipped by a firm of New York manufacturers. They were consigned to Neuvas, Cuba. The wheels are to be used by the officers of the insurgent army. As the rainy season will soon set in over the island, the actual worth of the bicycle in war should get a severe and thorough test.

A BILL of wide public interest has been reported by the house military committee at Washington. It permits the detail of 50 officers and 50 enlisted men, who shall be non-commissioned officers, to act as instructors in military drill and tactics in normal and public schools, where such instruction has been authorized by the authorities in charge. At present these instructions are given only in colleges and universities. It is proposed that the law shall apply to public schools where the number of pupils is 150 or over.

A BILL for the adoption of the Torrens real estate plan is now pending in the Ohio legislature, with a strong probability of its passage. The contemplated measure goes far further than the system in some other states, inasmuch as it makes registration compulsory, the present record system being continued till all lands are registered under the new plan. Massachusetts is considering the Torrens system. The same thing can be said of New York, Minnesota, Montana and Utah. It applies to real property the principle which has always been applied to personal property.

GOSSIP FROM GOTHAM.

Gloom Overshadows the Morton Headquarters.

INAUGURATION OF THE RAINES LAW.

Columbia Becomes a Full-Fledged University—Ladies' Day at the New York Yacht Club Proves a Popular Success.

GLOOM AT THE MORTON HEADQUARTERS.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Gloom pervades the Morton headquarters. In spite of the positive assertions of Mr. Platt, Senator Quay and Mr. Manley that they have no idea of giving up the fight, and that McKinley is still actually a long way from having delegates enough to nominate him, the rank and file of the Morton following were feeling very blue indeed. That Gen. Harrison's influence will be exerted to prevent the Indiana convention for instructing for McKinley is about the only hope they have left. Mr. Platt is still confident that McKinley will be defeated, but he refuses to go into details in regard to the manner of the defeat.

"I don't care to make a statement of the real situation or give figures now," he said. "When I have a talk with Senator Quay and Gen. Clarkson I may be able to be more explicit."

THE RAINES LAW.

The first day's operation of the Raines law in the city of New York netted a revenue of $1,000,000 from the liquor traffic. Of this amount one-third must be turned into the treasury of the city. Under the former law the receipts from licenses for a whole year were only $1,700,000. The first week under the new law will bring receipts to exceed that amount. All day there was a line of applicants waiting opportunity to pay $500 for the privilege of doing business under the new law. Each one, as he paid his money, received merely a receipt, which will be regarded by the police as a license until the new tax certificates can be made out.

The Brooklyn excise office receipts for Thursday and Friday reached $435,000.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY.

Columbia college hill stepped out of educational knickerbockers and assumed the most approved style of university garb. It dedicated the new college site on Morningside Heights, a spot as historical as the famous institution itself, and fitted as no other place in New York for a permanent home of learning. The event was the beginning of an era in the history of old Kings college, the Columbia of to-day, and marks the date of the complete ripening from a college into a well-equipped university.

The governor and his staff witnessed the exercises and men of note made speeches. The address of dedication was delivered by Abraham S. Hewitt, of the class of '42, the first to approve of the removal of the university to the new location. Other speeches were made by President Eliot of Harvard and President Seth Low. A dedication ode, in Latin, written by Prof. Harry Thurston Peck, was sung by the students with the glee club leading. Bishop Potter pronounced the benediction, and then college students dedicated the new campus—the first real campus Columbia has ever had—with a college yell that startled all Harlem.

LADIES' DAY OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB.

For the first time the New York Yacht club had a "ladies' day" Friday afternoon, and royally the yachtmen entertained their fair friends. The house was beautifully decorated in palms, smilax and all sorts of boat flags. In the model room were shown all the club's magnificent trophies in the way of prize cups. Among them was the handsome cup presented by George Gould to the club in 1895; the prince of Wales' cup, which the Navahoe won; the Goelet cup and the Commodore's cup of last year; the Defender's cup, the America's cup; the Brenton's Reef cup, won by the Navahoe; the cup presented to the Defender by the New York Yacht club, and the Vigilant's Goelet cup.

Refreshments were served in the library and also at small, prettily-decorated tables in the billiard room, as well as "down below in the ward-room," and there was music by the Hungarian band. Owing to the decided success of the day, it was said by members last evening that Ladies' day will become an annual fixture.

THREE MORE PRISONERS.

From the Competitor Expedition—One Devoured by a Shark.

HAVANA, May 2.—The steamer Triton has arrived with three prisoners from the Competitor expedition, who were captured on the shore. The fourth man threw himself in the sea. The Triton guards fired a number of shots at him, but failed to hit him, and the passengers saw the swimmer torn to pieces by sharks. The names of the men brought are Ramon and Crescencio Gomez and Eusebio Alonzo. They are now confined in Cabanas prison.

They May Be Shot.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Herald's Havana cable says that the men captured on the Competitor are the first filibusters caught since the rebellion began. The belief is general that they will be convicted and shot.

THEY SNIFF VIOLENTLY.

The Woman Expect to Come Off with Flying Colors in the Methodist Conference.

CLEVELAND, O., May 2.—The four women who have been elected as delegates to the conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and their supporters claim to have gained a substantial victory, and the indications are that when the question is fought out on the floor of the conference on Monday the women will come out with flying colors.

The 14 district conferences have held meetings and selected committees to represent their respective districts on the committee which will report on the eligibility of women to the conference. The result was a complete victory for the women, the committee now standing 17 to 11 in favor of the unconditional admission of women. Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, of New York city, the leader of the opposition to the admission of women, was selected from the Second district, and he will lead the opposition on the floor of the conference. From the Eighth district the clerical representative is Rev. Dr. A. G. Kynett, of Philadelphia, one of the leaders of the women's side. The committee will make a majority and minority report on Monday, and then the most exciting session of the conference will be held. Almost all other questions have been lost sight of, and the business of the conference will be unimportant until the woman question is settled.

THE REVELATIONS.

Made at Pretoria Exciting the Lobby of England's Parliament.

THE PLEAS OF THE REFORM COMMITTEE.

Under Which They Were Sentenced Believed to Have Been Arranged to Suppress Evidence Being Given Against Higher Game.

LONDON, May 2.—The questions exciting the lobby of the house of commons and all the political clubs are how far the inner cabinet knew of the revelations made at Pretoria before they were known to the public, and whether Sir Hercules Robinson, governor of Cape Colony, and British high commissioner in South Africa, is implicated in the conspiracy against the Transvaal. The plea of guilty entered by the members of the Johannesburg reform committee, who were on trial, is now believed to have been due to a concerted attempt to avert the publication of the evidence involving Cecil Rhodes and Gov. Robinson, who assured the members that the imperial government would intervene to bring about the quashing of the sentences that might be imposed upon them. No suspicion attaches to Mr. Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies, in connection with the initial conspiracy, but his prolonged tentativeness with President Kruger are held to be partial proof that he learned the ramifications of the plot more completely than he ever disclosed to parliament. Mr. Chamberlain is not to be blamed for necessary reticence, but his reputation as the keenest statesman in the cabinet has been weakened by the fact that he is now admitted on all sides that he has been checkmated by President Kruger at every point. Regarding Sir Hercules Robinson's complicity in the conspiracy, the reference to "Chairman" contained in the cipher dispatches, have been examined in the light of the sequence of events, and the known relations between him and Rhodes prior to the raid.

Inference indicated "Chairman" with Gov. Robinson. It is supposed that Mr. Rhodes confided to him the details of the plan, certainly not Dr. Jameson's preparations to enter the Transvaal, but Mr. Rhodes relied upon the assistance of Gov. Robinson to arrange terms after a successful rising in Johannesburg. The immediate outcome of the publication of the dispatches will be the appointment of a commission to inquire into the whole matter and report thereon to parliament.

Mr. Chamberlain in January promised the house of commons that a commission would be appointed to inquire into the policy of the British South Africa Co. If he had not been absent Friday night to Birmingham he would have been asked to explain the delay in the appointment of the commission. The consensus of opinion is that the inquiry is imperative; responsible ministers are privately concerned in the belief that Mr. Rhodes, Gov. Robinson and everyone concerned in the matter should be summoned to explain their connection with the conspiracy, and that the trial of Dr. Jameson and colleagues now pending in London should be postponed until the plot shall be probed to the bottom.

OFFICIAL DETAILS.

Of the Assassination of the Shah of Persia—His Successor Proclaimed.

TEHRAN, May 2.—The following details of the assassination of the shah, Friday, have been obtained through official sources:

The shah, accompanied by the grand vizier, Asghar, and a number of attendants, paid a visit to the shrine of Shah Abdul Azim. His majesty traversed the outer court of the shrine, where he stopped and gave a bank note to an Arab and spoke a few kind words to a water-carrier. Two chains barred the way to the inner court of the shrine. The shah had just passed the first chain when the assassin approached him, and when within a few feet of him, fired a revolver, the bullet from which struck the shah near the heart. His majesty fell forward on his knees, but rose to his feet and walked a few paces when he fell again. The assassin was immediately seized and hurried away. The shah at once became unconscious and was immediately taken to his carriage and conveyed to the palace at Teheran, whither doctors were summoned as quickly as possible.

When the physicians arrived at the palace they found the shah dead and certified that his death was caused by a bullet lodged in the pericardial region between the sixth and seventh ribs.

Muzafer-Ed-Din, the dead monarch's second son and heir to the throne, has been proclaimed shah.

A Strike in Prospect.

TOLEDO, O., May 2.—On the best of authority it is learned that a strike of the employees of the Toledo Traction Co. is within the probabilities of the next 24 hours. The men have demanded 20 cents an hour for a ten-hour day and the recognition of the union, but the company has refused both.

Decorated by the Kaiser.

BERLIN, May 2.—The Kaiser has conferred upon Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria the order of the Black Eagle, and upon M. Storf, prime minister of Bulgaria, the order of the Red Eagle. He has also conferred the royal order of the Crown upon Col. Petroff, Bulgarian minister of war.

Ex-Cashier Lyned Acquitted.

MARSHALL, Mo., May 2.—S. T. Lyne, cashier of the defunct Slater savings bank, who has been on trial here before Special Judge Jay of Warsaw, for receiving deposits in said bank after he knew it was insolvent, was acquitted.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session.) SENATE.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—After routine morning business the naval appropriation bill was taken up by the senate, the pending question being on Mr. Chandler's amendment appropriating $4,000,000 for 20 torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers.

Mr. Gorman (dem., Md.) argued against the amendment.

Mr. Chandler (dem., Md.) advocated the amendment and said that the net saving effect by it in view of striking out two battleships and some torpedo boats, would be $8,275,000.

Senator Chandler's amendment increasing the number of torpedo boat destroyers with a speed of 30 knots, and torpedo boats with a speed of 26 knots, to 20 in number, at a cost of $4,000,000, was defeated by a vote of 23 yeas and 39 nays.

The house, after the reading of the journal, proceeded, in committee of the whole, to final consideration of the bankruptcy bill. An amendment proposed by Mr. Spaulding (rep., Mich.) was agreed to, striking out of the bill the clause describing as an act of bankruptcy the failure of a debtor to take up, within insolvent, commercial paper to the amount of $500 for a period of 30 days after date of payment and until a petition is filed.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Wholesale Merchants Look With Confidence to the Autumn.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

There is relatively less improvement in general trade this week, the present part of a between seasons character. Wholesale merchants in staple lines in many instances look ahead with confidence to the autumn and in such departments as agricultural implements, building materials, and hardware there is reported a moderate revival of demand.

There is an unexpectedly small number of strikes at this season. In iron and steel there are advances in prices for special grades of pig iron, due to the output of Lake Superior ores having been practically taken up by a few firms. The steel trust is reported extending its territory. Higher quotations are announced for coffee, cotton, petroleum and anthracite coal, while pig iron and lumber are practically unchanged. Copper is easier, and wool has been sold at concessions, manufacturers preferring not to buy large lots at nominal prices. The most encouraging feature of the woolen goods market, from the point of view of the domestic mills, is the higher cost of foreign wools.

Exports of wheat (four fields as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week are smaller than last week, amounting to 1,250,000 bushels, against 1,280,000 bushels last week, and totals between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 bushels in corresponding weeks in the three preceding years. In the like week in 1892 the total was 3,861,000 bushels.

Weekly totals of business failures throughout the United States, while averaging fewer than in weeks during the first quarter of 1896 year, still attract attention. The total number of failures this week, against 37 last week, 39 in last week of April, 1895, 170 in 1894, and 183 in 1893. Business failures in Canada number 24 this week, against 37 last week, 39 in the corresponding week one year ago, 32 two years ago and 30 three years ago.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

An Increase of Nearly Six Millions of Dollars in April.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt issued by the treasury department shows that on April 30 the debt, less cash in the treasury, was $948,287,670, an increase for the month of $5,945,415. This is accounted for in part by a decrease of $1,551,087 in the liability of each in the treasury, and an increase of nearly $5,000,000 in the amount of bonds delivered under the last sale. The debt is recapitulated as follows:

Interest-bearing debt, $343,312,140.
Debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,651,750.
Debt bearing no interest, $374,414,400.
Total, $1,218,378,330.

This does not include $50,594,253 in certificates and treasury notes, offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury. The cash in the treasury is classified as follows:

Gold, $168,446,439.
Silver, $510,586,116.
Paper, $161,775,048.
Bonds, disbursing officers' balances, etc., $97,991,931.
Total, $888,799,556.

Against this there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $595,708,896, which leaves a cash balance of $270,090,660.

NO POLITICAL REFORMS.

Until the Insurrection in Cuba Is Suppressed.

MADRID, May 2.—The Herald publishes what purports to be a report of an interview with Capt.-Gen. Weyler in Havana, wherein Weyler is alleged to have expressed the opinion that he will require two years to suppress the rebellion in Cuba, and that it will be necessary to postpone all political reforms on that island until the insurrection is crushed.

Gen. Gresham's Remains to Be Reinterred in Arlington Cemetery.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The remains of Gen. Walter Q. Gresham were removed from the vault in Oakwood cemetery Friday and forwarded to Washington, where the final interment will be made in Arlington cemetery. Mrs. Gresham and her son Otto accompanied the body.

Dr. Herz' Extradition Refused.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Dispatches received in this city show that the A. P. A. is satisfied that McKinley is all right, and the order will support him.

NATIONAL MILLENNIUM.

Of the Kingdom of Hungary Begun at Buda Pesth.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH, AS KING.

Accompanied by the Empress, Received with Great Enthusiasm at the Scene of the Ceremonies—Millennial Exhibition Opened.

BUDA PESTH, May 2.—The national millennium of Hungary was opened. The skies were clouded in the forenoon, but the weather was otherwise pleasant. Emperor Francis Joseph, as king of Hungary, wearing the uniform of a general, and looking remarkably healthy and vigorous, was received with great enthusiasm as he arrived upon the scene of the ceremonies. His majesty was accompanied by Empress Elizabeth, queen of Hungary, who carried a black sun shade and vigorously used a fan. The exercises were very successfully carried out, and the cheering of the crowds of people who thronged the streets was almost incessant. The Austro-Hungarian princes and archdukes, the foreign diplomats, the members of the Hungarian parliament and the Austrian and Hungarian ministers, together with a large number of delegates from various Hungarian towns and notables from all parts, were present.

The ceremonies inaugurated will last until October 31. The Millennial exhibition, which will be continued until the close of the celebration at the end of October, was formally opened by the king, who delivered an address, in the course of which he said that the exhibition marked an epoch in the history of the nation. Hungarians, he declared, were not only ready to defend their country, but to maintain their position among the civilized people of the earth.

Sunday there will be a Thanksgiving service in the Church of Mathias in presence of the king, and from May 3 until May 15 public meetings of the general and municipal councils and representative institutions and associations of the entire country will be held and gala representations will be given in theaters.

On May 10, a deputation will be sent in all the churches of the kingdom in the presence of the local notables. On June 3 there will be an exhibition of the emblems of royalty, and on June 6 the foundation stone of the new royal castle at Buda will be laid.

Parliamentary representatives preceded by caavalades of all of the municipalities, will, on June 8, present to the king the homage of the nation, and the celebration of the millennium by the united meeting of the two chambers will take place. The new parliament will also be inaugurated, and the law relating to the millennium will be promulgated. The ceremonies of inaugurating the monument of Arpad, in the plain of Pusztaszer, where Prince Arpad and the chiefs of the nation made the first constitutional compact, will be held on July 1.

AMERICAN CATTLE.

Their Exclusion From Belgium the Subject of Diplomatic Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The exclusion of American cattle from Belgium is one of the main topics treated in the correspondence to be published in the forthcoming volume of "Foreign Relations." Since October, 1894, the United States government has been protesting against the harshness of the regulations of prohibition.

The Belgian government maintained that the prohibition was justified by the discovery of contagious pleuropneumonia in bees arriving from the United States, and Secretary (Gresham and Secretary Olney responded with actual statements that the cattle shipped from this country were in excellent sanitary condition.

The correspondence published ends with a note from Secretary Olney to Mr. Ewing, United States minister at Brussels, approving a protest he addressed to the Belgian minister for foreign affairs against the exclusion of cattle. The protest or remonstrance, as Mr. Ewing calls it, was based on the fact "of the great care and expense of the systematic and complete inspection of cattle for export" provided by the United States government, and "of the very slight evidence of contagious disease claimed to have been discovered by the sanitary officials of Belgium."

EVA BOOTH.

Takes Her Departure From New York on the Umbra.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Miss Eva Booth, of the Salvation army, sailed on the steamer Umbra for Liverpool. A large delegation of Salvation army officers were at the dock to bid her bon voyage. She will report at the national headquarters on her arrival at London and receive instructions regarding the command the Salvation army in Canada to which Gen. Booth has already assigned her.

The Pines, Senator Hale's Residence, Burned.

ELLISWORTH, Me., May 2.—The residence of Senator Eugene Hale, "The Pines," was burned. Loss, $75,000; insurance, $45,000. The house was unoccupied, but was undergoing repairs. The valuable library and furnishings in the main house were saved.

A Thieving Bell Boy.

ST. LOUIS, May 2.—A bell-boy at the Planter's hotel was arrested Friday night on a charge of attempted larceny. One of the guests caught the "boy" 22 years old in his room helping himself to the contents of a pocket-book left in a bureau drawer.

STATE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

We, the democrats of the state of Alabama, in convention assembled, declare our continued faith in the old time and honored principles of the democratic party, and among these principles are the following:

1. The free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at 16 to 1 as the standard money of the country, without any discrimination against either metal and without the consent of foreign nations, as the United States coined silver and gold before the republican party obtained control of the government and changed the coinage laws of the country for the benefit of a class and to the injury of a great mass of the people.

2. The unconstitutional penalty of 10 per centum on each issue of state bank notes by any state or national bank, ought to be repealed. It is our purpose to maintain a government in this state fair and just to all, under the control of the white men of Alabama.

The faith and credit of the state must be maintained untarnished.

Our system of public education should be improved and extended so far as the state has the ability, without oppressive taxation.

We are in favor of honest and fair elections, and we recommend that laws be enacted under which primary elections and other party proceedings for the selection of candidates may be conducted.

We cordially invite all good citizens of this state, and especially all democrats who strayed from the party, to unite with us in an earnest and determined effort to maintain good government in the state of Alabama.

Let us preserve the dignity and credit and peace, and, if possible, the prosperity of our state.

THE MOBILE REGISTER having said "Peffer poses as a reformer," the statement is endorsed by the New York Sun after the manner following:

"Peffer is a reformer. He has great ideas very often and he keeps them very long. He is a tearer down and a builder up. He wants to tear down barriers and build up parallel lines of government railroads North, South, East and West, so that every populist in good and regular standing can have a railroad line on each side of his house and a freight station in the barn. He wants to reform the currency so that money will be easy to make and everybody can have plenty of it. He is a reformer because he has done away with a collar and a necktie. Which he has discarded is no essential matter; the principal is the same. There are few wholesale and retail reformers who do a bigger business than Hon. William Alfred Peffer, and he is a real reformer and no imitation by occasionally getting a relative on the government salary list."

Mr. SHUGART, of Jefferson, says the Mobile Register, felt very tired when he realized that fusion meant that he should embrace the colored citizen and call him brother. "When I got up to the convention," he said, "and saw one of Ham's sons, a negro, in the chair, and found that I had to tell my wife when I went home that I staid up in Montgomery until 1 o'clock to ask a negro whether I could go to bed or not—my fellow countrymen, you don't need it. All you want is backbone. I have a wife and five blessed children of the Anglo-Saxon race, and God forbid that I shall stay up another night until 1 o'clock to ask a negro what we shall do." The convention sat down on Mr. Shugart.

E. R. HOLT, Sr., a leading citizen of Montgomery county, went off with the "reform" movement some time ago, but since the proceedings of the populist and republican conventions held in Montgomery last week, he has seen the error of his way and returned to the democratic party, as the following card printed in the Montgomery papers will show:

Editor Advertiser: Having zealously labored in the cause of political reform, believing the people's party meant nothing else, and thinking I was fully informed of its meaning and purpose, it was a pleasure for me to work in its ranks. Without explanation, recent developments caused me to confess disappointment, and to say that I can not afford, from my settled convictions, to support such a ticket in our state.

E. R. HOLT, Sr.
Montgomery, Ala., May 2, '96.

CHANCELLOR McSPADDEN DEAD.

At his home at Center, Ala., Monday morning, May 4th, Chancellor Samuel K. McSpadden died after a lingering illness of several weeks.

Chancellor McSpadden was born in Warren county, Tenn., November 12, 1823, where he grew to manhood and learned the saddler's trade. He came to Alabama in 1842 and lived several years at Talladega, where he read law while at his trade, being admitted to the bar in 1848. In 1850 he began the practice of law in Cherokee county and in which county he spent the remainder of his life. He was a member of the legislature and state senator for several terms and had served as chancellor since 1885.

MR. LANE'S APPEAL.

Hon. Hector D. Lane, president of the Alabama division of the Chicago and Southern States Exposition, has issued an appeal to the press of the state urging its co-operation in supporting the movement for an Alabama exhibit at Chicago. Mr. Lane's appeal should and no doubt will be speedily responded to, as it is in behalf of a cause which promises more towards the South's development than any similar movement ever before begun. Mr. Lane, among other things, says:

"The states of Georgia, Mississippi, Kentucky, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, have signified their intention of becoming active participants, and other states will doubtless accept the magnificent opportunity offered to exhibit their splendid resources to one of the wealthiest and most populous regions of this country. Shall Alabama be left at home and other less favored sections be allowed to reap the benefits to be had for the asking? Every patriotic Alabamian will answer with one accord, never!

"Alabama possesses a greater variety of undeveloped resources than any state in the Union. Her mines are practically inexhaustible; her forests have scarcely felt the blight of the woodman's axe; her fields have only to be tilled and the most abundant yield is at hand. Our manufacturing possibilities are inimitable and only await the advent of capital and labor to lead the world. The atmosphere in Alabama is the purest; the water the clearest and the death rate the smallest of any state in the Union.

"With these advantages Alabama can go to Chicago, confident of inducing both capital and labor within her borders. To do this we must first interest Alabama; we must have representative specimens of the products of our fields, forests and mines. These can only be had from those who really desire an era of improvement and are willing to contribute of their time and funds to assist in this work. Every county should contribute as liberally as possible; every town should come forward with some assistance and the public-spirited citizens should do the same. Then success will be assured, and we may confidently expect the investment of millions of dollars and the acquisition of thousands of honest laborers as a direct result of this work."

Some Are Not So Good.

A printing office is usually considered a rather tough place and the newspaper worker a mighty bad man. Statistics, however, do not bear out that idea. Of 3,890 convicts in the state penitentiary of Texas there is not a printer or newspaper man, while there are ministers, doctors, bankers, barbers, photographers, barkeepers, cooks and members of professions and callings. The printer gets a bad name because the nature of his business teaches him to detest shams and he scorns the hypocrite, says an exchange.

HOW TO GET RICH QUICKLY.

The Boston Globe recently printed a symposium from largely successful business men in answer to the question: "What is the quickest way to get rich?"

Hon. Elijah A. Morse, M. C., of Canton, Mass., well known as the originator and proprietor of the Rising Sun Stove Polish Works, answered as follows: "What is the quickest way to get rich?" I understand your inquiry to come from a young person in the morning of life, just starting out for himself in the world, and dependent upon his own resources. The first requisite to success is to establish a reputation for integrity and good character. These qualifications must be supplemented by ability, industry and perseverance in overcoming untoward obstacles and untoward circumstances. As a rule in this favored land of ours, these qualifications carry in their hand the prestige of victory and success. Many young persons enter life with a fear that they will not be appreciated. They couldn't make a greater mistake. I tell you, young man, they will size you up about right, and you will pass for about what you are. I said in addressing the pupils of the Roxbury Latin School a few days since that I didn't underestimate the fact that I was a good thing to be born well; but I am addressing persons of humble birth and untoward circumstances. If you have the qualities I have mentioned as essential to success you can rise above the circumstances of your birth.

"Do you want illustrations? Abraham Lincoln was a rail-splitter, Andrew Jackson was a Kentucky tailor, Henry Wilson was a Natick cobbler, James A. Garfield drove a horse on a towpath, Nathaniel P. Banks was a bobbin boy in a factory. Do you want similar illustrations in business life of men who have risen from poverty to affluence? George W. Childs was a newsboy on the street when young, George Peabody was a store boy, Elias Howe, the inventor of the sewing-machine, was a poor mechanic in Cambridge, and died worth millions, and what is of more consequence, he died acknowledged in every land and clime a benefactor of his race. Singer, the inventor of the lockstitch, was a poor mechanic in Bridgeport, and while working on his invention only allowed himself one meal a day and four hours a night sleep. John Roach, who as a shipbuilder and master mechanic rose to stand on the highest pinnacle of worldly honor and fame, came to this country a ragged, bare-footed, homeless, friendless Irish boy.

"I have seen young men who thought they could play Jekyll and Hyde, ride in the smoking car and drink some, and swear some, and go to questionable places, and the people wouldn't know it. Young man, you are mistaken. Read the questions that the Boston banks ask about a young man who is seeking a situation. Young man, young woman, a good character, yes, and a clean, religious life, good habits, no tobacco, no cigarettes, are the foundation stones for success in business.

"My son, with all thy getting, get understanding, get wisdom (heavenly wisdom) the merchandise whereof is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than pure gold. Finally and lastly, in this favored world of ours, above all others it is true that there is no royal road to learning (and wealth), and that honor and shame from no condition rise." Young man, young woman, set your mark high; enter upon its pursuit at once; persevere."

LEARNING A BUSINESS.

As a rule, the best business men are those who commenced their mercantile career in a very subordinate position, and, by steady application and attention to the duties that devolved upon them, worked their way upward into a place of prominence. A close inquiry into the careers of many business men reveals the fact that the most of them began business as poor boys, and, by energy, industry and economy, acquired wealth and influence. Instances are rare in which a young man has begun business at the top and has made a grand success of it. Such instances sometimes occur, but not with great frequency. The quickest way in the world in which a young man can get rid of a fortune is to embark in a business of which he knows nothing and attempt to run it on a large scale, says Shoe and Leather Facts.

The education of most of the prominent business men began in small country stores with which they remained until their growing ambition brought them into a field where they had larger and more splendid opportunities. We know there are thousands of young men who are disheartened and discouraged at the humble position in life which they are filling at the present time; but we sincerely believe there never was a better time for young men to rise in the world than exists now. There is always a demand for young men of the right stamp. It takes pluck, perseverance and persistence sometimes to gain the ends desired, but few really fail in finding recognition in the business world who are really worthy of it.

As water will always find its level when left to its own control, so will a young man find his level in the business world. He cannot hope to reach a high position except on his own merits, and if he has no ambition to attain anything beyond mediocrity, the world, as a rule, will estimate him at the value which he places upon himself.

Saginaw Drop Shots.

The Saginaw lumber company will soon complete their new railroad.

Prof. W. E. Harrison passed through Saginaw Thursday.

M. S. Wilson passed through Saginaw Friday on the hunt of a mule. Evidently he is going to farm since he has been defeated in the election.

Mr. Shelby Naish fell from the stocker Thursday and was badly wounded.

H. T. DeHardenlehen, foreman of the lumber yard, left Wednesday for old West Point on a bridal tour.

Rev. L. F. Goodwinspent Friday in Saginaw, having fun with M. W. Leonard and H. C. Fulton.

Mrs. McClendon spent the week with her daughter, Mrs. Aldridge, of this place.

Mrs. Brown and Miss Ella Guy were guests at the Acme Wednesday.

Dr. T. H. Payne returned from Mobile a few days ago, where he has been attending medical college. He is now a full fledged doctor, and from all reports we judge that he will soon take to himself a wife.

Miss Annie Clisby closed her school at this place last Friday, and to the regret of her many friends will leave next week for her home in Verbena. Her place as teacher will be filled on Monday next by Miss Fannie Fulton.

Mr. Logan, of Longview, called at the Acme one night last week. We think it is getting serious with him. How about it, old boy?

Miss Ula Pasberry, of Mulberry, is visiting Mr. Smitherson's family at this place. Be careful with your hearts, boys.

Miss Leila Fulton visited Birmingham last week.

From appearances Mr. John Fulton intends to soon take a companion to help him through life's rugged way. Success to you, old boy, and trust that the time will soon be here when Will-Full can do likewise.

Mr. Bill Galloway, of this place, was married a short time ago.

The young people of this place had an enjoyable time at an entertainment Thursday night, given by J. R. Wagner at his residence.

How is it Mr. Walburn that you are so popular with the charcoal blonds of East Saginaw? It cannot be your good looks. Ah! I have it, you are a yankee.

We regret very much that we are to lose Mr. Naish's family from our midst, and trust that success shall attend them wherever they may go.

J. R. Wagner and H. C. Fulton, well loaded with Cupid's darts wended their way to Yellow Leaf Sunday morning in quest of dear for game.

Dr. T. H. Payne, of Millman, Messrs. McClendon and Duran, Misses Pilgreen and Adkins, of Calera, were guests of the Acme Friday night.

Messrs. Dixon and Wingate rose from their couch Tuesday night at 2 o'clock and walked to Locust Ridge which is 6 miles from this place in search of a gobbler that was heard gobbling there 3 weeks ago. Haven't had very much training in the art of turkey hunting, have you boys?

The place of business of the Ganadargue Mercantile Co., seems to be a very attractive place for the young ladies of Saginaw. It must be the clerk that attracts them, as scenery around that place is just horrible.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

Frank Nelson, Jr., of Anniston, spent Sunday here with relatives.

John P. Spencer is transacting business in Birmingham this week.

Rev. T. K. Roberts, of Montgomery, spent last Friday with relatives here.

Miss M. A. Lester, of Yellow Leaf, is visiting the family of Rufus Lester.

Dr. T. G. Nelson, of Harpersville, paid our city a professional visit Tuesday.

Mrs. W. A. Walburn, of Ganadague, spent yesterday with relatives here.

Mrs. Frank Nelson, of Anniston, is on a visit to relatives and friends in town.

Robert McClendon and C. B. Duran, of Calera, were in the city a few hours Tuesday.

Will Scale and wife, of Childersburg, are visiting the family of his father, T. L. Scale.

Mrs. John T. Cronwell is quite sick, but we hope soon to report her complete recovery.

Ned Anchors, of Pratt City, came over yesterday to witness the marriage of his sister, Miss Earl.

County court will convene in regular session the fourth Monday in this month. This will be a two weeks term.

The commissioners court will convene Monday for the purpose of inspecting the books of Assessor Hammond.

Mrs. H. W. Chester, who has been a guest of Rev. W. I. Stanott, returned last Friday to her home in Riverside, Illinois.

Mrs. M. J. Johnston, who has been quite sick, is now considered to be improving, much to the delight of her many friends.

The Pauline DuBose missionary society will give an ice cream supper on Friday night, May 15th, the object of which is to raise funds for foreign missions.

The Board of Equalization is engaged this week looking over the books of the assessor, prior to their examination by the commissioners court next Monday.

Deputy Sheriff S. W. Nelson went over to Goodwater Monday and returned Tuesday bringing Dennis Ellis alias Tom Ellison, the negro who cut C. B. Elliott recently at Vincent. He placed his prisoner in jail to await trial.

W. J. O'Hara delivered a lecture Tuesday night at the Baptist church, the object of which was to raise funds to pay off the heavy debt hanging over Howard College. The amount raised was $41.00, which was a splendid starter.

The Christian Endeavor delegates who attended the convention in Montevallo, desire to thank the good people who so kindly entertained them and made their stay so pleasant and profitable. May the Lord ever send His choicest blessing to the people of Montevallo is their wish.

A new game, called the "Editor's Delight," is played this way: Take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, fold it carefully, and enclose a bank note sufficiently large to pay up all arrears and one year in advance. Keep an eye on the editor, and if a smile adorns his face, the trick works like a charm. Now is the time to play the joke.

Died, at his home in beat 8, on Saturday, May 2nd, Mr. Columbus Evans, of consumption, aged about 53 years. His death was not unexpected for he had been an invalid for several years, but he was resigned to his fate, and expressed himself as ready to give up his suffering for a life of bliss. He left a wife and eight children to mourn his loss.

A quiet wedding took place in our town yesterday at 9:30, at the residence of the bride's father, S. T. Anchors, at which only the members of the family and a few friends were present. The fortunate groom was J. A. Fulton, of near Saginaw, and the bride Miss Earl Anchors, one of our very best and most highly esteemed young ladies. Rev. L. F. Goodwin, of Helena, performed the ceremony. Our best wishes go with the happy couple, who left soon after they had been made one for their home near Saginaw.

As will be seen by reference to notice elsewhere, P. B. Harrell, registrar of beat 1, only proposes to give Columbiana four of the eighteen days in which to register. This is the county seat of Shelby county, and polls the largest vote of any box in the county, and why we should be given only four days is more than we can understand. We must say in all candor that we think Mr. Harrell ought to do better by us than this, and we hope he will so see it, and give us at least eight or ten days to which in justice we are clearly entitled.

Rev. C. W. O'Hara announces this week as a candidate for the office of county superintendent of education. Mr. O'Hara needs no commendation at our hands. He is thoroughly known over the county, and is highly esteemed and respected everywhere. He served the county several years ago as tax collector, and made one of the best officers we ever had. He is an energetic, conscientious christian gentleman, thoroughly competent, and worthy of any office in the gift of our people.

The Columbiana ball team crossed bats with the Shelby boys yesterday afternoon at Shelby, and the result was a score of 16 to 0 in favor of Shelby. Our boys played a pretty fair game, but the entire absence of scores was the main cause of their defeat. See! The umpire, Thomas Ledbetter, was absolutely fair and impartial in his decisions, and the only reason we can give why our boys came out so badly was that they seemed to entirely overlook the fact that it took scores to win a game.

Important Notice to Voters.

I will be in Columbiana for the purpose of registering the voters in beat one on May 15, 16, 19 and 20, 1896.

P. B. HARRELL, Registrar.

A Card of Thanks.

To the good people of our community for their much kindness and many favors rendered during the illness of our father. Their kindness is appreciated and they will ever be kindly remembered by us all.

W. C. EVANS AND BROS.

To the Patrons of the Columbiana Graded School.

Our school closes June 5th with commencement exercises. The remaining time will be used in reviews and examinations of the year's work. These reviews will establish grades and determine the classification of the school for next year. It is absolutely necessary that pupils remain in school to the close of the session, in order to be promoted with their respective classes. A pupil a little weak in his studies dropping out without the review, will usually lose his class and take rank with those promoted to his grade. Pupils who are studious and ambitious, with bright minds, will sometimes hold their places, but they are rare exceptions. Patrons should consult with the teachers before withdrawing their children from these reviews.

We have graded the Columbiana school, making eleven grades in all. The primary department in charge of Miss Lucy Smith, has grades one, two and three; the third grade had to be changed to the secondary department for want of room and proper seating capacity in the primary room.

Grade one has.....	25 pupils
" two ".....	12 "
" three ".....	26 "
Unclassified.....	14 "

Total enrollment for year.....	87
Less transfer to secondary department.....	10
Balance in primary.....	77

The secondary department has those of grade three transferred from primary and grade 4, 5 and 6, and is in charge of Miss Mary Liles.

Grade three has.....	10 pupils
" four has.....	19 "
" five has.....	19 "
" six has.....	8 "
Unclassified.....	"

Total enrollment of secondary department.....	56 "
---	------

The high school, in charge of W. B. Greek, embraces the 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th and 11 grades.

Grade seven has.....	21 pupils
" eight ".....	13 "
" nine ".....	9 "
" ten ".....	5 "
" eleven ".....	0 "
Unclassified.....	19 "

Total enrollment of high school.....	67 "
Total enrollment secondary.....	56 "
" primary.....	77 "
Grand total for year.....	200 "

The unclassified pupils are those that have studies in two or three or more different grades; hence cannot be classified until they round up and become regular in some grades.

Pupils will neglect reading, spelling, writing, English grammar, etc., and proceed to algebra, Latin and other advanced studies before their minds are sufficiently developed to do that kind of work. A loose, superficial work prevails to an alarming extent in many of our schools. Our aim is thoroughness of work. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Where there is no solid foundation there can be no reliable superstructure. The primary work of an education must first be done and well done.

We ask for a hearty co-operation in building up a school that will merit and thoroughly prepare our children for active life.

May we not hope for the very best "Fitting School" in the state?

Respectfully,
W. B. GREEK, Prin.

Mrs. W. S. Lane returned home last Tuesday after spending several days with relatives and friends in Coosa county.

J. M. Wallis and E. M. Cosper attended the picnic at Sycamore last Saturday and report a pleasant time.

Mrs. Katie Thompson and daughter Ella, of Childersburg, are visiting J. H. Coleman's family this week.

J. B. Gorman went over to Sylacauga last Friday and got on a — the train and came back.

Look out for the man who makes a specialty of pointing out faults in other folks.

The farmers here are considerably behind with their work on account of the continued wet weather through last week. Some of them are not done planting cotton seed, and none have begun to chop any cotton. They are making good use of the present fine weather, and will have their crops in a thriving condition in a few days if the good weather continues.

Miss Jennie Bates went up to Vincent Monday morning and returned in the afternoon, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. W. S. Bilbrey, who will spend a few days with her mother.

Mrs. Rhoda Smith, of Fayetteville, returned home last week, after spending several days with relatives and friends here.

S. V. Coleman and wife, of Pinegrove, are visiting his father's family this week.

CHOCTAW.

Harpersville Echoes.

The rain, the rain, the rain.

J. L. Wilks, of Sylacauga, was in our town one day last week buying cotton which some of our farmers were holding for a better price, but failed to get.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck Nelson, of near Columbiana, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Dr. Nelson.

Doll Heath, colored, and Flaker McGraw, two prominent politicians in the poplite party, went down to the convention at Montgomery last week.

The registrar's book is now open to the voters of beat 10, and we hope that every democrat will do his duty before it is too late.

The show man failed to show up last week, as was advertised, and consequently some of our boys were disappointed.

The democrats of Harpersville met in convention Monday evening and nominated Ex-Governor Russell, of Massachusetts, for president, and Gordon, of Georgia, for vice president. E. D. Stokem, Esq., of Vincent, participated in the convention.

Tax Assessor Hammond was around last week looking up the dear people. Don't be uneasy Mr. Hammond; Harpersville will give you a solid delegation.

There was quite a number of the Harpersvillians attended preaching at Vincent last Sunday, and it was our good luck to be one of 'em. Vincent has two churches, four stores, one school, two hotels, two doctors, one blacksmith shop and wood shop, two gas manipulators, one depot and tank. I was told while there that Charley Elliott was doing a very good business with his hotel, and if a person ever goes there once he will go again, and he don't have to send bottles of wine to the railroad conductors to get patronage either. We could say a great deal more about this growing and booming little town, but time and space forbids and will only add that we spent a pleasant day, heard a splendid sermon, saw lots of people and got a good dinner, and would be glad if such occasions would come oftener.

JAKE.

E. B. Teague, of Columbiana, was in our city last week.

Rev. T. A. Huston went to Columbiana last week.

Mrs. J. F. Pope went to Fayetteville last Sunday.

The Methodist parsonage has been placed in the hands of a contractor for completion. The house will be ready for the occupant in a short time.

The Southern railway has proposed to furnish reduced rates on the local trains, to Shelby Springs, at the close of our school. We are desirous of having a picnic at that time, and are anxious for our Columbiana friends to join us in this pleasure trip; by so doing we feel that we will have a jolly and pleasant day in every respect.

"We mean to ride if we have to walk." The young men have erected a large rig in the form of a band wagon. This beauty is spacious enough to furnish about twenty with comfortable seats. This will enable us to accommodate the young people many times, when in absence of this it would be impossible.

Quite a number of young men and ladies spent last Thursday at Mr. Brown's mill fishing. This was undoubtedly one of the most remarkable events that has taken place with our young people. Everyone present seemed to be lively and well pleased the entire day, but more especially about noon when the contents of those loaded baskets were spread upon the table before us. I was amused and somewhat excited at the great undertaking that was before me, to try to even lessen such a large quantity of well I don't know what all—but after a patient effort for a few moments—I say moments, I don't know how long, I was surprised indeed at the reduction that had been made in the dishes that were near me—ah, I don't mean reduction in the dishes, I had no cause to eat dishes that day, I mean the contents of the basket. Oh my! even the thought makes me anxious to go fishing again. I tell you that dinner beat fishing "when you ain't got nothing but grubworms and grasshoppers for bait," although the fishing was very comical indeed. Those who believe the ladies voices to be very weak, and that they cannot run rapidly, should have been present. You would have been thoroughly convinced that you have been mistaken these many years. My authority for saying this is, that one of the young ladies caught a nice eel; on drawing it to the surface of the water, it gave a flounce; she dropped her pole and ran very rapidly away, accompanying her footsteps with a holloing, vibrating voice. After an eight hour sojourn we were then ready to return home. Having quietly seated ourselves in the wagon thinking of no danger near, the horses turned suddenly, causing us to think we were going to be thrown out. Oscar Tinney got extremely frightened, stepped in the water pail and made a sky-leap to save himself, and to escape the horrible wreck that he decided we were going to have. On gazing to the other end of the conveyance, saw E. Williamson lying with his head upon a stack of umbrellas, yes broken umbrellas after having fallen upon them. No one was hurt and we made our arrival at 8 o'clock in the evening. This trip will only give us a still greater anxiety to go again soon.

THE RAIN, THE RAIN.

The rain, the rain, the cleanly rain,
Has come again at last;
To cheer the farmers everywhere,
And liven up the grass.

The rain, the rain, the falling rain,
So pure and clean and bright;
I gazed and watched it fall so fast
From morning until night.

The rain, the rain, so pure and nice,
Has made the streamlets flow;
Settled the flying dust again,
And made the young plants grow.

The rain, the rain, the beautiful rain,
It permeates the earth;
Prepares it for the present crops,
To feed both man and herd.

The rain, the rain, the damp'ning rain,
Of which the earth doth drink;
It falls before the rays of sun,
And in the earth it sinks.

The rain, the rain, the lovely rain,
Has poured enough just now;
The streets and roads are full of mud,
The farmers want to plough.

The rain, the rain, wonderful rain,
With all it brings that's bad;
Want it to come again next week,
To make the people glad.

Rain! rain! and still it rains and whoop, how the farmers are getting into the grass.

John H. Falkner, of Leeds, paid our place a flying visit yesterday.

Miss Flora Goodwin, of Oxmoor, who has been visiting relatives here, returned home yesterday.

Miss Annie Falkner, of Pleasant Sight community, has been visiting here, but returned home yesterday, leaving many of our lads with sad hearts.

Messrs. J. A. Stewart and J. W. Holcombe, accompanied by their best girls, attended singing at Trinity church Sunday. Go it, boys, while you are young.

One of our young men called to see his girl a few days since and she was away; he remained some time to await her appearance, became weary and left, and so soon as he left she came in and went to church. That was very bad for Pinson—poor boy!

G. M. Bilbrey and family, of Vincent, visited the family of W. H. Falkner, Sunday.

Rev. S. V. McGinnis resigned the care of Beulah church at the last meeting and Rev. W. J. Ray, a student of Howard College, has been called for the remainder of the year.

Married, at Beulah church, at 8 o'clock, April 30th, Mr. Joel L. Falkner and Miss Sallie C. White. The attendants were J. R. Dyke and Miss Lela Turner, J. W. Holcombe and Miss Belle Falkner. W. H. Falkner officiated in a very pleasant manner. While the anxious audience awaited the hour for the bridal party to arrive Squire Falkner amused the crowd by getting off jokes on the boys who were perched by their girls, for which many thanks are due him from the bride and groom. Strange things will happen but Buddie's marriage is the latest. Other boys need fear no danger of being left. We wish them happiness and prosperity and may they find more roses than thorns on their pathway.

Mrs. R. E. Cosper left Sunday on a visit to relatives at Jenison.

W. H. Falkner, registrar of beat 15, began work Monday.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

THE M. E. CONFERENCE.

An Anti-Tobacco Resolution Offered and Referred.

GOD IN THE NATIONAL CONSTITUTION.

Rev. Samuel Dickie Excused to Go Home to Albion, Mich., Where He Has Been Elected Mayor, and Close Up the Saloons.

CLEVELAND, O., May 9.—Bishop Nide presided at the session of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Rev. Mr. Lowthorpe, of Kansas, introduced a resolution asking that all Methodists be asked to abstain from using tobacco, and that no Sunday-school teachers or Epworth League presidents or other officers be elected who used tobacco. Referred to committee on temperance.

A resolution was introduced asking that, as a colored man had given the first dollar toward the new American university at Washington, that at least one colored man be always on the board of trustees of the institution. Ruled out of order.

A resolution and petition opposing the proposed amendment to the United States constitution putting God in the constitution was referred to the committee on church and state. It provided that the words "trusting in Almighty God" should be inserted after the word "posterity" in the preamble of the constitution.

Samuel Dickie, of Albion, Mich., chairman of the Prohibition national committee, and who has just been elected mayor of Albion, was excused by the conference for several days in order to go home and close up the saloons.

The committee on episcopacy was instructed to report on the advisability of electing more bishops by Tuesday at 10 a. m.

A communication from the Methodist church, south, was read by Secretary McGraw, stating that a committee had been appointed to confer with the Methodist church looking to federation of the two churches. It was referred to the board of bishops.

The committee on missions reported a resolution giving annual conference the right to receive any church, synod or conference into the Methodist church upon presentation of the proper credentials. It was stated that while the resolution was in general terms, it was framed to fit the case of the Wesleyan church in Germany, which desired to join the Methodist church.

Rev. Dr. Carl Schull, of North Germany, through the aid of an interpreter, explained the request of the Wesleyan church, and said that its admission would bring many members and much property to the Methodist church.

Rev. Dr. Wm. Brodbeck said if the union of the two churches were consummated it would be the Methodist church an entrance into Austria. The report was adopted with much enthusiasm.

The women are daily gaining supporters. A large number of delegates who had previously voted against the constitutional amendment giving the women admission to the conference changed their votes and voted aye. The change was greeted with applause.

Ex-Senator Harlan, of Iowa, introduced a resolution amending the second restrictive rule, giving the laymen equal representation with the ministers in the general conference. Mr. Harlan said: "The laymen have had a meeting, and we have come to the conclusion that the time has come when the laymen should receive justice by this body. We want numerical equality in this body unless the ministers should give us some good reason why we should not."

On motion it was referred to the committee on lay representation.

ONTARIO CROPS.

Condition of Fall Wheat Poor, with Reduced Acreage.

TORONTO, Ont., May 9.—The Ontario department of agriculture has issued the spring crop bulletin, which says that the general condition of the fall wheat crop is poor, with a reduced acreage. Clover reports are at present unfavorable. There was considerable freezing out during the winter and spring. The remarkable earliness of the growing season is alluded to and fruit is said to promise well.

EARL GREY CENSURED

By the Troopers at Bulawayo for Not Acting in Good Faith.

CAPE TOWN, May 9.—Advice received from Bulawayo says that a meeting of the troopers has been held at that place at which a resolution was passed censuring Earl Grey, administrator of the British South Africa Co., for not giving a written promise that they should be compensated for their losses, and threatening, in consequence, to refuse to support the company. The rebels are quiet, the dispatches say, and show no aggressiveness. Cecil Rhodes remains at Gwelo.

Flat-Footed for McKinley.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 9.—Ex-Gov. M. G. Bulkeley, who is chairman of the Connecticut delegation to the St. Louis national convention, returned from a week's trip to Ohio, where he visited Maj. McKinley and Mark Hanna. The governor, in an interview, came out flat-footed for McKinley and said that he has always been for him.

People's Party Convention.

SARATOGA, N. Y., May 9.—The People's party convention of the Twenty-second congressional district at Glen's Falls has selected A. H. Knox, of Glen's Falls, as delegate to the national convention at St. Louis. The Omaha platform, as formulated by that party in 1892, was adopted.

Taylor Delt, leader of a notorious gang of outlaws, who has been wanted for several weeks for the murder of the sheriff of Pike county, Mo., was captured near Seneca by Detective Looney, of the Atlanta police force.

"A MORAL COWARD."

The Opinion Held of President Cleveland in Havana.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A morning paper publishes an interview with Mr. Guillermo Luis, a business man of Cuba, who has just arrived here, in which that gentleman is reported as saying: "The sentiment in Havana against President Cleveland is almost as intense as that against Gen. Weyler. I do not mean by this that this opinion of Mr. Cleveland is entertained only by the insurgents and their friends; it is the universal feeling, and is given utterance by Englishmen, Germans, Frenchmen and representatives of all nationalities. I am just from Havana and heard on every side expressions of the most bitter hatred against your president. He is denounced as a moral coward, an accomplice of Weyler, and as much responsible for the atrocities and brutalities of the Spaniards as Weyler himself. This feeling does not extend to the people of the United States, whose sympathy with the patriots is most gratefully appreciated."

Denied a New Trial and Sentenced to Prison.

DETROIT, Mich., May 9.—Judge Hosmer, sitting in the recorder's court, denied the application for a new trial in the case of ex-Police Justice J. B. Simpson, who was convicted a couple of weeks ago of attempted criminal assault on Miss Annie Hewlett. Judge Hosmer then sentenced Simpson to six years' imprisonment at Jackson.

Assigned.

OTTAWA, Ill., May 9.—The Schumacher interests at Marshfield, consisting of the Marshfield Land and Water Power Co., and the Illinois River Paper Co., have assigned. The assets foot up about $750,000, more than double the liabilities.

Charles R. Deacon.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—Charles R. Deacon, press agent of the Philadelphia Reading railroad, and secretary of the well-known Clover club, of this city, died at his residence in Overbrook, a suburb. He was 50 years of age.

Suicide of a Fireman.

ELWOOD, Ind., May 9.—Charles Van Ness, member of the fire department here, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

(First Session.)

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—House bill to allow the return, free of duty, of certain articles exported from the United States for exhibition purposes was reported back from the finance committee and passed.

A bill for the construction of a cable and telegraph line from the United States to Siberia, Japan and the Hawaiian islands, and to guarantee interest on bonds, was introduced by Mr. Wilson (Rep., Wash.), and referred to the committee on commerce.

A joint resolution authorizing the employment of counsel for the purpose of bringing suits against the directors and stockholders of the Union and Pacific railroad companies, was offered by Mr. Pettigrew (Rep., S. D.) and laid on the table for the present.

Mr. Pettigrew stating that he desired to address the senate on the subject.

Mr. Stewart (Rep., Nev.) asked and obtained leave to have printed in the record, as part of his remarks, a paper entitled "A National Platform for the American Independents of 1896," proposed by Wm. P. St. John, president of the Mercantile national bank of New York.

"For what party is it intended?" Mr. Mitchell (Rep., Ohio) asked.

"For some independent party," was Mr. Stewart's reply.

Mr. Morrill (Rep., Vt.) chairman of the finance committee, offered a resolution, which was referred to the committee on contingent expenses, authorizing the finance committee to refer "bond investigation" to a sub-committee.

A bill making provision for the deportation of refugee Creole Indians, who came into Montana after the Riel rebellion, and for their delivery to the Canadian authorities, was introduced by Mr. Carter (Rep., Mont.) and passed.

Senate bill to aid and encourage the holding of the Tennessee Centennial exposition in Nashville, Tenn., and appropriating $100,000 for a government building and $100,000 for a government exhibit, was taken from the calendar and passed.

A SCORCHER SCOTCHED.

Singular and Nearly Fatal Accident to a Bicycleist.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 9.—Charles E. Bell was the victim of a remarkable accident that may result in his death.

Bell was "scorching" down Laura street at a place that attracted the attention of pedestrians. As he roared the intention of the late and Forsyth streets he gave a piercing scream and those who were watching saw the rider lifted from his wheel and then pulled into the air, where he hung writhing.

Several persons rushed to his aid, when it was found that he had ridden against a sagging telephone wire that was being put up. The wire caught Bell fairly under the chin, cutting deep behind the jaws. Maddened by pain and almost unconscious, the rider drew in his chin and at that moment the workmen targeted the wire and Bell was thrown into the air. The weight on the wire attracted the attention of the workmen and Bell was lowered to the ground unconscious. The wire had cut deep behind the jaws and hanged him, much as a fish is gilled. A little deeper and an artery would have been severed. As it was he nearly died from loss of blood and may not recover.

MISSOURI JOURNALISTS.

Northwest Missouri Press Association Entertained at Jefferson City.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 9.—Forty-four members of the Northwest Missouri Press association came in Friday evening over the Missouri Pacific railway from St. Joseph, and were royally entertained. An informal reception in their honor was given at the executive mansion at night, and everything possible was done to make their brief stay a pleasant one. The executive committee of the Press association held a meeting in the Tribune editorial rooms to perfect arrangements for the annual meeting, June 5 to 12, 1896, from St. Louis to Memphis, on an Anchor line steamer.

"UNCLE NATTIE" STRAUGHN

Celebrates His One Hundred and Fifth Birthday Anniversary.

ENGLISH, Ind., May 9.—Nathaniel Straughn, familiarly known as "Uncle Nattie," celebrated his one hundred and fifth birthday anniversary Friday by a public dinner and reunion of his progeny, as has been his custom since his centennial birthday anniversary. His descendants present consisted of two daughters and one son—80, 78 and 68 years' old, respectively; 27 grandchildren, varying in age from 51 years downward, and a great-grandchild.

The old gentleman is a native of Kentucky, but has been a resident of Crawford county more than eighty years.

THE CRUISER BROOKLYN

Starts From the Cramps' Yards for Her Builder's Trial.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The new government cruiser Brooklyn left Cramps' ship-yard at 7:15 a. m. for her private builder's trial. She will proceed slowly down the Delaware. On Monday she will have her trial at sea off the Delaware capes.

Accidental Death of a Veteran Fire Chief.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Battalion Chief Wm. Shaw, of the fire department, who fell from a ladder into an elevator shaft Friday at 215 Greene street, died at St. Vincent's hospital. Chief Shaw was 57 years of age, and had been a member of the fire department since its organization.

Cotton Mills Burned.

CHESTER, Pa., May 9.—The extensive cotton mills of Samuel Riddell's Sons, at Glen Riddle, were destroyed by fire, involving a loss of $180,000, on which there was an insurance of $105,000. Four hundred hands are thrown out of employment.

WEYLER WANTS GORE.

So the Competitor Filibusters Have Been Condemned to Death.

AFTER SUMMARY TRIAL AT HAVANA.

There Are Two Americans Among the Five, and Consul-General Williams Enters a Protest—The Bermuda Heard From.

Sentenced to Death.

MADRID, May 9.—A dispatch from Havana says that the five prisoners captured on the schooner Competitor have been sentenced to death. The men sentenced to death are: Alfredo Laborda, born in New Orleans; Owen Milton, of Kansas; William Kinlea, an Englishman; and Elias Bedla and Theodore De la Maza Cubans.

Their trial began in the Havana arsenal Friday. The accused men pleaded not guilty, and witnesses admitted that when the men were captured they were not armed and offered no resistance. Nevertheless the prosecuting officer demanded the conviction of the prisoners and their condemnation to death. United States Consul-General Williams made a written protest against the trial.

The Competitor sailed from Key West between 10 and 11 o'clock on the night of April 20, and had on board 25 or 30 Cubans. She was commanded by Capt. Alfredo Laborda, a resident of Tampa. A few days after the schooner sailed from Key West she was captured by the Spanish gunboat Mesagera, near Harcos, on the northern coast of the province of Pinar del Rio. She was loaded with arms and ammunition.

The Bermuda and Her Cargo.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Confirmatory advice have been received here of the arrival of the steamer Bermuda on the coast of Honduras, but nothing is said in the cablegram as to whether she succeeded in landing the arms and ammunition as well as the 70 men who were aboard her when she left Jacksonville two weeks ago. It is believed, however, the object of the voyage was accomplished, for she could otherwise have reached Truxillo or Puerto Cortez a week earlier than she did.

May Precipitate a Crisis.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The passage of the death sentence on the men caught on the filibuster competitor, it is stated, is liable to bring about a crisis in the relations between Spain and the United States. It is understood that this government will not allow the executions to take place without an earnest and vigorous protest against the summary manner in which the trial was conducted.

Secretary Olney several days ago sent instructions of uncertain date to Consul-General Williams, and these formed the basis for the representations made by Mr. Williams to the court-martial. Every effort is being made to prevent the execution of the sentence until the government can make a thorough investigation on which to base appeals or demands.

Secretary Olney had a long interview with the president on the subject, and on his return to the state department sent telegrams to Madrid and Havana.

FATAL RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

An Indiana Preacher Killed and His Wife Injured.

OAKLAND CITY, Ind., May 9.—As Rev. George Whitman and wife were leaving town for their home, four miles east of here Friday afternoon, their team became frightened and ran off, throwing the aged couple from the wagon, which passed over their bodies. The former died within a few minutes, and the latter sustained a broken ankle and other injuries. Rev. Mr. Whitman was universally popular and officiated at nearly all the funerals and weddings in this section. He was a member of the G. A. R.

Swallowed Morphine.

Dick Litesy, a leading politician of Perry county, Ala., was found in his room in the King house, in Marion, in an unconscious condition. He had taken morphine during the night with suicidal intent, it is believed, but what prompted him is not known. He died.

Damages for Slander.

J. A. Hammonds, postmaster at Hubbs, Ky., has been awarded $1,000 damages from Geo. P. Bright, a wealthy farmer, whom Hammonds sued for circulating reports charging him with larceny and arson. Hammonds sued for $10,000.

Convicts to Load Vessels.

The board of supervisors at Canton, Miss., approved an order authorizing the sheriff to hire out the county convicts for the purpose of loading and unloading vessels in Jackson county.

Father and Child Drowned.

While descending from the hurricane deck of a steamer at Mobile, Ala., Gus B. Roulston, chief of police clerk, missed his footing and let his child fall into the river. He jumped in to save her. Both were drowned.

Capt. F. W. Ledbetter.

Capt. F. W. Ledbetter, an ex-confederate soldier, prominent in the service in Missouri, died at Bristol, Tenn., at the age of 80. He resided in Missouri until three years ago.

Droughts Do Not Worry Him.

Dr. Foyes of Menard county, Tex., has 2,000 acres of cotton land, which he irrigates, and says he gets better cotton than by depending on rains.

A Regular Thing.

The general store of George W. Bachman & Co., of Freemansburg, Va., was burglarized the other night for the twentieth time in as many years.

To Make Bicycles.

The Montgomery (Ala.) iron works, recently foreclosed by bondholders, has been bought and will be converted into a bicycle factory by them.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

Richmond by a Big Wheel.

Austin Cargyle, a colored employe of the rolling mill department of the United States Car Co., at Winston, Ala., was beheaded the other morning.

Cargyle was drawing iron from the mill, when his hands slipped and he fell backward and sideways into the immense fly wheel of the engine which operated the rolls. His head and one arm were instantly cut off, and the headless trunk thrown high in the air. The body fell 12 feet from the head.

New Negro College.

The Maynard institute, a new college for colored people, was opened at Summerville, S. C., recently. It rented quarters. College buildings will be erected. Dr. Breaker, an educator of wide reputation, is president. This new one is to be supported by the southern Christian denominations exclusively. It is promised that it shall have the best faculty of any negro college in the south.

Telling Their Friends to Come.

The neighborhood of Mounds, La., is likely to get a considerable addition to its white population through the efforts of two young Idawits, Messrs. Young and Arnold, who have lately settled there, as on their unequalled praise of the country many of their friends in the north are seriously considering removing to the parish. Land is being offered very cheap and the chances are that a considerable colony will be organized.

A Terror to Blind Tigers.

Judge Powell is making a reputation as a blind tiger terror at Brookhaven, Miss. The maximum penalty under the code for unlawful retailing is $500 fine and six months in jail, and for a violation of the city ordinance against the sale of whisky the maximum punishment is $100 fine and 30 days' imprisonment. Judge Powell imposes the utmost penalty. His policy in the matter is an unpleasant surprise to the blind tigers.

Murdered and Scalped.

Charles Jones was assassinated near Clenny, Fla., and his two companions, Ephraim Bright and Mason Harris were wounded, the latter mortally. The murderous work was done by five white men, who waylaid their victims as the latter were returning from church. Not content with riddling Jones with bullets, the murderers then scalped him, removing every vestige of hair from his head.

Alabama Women's Literary Society.

The Alabama Federation of Women's Literary clubs assembled at Montgomery, Mrs. Clifford Lewis, president of the book club of Montgomery, welcomed the convention to the city, and Miss L. F. Robbins, of Selma, president of the state federation, returned the compliments of the body. About 20 clubs were represented. The literary features were many.

He Was Wealthy, But Sick.

Mike Pickens, an aged and wealthy Irishman of Randolph county, Ala., committed suicide by shooting. He had been sick and several friends were sitting up with him. Late in the night he requested them to retire to an adjoining room and he would attempt to sleep. After they had gone he arose, loaded his pistol, and retiring to bed, fired a ball into his temple.

Fell Asleep on the Track.

Frank Jones, aged 30, while en route from Birmingham, Ala., to his home, near Ishkoda, Ala., late at night, sat down beside the Louisville and Nashville railroad track to rest. He had been drinking some, and it is supposed, fell asleep. A fast freight train came along and threw him to one side, killing him instantly.

Want to Retain the Court.

□The county board at Mississippi City, Miss., adopted a resolution that it was not the desire of the people of the county to have the United States court removed to Biloxi, and a request was ordered forwarded to Mississippi's senators, requesting them to oppose the move.

Swallowed Morphine.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

Second Place on the Republican Ticket Attracting Attention.

BELIEF THAT IT WILL GO TO NEW YORK.

Names Mentioned—Warner Miller Believes the St. Louis Convention Will Declare for Sound Money—The Democratic Faction.

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the absence of any further developments in regard to the presidency, the second place on the ticket has begun to take up the attention of the political gossips. The belief is general that history will repeat itself, and that New York will get the vice-presidential nomination on the McKinley ticket this year. If this should be so it would only be following the precedents of 1876, 1880, 1888 and 1892.

There is talk of a number of New York's for vice-president. The principal names in the mouths of the gossips were ex-Senator Warner Miller, Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy and Lieut. Gov. Charles F. Sexton.

Hon. Warner Miller, after returning from a business trip through the west, predicts that the St. Louis convention will declare for sound money, and said that he did not believe for an instant that the silver republicans in the St. Louis convention will bolt because a sound money plank is to be adopted there.

Mr. Miller said that the far western republicans were very much more interested in protection for wool than they were in the silver question, and that if they can be assured that the free wool schedule would be obliterated they will care little or nothing about the silver issue.

Democratic leaders in Washington are paying more attention to the fight between the sound money and free silver factions for control of the national convention than to the merits of would-be candidates, and it is generally believed the honest money men will win. There is considerable discussion of candidates, however, and it is believed in the capital that former Secretary of the Navy Wm. C. Whitney can be nominated. It is declared, however, that Mr. Whitney would not accept the nomination under any circumstances.

Wm. E. Russell, formerly governor of Massachusetts, is credited with practically all of the 78 New England votes in the convention, which is regarded as a very substantial start in the race.

Senator Brice's efforts in behalf of former Gov. Campbell of Ohio are expected to result in giving him the Ohio delegation to Chicago, and his friends regard him as an acceptable candidate to both sound money men and silverites.

A LIVING DEATH.

The Rome (N. Y.) Train Wreckers Taken to Auburn Prison.

ROME, N. Y., May 9.—John Watson Hildreth, Herbert Plato and Theodore Hibbard, the train wreckers, were taken to Auburn prison by Sheriff Weaver. They bade good-by to their relatives and friends Friday evening.

Miss Perry, Hildreth's sweetest heart, and her mother, called on Hildreth and the young people were much affected. Hildreth tried to cheer the young woman by telling her that his father and Mr. Sayles had promised to do all they could to get him pardoned within a few years. Hibbard's parents, two sisters and three brothers, and Plato's mother and two brothers bade them good by with tears and sobs.

POPULISTS AND FARM HANDS.

From the Texas Sandwich.

"The average pop is, as Josh Billings used to say, 'an amazing cuss.' He can be more different kinds of a fool in the same day than all of old man Vanderbilt's son-in-laws put together and never find it out. When his party leaders declare in favor of a measure the pop throws off his last summer's straw hat and yells till his throat is sore, and if asked what he is yelling for he can't tell to save his life except that it was something the bosses said was a good thing. The platform is set to catch votes coming and going and there are always enough unsophisticated fellows to swallow the bait and never see its inconsistencies. They declare in favor of an eight-hour law for all working men except farm laborers who, for all the pops seem to care, may work their lights out, and then the populist speakers will proceed with grave faces to tell the boys on the farm that their party is their especial friend—and they make a lot of them believe it too. And time nor tide, experience nor observation will ever change the pop. Wherever he is found while the world stands he will be sitting on his coat-tails with one leg elevated so it will be handy for some fellow to pull, and the wind will still whistle through his whiskers."

TOWER OF BABEL.

This Political Monstrosity Will Not Now Be Erected in Shelby County.

THE REPUBLICANS

Are On A Strike and Will Not Support the Confusion Ticket—What Prominent Republicans Say on the Subject.

There is a big row in the republican camp, the biggest you ever saw. The rank and file don't relish even a little bit the way the bosses ran things here last Saturday in the convention. As near as we can find out, the facts are these: Holbrook, chairman of the republican county committee, was on the ground early Saturday morning, and after a lengthy consultation with G. B. Deans he mapped out his program and lost no time in putting it into execution. The first thing he thought wise to do was to dispose of all the colored delegates who were against fusion. This he accomplished by stating to those particular delegates that the convention would be held in the colored school house, near the depot, at noon. The colored delegates whom he could handle he posted, and had them remain in town. As soon as all the unruly delegates had left town for the school house, Chairman Holbrook and four or five white republicans (all of whom voted in the people's party primary, so we are informed) together with eight or ten negroes, went up to the court room, locked the door, and in a few minutes made the nominations for county officers, passed resolutions indorsing the populist ticket and adjourned, after which they left town by the nearest and most convenient route, leaving the delegates at the depot to find out the proceedings at their leisure and bear the chagrin as best they could.

Mr. Holbrook had himself nominated for superintendent of education; John Roberson for tax collector; Peas Shaw for commissioner, and Dr. Abbercrombie for coroner. Quite a number of prominent republicans have been interviewed by The Chronicle since the ticket was put out and we give below the opinions they entertain in their own language. These interviews are genuine, and will be substantiated by every gentleman quoted. Read and draw your own conclusions.

The Interviews.

W. W. WALLS.

"The populists agreed to give us republicans the representative, tax collector, county superintendent and one commissioner. They stood to it until Dean came on the ground. He had an interview—him, Pitts and Longshore—with our chairman, Holbrook. What they talked about I don't know, but before the meeting of the republican convention (which was at 12 o'clock) Holbrook got about five men and eight or ten negroes in the court house, locked the door, and passed a resolution indorsing Longshore for representative. That dissatisfied a majority of the republicans in town. After that, they would have nothing more to do with it, and are asking now for a straight republican ticket to be put in the field. I, for one, will not support the fusion ticket and I think I voice the sentiment of the republican party in Shelby county."

JAMES H. PAGE.

"A few republicans, led by Holbrook, who is dictated to by Aldrich, came here Saturday and made a trade with Berney Deans. I condemn their action in the strongest terms and don't propose to support the ticket under any circumstances. I believe in fairness in politics and fair methods, and if we cannot have a clean ticket, put out in a clean way, they can count me out. I knew when Holbrook came here two weeks ago and held a caucus with Longshore and Pitts the jig was up then; and to cap the climax they held their convention behind closed doors, and some of the very best republicans in the county were refused admission. If that is republican politics, then I am not a republican."

"Two weeks ago, I hear, Holbrook telegraphed several members of the committee (who voted in the people's party primary) to meet him here on the 21st instant. Every member of the committee I saw here Saturday, who participated in the convention, told me that they voted in the people's party primary. I told them that they had no right to participate in a republican convention when they had voted and obligated themselves to support the people's party ticket; and I told them I would not support any such action. I do not believe there is a true republican in Shelby county, white or colored, who will support the ticket got out at this convention."

"I have been a life-long republican, and expect to remain so, but I cannot and will not support the ticket that has been got out."

GEORGE W. CROSSETT.

"I never did favor fusion or co-operation with the populists on any terms. I am a straight republican and have always voted the ticket and upheld the principles of my party, but I do not indorse the course pursued in this county and do not feel in way bound to support the ticket."

THOMAS R. LOVETT.

"I was perfectly willing to co-operate with the populists on fair terms, they to stand by their first agreement to give us the representative and half of the other officers. I went to the convention Saturday instructed by my people to contend for the representative. The populists failed to stand by the terms agreed upon in the conference committee held at Calera."

Therefore I and the republicans of my beat do not, under the circumstances, feel bound to support the ticket put out Saturday."

JOHN T. CROMWELL.

"I am opposed to a conglomerated mess as the ticket put out here last Saturday. Politically it is a bastard, having neither pride of ancestry nor hope of posterity. I cannot swallow that dose, even though the populists propose to sugar-coat it. It is too bitter a pill. I am and always have been a straight dyed-in-the-wool republican, but I positively will not support a ticket gotten out as the one was last Saturday."

W. W. ALBRIGHT.

"I am a lifelong republican and believe in and propose to uphold the principles of the republican party but I do not believe in big pig and puppy both at the same time. Fusion with the populists means the abandonment of the principles of the party for a mere scramble for office, and that, too, by a few self-constituted bosses, who are trying to make tools of us for their own purposes. I am heartily opposed to such proceedings as we had here Saturday, and I feel in no way bound by party ties or honor to support the ticket cut and dried beforehand and rushed through the convention without reference to anybody's wishes except the will of the bosses."

THE DEANS.

A republican, commenting on the Saturday convention said: "Us straightout, honest republicans are not sardines, and no Berney Deans can control us."

SITUATION ELSEWHERE.

A special to the Advertiser, 12th, from Edwardsville, said: "The pop-rep-fusionists are in a terrible stew in this county, and a great many say they will not fuse with them any longer, but will come back to their first love, the democratic party, and vote the ticket on the third of August."

A Great "Reformer."

The fact that a paper to be styled "Reformer" is to appear in the firmament of journalism at Talladega, on or about the 1st proximo, recalls this anecdote: Two Alabama colonels (one a colonel by inheritance and the other by marriage) made it their solemn duty to be in the shire town on court days, whether they had any business there or not. But on one occasion, one of the colonels came up a day in advance. The other colonel arrived next morning and inquired for his friend. "Dead!" he was told. He was thunderstruck. After pulling out his bandana, and as his eyes began to ooze, he asked: "How did he die?" He was told that, as usual, he filled up on whisky and when he went to blow out the candle at night, his breath caught fire and he burned up. "That changes my whole course of life, hereafter," said the colonel; "I am going to take a solemn pledge and be a reformer." And that afternoon, at his own request, the good people assembled in the court room to witness this new-found, great reformer take a solemn pledge, and to assist him, and cheer him, in keeping it. Temperance speeches were made and temperance hymns were sung, after which the colonel was introduced, who said:

"Friends and fellow citizens, good sisters and brethren, you all know who I am. You are all well aware that my life has been one of debauch. You know full well that I have drunk a powerful lot of whisky in your town, together with a line of other intoxicating beverages; and by the way, I want to say the whisky you have here is of excellent quality—it is first class; I wish I had some of it now. But I am here this afternoon, as you are well aware, to take a solemn pledge, and I am going to do it, and I want you to help me keep it. So here she goes (I want you all to rise and stand up by my right hand, while I hold up mine). 'I hereby solemnly pledge, that in the whole course of my life hereafter, I will never take a blow out a candle, or other imaginary likely to endanger my breath.'"

BREVITIES.

THE postoffice department should prevent such books as Holmes' alleged confession going through the mail.

AS the situation now stands the democrats recognize the pops and republicans as very active belligerents in this county particularly.

A mad dog at Ozark was killed only after several other dogs had been bitten by it. Would it not be well to look after the possibility of such an occurrence here, and prevent it?

Reunion United Confederate Veterans. at Richmond, Va.—Reduced Rates via Southern Railway.

For the occasion of the 6th Annual Reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, which occurs at Richmond, Va., June 30-July 2, 1896, the Southern railway will sell tickets to Richmond, Va., and return at very low rates.

Tickets from points in Georgia and Tennessee, north and east of Atlanta and Chattanooga, will be sold June 27, 28 and 29, and from points south and west of Atlanta and Chattanooga, and east of the Mississippi river, tickets will be sold June 26, 27, 28 and 29. Final limit on tickets from all points will be July 6, 1896.

From points south and west of Atlanta, the Southern Railway is the short and quick route to Richmond, Va., via the "Piedmont Air Line," and the service is peerless. From Knoxville, Tenn., to Chattanooga, Tenn., and points west thereof, the route of the Southern Railway is via Asheville and through the scenic "Land of the Sky." The service of this line is unexcelled.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You KNOW

that Paregoric, Esteman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel P. Fitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 33 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 33 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Charles H. Fitcher is on every wrapper.

THE BRICK STORE.

Wilsonville, Ala.

BROTHER, SISTER, LISTEN!

Perhaps I can put you on to a scheme. You know this is a progressive age. Old moss-grown methods are rapidly playing out. I propose to keep up with the procession. Life is too short to continue longer in the old ruts. New methods bring new results, also new goods and likewise new customers. I have too pretty a stock of goods to keep them hid from the world. Therefore I now proclaim to the world at large, and to the people of Shelby county in particular that I have almost anything they can call for, and having bought these goods in large quantities, I can offer many bargains to cash customers. Here is one for a starter:

100 Pieces Standard Prints 4 1-2c.

Now that's pretty smooth, ain't it? Just so; but let me tell you before I forget it, that is only a sample. There are plenty of bargains in my store just as attractive. Seeing is believing. Come and I will convince you. One more bargain.

Big Lot Challies Spring and Summer Shades 4c.

Spring is here and summer is almost within sight, and of course you want straw hats. Don't mention it. I've got 'em, more than you ever saw in one store before in your life. Big, little, old or young, come and get supplied.

Yours for business.

J. F. POPE,

WILSONVILLE, ALA.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney and liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle. At Parker & Armstrong's drug stores.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos Eggers, 189 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

The wily Pops are cunning dux—
They flirt like lady Teazel;
Just when you think they're with you sure,
"Pop goes the weasel."

Strawberry festivals next.

Horace Hammond spent Sunday in Wilsonville.

The water is sodalighful the girls never refuse.

The coming campaign will have lots of ginger in it.

When you take your watch up stairs don't let it run down.

Miss Jane Nabors, of Anniston, is on a visit to relatives here.

Your best girl is ready now to be measured for the ice cream.

Rev. W. I. Sinnott was absent two or three days this week in Oxnore.

Dr. J. B. Boyer, of Wilsonville, transacted business here yesterday.

"Did they carry out the program?"
"No; I saw them carrying them in."

The poem entitled "May" has been placed on cold storage for future use.

Charley and John Leeper, of Birmingham, spent Tuesday with friends here.

Political prophets are now as thick as flies—and some about as troublesome.

Misses Emma and Lula Wilson with Miss T. Hammond spent Sunday in Shelby.

Mrs. D. R. McMillan and Miss Patty Mason spent Saturday and Sunday in Childersburg.

The X ray is needed now to show the skeleton in the dark closet of the con-fusionists.

The political board of "trade" organized here on Saturday had but few members present.

If you marry now, the girl will furnish the bloomers but the swain must provide the wheel.

The tax of ten dollars a year on boarding houses here has reduced the number to a minimum.

Hereafter, if Marshal Cronwell catches any base ball men stealing bases he intends to run 'em in.

One of our enterprising boys proposes raising anglerworms for those who want to go fishing.

Miss Mary Liles left last Saturday for Birmingham, where she spent three days with relatives.

John Millstead and family, of Wilsonville, spent Sunday and Monday in our city with relatives.

Mrs. John Porter, of Blocton, is spending the week with the family of her father, S. T. Anchors.

We have two pop outfits in town at present. The refreshing one pulls the corks and the other pulls the wires.

When you hear a man and his wife making an altitudinous vocal noise, it is safe to infer a "recital" is in progress.

The quantity of softsoap used here last Saturday was immense and exhausted the supply, but the pops have sent for more.

Miss Grace Walker, who has been on a lengthy visit to her sister, Mrs.
T. J. Weaver, leaves today for her home in Jacksonville.

The object of the secret tete-a-tete in the court house on Saturday was to enable the confused infants to take soothin' syrup on the quiet.

Don't go for a misguided politician with the meat-ax of denunciation; it will help him. Use the soothing syrup of fact; that knocks him out.

Had we surmised that there would be a star-chamber eclipse like the con-fusionists got up here last Saturday, our X ray man would have been about.

Some of the county republicans are slipping about quite freely now. The pops so thoroughly softsoaped them here last Saturday they are quite slick.

What a beautiful field of opportunity the revivalists will have reclaiming the eminent lawyers and other distinguished piscatorialists who return now and tell us of their phenomenal luck?

Be careful, ladies, how you use the metropolitan dailies now for giving voluptuous contour to your sleeves.
The political editorials being red hot will have a disastrous effect.

The lion and the lamb were going to lie down together, but when the republicans found the pops proposed to be the lion, with the lamb on the inside of it, the lambs pulled out.

And now look out for the campaign liar. Nero told us recently through a medium that the yarn about his fiddling while Rome was burning, was started by a fusion wirepuller to ruin his reputation.

The season has arrived when the sanitary condition of the city should be looked after carefully. Prevention is better than cure. Chloride of lime can be used advantageously in one particular at once.

Deal gently with the con-fusionists.
Bear in mind that the most of them are modest, sensitive (plants), and all of them will be "retiring" with more alacrity than grace, after sensible electors have voted.

I. D. Mason went to Childersburg
Saturday to be present at the dedication of the Methodist church by Dr.
Newman on Sunday. The church is just completed, and is five miles east of Childersburg, at Edwards' mill.

The last contribution we have been called upon to make was at home—for the benefit of a blind doll; to get her a new pair of glass eyes. We expect next to be called upon to provide artificial limbs for wooden horses.

There will be an interesting program prepared for the fifth Sunday by the Sunday school committee of the Christian Endeavor society. Let everyone read it, and then go to hear what is said on this important work.

"Straws show which way the wind blows." The number and great variety of straw hats "on the town" indicate our dealers in that natty kind of headgear have been doing a lively business; and their stocks are still large.

Inquiry of the barber elicits the fact that none of the visiting political wire-pullers got shaved here last Saturday, in the ordinary way. They were too busy lathering, softsoaping and shavin' each other to attend to anything else.

Did you ever think what a considerable amount of money is expended right here for small fruits and some kinds of vegetables, that can be raised in abundance with care, skill and industry in this section? And people go on saying money is scarce.

Be careful when and where you wear low-cut shoes. An authority says they are frequently the cause of sickness by letting the feet cool off too suddenly. Perhaps it would be better, for perfect safety, to wear arctics all summer and not discard your overcoats.

Don't bring out any of your old, fabric heirlooms. Science says they are hotbeds of tubercle bacilli. Think of the ancient maiden, proudly arrayed in antique lace, or other heirloom, promenading in the midst of the elite with 22,500,000,000 bacilli on her back.

Lemons are not alone good for cooking and drinks, but they are also highly valuable in assisting to keep the complexion fair. There is no doubt that after reading this, all our merchants will order lemons at once for their own use and that of their customers.

Hereafter, under a very elastic and liberal interpretation of the law which says he shall assess all property bounding and abutting on both sides of a thoroughfare, the assessor will assess goats as real estate because they are always a-boundin' and a-buttin' everywhere they can do so.

Last Thursday afternoon Mr. George Whitfield and Miss C. E. Holcomb were married at the Methodist personage, Rev. T. M. Wilson officiating.
So it seems even our preachers enjoy some of the spoils of life. We hear there were quite a number of our girls present to see the knot well tied.

The Hot Blast is one of the very few papers in the United States constantly advertising water for sale.
The advertisement does not specify whether it is hot water or not but to doubt the advertiser is willing to keep any or all the political parties in all the hot water they want. Two of them are in very considerable hot water already.

Baptists here will be pleased to know that a dispatch dated Tien-Tsin, China, 12th instant, says: "Consul
Read, the chairman of the Cheungtu commission, has succeeded in securing payment in full for the Baptist missionary union claims for property losses in the Szechuen riots. Thus all the American claims have been settled in a friendly manner, China paying the whole amount demanded."

The "pops are not now singing with the pops:
"Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Fusion love."
The fellowship of kindred minds is like that above."

Oh! those sweet singers are vocalizing:
"Danned be those slippy' pops, with whom we are engaged."
A fellowship with would-be slicks is like that below."

A. F. Smith announces this week his candidacy for re-election to the office of tax collector of this county.
He is well known throughout the county, and needs no commendation at our hands. His qualifications will be judged, of course, by the record he has already made as an officer, and upon that record he will stand or fall as in the judgement of the people he deserves retirement or promotion.

"A tree is known by its fruit," and this applies as well to a public official.
We leave the people to decide the matter.

Obituary.
Died, in this place, on Monday last, May 11th,
Mrs. M. A. Johnston, relict of John Johnston, deceased, of a complication of diseases super-induced by old age, after a brief illness of only a few days, aged 78 years. Mrs. Johnston was born and reared in the town of Bellamaun, Ireland, but came to this country 49 years ago, and has been a resident of this country 40 years. She was an active member of the Presbyterian church, and a zealous christian, possessed of a happy disposition which endured her to all her associates. We knew her intimately, and never saw her in any but the happiest and most contented frame of mind. She was a devoted mother, and a faithful wife, and her son and sorrowing relatives have the comforting assurance that "they sorrow not as those without hope."
The funeral services were held at 9:30 Tuesday morning at the Presbyterian church by Rev.
T. M. Wilson, assisted by Rev. C. W. O'Hara, and all sympathize deeply with the bereaved family.

Christian Endeavors' Convention.

The first service of the Shelby County
Christian Endeavors was held in the Methodist church in Montevallo, Wednesday, April 30, 1896. The meeting was called to order by President, C. W. O'Hara, and prayer, came organization, enrollment of delegates and the appointment of committees. The following were present: Mrs. J. W. Johnston, Misses Lucy
Smith, Bell Hayslett, G. Green, Emma Mil-

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A SHINING EXAMPLE of what may be accomplished by never varying devotion to a single purpose is seen in the history of the McCormick Harvesting Machine Co., Chicago. For 65 years they have simply been building grain and grass-cutting machinery, and while there are probably forty manufacturers in this line, it is safe to say that the McCormick Company builds one-third of all the binders, reapers and mowers used throughout the entire world.

WITH "ONE GALLUS."

The Sago of Rocky Creek Still Tells His Stories.

Another Clear Case of "Pushover."—Some Second-Hand Cousins.—The Value of a Dead Dog—Two April Fools.

Even when you come right down to plain business and rock bottom we are all "vain and fleetin' worms of the dust!" as Aunt Nancy Newton is so wont to say, and nothing more or nothing less than human flesh and blood and bones.

like the common run of people. He is one of the deacons over at Bark Log and stands away yonder in the church. But in the main time he is a full-blood member of the human family.

A General and Hot Weather.
In a general way I know that Josiah Jernigan is a mighty good man—a plain, honest-hearted, debt-paying man, who worships God and loves his country and serves his day and generation to the best of his feeble ability. He is a man of few words and full of business.

He never did do any talkin' to speak of, but he most in generally always means what he says. He never was a man to dabble in futures, you understand. It is all spots with him. And takin' him up one side and down the other, there ain't a better father or a better husband, or a better neighbor, or a better citizen anywhere in the Rocky Creek settlement than that same Josiah Jernigan.

But Josiah went to town one day last week. He went in his wagon and driv a yoke of steers, and Merv Soregins he went with him. It has since leaked out through Blev that that one of the deacons of Bark Log church had a rough and tumble rucus with his steers that day, wherein his religion got a tremendous bad shock and strain and shakin' up.

And you must keep in mind, long-suffering reader, that Josiah was drivin a yoke of steers and the weather hit was swelterin' hot. I maybe thought he was wrong—I wouldn't make out like I was always right—but I have always held to it that if a man can drive a yoke of steers in hot weather and at the same time confine his remarks to pure Bible language he has got more genuine religion than the man that built the first church and lined the first hymn and preached the first sermon.

From the way in which Merv Soregins has let the cat out of the wallet it would seem like Josiah and his steers had been movin along smooth and peaceable enough till they got down to that Caney Branch swamp. By this time, you understand, the steers had got good and hot and leg-weary, and soon as they caught sight of the cool and refreshin waters of Caney Branch they curled their tails and roached their backs and quit the road and tore off down through the swamp at a fast and furious lik. Blev he jumped the game and lit out right then and there, but Josiah froze to the ropes and followed his "cow team" through three acres of canebrakes and bamboo briars, and he was still with em when they went down into the water. In makin the return trip from the swamp back to the big road it seems like Josiah managed so as to get his foot caught between a wagon wheel and the coupler pole, and consequently in the general confusion he got the heel of his shoe tore off and three of his toes unjointed. It was somewhere along there, from the way Blev tells the news—that Josiah give up the fight, as it were, and let loose and fell and spoke out:

"I don't want to say it—I would rather not say it—God knows I do raley hate to say it, and I hope he will forgive me—but if I must—I have got to say it—dam these steers!"

There has now been some talk around amongst the members of Bark Log to the extent that a church meetin will soon be held, wherein Josiah Jernigan will have to "fess up" or either take out and quit. Of course it is none of my business in regards to that. But I do hope they will all remember that Josiah was drivin a "cow team" while the weather hit was scandalous hot.

Some "Second-Hand Cousins."
That makes me think of the time when me and Sam Nettles and Elder Newberry went to town together, and for the first time in my life I heard some second-hand cussin.

Sam and the Elder went in with their wagons heavy loaded with cotton, and I had took a seat and went-along with the elder.

Mind you, it was then in the dead of winter. The rhins had fell heavy and frequent, and the roads was sloppy and soft enough to bog the shadow of a buzzard. It was but only ten miles to town, though at that time it took a good team to make it through in a day.

Now Sam Nettles was a bad and wicked man, and every time his wagon and team got stalled and stuck in the mud, or struck a steep hill he would put in to cussin the mules and poppin his whip till he made the air blue and they went out in a storm.

Understand me now, I don't say it was the cussin that got the wagon through, and I know as well as anybody that it was wicked and wrong for Sam to be goin on in that reckless way. But somehow or somehow else he was so handy and so furious with his whip and his mouth, and kept up such a roarin big excitement till the mules jest naturally got skeered and took the wagon and tore out of there.

Now as for Elder Newberry, he was one of the best and most peaceablest of men in the round created world for common. He wouldn't carry on very much talk with his mules, and when he did it was with a smooth and gentle voice. So consequently we didn't stay in sight of Sam and his wagon more than two or three miles. For a while we could hear him poppin his whip and cussin and goin on with his mules, but by-and-by he got clean out of hearin.

Well, me and the elder, we worked and worried along as best we could for three or four miles. We had it up and down, in and out, and over and under with them mules and that miserable bad road. The elder he would fumble and fiddle and fool around, talkin to the mules like they were so many babies, and gal babies at that, till presently we struck the Travis lane, which was way yonder the worst piece of road on the trip to town, and there we stuck, and stayed for two long and mortal hours. It was the elder's wagon and the elder's mules, but I told him if I was a sago on that branch of the business—at that time I was not out of the line and over the next hill.

Finally at last it would seem like the elder had run slap-bill to the end of his rope, and I could see that he was fizin up considerable around the edges. The next thing I took notice of he had went down in his pocket after a tawny string and put a new cracker on his whip. Then he mounted the offmule at the wheel and jest naturally made his whip talk. And I am sorry to tell you, that want all—not by a whole lot.

"As that reckless and wicked Sam Nettles would say if he were here," says the elder, "git out of here, daddurn your long-eared, lousy pictures! Goshers, mighty dern a muddy road and a lazy mule in the winter-time! Pick up them feet, daddurn you, and tighten them traces and pull till the breechin flies up and somethin freeze over! Remember when you git your corn and fodder, goldfish and gold, and then git the gold to mud and a mile name Beck!"

Did we git through that line and over the next hill? We got through that lane and over the next hill. Did we go to town that day? We went to town that very same winter day. And Sam Nettles want more than a mile ahead at the finish.

I never did talk it around in the settle, but, and I don't say now that Elder Newberry ever cussed any on his own hook. But I never can forget one time when a mighty change come over the general tone of his voice, and he quoted Sam Nettles at his mules to beat six bits.

The Value of a Dog.
If it ever comes to pass that you might want to find out somethin in regards to the value of dogs, Rocky Creek is the place and Squire Doogin is the man.

They had a little case up before the squire last Saturday, which accordin to Pony Buckle, the bailiff, was "set for ten o'clock."

From the general circumference of the surroundings and the evidence in the case, it turns out that Jude Nabors had shot and killed a spotted hound dog, which the said dog belonged to a man by the name of Handy Stribblin. It would likewise also seem that in consideration thereof, the said Handy Stribblin had got out papers of compellment agin the said Jude Nabors, and put in his claims for damages to the tune of ten dollars.

They had got through with all the witnesses on both sides, when finally at last Squire Doogin called up Handy Stribblin, made him kiss the Bible and put him on the stand.

"Mister Stribblin," says the squire, lookin wise and solemn as he could, "from the facts and the law in the case what was your spotted dog worth?"

"Well, to be plum honest, squire, the dog wint raley worth a continental dollar, but since Jude Nabors was so infernal mean and so all-fired smart as to shoot the dog, I want the full value of the animal."

Now, if you don't know all the men as well as the facts in the case, you maybe mought not think that Handy Stribblin got ten dollars for his dead spotted hound dog. But he did.

Two April Fools.
For a common thing a man would have to stay out mighty late and git up tremendous soon to come out ahead of Andy Lucas. But the news has leaked out at last as to how Will Tom Pickens let the great horse trader out the pot, and then beat him at his own game, with "three cards up his sleeve."

Will Tom had come up from Panther Creek the day before and spent the night at the Lucas place.

"To-morrow is the first day of April," says Andy to Will Tom, "and I want stay over long enough to help me turn a trick on Dr. Honeycutt. I will git sick in the morning—sick abed and sick out—can mount your horse and go a splittin after the doctor. As to me, when the doctor comes I will jump out of the bed, cut the pigeon wing, drag off a few stanzas of somethin sweet and devilish on my fiddle, and then saddle my horse and lope off towards town."

"By the seven stars I'm with you, Andy," says Will Tom, and then Andy he jest naturally laid down and laughed at the very thoughts of what he had in soak for the doctor.

So, accordin to their plans and specifications, Andy he went to bed that mornin, whilst Will Tom he rode off in a sweepin gallop. But the doctor never did come. Will Tom had jest simply whipped around to the main road and went on back home to Panther Creek.

Andy he stayed there at home in bed—rollin and tumblin and carryin on outrageous, and he been for the doctor every mornin. He stood it as long as he could, and when finally at last the truth worked its way through his hair he was the maddest man that ever played the fool in this country. Andy's wife says he was so furious and foam in mad till she was skeered he would hit the baby, and he cursed Will Tom Pickens for two mortal hours on a stretch.

THE TELEGRAPHIC EAR.

There is Individuality in the Touch of the Operator.

A night telegrapher will lay his head within two inches of a working instrument, and sleep as soundly as if he were in bed, but if his own office call is sounded by the instrument, he will waken on the instant. So says an old telegrapher. By long practice the telegrapher's ear becomes so acute that the slightest variation in the working of the instrument is immediately detected; and the receiving operator recognizes the "voice," so to speak, of the sender, if the sender happens to be anyone with whom he has been accustomed to work.

While in Newark, N. J., a year or two ago, I was called to the Western Union office by telephone. When I arrived there the manager said: "There is a man in Philadelphia who wants to talk to you," pointing out the instrument which I was to use. I opened the key and called Philadelphia. The operator answered, and I made myself known. "How are things, my boy," came back an answer, with no name attached.

"Gee Gettler," I said; and so it was. Now mark you, I had not been heard from my friend Gettler for three years, and had not heard him send a word by telegraph during that time. He and I worked on the same line for a year or more, and his sending was as familiar to me as his voice. I recognized his touch, and yet I supposed he was at that time in a Chicago office.

Yes, there is as much difference between the sound of different telegraphers' sending as there is between the handwriting of any two men in the same line of business.

It is said that during the war of the rebellion, Jim Waite, an old-time New York operator, was sent to the front by the government to work important wires. He one day got on to a wire over which important secret messages were being sent by the confederates, and the result would have been funny had it not been so serious.

It was in Tennessee, by Kentucky, I forget which. Waite, with his pocket instrument, got inside the confederate lines, and having learned that messages were being sent over a certain wire from Richmond, he tapped the wire and copied several valuable messages.

This was nothing new, for operators on both sides did the same thing time and again. But Waite was delectious. There was an interruption in the middle of the dispatch, and Jim was eager to get the remainder. To urge the sender he opened his key and simply said: "G. A. Commissary." The "G. A." meant "go ahead," and "commissary" was the last word that had been sent.

What was Waite's surprise to hear instead of a continuance of the message: "Jim Waite, what are you doing on this line? Get out, or there will be trouble." Jim didn't wait even to discover who the man was. He said afterward that the sender had a familiar sound, but he couldn't for the life of him tell who the operator was.

Jim found out four or five years later. He was still telegraphing and was employed in the old Broadway office of the Western Union Telegraph company, New York. One day a young man walked into the office and asked for Jim Waite.

The two men looked at each other, but there was no recognition of the visitor by Waite. In fact, they looked upon each other's faces for the first time.

"So you're Jim Waite," said the caller. "Well, I'm glad to meet you. My name is Mosely, Charles Mosely, and I used to sign 'C. R.' in Charleston."

Waite remembered him in an instant. The two men for a long time had worked different ends of a north and south wire before the outbreak of the war, and had become fast friends without ever having met. Still, Jim didn't know Mosely was the man who had told him to get off the wire inside the confederate lines.

"Where did you go after stealing those dispatches I was sending during the war?" asked Mosely; and then Waite understood it all.—Philadelphia Times.

ONCE HAD TWO SUNS.

Such Is One Theory Held Regarding Our Solar System.

The great density of the several satellites which accompany planets in our solar system is a very strong proof in favor of the truth of the theory that all the revolving spheres in the heavens are increasing in heat rather than diminishing. Our own moon is almost as dense as our earth, and instead of being, as Sir John Herschell supposed, "an orb very much heated, possibly to a degree much exceeding that of boiling water," it is now known to be about 16 times colder than the earth, while Jupiter, that mighty cold planet, even at its surface, is found to be almost incandescent and less dense than the earth.

That our own solar system has now but one central sun is no reason whatever that it did not at one time have two. The very fact of there being discovered what are known as double stars (suns) is a very good proof that every solar system in the universe is not always like our own as regards the number of their suns—in an unsolar condition—and there can be little if any doubt that the coal measures now to be found deposited in our earth were made during a period when our solar system had two central suns, and it is reasonable to suppose that a secondary sun in our solar system and one, too, if it should have revolved in close proximity to our earth, would have sooner or later converted the earth's vegetation into coal.—Science.

FOR COUNTRY'S SAKE.

An Indian Fighter Suffers Agonies from Disease.

He Was in the Battle with the Apaches When Geronimo Was Captured.

From the Press, New York City.
Worn with the exposure of army life on the frontier, and poisoned by the continual drinking of alkali water, Joseph Fliegaut returned to Philadelphia eight years ago, broken down in health and unable to do any work.

He had served five years with the Ninth United States Infantry in many a desperate fight with the Indians in Arizona and other frontier States and had won an honorable record. In the fierce conflict when Geronimo, the famous chief of the Apaches, was captured, Mr. Fliegaut was among the brave soldiers who, forgetful of everything but duty, charged upon the hostile Indians.

He on the plains sent to an untimely death many soldiers who were never touched by a redskin's bullet of arrow, and Mr. Fliegaut came near such a fate as that. A long time before his return to his home he was taken seriously ill, but he stuck to his post until an honorable discharge was finally given to him.

When he reached Philadelphia, the Indian fighter was scarcely more than skin and bones, and for three weeks lay desperately ill in a hospital. He felt dizzy, and his stomach felt as if it had died up. These symptoms were accompanied by bloody dysentery, which no medicine seemed to relieve.

After two years of suffering, Mr. Fliegaut came to New York and was treated by several physicians. These did not agree, some calling his disease cholera, others the stomach, and others chronic diarrhea.

In speaking to a reporter about his illness, Mr. Fliegaut said the doctors helped him, but with the money he spent for advice and medicine he was able to work only a small part of the time. Since moving to his present home, No. 517 West Forty-second Street, in this city, about a year ago, Mr. Fliegaut has been so ill that his voice and hearing almost left him.

Then all medicines failed, and the sick man had little hope of recovery. At this critical time Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were recommended to Mr. Fliegaut, and almost as a last hope, he began taking them.

"The beneficial effect of the medicine was felt at once," Mr. Fliegaut told the reporter, "and before I had taken a box I began to eat and sleep better. I began work and have been able to keep at it since, for five months." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a potent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician. So great was their efficacy that it was deemed wise to place them within the reach of all. They are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form) by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this city at 75 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

STUDEBAKER

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—right directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

PLUG

Sometimes quality is sacrificed in the effort to give big quantity for little money. No doubt about that. But once in a while it isn't. For instance, there's "BATTLE AX." The piece is bigger than you ever saw before for 5 cents. And the quality is, as many a man has said, "mighty good." There's no guess work in this statement. It is just a plain fact. You can prove it by investing 5 cents in "BATTLE AX."

It is evident Weyler is neither a Stonewall Jackson or a Phil Sheridan.

The conspicuous failure of the pops in Kansas, where for quite a while they had absolute control, ought to be a warning that it is unwise to support them anywhere now.

A STRAIGHTOUT republican says the ringsters are ostriches—remarkable for their gizzards. An ostrich swallows everything it can get outside of, whether it can digest it or not.

SOME would-be pop-repubs have been trying hard, this week, to massacre the confusion ticket, but it is so tough, they say, their molars cannot make any impression; besides, if they could chew it, they would find it so bitter they could not swallow it.

If you put a direct question to any of the pop candidates and say: "If by any possibility you could be elected, would you do this and so," he answers "I will." Then he pauses, as if deliberating, and continues: "Not," and after another pause concludes: "Tell you."

If the illustrations of the physiognomies of men who are now aspiring to figure conspicuously in public life are accurate, as published in metropolitan dailies, they are the most frightful examples of ugliness conceivable. Some of them have such black countenances, they look like Sicilian villains of the highest type. If we cannot do any better among the males, we will have to knock all these monstrosities out, put in women, and then we can run a handsome line of politicians.

To BE Or not to be A DEMOCRAT,
And stand by
The Party,
Like a man.
Or, to drift with
The pops
And support
Every untried ism.
Which,
If they were successful,
Would eventually Entail upon the country
Dire calamity.
That is the Milk in the cocoanut,
And thoughtful readers
Will do well
To get this wise milk
In their cocoanuts
As soon as possible
And keep it there
In stock.

"Not that we like Caesar less, but that we love Rome more." Not that the people of the United States are bound that the insurgents in Cuba shall be successful but that Spain shall make Weyler conduct the war in a humane manner, according to the civilization of the present century, and not like a savage.

PERSONS from the country, desiring extra papers, can have them freely for extra poultry of any kind. Those persons who propose to bring in ostriches will please notify us in advance. The ostriches are taken principally by the metropolitan papers as adequate compensation for extra copies of their Sunday editions.

Our mail comes to us Mondays loaded with mammoth editions of metropolitan dailies. A large part of what are not advertisements is trash. There seems to be great stringency in the concentrated wisdom line, and probably that is the reason why much of the reading matter is served up on the ton plan, to give it that form of weight, at least.

The Plant system is advertising a grand excursion from Montgomery, Ala., to Tampa, Florida, at a remarkably low rate. DeLome, the Spanish Minister in Washington, will probably come out and say this is another filibustering expedition, as the most of those who go to Tampa get infected with the war fever and go over to Cuba to join the insurgents.

DEBS, who poses as a great friend of working men, is doing injury by indiscreet utterances condemning capitalists. It is just such vituperation that has caused persons possessing great wealth to withhold their support from many enterprises and that has been the cause, to some extent, of hard times, in many directions. The utterances of such agitators as Debs cause capitalists to be wary how they invest.

WEYLER was heralded as a great and fierce general when he left Spain for Cuba, indeed so ferocious it was thought he would have to be restrained from falling upon and eating up all the insurgents personally. Now, having made it clear he is exclusively a straw field-marshal, and got fame by perspiration of the jaw only, he has taken steps to try and starve the insurgents out, not being able to fight them down, although he has a large army under his command, presumably the flower of the Spanish forces. All cereals are declared contraband of war. That part the Spanish government does not buy with almost worthless scrip must be brought in by the owners, stored in the Spanish fortresses; otherwise it will be confiscated. The next move will be to declare all the babies of the insurgents contraband of war, as the war may continue so long they will grow up to be men and women and go to fighting, the insurgent having many women in their ranks already, who prove more desperate fighters than the men. The babies will be shipped over to the Queen Regent who, like that big, motherly hen we read of, will just spread herself to bring them all up, if she don't order their assassination.

EDITORIAL LIGHT PASTRY.

A blasted Hinglishman, you know, who came over to this bloody country, you see, to condemn lynching, has written home he finds lynchpins everywhere.

When some people favor you with a call, you probably labor under the hallucination it is because they hold you in the highest esteem. When pussy rubs against your leg, you think it is because pussy likes you. No; it is because she is pleasing herself. Pussy wanted something soft to rub on.

A broncho minister from Texas, attending the Baptist convention in Chattanooga last week, broke loose and characterized the Baptist ministers as lazy. If he was to come down here and tell that to some of the Baptist ministers in this locality he would find them just the liveliest men he ever came in contact with.

The excursionists who go to Tampa from Montgomery and this vicinity must certainly be quarantined when they return until all the fleas are removed from them and sent back. Much as we desire immigration it would be best not to have it embrace the Florida variety, which is the most athletic in existence; and it is to be hoped that none of the excursionists will endeavor to smuggle any of the fleas in to preserve them as souvenirs.

"ROOT HOG OR DIE."

After incubation, "The Parson" hatched the following this week:

Friends and fellow citizens I rise
To speak a little piece;
I want to talk to you of Rome
And say a word for Greece.
I shall not jaw to you of Rome
Where crumbling castles stand;
The Rome that I shall jaw about
Is room all o'er the land.
Nor will I fire at you of Greece
With orator and bard;
The grease that I propose to fire,
One form of it is lard.
If you will roam all o'er the land
And note the signs increase,
You'll find the name of Armour there—
The mighty King of Grease.

When he was tender as a shoot
And life had just begun,
He vowed he'd rise unto the skies
And get "whole hog or none."
In pulitix he took no sides
Because not fresh and sweet;
The only sides he cared about
Were greasy sides of meat.

He spent no oil on Bacon's works
Where many things are joked,
But got the market on the line
Of bacon nicely smoked.

The Sons of Ham he thought about
Where work must be endured;
But the hams that took his fancy most,
Were those he'd sugar-cured.

He greased the palms of paper men,
For saying this and that,
And now he lives on "the fat of the land"
And his bank account is FAT.

LATEST GENERAL NEWS.

The General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church meets in Birmingham today.

The supreme council of the A. P. A.'s, in session at Washington, Monday, antagonized McKinley strongly.

The just closed session of the Alabama Christian Endeavorers, at Montgomery, this week, was a grand success.

Dry weather is hurting crops in almost every section of the south. In Alabama there is less complaint than in any other portion.

Northwestern Kansas and a portion of southeastern Nebraska suffered from another tornado last Monday, with loss of life and property.

Diaz, expelled Baptist missionary, says the Catholics are contributing an immense amount of money to carry on the war in Cuba in favor of Spain.

Cardinal Gibbons says: "Catholics are devoted to both the great political parties of the country and each individual is left entirely to his own conscience."

The recent cyclone, which devastated Sherman, Texas, and vicinity, killed at least 100 persons, wounded 150 others, and caused a property loss amounting to nearly half a million dollars.

Weyler will stop the exportation of tobacco from Cuba. It will affect the Cubans cigar and cigarette industries in this country; hurt the United States revenue at Tampa, Fla., alone at least $1,000,000 per annum.

General Fitzhugh Lee is still in Washington, conferring with the president and secretary of state on Cuban affairs and will leave shortly for Havana. Secretary Olney is anxious to have him there as soon as possible.

The justices of the Supreme Court of the United States are divided on the question whether it is in conflict with the Constitution of the United States for a state (like Georgia, for instance) to prohibit the running of freight trains on Sunday.

Allen of Nebraska, pop, got knocked out flat in the United States senate, Monday, in a frantic endeavor to have a noising committee come down here to ascertain if Alabama is under a republican form of government. All voted against his resolution except two pops and four republics.

The Markham House, Atlanta, was totally destroyed by fire last Monday night. Other valuable property was consumed. The fire started in a little fish market and was caused by the explosion of a small gasoline stove. Loss, about $275,000; insurance half. One hundred and fifty persons were in the Markham when the fire commenced. Several persons were injured in the fire generally; the body of one dead boy was taken from the ruins, and many horses perished in a big stable.

Secretary Clark of the democratic campaign committee, states that the democrats of Alabama are going to make the most vigorous and systematic campaign ever made in the state; that the first business of the campaign committee will be to secure a complete poll list of the state. Similar efforts, he said, had heretofore been made to secure a poll list of the state and without success, but the committee recognizes that this is an important feature of proper organization and will bend their every energy to this end. The canvass of the state will commence between the 1st and 11th of June, and in the meantime a programme will be arranged.

B. P. Stokes moved his family from Mississippi here sometime ago with intentions of making this vicinity his future home, but alas he decided he'd rather be back in Mississippi residing in a neat little cottage by the side of a lovely swamp where he could listen to the melodious voice of the yearling frogs and fling chairs at mosquitoes that kept the baby awake causing him to utter words that were never interred in a Sunday school book. While he was walking in his sock feet where little Johnny had been playing with a box of tacks the day before trying to see if he could not succeed in making all of them stand on their heads.

Hanging over the door was the familiar motto "Home Sweet Home." He prefers this to Alabama. Alabama; the very name indicates its superior qualities "Here we Rest." Here in Shelby county we are high enough to escape all malaria chills and fever. Not one person out of twenty can tell you what a chill is.

Last Sunday morning at eight o'clock the boys rigged up the band wagon loaded it with girls and went on their way rejoicing to Four Mile church where they participated in the "all day dinner and singing on the ground." Back at home the little "angels on earth" that did not care to ride in a band wagon on Sunday were praying for those that did commit this awful crime. The singing was grand. Yaller, green and red ribbon fluttered in every direction. With the huge crowd mingled girls that were blessed with the beauty from on high. With that same crowd mingled those that were marked with beauty from below (I guess). Late in the afternoon the band wagon crowd took their departure for Blue Springs church which was near by. There they listened to the gospel expounded by Rev. J. W. Cary. After service they resumed their homeward journey. In the wagon was seated Mr. Cary enjoying himself as much as anybody. On their arrival at Wilsonville the little angels espied the preacher and endeavored to fly away to escape the jeers of that happy crowd. But it was an impossibility as they were not angels—not even good enough to ride in the wagon with the preacher.

The pops are completing their arrangements to have their supporters vote their ticket as early as possible on election day. Also as often; noting so succeeds like intense industry.

Eggs get quite scarce in this market frequently, at the present time. As they are retailing three dozen for a quarter, the country people seem to be consuming largely of them themselves.

It is very inconvenient for our natty cyclers to tumble off their bikes and injure either of their arms, because it is more frequently the one they have the most use for when they visit their best girls.

Put your whole "soul" in good work but when you go to Spencer's for low-cut shoes (good work), sold at low-cut prices, don't try to put a No. 8 "sole" in a No. 5 shoe—it won't work. He will fit you.

Z. H. Clardy & Son's nice building vine stock which take a shower bath there every night, when they can. If not driven off, they would run a regular sand storm every day.

It is nip-and-tuck now which can back the easiest, quickest and hardest, and does it the most, the Odd Fellow lodge goats about town or the bikes. Both of them are evidently erected on the hairtrigger principle.

Dr. Parker has discovered the formula for a small powder which when taken regularly according to instructions absolutely prevents the patient from telling an untruth. He is selling a large quantity of them, presumably to politicians.

There are some very sociable cows in town. Without holding back on the chilly reserve and pride of ancestral dignity, they come right in if you leave the gate open. And they are so passionately fond of flowers, they take some varieties internally.

Our merchants do not regard their customers as kleptomaniacs but still they keep their eyes on everybody who goes near the eggs, they are so scarce sometimes now. At night the gold and silver is stored in the nail kegs and the eggs are put in the safe.

The merchants who do not advertise in the right paper have to be on the qui vive all the time to keep the spiders from stretching their webs across the doorway, and the muddaubers from building their nests among the fabrics on the shelves.

J. W. Bolin and daughter Miss Sallie, of Wilsonville, spent Monday in the city. Mr. Bolin informed us that he had just completed a trade with J. H. Page for about 800 acres of fine pine timber, and intended this fall to make things hum in the saw mill line.

A young lady inquired: "How is it,
Mr. Ell, your cocktie is always tied perfect?" He replied: "Because, when I tie it, I put my whole soul in the operation." That is exactly the principle on which the democrats must work during the present campaign.

A merchant who don't believe in advertising went to sell a pair of brogans, this week, to an unsophisticated country customer who had wandered in there inadvertently, and found the mud-daubers had built their nests in all the lines of shoes he has on the shelf.

Persons sending long obituaries for publication will please remember we are constrained to accept the metallic part of our reward in this world, because we may not have the book or bills along with us in the next; and the exact amount due might slip our memory.

The assassination of bugs in the gardens is quite a lively industry now.
Everything is availed of, from stupendous clubs to the most virulent poison. Kind hearted people lay awake at nights thinking how they can continue the most effectively their murders next day.

Col. Gordon DuBose, the eminent handler of metallic standard here, made a hasty and sudden examination of the rich ground in front of Spencers' conservatory of groceries, etc., on Thursday last, alighting rapidly from a bike for that purpose, and says he found no gold there except his watch.

"All things come to those who wait."
Well, we have waited patiently "ol these many years" without a murmur, and at last the promised reward is in sight. Our antiquated old barn of a depot used by the Southern is to be remodeled, painted and put in splendid trim. Thanks, gentlemen, thanks awfully.

Prof. Greek is perfecting the program for the term closing exercises of the public school. Therefore the children are deeply interested in the work before them, and no doubt will show up in June very creditably, as the principal is not only a good drill-master but also a thorough imparter of instruction.

The cows are not in rags but it looks as though the rags will soon be in all the cows. They are eating ragweed which imparts such an unpleasant taste to their milk. The Latin name for this weed is ambrosia artemisia-folia. It takes a wonderful stretch of taste to find anything ambrosial in the milk when the cows eat the weed.

Very Un-"lady"-like Conduct.

Dacey and Lizzie McMichael, Welch,
Anna, Nancy and French Lindsey, all colored, had a differentiation of opinion while near the Southern depot last Sunday afternoon. They gave a fine exhibition of calisthenics and a went through an extensive line of acrobatic feats, such as throwing the brick, welding the club, etc. At this juncture their voices were 210° in the shade, on a rising market. As a diversion they rolled down the bank cyclically. This part of the show was a regular twister. Field Marshal Cromwell now swooped down upon them, on the double quick, and surrounded and scooped the whole menagerie. The city not yet having erected a castle for the entertainment of violators of moral and statute law, they were released on their own recognizance. The following day they all solemnly filed into the circuit court room and lined up before his honor, Mayor Brown, who bestowed upon them his customary tender look.
He listened to all the testimony attensively and then handed down the decision of the court that Lady Mc-Michael and the French Lady Lindsey could have the distinguished privilege of contributing each two dollars and fifty cents and costs towards sustaining the city government. The invited not having their check-books with them, gave security that the required amounts would be paid pro forma in due time. The supplementary trial "hereafter" will be for violation of the commandment: "Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy."

Amicus Curiae.

[Official and Confidential.]

PART I—IN CHAMBERS.
Barristers W. B. Brown, J. T. Leeper,
W. F. Thetford and Bob Beavers presented a pitiful sight a few days ago. They had all been fishing and consumed so much piscatorial provender the bones worked out through the skin, preventing them from removing their shirts for several days.

PART II—COMMON LAW DIVISION.

When they went fishing they took with them all the paraphernalia for a great piscatorial outing, including the usual (prob)ait. They also carried with them an elegantly bound volume of the Revised Statutes, for edifying reading on Sunday. The concordance was placed in the custody of the most discreet member of the party, with instructions not to let any of it evaporate, after he had duly qualified and given bond. Merchant H. Fox, who had been regularly subpoenaed at the proper time but who had been unavoidably detained by an attachment for business, arrived Sunday and proceeded to worship with them at once.
He found the whole party had become as humble as doves, and strictly contrite, under the edifying moral instruction of Rev. Dr. Bragg. The Doctor said many sharp things to those who were squatted under his preaching, but as they did not go into the heads of his congregation but glanced off taking some of the hair with them, he was forced to desist on the forty-third or he would have had to dismiss them baldheaded. He believes he could have produced a deeper impression if he had brought his trepanning instrument with him.

Mistake in the Right Direction.

A singular case of malpractice occurred here this week, but it is not likely the would-be doctor will be prosecuted for attempting to practice medicine without a license. A gentleman who is in the habit of receiving a large mail daily got with his letters a small package which attracted his attention and to see if it was a dynamite bomb and would blow up himself and all his neighbors he opened it at once. As soon as he removed the wrapper he came upon a small circular headed "Instantaneous Headache Cure." Having a friend down with a severe pain in his head, caused by a disordered stomach, he went to him, told what he had and administered a double dose, right then and there, with the utmost professional decorum and profundity. He then returned to read his letters, one of which told him the package contained an anti-fet preparation, sent out as an advertisement. Also that the establishment is prepared to furnish a headache cure of superior effect, and advised him to read the circular wrapped around the package. His friend is probably one of the thinnest living skeletons in town, so he rushed back to him to explain his mistake.
But judge of his surprise when he found the patient, who had been almost dying, the night before and the greater part of that day, up, well and at work! What cured him, the medicine or imagination? The diagnosis is the anti-fet preparation neutralized in the stomach what was incidentally or sympathetically causing pain at the head.

A million thanks are due the grand orchestra for the delightful serenades they favor the office with so frequently.
Their rendition of "Home Sweet Home," at the bewitching hour of midnight, is extremely pathetic and seems to have the desired effect on everybody else except the musicians.
However, it is understood their favorite oratorio is: "We Won't Go Home Till Mornin'."

It is said that quicksilver, blended in the white of eggs, and applied tenderly by some motherly person, where bedbugs most do congregate, will so discourage them, render them so despondent and so disconsolate, they will either pack up their grips and skip, without the formality of saying good-by, or else turn up their little feet and die.

Free! ABSOLUTELY FREE!

SPENCER, the merchant, has hit it! It is an opportunity for EVERY-BODY to get FREE one of the latest musical instruments out,
"THE REGINA." It plays hundreds of popular airs. The value of the instrument is $67. Two thousand checks have been printed. One goes with every $1 purchase for CASH ONLY; $2 purchase, two checks, and so up, 1 check with each $1 increase. When the 1,000 checks are all out, the person holding the most checks, gets the instrument. The object is to advertise an elegant line of JEWELRY and a complete stock of General Merchandise.

Tale of a Tail.

The populite commission on street discussion of public affairs, were holding a seance this week, in front of their headquarters, to ascertain if George Washington would give them a testimonial, when one of their number, chairman of the committee on good advice, reported as follows:

THE REPORT.

We, your Committee on Good Advice, would most profoundly report that as we were meandering this afternoon our attention and admiration was attracted to a Presbyterian bovine grazing placidly on the succulent grass within the inclosure in front of the Baptist church. The flies were all about her tickling her hide vigorously, but she paid no attention to them; she went right on eating the grass and switchin' her tail —switchin' her tail.

And now your committee, after protracted meditation, would most ardently recommend that all pops follow the example of that good old cow and when the infernal democrats and boisterous straightout - republicans gather round and tickle our political hide, we refrain from paying any attention to them, but go right along eating our grits three times a day and switchin' our tails — switchin' our tails.

The report was received and adopted hilariously.

When a mud-dauber comes into your house, it is not on a social visit; he is on a tour of inspection. If he likes the location, he goes back and has an interview with his wife and they return and commence homesteading to provide for a family. In a few days you will see a mud castle erected, on the antique style of architecture, and probably by that time you will find that the couple have communicated with all their uncles, aunts and coun-sins, and that the whole caboodle of them have decided to move in and lay the foundation for a great colony.
They never file on their claims or prove up.

The mistake of giving an anti-fet preparation for headache cure here this week, fortunately panned out differently from another mistake made at sea. The captain of the vessel had a medicine chest, connected with which there was a book of instructions.
One of his sailors got choic. The book said "Give him No. 6," a form of Thompsonian medicine. The doctor-captain found No. 6 was out but he put up one-third of No. 2 and two-thirds of No. 4, and administered it.
The next day the sailor was buried in the usual manner.

Beat Registrar Harrell informed us that up to the hour of going to press 511 voters in beat one had qualified themselves to vote by registering.
The total registration last time was 558 and 12 registered on election day, making a total of 568 for this beat.
So it seems there are still 57 voters who have so far voluntarily disfranchised themselves. Surely they will all register before the time is out—next Saturday.

Knights of the Maccabees.

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail."—Signed F. W. El-evans, State Com. Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

THE FIRE IN TOWN.

Just as we had gone to press this (Wednesday) afternoon, to get off the early mail (the paper being dated tomorrow, 21st) fire broke out in Amos Elliott's lively stable, adjoining which was B. L. Moore's barn, and the fire alarm was loudly sounded at once.
As a matter of course it created intense excitement, as the fire was right in the heart of the city, but fortunately with considerable space about it; and still more fortunately there was not a high wind prevailing. Most of the stores were closed and everybody went off to assist, doing whatever they could at the fire. At one time Mason's furniture store, filled with furniture, was greatly endangered; and the heat became so intense at one time that the safety and other windows had all to be closed in the Bank Building, where the Chronicle office is located.
The flames rose high, but notwithstanding all the efforts of the citi-
